What Else Is New?; Orr Unanimous Choice for All-Stars

MONTREAL (CP) — For a young guy, Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins is doing OK for himself in the National Hockey League.

Take the voting, for instance, in preparation for the 23rd annual NHL all-star game.

Orr, 21, received the full 90 votes in the first consideration among East Division members of the NHL Writers' Association.

The poll was conducted to determine the first 12 players who will represent the East in the game to be played at St. Louis Jan. 29.

In addition to the 12 players named Friday, coach Claude Ruel of Montreal Canadiens, last year's Stanley Cup winners, will select another seven players next week.

Ruel will coach the East Division all-stars against Lynn Bowman of St. Louis Blues, mentor of the West Division team.

Now in his fourth NHL season, Orr, a native of Parry Sound, Ont., was the only player in either division to be chosen unanimously to the all-star team.

The young defenceman has led the NHL in scoring for most of the first half of the schedule.

Players in the two West teams were selected Thursday.

His appearance will tie a record of 13 consecutive games set by Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal. Howe has missed only the 1947 and 1958 games.

Howe also has the record for most games played, most goals (also), most assists (eight), most points (17), and most penalties and penalty minutes (11 and 35).

Following are the results of the voting for the first 12 places on the East team, with point totals:

Defence—Orr, Boston 90; Jim Neilson, New York 38; Jacques Laperriere, Montreal 32; Brad Park, New York 30; Pat Stapleton, Chicago 26; Carl Brewer, Detroit 26; Serge Savard, Montreal 20; Terry Harper, Montreal 15; Ted Harris, Montreal 11; J. C. Tremblay, Montreal; Doug Jarvet, Chicago 8; Bob Baun, Detroit 6; Tim Horton, Toronto 5; Gary Bergman, Detroit 5; Arnie Brown, New York 3; Doc Emery, Boston 2; Dallas Smith, Boston 1.

Left Wing—Bobby Hull, Chicago 30; Jacques Lemaire, Montreal 26; Frank Mahovlich, Detroit 26; Vic Hadfield, New York 17; Bobby Hull, Chicago 16; Dave Balon, New York 5.

Dawson on Spot

Gambling Scandal Clouds Super Bowl

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Under the cloud of a nationwide gambling scandal that threatened to involve Kansas City quarterback Len Dawson, the Chiefs and Minnesota Vikings meet Sunday in the fourth and last Super Bowl between American and National football league champions.

The game will be on CBS and CBC Television starting at 3:30 p.m. EST.

All 26 teams in the two leagues begin play next year under the National Conference banner.

Until the teams take the field Sunday, the Chiefs in their home red uniforms and the Vikings in their road white with purple trim, only supposition can be advanced about the state of mind of Dawson, the usually placid Chiefs' signal caller who admits he was "shocked" by events early in the week.

Dawson's name was linked to the nationwide gambling investigation by a report that he would be subpoenaed to testify.

Two of Dawson'll team-mates, defensive end Jerry Mays and tackle Jim Tyrer, stated the problem succinctly:

"If we lose Sunday and he throws some bad passes you know what they'll say, don't you?" Mays asked.

"Winning or losing usually is going to fall back on 40 players, but this one would fall back on Lenny."

Tyrer said:

* * *

"Outwardly Lenny'is not bothered by it, but I don't know what he's feeling inside. One thing's for sure—this puts him under the hammer Sunday."

In his hammer, the oddmakers say, will fall on Dawson and the Chiefs by as much as two touchdowns Sunday in the sold-out, 81,000-seat Super Bowl, the latest site for the four-year-old event previously played in Los Angeles and Miami.

On the eve of the game, the coaches reported all troops healthy with the exception of Kansas City safety Johnny Robinson, who tore ribcage cartilage in last Sunday's 13-6 victory over Oakland for the AFL championship.

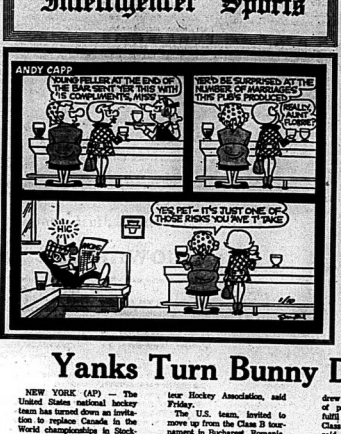
If Robinson can't play, his replacement will be Willie Mitchell, the cornerback who was victimized for two touchdowns in the Chiefs' 35-10 loss to Green Bay Packers in the first Super Bowl.

Two other players who came out of league championship games injured will start.

Kansas City cornerback James Marsalis, the only rookie starter, has recuperated from a bruised kidney and Lonnie Warwick, the Vikings' middle linebacker injured in the 27-7 NFL championship game victory over Cleveland Browns, has recovered from a severely sprained ankle.

Many are saying this will be the most physical of all Super Bowls because of the size of Kansas City's lineup and the fierce charge of Minnesota's front four.

That interior battle, play-within-a play, will match the Vikings front four of ends Carl Eller and Jim Marshall and tackles Alan Page and Gary Larsen against the Chiefs' offensive line of centre E. J. Holub, tackles Tyrer and Dave Hill and guards Ed Budde and Mo Moorman.



Kansas City coach Hank Stram will employ his usual multiple-offence tactics and Bud Grant of Minnesota will go with more traditional techniques in an offence directed by Joe Kapp, the Vikings tough quarterback.

Kapp is the leader of an offence in which Dave Osborn and Bill Brown are the main ground threats and Gene Washington the No. 1 deep-pass catcher.

Dawson has Mike Garret and Robert Holmes in his backfield, while Otis Taylor is the main threat to go all the way with a pass.

Grant Chalks Viking Ascent Up to Luck

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Bud Grant says luck had a lot to do with Minnesota Vikings' rise from a 3-8-3 record in 1967 to the National Football League title in 1968.

But his players feel Grant is the major reason they will be playing Kansas City Chiefs Sunday in the Super Bowl.

"Some say I brought a horseshoe along in 1967," Grant said. "I have been noted for being lucky and it's followed me around."

"Bud has a very impressive point," says Kapp.

"He's a winner. He has an atmosphere about him—when you go out to play, you might as well go out and win."

Brown says "his personality has rubbed off on everybody."

"He has given us more poise and control of our actions. I guess we think a little more."

* * *

Grant, a father of six, came to the Vikings after 10 years and four championships with Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian League. He feels the first season in Minnesota laid the foundation for 1969.

"We lost a number of games that were very close," said the 41-year-old Grant, who keeps his white hair crewcut.

"We used this to show the players where they could have won six or seven games by cutting down on their mistakes.

"Basically we were a young veteran team. We've had a turnover of 21 players. Nineteen players are still with us from that first year. We got Kapp and three first-round draft choices that year, too.

"There was long-range discipline. We had to cut down our penalties, cut down on fumbles. Our interceptions were lowest in the league. This year we led the league with 30 interceptions.

Jackson Could Cut NFL Mustard

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Bud Grant, coach of the National Football League champion Minnesota Vikings, said Friday he feels there are many players in the Canadian Football League who could make good with United States professional teams.

"However, I don't see the prospect of an agreement between the two countries for exchange of players," he told a press conference before Sunday's Super Bowl game against Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League.

"The Canadians are a proud people," he said. "They are proud of their football. They have good players. They would never be content with being a minor league for pro football in the United States."

Before leaving coach of the Vikings, Grant coached Winnipeg Blue Bombers. His star quarterback with the Vikings, Joe Kapp, also is a CFL transfer from British Columbia Lions.

Asked if there were other players in Canada who might succeed as Kapp has done, Grant said:

"Certainly, Russ Jackson, a Canadian who just retired in Ottawa, could have made it in the NFL. Kenny Ploen, who played at Winnipeg, was another who could play pro football anywhere."

Yanks Turn Bunny Down

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States national hockey team has turned down an invitation to replace Canada in the World championships in Stockholm next month, Tom Lockhart, president of the U.S. Amateur Hockey Association, said Friday.

The U.S. team, invited to move up from the Class B tournament in Bucharest, Rozania, to the eight-nation championship field when Canada withdrew in a dispute over the use of professional players, "will fulfil its obligation to play in the Class B tournament," Lockhart said.

Barrie's Bad Guys Lose 8-4

Kazowski Writes Own Scene in Mo-Hawk Play

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Sports Editor)

The script couldn't have been any better if Lou Kazowski had written it himself.

Try this plot on for size: the team's defensive star, who also happens to be the league's highest scoring defenceman, is a doubtful starter in the big game due to a severe back injury.

Then, with the team down 3-0, the party of the first part scores a goal in his first regular shift, assists on three more, and leads the home towners to exciting 8-4 win.

Good enough for Playhouse 90, right?

Well that's, just about the way Lou Kazowski edited last night's 8-4 OHA Senior A win by Belleville Mo-Hawks over their shocked Barrie Flyers visitors.

Kazowski's absence was one of the big reasons Kingston Aces manhandled the Mo-Hawks 10-3 last Sunday, and his pulled back muscle made big Lou a doubtful starter last night.

After the pre-game warm-up coach Peter Jones had Kazowski's name to the Belleville lineup in what he may remember as one of his most valuable bits of handwriting of the season.

Kazowski's only two skates in 7 ½ opening 20 minutes came on penalty-killing and power-play shifts as the Flyers controlled, at a modest estimate, about 80 per cent of the play.

Fern St. Onge connected from John McMillan's pass with the game only 2:43 old as the Flyers sifted through the Mo-Hawk defence lines. A minute later, the Flyers' defence handed ex-National Leaguer Corby Adams the puck in the best possible place — for him — and it was 2-0 Barrie.

Things began to look bleak when Wayne Brown had to be helped from the ice after being taken heavily into the boards in the Belleville end by Barrie's John Weekes in the opening minute of the second period.

That left Lionel Botly and Greg Marchen as the only two healthy defencemen, with the Mo-Hawks trailing by two goals and almost two full periods to play.

Bill Armour, Lorne O'Donnell and George Godson scored in a seven-minute span to give the Mo-Hawks a 4-3 lead and put them ahead for keeps.

Godson seemed to be behind every hit chip and scored the third-period scoring midway through the frame on a power-play tap-in that gave the Mo-Hawks a 5-3 cushion to protect. Godson, who missed last Sunday's game with a flu bout collected six points in all to boost his team-leading total to 33.

Davey Jones made it 6-3 four minutes later with both teams playing four aside. Gary Dalliday and John Baker were sitting out Mo-Hawk majors for their role in a wild brawl in the Barrie end that saw some fans flaunt goalie Ken Payne's swinging stick after both benches emptied.

Jones beat the four Flyers on the ice, including Payne, who was beginning to show the strain of a 51-shot Belleville barrage.

Even that didn't bring the Mo-Hawks down to earth.

The win, combined with Oakville's 7-4 loss to Orillia, moved the Mo-Hawks into sole possession of third spot in the eight-team Senior league, two points ahead of the Oaks. Belleville is now two points behind second-place Galt, who play their first game after their current European tour against the Mo-Hawks in Galt next Saturday night.

With 33 points on a 15-10-3 record, the Mo-Hawks have now collected one more point in 27 games than they did in last winter's full 39-game schedule.

Unbeatable . . . for Now!

The high-scoring Belleville Mo-Hawk forward line of Al Ferguson (19), Lorne O'Donnell, and George Godson have no luck against Barrie Flyers' goalie Ken Payne in this first-period action of Friday night's OHA Senior 'A' game in Belleville.

Things changed, however, as each linemate scored later to help the Mo-Hawks whip the Flyers 8-4 and stay in sole possession of third place in the eight-team senior league.

Mo-Hawks Sign Second 'Fergy'

Can an eight-year National Hockey League veteran find happiness as a Belleville Mo-Hawk rookie?

Following last night's 8-4 win over Barrie, Mo-Hawk playing coach Davey Jones revealed the newest character in the Belleville scene of OHA Senior A drama will be Lorne Emerson.

The Mo-Hawks have landed the services of the 13-year pro veteran and Ferguson will join the club for Tuesday night's regular weekly Memorial Arena practice session.

A stocky six-footer, Ferguson played left wing for Boston, Detroit and Chicago for 453 National Hockey League games, including 31 in the playoffs, ending out his pro career in 1961 after a couple of American League seasons.

His most productive season was a 45-goal, 87-point effort in 1953-54 with Hershey, which he followed up with a 29-goal season with the NHL's Bruins.

In his eight partial NHL seasons, the Palmerston, Ont. native collected 82 goals and 80 assists, and another six goals and three playoff assists.

Senior hockey subscribers remember him as a two-year member of the OHA Senior A's Kingston entry, where Ferguson now lives. He was a member of the Kingston team that toured Europe two winters back.

"People aren't interested in reading about that stuff," he sighed. "Look at Johnny Bower. He says he's what, 41? And he's got to be 80!"

Ferguson is neither 41 nor 80, but will confess to being a teammate of the likes of Bill Quackenbush, Leo Labine and Real Chevrefils.

Trenton: 5-3

Hawks Hit on Missing Formula

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sports Writer

TRENTON — Trenton Golden Hawks climbed into a share of fourth place in the Eastern Ontario Junior 'B' league last night by edging Cobourg 5-3, in what can only be described as a hit-and-miss affair.

That is, Trenton was hitting the Cougars, but missing the net.

It took two periods before coach Roger Drake's belting birds could slow down the Cobourg attack enough to claim the lead. This was due partly to good goaltending by Cobourg netminder Mike Caine and mostly by the erratic shooting of the Trenton forwards, who were hitting everything in sight but the goal.

Ted Brown finally clicked for the winner at 6:42 of the final period on a nice three-way passing play with Jeff Howard and Bim McFall as Trenton held a man advantage. Howard later added an insurance goal in the empty net after Cobourg had pulled their goalie in in attempt to equalize matters.

The Trenton team "came to play", as they say, and despite the faulty marksmanship held a decided edge in play throughout wide-open, hard-hitting contest. They blasted 50 shots at Caine to enjoy a 28-shot margin.

Play was even after two periods, with each team counting twice in the scorer and adding single goals in the second frame." Cobourg almost pulled out an undeserved victory, hitting the post twice in the third period.

Chris Long added the second goal on Jeff Howard's fine pass from the corner at 12:57 of the first period.

Defencemen Carey Webb, who, along with Randy Castellarin was a top blue-line performer, scored the other Hawk goal after Caine had a stopped Ted Brown on a breakaway, near the end of the second frame.

Ted and Terry Brown, who were called up from Juvenile for the game did an excellent job. Ted added an assist to his goal and Terry picked up two assists. Jeff Howard led the Trenton scorers with a goal and three assists.

Trenton drew eight of the 15 penalties in a rough contest that surprisingly enough saw no fights.

Trenton and Cobourg, now tied for fourth with the Ellis Jrs., meet again in Cobourg Monday night.

Ellis Junior B's Face Double Threat

The Belleville Ellis Juniors are faced with double-trouble going into their 7.30 Sunday game with Peterborough. Friday's win by Trenton over Cobourg moved the Golden Hawks into a fourth-place tie with Belleville and Cobourg in the Eastern Ontario Junior B League and tightens the play-off race even further. Faced with two play-off contenders, the need for an Ellis victory becomes even greater.

The Junior B's received good news in that Greg Burkitt, one of their regular defence corps, will be back in action after missing one game because of an automobile accident. His return brings the defence, which made a poor showing Tuesday night in Kingston back to full strength.

Also dressing for the game will be Juveniles Steven Sharpe and Steve Moore who did a creditable job against Kingston.

The Ellis crew faces a stiff test Sunday. Besides their regulars, the Don Byes will be bolstered by the addition of defenceman John Bostock of the Peterborough Petes Junior A squad.

Meet Mo-Hawks

The senior team, currently holding down third spot in the OHA Senior A league standings, promises to give a much warmer welcome to hometown fans than that accorded visiting players.

An orchestra and bar will be provided, with the cost $1 per person.

Tickets are available from all Mo-Hawk Booster Club members.

Be ready for your newspaperboy

When your carrier-boy comes to collect, please make sure you're ready. With the right change. If you're not home, leave it with a brief note and a "thank you". Remember, he has to be back to school. And, your newspaper-boy depends on the bill you pay him to help pay his own bills. Repeat early some rainy week with an extra penny. So—give the boy a break. And friends!

Hockey Withdrawal May Wreck Olympic Hopes

By STERLING TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

One of the major questions concerning two Canadian bids for the 1976 Olympics is whether worldwide shamateurism can survive for another six years.

Little by little during the last decade the once-proud boast of the Olympics, that every competitor was untainted by the sweating brush of professionalism, has been taunted and challenged.

Still, the Olympic Games remain untouched by the promoters and money-mongers although more and more the top countries in each sport event are being forced to withdraw from competition because of the strict rules enforced by president Avery Brundage.

The British pulled their soccer team out of Olympic competition a few years ago, believing that World Cup play carried more prestige and did not restrict them from using their top players. World Cup competition is not restricted to amateurs.

Now, just six years before Canada hopes to play host to the Winter and Summer Olympics at Garibaldi, B.C., and Montreal respectively, she has taken much the same stand in hockey.

Like soccer for the British, Canada's top sport has always been hockey.

But the pull of professionalism has forced Canada out and away from the orbit of amateurism that rotates around Brundage, and the move could have a number of ramifications.

Even if Brundage, 82, and the International Olympic Committee can survive another six years, Canada's withdrawal from world hockey could certainly have a bearing on the voting for the site of the 1976 Games.

Hockey is the drawing card and the money-making sport at the Winter Olympics. Canada intends to enter a team in the 1972 Olympics, but it will be strictly amateur and the Europeans have long proven that they can beat the best Canadian amateurs.

Such a team would probably not finish well enough to earn a berth in the top division of the tournament in 1976, and there is little likelihood that Garibaldi will be given serious consideration if the voting countries feel this country will not be strongly represented in the hockey competition.

Actually, Canada's history of bidding for the Olympics dates back to 1932 when Montreal first bid for the Winter Games.

Canada has entered five other bids for the Winter Games and five for the Summer Games since, including the 1976 bids.

In 1932, Lake Placid, N.Y., won out over Montreal, Bear Mountain, Denver, Duluth, Minneapolis, and two bids from Yosemite Valley.

Montreal bid for the Winter Games again in 1944 and lost out, although the Games were eventually held.

Innsbruck won out over Calgary in 1968, and Sapporo, Japan, won over Banff for 1972.

In the bidding for the Summer Games, Toronto and Montreal both attempted to bring the Olympics to Canada in 1940. They went to Finland.

Montreal bid again in 1944 and lost to London, England.

Montreal's third bid for the Summer Games was for the 1956 Olympics, which went to Melbourne and another bid for 1972 was lost to Munich.

Montreal is up against Los Angeles, Florence and Moscow for the Summer Games in 1976 and Garibaldi is hoping to outbid Lahid, Grenada, Denver and Sion.

Ottawa Adds $2¼ Million To Biafran-Nigerian Relief

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government announced Friday a $1,000,000 contribution to Canairelief, the Protestant church group which nightly flies about 100 tons of food and other emergency supplies into secessionist Biafra.

The organization had asked Nov. 1 for $1,000,000. Its first general appeal to the federal government for financial help was made more than a year ago.

Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp also announced a further contribution of $750,000 to the Red Cross—Nigerian and international committee—and $500,000 for the Nigerian rehabilitation commission.

Dr. Edward Johnson, executive vice-chairman of Canairelief, said Ottawa's contribution is most welcome.

The money would provide $250,000 a month for four months. The organization received $600,000 a month to maintain four relief planes and would immediately launch a big public appeal for funds.

The latest contribution by Ottawa totals $2,250,000 and brings to more than $5,900,000 the federal government's donations to Nigeria-Biafra aid.

The Red Cross operates in both Nigeria and Biafra. Canairelief flies into Biafra only. It is the first time the government has supported a Biafra-only relief group.

Mr. Sharp told reporters that Nigeria is disappointed at Canada's action in support of Canairelief but that he does not expect any diplomatic protest.

A Nigerian government spokesman has said that Canadian government aid for Canairelief would be tantamount to support for secession by Biafra.

Mr. Sharp said in a statement that means must be found to increase substantially the flow of relief supplies. He added:

"In the absence of any early possibility of doing this, however, it is imperative that existing channels be supported, no matter how limited these may be in the amount of relief they can move."

The Conservatives and NDP had maintained for months in the Commons that the government should support existing relief channels such as Canairelief and Caritas, the Roman Catholic Church's relief agency, pending delivery of a fleet of better means of delivering food.

The government had rejected this position until Friday.

Despite Check on the Mark Germany Facing Inflation

BONN (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt's West German government faces a serious threat of inflation. Revaluation of the mark last October has not checked the boom that has produced the steepest price increases in several years.

Economics Minister Karl Schiller would like to slow the economy by cutting government spending, delaying promised tax reductions and using other controls at his disposal. But Brandt's junior partners in the coalition cabinet, the liberal Free Democrats, oppose higher taxes and increased government interference.

This party is fighting for its life, having got barely enough votes in the general election Sept. 28 to put members in parliament. Tax increases and controls could hurt it in the coming state elections, and if the Free Democrats suffer losses, there will be repercussions here.

Brandt's party is reported to have given in to the Free Democrats on the revaluation rate to please the small party's farm and industrial support. Schiller is said to have proposed raising the mark's value 10 per cent. At the insistence of the Free Democrats this was lowered to 8.5.

Analysts rule out another revaluation and think the government will use other tools to deal with the inflationary threat.

Banking circles speculate that the central bank will raise the discount rate to a record seven per cent from six.

Doctors Not Responding: Wells

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Thomas Wells said Friday Ontario doctors will be responding to a provincial scheme aimed at providing adequate medical services for remote and underserviced parts of the province.

The government announced last October it would give $20,000-a-year provincial contracts to doctors willing to work in remote areas of Ontario and $14,000 to doctors who would establish a practice in underserviced areas.

Mr. Wells said in an interview only two doctors have applied for the remote-area contracts and none for the $14,000 establishment-of-practice payment.

He said 45 Ontario areas are designated underserviced and 36 others are being studied.

Dentists also have failed to respond, Mr. Wells said. They are eligible for $22,000-a-year provincial contracts and also for the $14,000 establishment-of-practice payment.

The minister said another program involving medical students, to work well.

The government offers to pay $3,000-a-year bursaries to students if they agree to serve after graduation in a designated area for one year for each year they received the bursary.

Mr. Wells said 61 medical students, three interns and 23 dentistry students have signed up for the scheme.

The health department estimated this should produce three doctors this year, four next year, 26 in 1972 and 21 the following year.

Diagnosis Tricky In Mild Illness

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Stop Killing Yourself indeed en

Diagnosis is relatively easy in an out-and-out attack of gallstone colic; in typical acute appendicitis; in a full-blown pneumonia. And in scores of other conditions in which typical symptoms and signs point like the accusing finger at the suspect.

But some cases of gallbladder disease, appendicitis, pneumonia, etc., are overlooked because they are atypical.

One condition often unsuspected in the elderly, especially, is hypothyroidism — low acting thyroid gland — for example:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a 62-year-old housewife. Until six months ago I was a wreck. I was overweight, my skin was dry, hair falling out, always tired and sleepy. No ambition. I let my house and husband go. Just sat there trying to regain energy.

I took all kinds of tonics and vitamins and iron tablets, but they did no good whatsoever. I was tired, dejected and nervous. People called me a dull companion, and I realized I was.

One day I decided to try another doctor. He — for some reason the others didn't — immediately suspected I might have a low functioning thyroid.

He took tests. First, the basal metabolism was below normal. But he wanted to make sure, so he took a serum protein-bound iodine test just to check. This also showed the trouble was in the thyroid.

He put me on some thyroid extract tablets to be taken every day. As I said, until six months ago I was a wreck; but now I feel reborn. My skin and hair have returned to normal. I'm wide awake.

The phone rings with calls from neighbors who wouldn't give me the time of day until lately. I'm not tired any more and my husband says "What's happened?" All I can say is I'm a happy woman. — Mrs. U.

Comment: I have mentioned here quite often that the thyroid should not be overlooked (in young or old) as a possible cause of boredom and trouble that defies diagnosis.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 14 years old and still haven't had my period yet. Is this unusual? My mother said not to worry because she did not have hers till she was 15. — Miss G.

Comment: As mother says, it's nothing unusual. Don't be concerned.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 48 and have a sexual problem. I cannot swallow pills. My throat just seems to close up and the pill will not go down. I know this problem must be psychological, but I just can't help myself. My family doesn't help either. They are always teasing me about this. Please, is there anything I can do? — Miss X.

Comment: You are not alone — many patients have this difficulty. Many get over it. For those who are still troubled, I've had some success in recommending a method that "fools" the pill. Instead of taking the pill alone, I suggest they imbed it in a piece of soft bread, and then use milk (instead of water) to wash it down. It often works, and is worth a trial.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have little blue or purple veins appearing on the knees and legs. Will diet or exercise help? I have been massaging them, but don't think it is helping. — Mrs. H.

Comment: Are you overweight? This is occasionally a cause of these little varicosities. If so, better reduce. I don't believe that diet or exercise will help. But I surely would not recommend massage of the veins. Sometimes a too-tight girdle aggravates the condition.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For January 11

Your birthday today: Whatever your situation in life, the coming year is going to include countless incidents in which people expect you to understand and forgive their errors. You develop into an arbitrator, perhaps a consultant, to help bridge the gaps between conflicting parties. Many of last year's projects turn in new directions; it is up to you to decide whether and how to stay with them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Today is a generally happy but not very important one. Just spend full time on all your usual Sunday routines. Pursue emotional goals.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Good humor and warmth received from friends is tinged with nostalgia. Events from long - past times come back to life for a moment.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Children create quite a fuss, leaving you with mixed feelings about how they do it. A pause for meditation restores your serenity. Pursue romantic interests.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): People of markedly different opinions, perhaps strangers, provoke emotions and stir you to some impulsive action. Creative friends have much to offer. Your drive for self-expression is here; use it to good advantage.

LEO (July 23— Aug. 22): Do your share of the community's expression of faith and unity. Then get out and around to catch up on the news and doings of all your friends. Gather some of them for an evening of fun.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): A little coaxing brings you much help and a great deal of useful information today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The customary course is preferred today. Attend your church—make a tour of your community renewing acquaintances. The evening favors entertainment of friends and informal family gatherings.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Responsibility to your associates and their children may intrude on your plans today. Go along with them wherever you can postpone your own projects. Relax early.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Creative effort is well rewarded today. For once, try to have your home free of visitors or much concern about others. Enjoy life for yourself and your loved ones.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): During this lively, normal Sunday you have a chance to put your home into better order. Surprise those you care about with some tangible expression of how much you love them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Now is not the time to chase theoretical solutions. Float through the day serenely even if your plans conflict with everybody else's. Go ahead with travel arrangements despite local changes.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Good friends help you through the day. It's better to laugh a long visit than staying home. Meditate this evening. Think back over the changes of the past couple of weeks.

For January 12

Your birthday today: A long series of emotional subtle changes begin soon. Your attitudes and personal values shift early in this year, setting off a year and a half of readjustments. You yourself often away from familiar territory doing unaccustomed duties. Today's natives are sometimes impractical, usually interested in mystical or philosophic views of life.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Nothing serious fills the morning hours. Surprisingly significant business suddenly shapes up in the afternoon.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Attend routine matters of importance this morning. Get set for solid progress this afternoon. Top a full day off with lively evening fun and parties.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): The thrashing and debates of young people stir your own life. It is late in the day before things fall into more orderly progress. Then plenty of good results are to be gained in creative worth.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Enthusiasm and energy tempt you into premature actions. However, it all works out by the end of the day. Enjoy the evening with good friends.

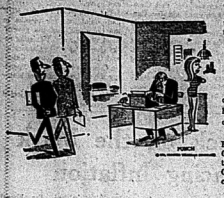
LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Demands are placed on your time and strength, but you gain in many ways by the experience. The afternoon and evening are filled with constructive results.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): The schemes and programs of the morning are revised or revised in early afternoon. Much is achieved belatedly. Find a good show and some music this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Practical approaches give excellent results. Make sure everybody concerned puts in his fair share. Travel takes further planning.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Following early mix-ups, creative work proves very profitable. Keep matters simple, the fewer people, the better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Decisions for later in the working day should be thought out in careful detail earlier.



CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Research turns up some results this morning. When you have taken them all into account, serious conclusions can be made in the later hours. Finish your evening with meditation and study.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): This morning brings momentary confusion, perhaps a showdown. By afternoon things proceed smoothly. Meditation and prayer should fill the late evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Early actions bring surprising results, unlikely to match with what is wanted. Definite action to settle matters works very well for the rest of the day.

No Evacuation Yet

Rescue Crews Try to Save Stricken U.S. Tanker

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rescue ships converged today on the stricken tanker Connecticut, leaking and floundering without power in the stormy Pacific.

The coast guard reported there had been no evacuation of the 41 crew members and earlier fears that the ship would sink were eased.

Six emergency pumps were delivered successfully by helicopters, despite 10- to 15-foot swells, and by nightfall Friday were pumping water faster than it was leaking in.

The 676-foot tanker left Los Angeles Thursday night for Yokohama with 200,000 barrels of JP-5 jet aviation fuel. She radioed for help Friday night, reporting her engine room flooded from water pouring in through drive shaft packing, power out and her own pumps useless.

An armada of ships was dispatched to help, including three coast guard cutters, the aircraft carrier Bonset, the destroyer Scofield, destroyer-escort Larson and the Long Beach, Calif., tug Pacific Mariner.

The coast guard indicated it might be a chance to restore the Connecticut's power.

Two helicopters from the Bonset lowered two men and additional equipment to aid the ship Friday night.

Capt. Ernest Ayres had radioed earlier Friday that the emergency pumps had run out of fuel and additional supplies were flown in by helicopter.

Up to seven feet of water had soaked the engine room and water was 20 feet deep in the drive shaftway.

The ship is owned by Connecticut Transport Inc. of New York.

Counter Charges Fly at Metro Police Hearing

TORONTO (CP) — A police commission Inquiry Friday heard charges that police were drinking in a police station.

The charges were made by Reuben Rodney, counsel for Constable Ian Samuel, during the Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission hearing into the conduct of senior police officers.

Mr. Rodney made the charges after Constable Collin Woodcock testified that Constable Samuel had twice informed women their husbands were out with other women, and that Constable Samuel had failed to report an $800 accident in which he was involved.

Mr. Rodney earlier had protested Constable Samuel would be "martyred" by his colleague's testimony. But Arthur Maloney, representing 31 police-men involved in the inquiry, said this was a "brazen" protest since Constable Samuel played a role in bringing about the inquiry.

After Constable Woodcock had testified, Mr. Rodney asked him if he had been disciplined for a liquor offence.

The constable admitted he had opened a bottle of liquor at No. 1 Division station as he was going off duty at 3 a.m. one Christmas morning, and that he had offered drinks to friends at the station.

"When the sergeant came in, I offered him a drink too," Constable Woodcock said, "He didn't have any sense of humor. He charged me."

Mr. Rodney then asked whether unused contraceptives had been found in the back of the constable's car.

"I was on a day shift and was not using the car that day," Constable Woodcock replied. "I had nothing to do with the things."

The inquiry then turned to another case involving allegations made by former constable Peter Loti, who initiated the charges which led to the inquiry. He had charged that senior police officers intervened to quash driving charges against influential persons.

Mr. Beck testified he had expected to be charged after his arrest on Feb. 24, 1968, by Constable Samuel.

He said he had telephoned Superintendent Mahaffy to let the officer know he was at the police station, but that he did not ask him to interfere in the case.

About an hour later he was told he could go home and his wife came to pick him up, he said.

When news of the scheduling of an inquiry came a few days later, Mr. Beck said, he was asked by the superintendent what had happened to his charge.

When asked if the superintendent was surprised that no charge had been laid, Mr. Beck replied:

"Surprised? That's putting it mildly, he was amazed."

Quebec Asked to Intervene in Loyalist Dispute

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government was asked Friday to send a fact-finding mission to Loyola College here, which has been plunged into controversy by the college administration's decision not to reinire 27 teachers.

A delegation of four Loyola professors and Montreal lawyer Brian Mulroney met Yves Morin, Quebec's deputy minister of education, in Quebec City Friday afternoon. Mr. Mulroney said he was "well satisfied" with the meeting.

But Mr. Morin said he wants to hear what the college administration has to say before any move is made by the government.

At the Loyola campus, meanwhile, in the west end of Montreal, a protest sit-in continued at the administration building. More than 1,300 students and professors, including some from other institutions, conducted a mock burial of the college's English department, and classes in English, history and psychology were cancelled in support of the protest.

The group of students and English teachers occupying the administration building since Wednesday demands a reversal of the administration's position before they leave.

Very Rev. Patrick Malone, president of the Roman Catholic college, said the staff cutback is being made because of an expected decrease in student enrolment and an administration desire to upgrade academic standards.

But Dr. A. G. Hoops, 62, head of the English department who resigned Tuesday, has claimed the cutback is part of a "political purge" of "faculty people who oppose the administration's position," in the case of physics professor S.'A. Santhanam, a former faculty member whom the college decided earlier not to rehire.

The administration rejected a Loyola senate recommendation to submit the Santhanam dispute to the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

The CAUT subsequently held an inquiry anyway and now is completing its report.

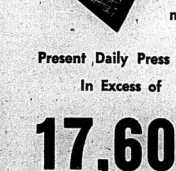
Tate Killers Told 'Do Own Thing'

LOS ANGELES (Reuters) — Hippie leader Charles Manson never directly ordered his "family" to murder actress Sharon Tate and her house guests or a supermarket owner and his wife, reliable sources said Friday night.

The sources, who have had access to testimony given to a grand jury here last month, said the 35-year-old Manson instead told one of his disciples, Susan Atkins, 21, only to "do your own thing" at the Tate mansion.

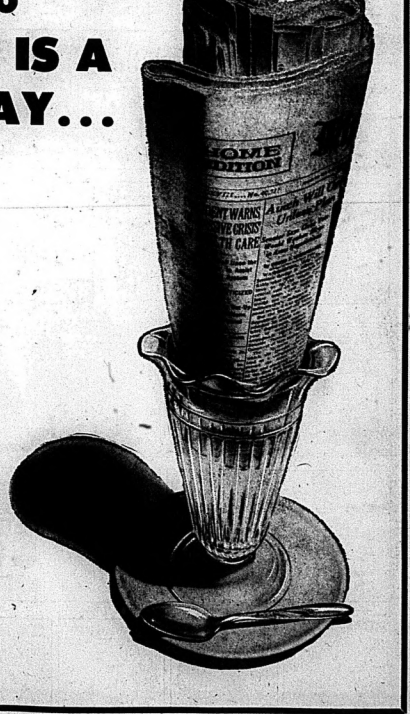
Miss Atkins was the chief witness for the district attorney's office at the hearings into the murders of Miss Tate and four other persons Aug. 9 and the killings of supermarket owner Leo LaBianca and his wife the following day.

Manson was indicted by the Los Angeles County grand jury for the murders, and five other persons, including Miss Atkins, also were indicted in connection with the slayings. Miss Atkins has pleaded not guilty to the charges.



The sources also said that when asked if Manson had told her or any of his other followers to kill at the LaBianca house, Miss Atkins said no.

Miss Atkins testified that Manson was not present at either house when the murders were committed, the sources added.



She admitted that she went to both the Tate home and the LaBianca house and that he was accompanied to the Tate estate by Patricia Krenwinkel, 21, Linda Kasabian, 20, and Charles (Tex) Watson, 24. Watson, Miss Kasabian and Leslie van Houten went with her to the LaBianca home, she said.

The sources said that testimony showed that Manson had been at the Tate house about a year before the murders when it was being rented by Terry Melcher, a record producer and son of singer Doris Day.

Biafra Surrenders

Stampede Is On To Feed Biafra

Order To Stop Fight Given

LAGOS (CP) — Biafra surrendered today after fighting 30 months to enforce secession from Nigeria.

"I am convinced now the struggle must be put to an end and stop the bloodshed that is going on. . . ."

He said he had ordered a disengagement of Biafran army units.

He appealed to Nigerian leader Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon to reciprocate and order his troops to stop fighting.

"I am dispatching emissaries to make contact with Nigerian field commanders in places like Owerri, Umuhia, Enugu and Calabar, with a view of arranging an armistice."

Effiong said the leaders who had spoken of negotiating—presumably Ojukwu and his advisers—had left and therefore he decided to confer with other leaders to reach his decision.

Little resistance to Effiong's capitulation was expected among war-weary Biafrans.

Lakehead Minister Kidnapped

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — Police report no new leads in the kidnapping of a 37-year-old Church of Christ minister, but handwriting experts now are studying two ransom notes.

Rev. Donald Eldon Mimms has been missing since Jan. 3, the night he went to his church to prepare a sermon.

Because the minister's life was threatened, police at first indicated the disappearance was being treated as a missing person case. They also reported earlier that two suitcases and some clothing were missing from Mr. Mimm's home.

Relief Groups Await Flood

LAGOS (Reuters) — Nigerian Red Cross officials today began preparation for co-ordination of an "international stampede" of multi-nation efforts to pour food and drugs into Biafra.

Aid centres here were staggered by the scope of international reaction to news of the sweeping federal advance and the apparently imminent collapse of the secessionist battle.

"It seems near to international stampede," one Red Cross official said. "The aid is needed but co-ordination will be a massive operation."

Three major problems face relief workers here—lack of coastal shipping and shortage of both warehouse space in Lagos and forward area transport.

For the last week officials have been trying to arrange local charter transport and ensure that all imports are carried only on ships prepared to discharge in Port Harcourt as well as Lagos.

Federal successes north of Port Harcourt—particularly clearance of the strategic 30-mile road from Aba to Ikot Ekpene—have cleared new routes north from the coast for overland relief.

Over-all food stocks of some 13,000 tons were regarded as a reasonable level before the new flood of refugees last week.

Officials said the new situation already has stretched transport facilities to the limit in forward areas and the Red Cross said its entire fleet of vehicles would now have to be substantially enlarged, particularly in the Biafran southern sectors.

Radio Nigeria today broadcast appeals to refugees to stay in their homes and await relief aid. Many are believed to have been fleeing to bushland surrounding captured towns, and officials say this will double the task of getting in essential food and medical supplies.

To ease the truck shortage and aid to distribution of relief, the British government planned to send an undisclosed number of vehicles to Nigeria, and British civilian medical teams were awaiting word to fly out to West Africa.

Informants said Canada has offered to use armed forces Hercules transport planes to fly relief supplies into the area, either by landing on primitive airfields or dropping them by parachute.

Informants said Canadian planes might not be needed in the relief operation.

In any event, the defence department reviewed its contingency plans for the entire fleet of Hercules, Yukon, Caribou and Buffalo transport planes.

Meanwhile Dr. Edward Johnson, vice-president of Canaire-

Mercy Planes Land at Uli

COPENHAGEN (Reuters) — Two mercy planes loaded with 20 tons of drugs managed to land during the night at Uli airstrip—Biafra's last link with the outside world—Joint Church Aid said today.

The Protestant-Roman Catholic relief organization yesterday said planes had been unable to land because the airstrip was being shelled and bombed.

It was unclear whether the supplies were delivered into Biafran hands. Reports reaching London said the airport either had been captured or was controlled by federal Nigerian forces.

Nordchurch Aid—a Norwegian relief organization—said three of its mercy planes made the trip to Uli during the night but could not land because of damage to the runway.

An American plane and an aircraft belonging to the Nordic churches managed to land at the airstrip, Pastor Viggo Mullerup, General Secretary of Joint Church Aid said in the Danish capital.

Winter Weekend on the Bay of Quinte

Bright sunshine and crisp weather lured most Quinte district residents out-of-doors Sunday. Favorite winter playgrounds for Bellevillians were Zwick's Island and the harbor. Bare branched willows frame skaters at the Zwick's Island lagoon, as they compete for ice surface with snowmobile operators who skim over the bay's ice.

Thirty Six Israeli Cadets Said Slain by Guerrillas

From AP-Reuters

A Damascus newspaper today said Syrian commandos killed 36 Israeli officer cadets and three senior instructors in a raid staged the day before the cadets would have graduated from a military academy.

It did not say when the raid occurred.

The newspaper, official organ of the Saiqa Thunderbolt commando organization, said the graduation ceremony was cancelled after the cadets were slain in the occupied Golan Heights of Syria.

The paper said two of the instructors killed were Col. Gideon Bendel, chief of staff of the northern zone; and a Capt. Yasman, chief of intelligence in the zone.

In the continuing guerrilla war, mortar and machine-gun fire rattled across Israel's Beisan Valley today, breaking a 10-day lull in fighting there.

Israel claimed that Arab guerrillas in Jordan fired on two Israeli border patrols near the Maoz Haim and Beit Hosef settlements south of the Sea of Galilee. There were no Israeli casualties or damage, sources said, and Israeli army units returned the fire.

The valley had been quiet since Israeli jets blasted the Ghor irrigation canal in Jordan 10 days ago.

Novelist Says CIA Helped

Papa Doc Accused of Massacre

LONDON (AP) — British novelist Graham Greene reported today that Haitian President Francois Papa Doc Duvalier's terrorist squads killed men, women and children last year in a massacre similar to the alleged My Lai massacre by U.S. soldiers in Vietnam.

Greene, whose novel The Comedians dealt with life in Haiti, said in a letter to The Times that "to make Haiti seem respectable again for American tourism, Papa Doc has turned to killing so-called Communists."

The novelist claimed Duvalier's secret police, the Ton-Ton Macoute, killed 25 persons in the Port au Prince area, "a success he is believed to owe to the assistance of the CIA." He did not substantiate the charge that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency was involved.

"After killing the known 'left-wing sympathisers in Cal Haitien,' he continued, 'the Ton-Ton Macoute proceeded with a plan of slum clearance, indiscriminately machine-gunning the inhabitants of the poor quarter of La Fossette, men, women and children.

"The number of dead will never be known, for unlike American conscripts, members of the Ton-Ton Macoute are unlikely to suffer from bad consciences, the world's press is busy elsewhere, and the American leaders can hardly disapprove of flattery by imitation."

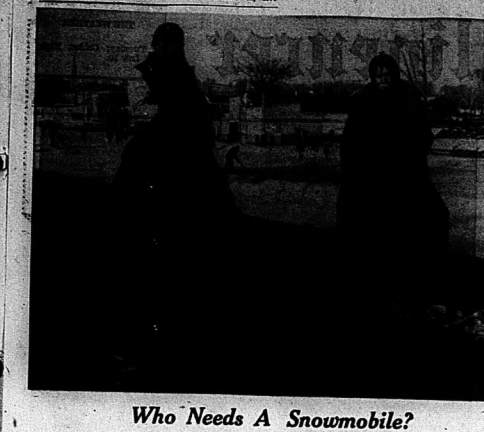
Canadian Junk Found

MANILA (AP) — A 53-foot converted pleasure junk, reported missing on a cruise from Hong Kong, has been found and is being towed into port, the Philippine Coast Guard said today.

The Jimmy Junk, carrying Canadian James L. Quinn and Britton Ian C. Boed, was found Sunday afternoon stranded in Ulugan Bay, 345 miles southwest of Manila on Palawan Island.



The coast guard said Quinn reported he had engine failure and the junk made its way to the island by using its three sails.

The Coast Guard said Quinn, a retired Victoria motel owner, and Boed both were in good shape.

Madoc Man Critical After Suffering Burns

TWEED (Special) — A Madoc township man, Murray R. Norris, 42, is in critical condition in Kingston hospital with 100 per cent burns to his body following an early morning fire which Sunday completely destroyed the family's residence on the Deseronto Road.

Mr. Norris was rescued from the burning home by his 19-year-old daughter Susan who escaped the fire with her three year old brother Troy.

The seriously burned man was taken to Belleville General Hospital and later transferred to Kingston.

The fire occurred about 5:30 Sunday morning.

Paul McKerracher, an investigator from the Ontario Fire Marshal's office in Belleville said the cause of the fire was still under investigation but was believed to have started in the bedroom occupied by Mr. Norris. The Tweed fire department answered the alarm but by the time they arrived the blaze was too far advanced and the home and its entire contents was a complete loss.

The Norris family lived in the former Queensborough cheese factory which had been converted into a residence. Extensive alterations had been recently made to the house. Mr. Norris is manager of the Kinder Knock store.

C. A. McMurray, Queensborough general merchant said the Queensborough Women's Institute would stage a benefit card party for the burned out family, while cash donations would be accepted either at the McMurray store or the Sager store at Queensborough.

Weather Rules Out Test Ride Of Helicopter at Picton

PICTON — A two-day conference held in Picton between officials of Pisseckí Aircraft and federal government representatives today was described by resident representative Walter Symmons as "promising".

The topic of the conference was the PH1100 helicopter and its suitability for the present armed forces requirement for a light helicopter.

Pisseckí Aircraft is one of several corporations competing for a government contract to build and manufacture light helicopters. Mr. Symmons revealed that the members of the conference inspected the hangar and lay-out for manufacture and tests of Pisseckí Aircraft at Picton and also inspected an PH1100 helicopter sitting in one of the hangars.

"Unfortunately weather conditions prevented those attending the conference from participating in any demonstration flights," said Mr. Symmons.

Mr. Symmons revealed that Pisseckí Aircraft expects to know the government's decision concerning the PH1100's suitability for its use later this month.

Attending the first conference held at Pisseckí Aircraft, Picton, were representatives from the Canadian armed forces, the department of supply and services, department of industry, trade and commerce and the director of requirements — equipment air. Also present were representatives of the Fairchild-Hiller Corporation, Hagerstown, Maryland.

Frank N. Pisseckí and several of his company officials arrived here last Monday morning, prior to the conference. While Mr. Symmons felt further disclosures concerning the conference would not be in order now, he did state that it had been "a promising discussion, warranting optimism."

The fact that Pisseckí Aircraft's Picton branch was chosen as the site for the two-day conference was, he believed, in itself a reason for optimism.

Picton, Four Townships To Discuss Fire Plan

PICTON — A special meeting to discuss a fire protection agreement between Picton and the municipalities of South Marysburg, North Marysburg, Sophiasburg and Athol will be conducted at the Picton Fire Hall Tuesday night.

The tentative agreement will be examined by Picton Reeve Bernard Hepburn, Deputy-reeve Donald Thompson members of town council's fire and emergency committee and Sophiasburg Reeve George Foster, South Marysburg Reeve Alan Railey North Marysburg Reeve Harold Harrison and Athol Reeve Keith Brammell.

Under the proposed fire protection plan the four municipalities would jointly purchase a combination pumper and tanker fire truck complete with 800 gallon capacity tank, fire hose, ladder and equipment, all subject to the recommendations of Picton Fire Chief, Leonard Tripp. The truck and its equipment would be housed without charge in Picton Fire Hall.

Township truck and equipment are compatible with the means of fire fighting in Picton, the town would contribute $3,000 towards the purchase. Picton Chief Leonard Tripp would control and direct all fire fighting equipment purchased by the four municipalities. Should a major fire occur in Picton the fire chief could bring fire fighting equipment owned by the municipalities into service where necessary.

The four municipalities would jointly pay to Picton an annual sum equal to the averaged annual salary and allowances of three full time firemen and also a proportionate cost of administrative expenditure of the Picton Fire Department negotiable each year. Terms of the proposed fire protection agreement were forwarded several weeks ago for approval in principal by the township concerned.

Nations Eager to Rush Food to Starving

Bet, said in Toronto three Canadian workers who were helping the private Canadian relief agency in Biafra have been evacuated safely.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Ron McGraw, of Regina, and Miss Dianne North, 32, a nurse from Aurora, Ont.

Dr. Johnson called on the Canadian government to "urge the federal military government of Nigeria to permit the continued flow of relief supplies by relief agencies already equipped to do this."

Mr. Sharp said Canadian relief plans were being treated as "urgent" by the defence department but most of the immediate relief would have to be provided by "those who are closest to the scene" geographically—"those who can get their trucks and planes in most quickly."

The $1,000,000 federal grant promised to Canairelief would be dispensed as agreed—"on the basis of performance."

The government had agreed to pay the agency—which has been flying in relief supplies at night against the Nigerian government's will—on the basis of tons of supplies delivered.

Now Mr. Sharp said he was not sure whether the Nigerian government would allow Canadians to participate in relief activities, although he hoped all possible agencies would be able to play a part.

He would not set an estimate on how much aid Canada might be willing to provide because "we don't know how much will be needed."

The British government has ordered an RAF Hercules to leave for the war zone with 20,000 pounds of medical supplies and ordered army trucks flown to Nigeria to help in overland relief efforts.

U.S. President Nixon has eight C-130 cargo planes and four helicopters standing on alert in the United States for possible relief duties and has set up a special 24-hour-a-day supervisory committee on further measures.

Mr. Sharp said Canada had been in touch with both Britain and the U.S. in preparing relief plans for the end of the war and "welcomed" news of these countries' activities.

Canada was ready to play "its full part."

Any such effort would cost more than the $2,250,000 the federal government promised Friday to provide relief on both sides, he said.

He said Canada might be able to offer assistance in reaching a settlement. "We're a federal country and we know more of the problems of federalism."

Canada would also "raise the subject" of increasing the number of members of the international observer team which is supposed to ensure humane conduct by federal Nigerian troops.

Canada has two officers at the war front with the team, which has representatives from four countries, the Organization of African Unity and the United Nations, and was invited to observe war conduct by the Nigerian government in September, 1968.

The observers have denied evidence of "genocide" in the past.

How a young man can build a flexible program of life insurance to suit his changing needs—with London Life

1. Premiums are lower, and you can accumulate more savings, if you start your London Life program at a young age.

6. Finally, your London Life program can help you retire comfortably—perhaps take a trip overseas? At age 65, or earlier, you may choose between a guaranteed income, a lump sum in cash, or continuing protection.

Nearly everyone agrees life insurance is necessary, but some people put off starting a program until they marry.

However, there are some practical and economic reasons for starting your program as soon as you start to earn a living.

Start when you're young

You can make an excellent start when you're age 21 for about $19 a month.

This gives you a $15,000 Jubilee policy* to which you can add a variety of options to suit your needs as you grow older.

a. You can include an option that guarantees a regular income should you have a long illness or a serious accident.

b. You can arrange for London Life to pay your premiums for as long as you are disabled.

c. Another option guarantees you can add a further $15,000 of Jubilee insurance at age 25. And up to age 40 you can add another $15,000 every 3 years—regardless of your health or occupation.

2. You can increase the amount of life insurance protection after you get married.

Extra protection when you get married

Your London Life program ($15,000 plus $15,000) now provides a sound financial safeguard for your wife.

And it gives you a guaranteed savings program that includes dividends.

Protection for your children

Let's suppose that three years later you become a father and need to provide more protection for your family.

No problem at all. You can take advantage of option "C" again. Or you can consider another feature that's very inexpensive. This makes sure that, if you die, your family will have a regular income until the children are 18—or any age you choose. (This income is on top of your total amount of insurance.)

These are some more examples of how your original London Life policy can be tailored to provide just the right amount of insurance, for the right length of time, at a reasonable cost.

3. When children are born you can add a special low-cost feature which, in the event of your death, guarantees your family an income until they've grown up.

Mortgage insurance

Now you're 30 years old and buy a house. Your insurance can help you borrow money.

And you can add insurance to cover the unpaid portion of the mortgage if you should die. This ensures there'll be money so your wife can decide, in her own time, where she wants to live.

Reduce your income tax

Although retirement seems a long way off now, it will cross your mind more frequently in your 30's.

You'll probably be earning a higher salary by then, and you could add a further $15,000 of Jubilee insurance and consider registering it with the government as a Retirement Savings Plan.

This could give you a handsome deduction on your income tax!

Valuable collateral for loans

You now have an excellent program of protection, guaranteed savings, and a retirement fund.

4. Your program becomes valuable collateral should you need to borrow money to start your own business, help the children through university, or in case you're faced with a financial emergency.

In fact, you can borrow a considerable sum of money without any problem. This could be useful if you decide to take advantage of a business opportunity, or if you need money for an emergency.

Your program can be adjusted

As your circumstances change, the amount of insurance you own can be changed. If your needs for insurance are reduced, the amount of insurance can be adjusted.

On the other hand, you may need more insurance—to protect a business investment or new home. A special dividend option lets you provide additional "paid-up" insurance without increasing your premiums.

Valuable fund for retirement

You can use your insurance to help you retire early. Or, at age 65, you can choose between these options.

a. You can continue the full amount of protection with no further premiums to pay.

b. You can take out a lump sum in cash. And, if you'd left your dividends to accumulate, they would add substantially to your retirement fund.

c. You can choose a guaranteed income to supplement the Government Pension Plan or other retirement funds you may have.

The flexible one

There are many ways a London Life program can be tailored to provide the protection and savings you need at any time. The important thing is to start your program when you're young and in good health.

It doesn't have to cost very much. And you get a solid financial foundation for the whole of your life.

We suggest you look into "the flexible one" from London Life—where you get more than you expect from life insurance.

Hypocrisy and Power Politics

UK and France Square Off Over Arms Supply Issue

By CT FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The controversy about French policy on the sale of arms to Middle East countries has made the question of weapons supplies by major powers in general a matter of renewed concern.

There have been expressions of mutual bitterness between French businessmen on one hand and their British and American counterparts on the other over the whole arms supply issue.

The French insist their provision of weapons to the Arabs prevents the Soviet Union from having a monopoly of this role and all the influence over regional leaders that would go with it.

British and American commentators "reject" that claim. French really are interested in the big profits from arms deals and also have their eye on Libya's rich stores of oil.

Paris maintains, too, that its argument about preventing a Soviet monopoly of arms supplies in the area is no more questionable than is the British nationalization or London's continued provision of weapons to federal Nigerian forces for their fight against secessionist Biafra.

The British have repeatedly said that if they cut off their supplies to Lagos, the Soviet Union would win a dangerous-ly-powerful position of influence with federal officials.

Although French and American consideration are trying to smother the bitterness of feelings about the Middle East issue being inevitably inevitable, at least in the minds of France, British relations.

Perennial rivals for imperial power in past decades, the British and French continued their Middle East feuding throughout the Second World War.

By mid-1945, French and British forces in Syria had almost reached a state of open conflict.

This legacy of long-standing antagonism in the Middle East affairs must be viewed against the intensity of mutual distrust spawned as both countries accommodate themselves to the latest shifts in the crisis still gripping that troubled area.

Vice-Regal Visit

The anticipated visit in March of Governor-General Roland Michener comes at a salutary period in Belleville's development.

If Belleville has been by-passed by vice-regal itineraries in recent years it is perhaps as well, for the impetus and progress which the city is now enjoying affords a much more appropriate climate for such a visit.

And all the more so for a man of the calibre of Mr. Michener who combines long experience in political life — he is a former Speaker of the House of Commons and Canadian High Commissioner to India — with a strong interest in the country's youth and a penchant for physical fitness and wellbeing.

Thus in addition to laying a corner stone for Loyalist College's first permanent campus building, presenting the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment with Queen's colors and attending a 50th anniversary meeting of the Rotary Club, His Excellency has expressed a desire to tour Belleville, if possible visiting children and veterans in hospital.

We welcome this visit of Mr. Michener, who will be accompanied by his wife. It will be a notable occasion in the history of the city.

Let's Hear Them

Perhaps at no other time in history has there been so much involvement of the public in the daily affairs of the world.

Rioting . . . dissent, these are prime aspects of the public's role in the shaping of events.

Much of this unfortunately is of a negative, destructive nature, for the mob — as Irish author St. John Ervine once put it — is "a weak and brainless thing."

At the same time the so-called "silent majority," from whom we should expect some counteracting voice are being just too silent. They are the people who vote (and many who do not) in elections but do nothing to propagate the responsible view they claim to embrace.

Where then is the voice of responsibility in our midst? Where are the citizens who believe in democracy, who are not necessarily averse to change but know that this must evolve in orderly fashion and not amid a welter of destruction and amid shouting, chanting, milling, mindless mobs?

And not by the gun — as once again demonstrated in recent days in the United States with the cowardly murder of union leader Joseph Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

And not by the preaching of atheism or agnosticism. If Christianity has its failings they are to be found among those who profess to be Christians, and not with the creed itself. Ideally it still offers standards of conduct for civilized society and it is interesting in this context to note the establishment of a nomadic band of young people in the United States known as the "children of God."

This group of "revolutionary christians" is touring the country and quoting scripture quotations instead of pot and speed. It may be offbeat, but it may also be more effective in reaching the modern generation of Americans, with all their ills, than by attendance at church.

History then is in the making in our ever-changing society. Much of what is happening is disturbing and that is all to the good provided that the public at large, and particularly the "silent majority," get involved. The latter must make themselves heard more effectively because in large measure today it is only the voice of those who would undermine our society, who seek to move the Western world to the political left, who for that reason condone anarchy and dissent . . . that voice we say is the one which is being heard with disturbing regularity.

What Next?

The news from Turkey these days is shall we say "archaic." On the one hand (this report originated in Los Angeles) there is word that a team of scientists and explorers is planning to melt a frozen lake on Mount Ararat in the hope of finding the remains of Noah's Ark.

On the other hand, a modern slant to the flu, but with overtones of superstition which likely have persisted in the country since early times: Turkish peasants say the flu sweeping Europe and the Middle East is no mere flu, brought from the moon by the U.S. astronauts.

Have the Turks not been told of the elaborate quarantine the astronauts went through on their return? Or should they have been kept on ice — Noah's Ark fashion?

It's Final One Way Or Another!

Montreal Gazette

For years, dwellers in the city centre have been living the best of advantages. They are close enough to walk to work, while suburban friends have to drive in. In the city centre, traffic moves slowly; there are thousands of cars, but a few miles an hour they hardly make a bruise.

On those highways in the suburbs, they note, you don't dare cross the street on foot, even on a green light.

The latest city report on air pollution ends the argument. That slow, stop-start, bumper-to-bumper traffic downtown, it says, produces a killing cloud of carbon monoxide, as well as a lot of other gases.

So there you are. The choice is official. You can be killed suddenly, crossing a suburban street; or you can be killed slowly, by living in the fast-moving downtown.

Wasted Lives

Society and the 'Town Drunk'

Windsor Star

His death was perhaps notable because he was killed in a traffic accident, because he had once been imprisoned overnight for five months, and because he held the record as the county jail's most frequently imprisoned inmate. But essentially he was just that ordinary, unremarkable character, the town drunk.

Every city and town has them. The poor unfortunates brought up in the hopeless cycle of drink, arrest, court, jail, release, then drink and back again. Whether has its own examples, lovable but pitiful, friendly but pathetic.

The police know them, and treat them kindly. The courts know them, and treat them as regular customers. The jails know them, and treat them as humanely as they can — give them warmth and food and cleanliness, then turn them loose to begin the cycle again.

There is little pleasant about the town drunk except the negative virtue of being harmless.

Perhaps he adds a touch of color to the drab conventions of the city. But no one envies him, no one cares about him except for the occasional tiny handout, and most of us would miss as soon forget about him. So we put him in jail, again and again and again.

Our excuse is that we are putting him in jail to reform him, or at least to teach him to be more discreet about his drinking. But we know that we are doing nothing of the sort. We are putting him in jail because embarrasses us and because we don't know what else to do with him, and because jail is the quickest way to get rid of him.

It shouldn't be that way. Jail will never reform the town drunk, as every town drunk over the years has proven. There are methods that offer some hope, far less confirmed cases if not for the town drunk. But such methods require money and care, and the chances of success are not so great.

So we continue jailing the town drunk, confident that he'll be out of the way, temporarily with his mother, Mrs. A. Thompson in Madoc.

It's nice to have a policy for every contingency. The Bruce county board of education has laid down a policy to deal with teacher pregnancies.

The rule is to be that a woman teacher must resign not later than in the fifth month of pregnancy. Furthermore, if t . . . the end of the fifth month is due to occur during a school term, the teacher shall resign at the end of the previous term.

How's that again? Just to see how the policy works, let's suppose that the end of the fifth month occurs now, in December. According to the Bruce rule, the teacher shall resign at the end of the previous term, which ends in June.

Doing simple arithmetic, we wonder how the teacher knew in June that it was her duty to resign.

If they're wondering in Bruce schools they should forget about the pupils for a while. The trustees are the ones who need some education in the facts of life.

Emperor Maximilian of Germany died 451 years ago today — in 1519 — after a reign of 25 years which bridged the medieval world and that of the Reformation. He was the first German king to assume the title Roman emperor elect. As head of the house of Hapsburg (which ruled Austria until 1918) he fought with and against almost every country in Europe at one time or another and financed an attempt by Perkin Warbeck to seize the English crown.

Lion Country

Leo Has A Ball in the Snow

Bill Mair in The Hamilton Spectator

Those lazy, self-satisfied lions that bask all day in the hot African sun think they are happy, but that's only because they've never had a chance to frolic through three-foot snow drifts.

But those smug cats are cool cats at the African Lion Safari and Game Farm these days and with newly-grown thick fur coats, they have been like children in the snow.

The colder it gets, the more active they are, says Butch Dring, chief game warden at the preserve near Rockton.

"They love to run in the snow, roll in it and even eat it," he said.

He explained that the lions, all of whom are experiencing their first outdoors winter weather, have adapted well to the harsh Canadian weather and have suffered no discomfort in the snow and cold.

He said that in the winter the lions metabolize their food faster and therefore have more energy to expend than during the summer.

For the people visiting the 200-acre preserve the show is completely different than the one seen this past summer when the lions were content to lounge around in the hot sun.

In order to ward off the chill, many of the lions have been seen rolling out the heat given off by the car engines of people passing through. Visitors have been thrilled and surprised to see a 350-pound lion leap up onto the hood of their car.

After a few minutes of warming their undersides, the lions slip off and stalk each other in the snow drifts.

To discourage this, Col. Dalley, the preserve director, has had wooden platforms erected in the snow where the lions can pile up in a family huddle and keep warm.

Under-Developed Lands Require Continuing Aid

Montreal La Devoir—In the decade now beginning, the most important priority for the advent of peace in the world must, it seems, be the help of rich countries for the under-developed countries. To achieve this goal effectively, however, much more must be done than in the past. At the start of the 1960s, international bodies had designated the new decade as the development decade, and rich countries were asked to assign one per cent of their gross national product to aid for the disadvantaged countries.

This program has not been achieved. Despite the progress realized in certain countries, the economic situation for the under-developed world as a whole is worse than it was 10 years ago. The causes of this defeat are many. The United Nations has decreed it necessary to promote a second development decade and has formulated in a more specific way the means to be taken to render help to the under-developed countries more effective.

The experience of the last decade indicates that certain orientations have to be modified. . . . It has been learned that much greater importance must be attached to social progress, backed by a better redistribution of revenues, for economic power remains too centralized, and also by direct means such as agrarian reform and a more equitable tax system.

Food supply remains, on the whole, the worst problem because of the rapid population increase and the bad harvests of 1963 and 1966. Farm productivity remains weak because of antiquated methods of cultivation and the vulnerability of the peasants to drought. In addition to the people who suffer from hunger, others suffer from bad nutrition through a protein deficiency in their food. . . . Malnutrition hits even those children that can be irreversible. These nutritional deficiencies diminish men's capacity for work and compromise progress in all fields.

These countries must therefore improve their agriculture as quickly as possible, in respect of both the quality and the quantity of their products

Shanties Begin to Dot Bay as Ice Fishing Back in Season

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
(Staff Reporter)

TRENTON — You may have dined by candlelight, but have you ever caught your dinner by candlelight?

If so you know something about the sport of ice fishing, which is often pursued from inside a "shanty".

As there is no hydro service available, candlelight is one of the two most common sources of lighting. The second is an oil lamp.

These shanties — the vanguard of an annual population approaching 100 — have already appeared at the mouth of the Trent River and in the Bay of Quinte now that the ice is between eight inches and a foot thick.

Many of these shanties — which supply protection from the winter elements — have been installed for more than a month and most will remain until the ice breaks up in the spring or the fishing season ends March 31.

The size of the shanty varies, but most of them are designed for a pair of fishermen and their equipment, including a small oil or wood stove for interior comfort.

A two-man shack will have two holes — of circular or rectangular shape in accordance with the designer's preference — in the floor through which the occupants will fish.

After the location is picked the fishermen cut holes in the ice to conform with the holes in the floor of the hut. Most circular holes vary between eight and 10 inches in diameter. Each day or several times a day, depending on the temperature, the ice is chopped away from these holes to keep them clear.

Minnows and ice jigs (lures) are the most common bait while pickerel and pike are the main objects of the fishermen's desire. Some perch are also caught and worms are commonly employed if perch are the desired game.

Black fishing line (eight pound test is most common) is usually wrapped around a stick of wood about six inches long, but a fishing reel is sometimes employed.

If ice jigs are used the the fisherman wriggles or jiggles his line continuously to supply movement and tempt the fish. If the fish bunt or nibble at the bait a sharp vertical movement is sometimes employed to urge the fish on, or as the fishermen say, "make them mad enough to bite".

The depth of the water at the mouth of the Trent River varies from six to 15 feet and most fishermen dangle their lines about six inches from the bottom.

Pickerel are the most common and most desired game and they generally range in size from 1½ to nine pounds, with the occasional catch tipping the scales at 13 pounds or more.

The Ontario Fish and Game Act places a limit of six game fish per day per person and also a possession limit of six, but most fishermen here agree that a man is "ahead of the game if he averages a fish a day".

Fishermen cite "faith and patience" and "patience and faith" as the biggest keys to success and believe that, if they possess these qualities, they're bound to catch their share of fish.

And if a fisherman's luck is bad he can always upend his shanty — most are built with runners on one side — and slide it on to another spot, and, hopefully, better results.

Ice fishing requires little expenditure. Veteran fisherman Jim Whitley of Trenton built his own shack — most, like his, are of wood construction, and he estimates that stove, styrofoam insulation and all cost him only $50. Moreover, it can be used year after year.

Oh yes! There's one other requirement, a provincial fishing licence costing three dollars.

Girl Hurt, 3 Others In Hospital

An 18-year-old Belleville girl is in intensive care after a two-car crash at Foxboro that saw four people admitted to hospital last night.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Jonathan Harrington, 19, of 64 George Street which collided with an automobile driven by Wellington Reynolds, 31, of 258 College Street West, say police.

Harrington suffered injuries to his chest and both legs and is also in hospital. Reynolds is being treated for shoulder and mouth injuries.

Reynolds' two sons — Paul, 7, and Danny, 10, were treated for minor injuries and released.

Industry Forced to Close

TRENTON — An inability to keep pace with its United States-based parent corporation has been cited as the reason for a Trenton plant's closure.

This was the assessment of R. A. Cohn, vice-president and general manager of Nytronics of Canada Ltd., Saturday, just prior to his departure to Berkley Heights, New Jersey, the headquarters of Nytronics Incorporated, of which the Trenton plant was the sole Canadian subsidiary.

Nytronics of Canada Ltd. operated a plant in Trenton for the past 17 years prior to Saturday's official closure and manufactured television and communications equipment such as inductors radio frequency chokes and delay lines.

"I regret this, after all we've been here 15 years, but just about every means to stimulate business was exhausted and we haven't been able to grow like the parent corporation wants," Mr. Cohn explained. "Nytronics Incorporated has mushroomed from a $7,000,000 venture in 1966 to a $90,000,000 operation today and Trenton just hasn't been able to keep up."

"The parent corporation has been acquiring a number of subsidiaries and the resultant consolidation to avoid duplicity of products has eliminated the smaller and least productive plants, of which Trenton was one."

Noting that "things are pretty tight in the electronics industry", Mr. Cohn said that there wasn't enough business in Canada to support a plant here, nor was there much promise for related ventures.

Cosco Electronics, which has offices in Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and Quebec City, becomes the Canadian distributor for Nytronics Incorporated's American - made products.

At one time Nytronics of Canada Ltd. had over 50 employees, but the number dwindled somewhat with the plant's output reduction and a planned cutback which began in June Mr. Cohn said.

December 23, 1969, was the hateful day for the remaining staff of 17, mainly assemblers or unskilled laborers. Everyone but a secretary was laid off that day.

Meanwhile the departure of Nytronics of Canada Ltd. has created another problem — an empty plant on Wall Street and a subsequent loss of revenue for owner Ken Couch.

It was in 1963 that Mr. Couch built the 9,768 square foot single storey building to Nytronics of Canada's specifications and they have been his only tenants.

"I'm hoping to attract another industry, but things happened so quickly that I haven't even had a chance to advertise the plant," Mr. Couch explained.

"It's a poor time of year to begin with and I have no plans at present," said the retired owner of a local dry goods store.

Settlement Of Town Is Traced

PICTON — The settlement of Fourth Town, now Adolphustown, was described by Mark Trumpour, Kingston, at last week's meeting of the Bay of Quinte Branch of the United Empire Loyalist Association in Picton.

A newcomer to the group, Mr. Trumpour, in his address traced the ways by which members of four widely separated racial groups fled a troubled Europe, coming to British North America. Some of these immigrants took refuge in the settlement called Fourth Town, later renamed Adolphustown.

Mr. Trumpour's UEL ancestors numbered among the original settlers of Fourth Town.

Man's Body Discovered

COLBORNE — The body of an elderly Colborne resident was found Sunday afternoon by a youngster on his way to the village arena.

William Patrick Webb, 78, was frozen when found in a field behind the arena at 3:30.

A spokesman for the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial police said that the death appeared to be from natural causes, but the official cause will be determined by an autopsy.

Open Water Is Dangerous

Potential tragedy lurks along the banks of the Moira River — and police say they feel powerless to avert it.

Cause of concern to police and residents in the area is open water in the river from the north of the Upper Bridge to the CN bridge.

Children are playing along the river's ice in close proximity to the swiftly moving water.

"It's only a matter of time until we lose one," says a nearby resident.

Const. Robert Hall, police department safety officer, says the ice is very thin on the river in this area. It also is worn under the surface by the force of a strong current.

"If a child went under the ice we wouldn't stand a chance of getting him out," the officer says.

He has issued a plea to parents to keep children away from the river, and not permit them to skate or play on ice until parents have personally checked it for safety.

The police patrol that stretch of river constantly, chasing away children for their own safety," reports a Riverside resident. "But they can't be there all the time, and our hearts are in our mouths when we see how closely children approach the open water."

Three Councillors Seek Wardenship

The inaugural meeting of Hastings county council has been called for Tuesday, January 20 at the county administration building.

Main business for the first council meeting of 1970 will be the election of a new warden to succeed last year's council headed by Reeve Donald Rodgers of Stirling.

Three councillors, Reeves Barbara Allen of Tweed, John Wilkes of Marmora and Lake township, and Carman Gibson of Tyrendinaga, have indicated they will be in the running for the wardenship.

Other business at the inaugural session will be the appointment of standing committees. There also still be and explanation of assessment equalization factors set by provincial auditors for use in determining educational grants for the various municipalities. Mr. Angus McKay of the Department of Municipal Affairs assessment branch will address council on the second day of the session.

They died with their arms outstretched to show they meant no harm. They died from ambush and without warning. Death came suddenly in a dark alley or on a city street. A shocking report on the deaths of 39 Canadian policemen murdered on the beat during the past decade. An unforgettable true record on a side of police work too often overlooked in a violent era. Prince Philip Is Fashion Winner

Twenty-six women and twenty-four men were chosen from a poll taken of 2,000 social figures, designers an dfashion personalities. Six persons were added to the fashion Hall of Fame.

Wyatt Cooper, a member of the committee set up to compile the results of the poll, made the list again this year, along with his wife, Gloria Vanderbilt.

Exotic fashion model Veruschka—Countess Vera von Lehndorff in private life—is a newcomer to the list. So are actress Ali McGraw (Mrs. Robert Evans), actor James Coburn, designer Harry Belafonte and Michael Butler, producer of the Broadway show, Hair. No Canadians are listed.

Prince Philip was among six women elected to the Fashion Hall of Fame. Others chosen as "perpetual symbols of excellence in dress" were: film stars Douglas Fairbanks and Cary Grant; Dean Acheson, former United States state secretary; Angier Biddle Duke, former U.S. ambassador to Spain and Denmark; and Baroness Philippe de Rothschild of France.

This year's winners were divided into two groups: those in private life and those in the fashion world.

The women in private life included: Mrs. William McCormick Blair Jr., Washington, D.C. (wife of the former ambassador who now heads the Kennedy Centre for the Performing Arts); Mrs. Wyatt Cooper, New York; Mrs. Kirk Douglas, Beverly Hills, Calif., (wife of the actor); and Mrs. Charlotte Nichols (former Charlotte Ford).

Those women chosen from the fashion world included: Marisa Berenson, Berry Berenson, Mrs. Robin Butler, Mrs. Oscar de La Renta, Mrs. David Evins and Lady Pamela Harlech.

The men whose taste topped worldwide balloting included: Gianni Agnelli, head of the Fiat Co. of Italy; Harry Belafonte; James Coburn; Wyatt Cooper, New York; Frank Gifford, New York sportscaster; actor George Hamilton; Jean-Claude Killy, Olympic skier; Baron Enoc de Rothschild, member of the international banking family, and David Sunskind, television personality.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

RYLSTONE WI

Rylstone Women's Institute held their "Agricultural and Canadian Industries" meeting in the WI hall on Wednesday, Jan. 7 with an attendance of 11 members and five visitors.

In charge of the meeting was Mrs. Lindsay Anderson. During the business meeting it was mentioned that no one had volunteered to be a delegate to Summary Day for the recent short course, 4-H Club leader or delegate to the conference at Guelph in May.

Mrs. Hector Arnold gave the motto "The farmer is God's partner in supplying the world with the food it must have."

The topic, "Everybody works with Father in the greatest of all industries — farming" was given by Mrs. Murray Melkiejohn. Short readings were given by Mrs. Earl Brunton and Mrs. Raymond Stewart, who is also convener for agriculture and Canadian industries. Mrs. Brunton presided at the piano in the absence of the regular pianist.

There was a display of smocking, crochet work and other arts and crafts. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Jack Watson and Mrs. Gerald Petherick.

Hostess for the February meeting will be Mrs. Ernest Irwin. It is the curators' meeting, and there will be a special speaker. In charge of the program will be Mrs. Eldon Anderson and Mrs. Margaret Osborne. In charge of refreshments will be the convener, Mrs. Stanley Kerr.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS BOLTE

Bolte — Boyce

St. Margaret's - on - the-Hill Anglican Church was the scene of the recent wedding of Judith Allene Boyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Boyce, Belleville, and Douglas Francis Bolte, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Bolte, Stirling. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. A. Dunlop. Organist was Mrs. Henry Van Ochten.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a bridal gown of candlelight velvet in Victorian style with a high stand-up collar and leg of mutton sleeves. The front panel and the cathedral train were enhanced with hand made Italian lace embroidered with iridescent seed pearls. Her cathedral length tiered, silk illusion veil was embossed with seed pearls and sequins and fell from a white fur pill box. She carried a cascade bouquet of red sweetheart roses.

Maid of honor was Miss Susan Boyce, sister of the bride. She wore a cranberry velvet Victorian style full - length dress similar to that of the bride with empire waistline accented by heavy crochet lace. She wore her hair in cascades of ringlets with sprigs of holly. A short white fur cape and white fur muff's adorned with holly completed the outfit.

Bridesmaids were Jo Anne Boyce, cousin of the bride, Belleville; and Patricia Whelan, cousin of the bride, Oshawa. They were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

Flower girl was Kelly McInroy of Belleville, niece of the bridegroom. She was dressed in a similar manner in a floor length gown of holly green velvet.

Best man was Glen Hagerman and ushers were Terry Casselman and Russell Hagerman.

For the wedding trip to the Bahamas, the bride wore a purple crochet dress and hat, gray coat and black accessories. Her corsage was yellow Talisman roses.

Upon their return, the couple will reside in Belleville.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

The engagement is announced of Miss Lynn Ethel McKay, daughter of Mrs. Edward McKay of Lachine, Quebec, and the late Mr. McKay, to Robert Paul Mercier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mercier of Belleville. The marriage will take place on Saturday, January 31, in Lachine, Quebec.

* * *

Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Douglas Bolte (nee Judith Allene Boyce) was honored at a miscellaneous shower. Hostesses were Mrs. William Bishop and co-hostesses were Mrs. Stanley Wiggins and Mrs. Lyman Bishop. After the rehearsal, a party was held at the home of the bridegroom's sister and brother-in-law in Belleville.

SIDE EFFECT

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Dr. Paul Sheiman, a professor at Northern Illinois College of Optometry, says 60 to 75 per cent of women who takes birth control pills will suffer discomfort from contact lenses. However, the problem will clear up as body chemistry adjusts to oral contraceptives — although it may take several months — he told a meeting of North Carolina optometrists.

Revivals Wrong in Fashion, Says Designer

He jumped into the controversy over the reminiscent mood in spring clothes Thursday at the spring showings of the New York Couture Business Council, Inc.

"If you don't move with the times, you shouldn't be a designer," he said, adding that he found his inspiration in modern art galleries.

Hemlines will remain short for a long time, he said, and the midi is not good for today. But at the end of his showing, he compromised and brought out one romantic lacy beige midi with red sash—for women who insist on the longer look.

His lines are clean and precise. Consistent use of the raised waist and snug bodice and precise. Consistent use of the raised waist and snug bodice gives the figure full, lush proportions.

Skirts fall softly out from the body—in swirling gores or gentle, gathered folds. The only time the raised waist doesn't work is on a jump-suit. It gives a balloon effect from midriff to thighs.

"We are going to grow more beautiful bodices," he said. "There will be very little excuse for anything over a size 14." He dropped necklines into modest rounded scallops, predicting more skin exposure.

Despite Borden's statement on forward-looking clothes, his collection is not exactly visionary. Borden opts for a conservative look with a nice-girl, country club feeling. But he does it well.

His colors are clean and clear —often intensified by white. They will look great with a summer tan. Little summer dresses are whiter-than-white. Warm brown waffle tones are set against white in geometric patterns—or played around pink in larger-than-life florals.

Smart Basic.

Requests for Black Forest Cherry Torte

By MARY HOOPE

Gather round all ye pastry specialists. I have a chocolate torte recipe to top all chocolate torte recipes. Requests for it are flying in this wife direction from all over the country and heading my way back.

It all started innocently enough when the steward rolled his dessert basket trolley up to my seat and said ever so politely in dessert-ese, "Madam?" Tempted beyond human endurance I sailed for a slice of Gateaux Forets Noire Aux Cerises Black Forest Cherry Torte to you and me.

After my return from Vancouver I still had to receive requests for the recipe for Black Forest Torte so other passengers have savored the gorgeous speaking on the Canadian Flights. Action had to be taken so I wrote direct to that torte's source, Frank Sallweeks, president of Air Canada and he sent it to me.

I made it for a Christmas gift-opening party and it will serve 16 to 20 so I hope you hostesses will clip this.

BLACK FOREST CHERRY TORTE

Chocolate Sponge Batter:
3 cups whole eggs (6 extra large)
1½ cups plus 2 tbsps. granulated sugar
1¾ cups plus 2 tsps. sifted cake flour
⅔ cup unsifted cocoa
¾ tsp. baking soda
¾ cup plus 1 tb. warm melted butter

Filling and Frosting Ingredients:
One 19-oz. can cherry pie filling
¼ pint (1.5-oz. or 1¼ cups) whipping cream (32 per cent)
2 tbsps. icing sugar
1¼ tbsps. Kirsch or Cherry Flooring liqueur
Bitter chocolate (see below)

Into large beater bowl break eggs; add sugar and beat 10 min. on "high" until they are thick and tripled in bulk. Do not underbeat. Measure sift together the flour, cocoa and baking soda. Remove beaters and fold flour mixture in with wire whisk or slotted spoon, along with the warm melted butter. Divide evenly into three 9" Teflon layer cake pans. If not Teflon, line bottom of pans with buttered wax paper. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 12 to 20 min. on centre shelf in oven. Cool on cake racks.

With long sharp knife split cakes carefully to give you six layers. Place layer No. 1 on large fancy cake plate and cover with 1-3 of the cherry pie filling. Cover with layer No. 2 and spread it with whipped cream flavored with the icing sugar and liqueur of your choice. Repeat until you have the six layers stacked with alternating fillings between. Now spread whipped cream on sides. If desired finely grate some dark sweet chocolate and roll in coarsely grated bitter chocolate sprinkled on long strip of wax paper. Return cake to cake plate and spread top with whipped cream. Pipe whipped cream around top edge using "star" decorating tube. Decorate with halved red maraschino or candied cherries and curls of bitter chocolate. This torte is at its best on the day that it is made.

Truly an aristocrat of tortes.

Points for Parents

Son: "Dad, I have to do a theme about Thomas Jefferson. Was he really a farmer?"

Father: "Yes, he was called the squire of Monticello. He was a gentleman farmer, but he really worked in the fields, too."

Insist that your child use homework even if you can answer many of his questions. Knowing how and where to do research is an important part of education.

Son: "Dad, what do you know about Jefferson?"

Father: "Let's look in the encyclopedia. There's a whole section on Thomas Jefferson. It will give you all the information you want. I don't trust my memory."

Good Attitude Important Asset

By DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: I enclose a few cards which "Wheel Chair Hobbies" brings in hard paper and also in three-ply wood cut out with a fret saw. I like to enjoy them. I can send others and tell her how to change the size. The hard white paper can be got almost any store where the storekeeper destroys it after unpacking goods.

Here is a movement which will help strengthen her back: Sit up straight. Hold it. Lift arms forward, arms straight. Then swing them to the sides.

Not more than three times to begin, and do this several times a day (I'm 74 years old). — Dave

* * *

Dear Doris: Would the young lady be interested in some simple wood carving, particularly making birds? Once the roughing out with a coping saw has been done, the actual work is simple and easy, but does require patience. — E. K. T.

Dear T4 and T2: All fine suggestions, not only for WCH but many another reader looking for a spare time, interesting idea.

* * *

Dear Doris: My speech handicap is making life unbearable. I graduated from a business course, but it will be no good to me unless I can overcome this trouble. If I do get out there I get whistled at, I feel like I'm being deceitful, because if anyone heard me talk they'd turn their heads in disgust.

I attended speech therapy classes once, but to no avail. I was told that my attitudes lent to the way of speech rehabilitation. Is there any place in Canada that has helped people like me? — Can't Talk Right

Dear Can't Talk: There is just no way a handicap can be overcome when the attitude is wrong. The opposite is true, too: there is hardly any handicap which cannot be overcome if the attitude is right.

Somebody with enough insight can get to the bottom of all this and find out what's hampering you. It may take a social worker, a psychiatrist to find out. Then get back to speech therapy.

In all treatment programs, it is the person getting help who can do the most about it. This time it is clearly up to you.

Dear Doris: In two months I am to be bridesmaid at a Catholic wedding. However, I am the only non-Catholic in the wedding party.

I realize kneeling is an important part of the ceremony. What I would like to know is: Would it be proper for me to kneel or should I not? — Nervous

Dear Nervous: Nothing else would do. You would stand out like a sore thumb — as it were — if you were to remain standing while the other attendants and the bridal couple knelt. Many Protestants kneel in prayer.

Every day Doris hears from readers who report success after taking her advice on a human dilemma. Let her help you with yours.

Ann Landers

Amateur Astrologist Abhors Draftee Plan

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am an amateur astrologist who has had considerable success forecasting events for my family and friends. I was horrified when I read of President Nixon's decision to start selecting draftees for the United States Army. The thought of an entire battalion of men born under the same sign gives me the screaming meemies. It would, of course, be ideal if the sign happened well for patriotic action, venturing into the unknown, and following orders blindly. A combat unit of men confident with the courage and confidence of a favorable horoscope would be impossible to lick. But what if the horoscope should warn against hazardous activities, venturing into unfamiliar areas and taking risks? Are you aware, Ann, that millions of people in this country refuse to make a move before consulting the zodiac? Is it fair if the stars are positioned favorably? It is not inconceivable that if the horoscope bade ill, entire companies of men might rise as one, remain in their bunks and refuse to budge.

ANN LANDERS

Do you have any views on this? — ZOE D. ACK.

DEAR ACK: Sherman was right. War is hell. No matter how the guys are selected, I doubt that a four-star astrologer in the Pentagon would improve the situation, but I'll pass your theory on to General Hershey.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have been happily married for fifteen years. Before I knew my husband I was involved, intimately, with two men. I've never mentioned these relationships to my husband, although he is beautifully mature and would probably have been most understanding. Now, the problem:

Last week while shopping in a crowd I saw one of the shadows from my past. I have no idea if he saw me because I ran from the store like a criminal escaping the police. After I gathered my wits, I was ashamed of myself. This man was a friend as well as a lover. Now I wish I had behaved like a lady, greeted him graciously, asked about his family and told him about mine. On the other hand, maybe I was smart to leave well enough alone.

Had I encountered the other man from my past it would have been a different story. Ours was a white-hot love affair. He was really a skunk and I have no kind feelings or warm memories of him. Furthermore, he's the kind of a louse who would probably make trouble for me.

I am upset and troubled by my childish behavior. Yet, maybe I did do the right thing. If I run into my former friend-lover again should I greet him graciously or should I avoid him? — AGONIZING IN FORT WAYNE.

DEAR AG.: Your spontaneous reaction was an emotional one. It was undoubtedly rooted in an indefinable fear of him or, more to the point, of yourself. Now that you can look at the situation rationally, you are ashamed of yourself for not behaving maturely. If you should encounter your old friend again you could probably handle the situation with maturity and grace. I would not recommend exchanging phone numbers or suggesting that the two families get together socially, but I would hope you could greet him and behave civilly.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Most people have trouble of some kind or another. When we spend money to see a movie, we want to come away feeling better, not worse. We want to be entertained. We don't want to see some heart-breaking story that makes us cry our heads off. And we don't want to see filth and dirt that makes us hide our heads so our kids sitting next to us can't see how embarrassed we are. The art and taste in the movies today is shocking to middle-aged folks. We aren't used to it.

My English isn't very good, Ann, but I hope you will print my letter because I am saying something important. And I think I am speaking for a lot of people. Thank you. — MRS. JOHN Q. PUBLIC.

DEAR MRS.: The most effective way to register your protest is at the box office. Stay away. If enough people do this, the film makers will take the hint. (P.S. Doris Day, where are you now that we need you?)

HOUSES COME IN THREES — Mrs. Don Jamieson, 49, wife of the federal transport minister, has run three households since her husband was elected to the Commons in a 1966 byelection. St. John's, Nfld., where Mrs. Jamieson grew up, is still home to the family, but the Jamiesons also have a summer home in Swift Current on Placentia Bay, about 200 miles southwest of St. John's, and an apartment in Ottawa. (CP Photo)

Transport Minister's Wife Runs Three Households

OTTAWA (CP) — Many women would balk at the thought of running three houses, two of them almost 1,000 miles apart.

For Mrs. Don Jamieson, 49, wife of the federal transport minister, it has been a way of life since her husband was elected to the Commons in the Newfoundland riding of Burin-Burgeo in a 1966 byelection.

St. John's, Nfld., where Mrs. Jamieson grew up, is still home to the family—Donna, 22, Heather, 17, Roger, 15, Debbie, 11, and Michael, a nine-year-old Irish setter.

And the Jamiesons also have a summer home in Swift Current on Placentia Bay, about 200 miles southwest of St. John's, and an apartment in Ottawa, where Mrs. Jamieson spends much of her time when the House is in session.

An attractive woman with a pleasant smile who speaks with a soft Newfoundland accent, she likes to travel with her husband. "It's convenient," although speaking engagements and official functions may take him across the country in any given week.

The travelling isn't really anything new, as she often accompanied her husband during the four years he served as president of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters.

She says the children have adjusted well «to her being away from home, and that they try to make the most of their time together, particularly Christmas and Easter, and "every now and then we can." The Swift Current home seems to be a favorite, and large color pictures have children by the pool there decorate the Ottawa apartment. They also enjoy golf, tennis, pool and shuffleboard, and cruise around in Roger's 17-foot runabout dory.

Boats, of course, are an integral part of life for «most Newfoundlanders, and the Jamiesons' Ottawa launch comes in handy for occasional cruises.

Mr. Jamieson's riding is said to be the largest in the country, stretching from Placentia Bay to the Codroy Valley, and Mrs. Jamieson enjoys visiting the outports with him, sometimes by boat and sometimes by seaplane.

She met her husband when she was involved in the YM-YWCA extension program for American and Canadian navy personnel stationed in St. John's during the Second World War. He was sales manager for a soft drink company at the time, and they were married in 1944.

Apart from a short stint in Ottawa when her husband was a press gallery reporter for the St. John's News and the St. John's Telegram, she lived in St. John's until her husband entered politics.

Before the latest move to Ottawa, Mrs. Jamieson was active in girl guides and community affairs and have to be there to attend meetings," she says, "and I find Ottawa rather dull for that."

Most of her evenings in Ottawa are spent entertaining, although she says she had no great interest in politics before her husband got involved, and now is interested "only as far as he's concerned."

Asked whether she wished she could go back to Newfoundland permanently, Mrs. Jamieson said:

"You don't think about it. You just keep plugging."

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Former president and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson became grandparents again Sunday with the birth of a seven-pound, 10-ounce girl to Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Nugent.

Mrs. Nugent, the former Lucy Johnson, gave birth to their second child. Doctors said there were no complications and mother and child were doing fine.

The Nugents have a son, Patrick, who will be three June 21.

These Are the Victors

Troops of federal forces of Nigeria, such as those shown above, have pushed in on the diminishing secessionist state of Biafra from practically all sides. Biafran leader Gen. C. Odumegwu said Sunday morning he was flying out of Biafra "to expore possibilities" for peace.

After Thirty Months of Bloody Strife
Biafra Finally Beaten to Its Knees

LAGOS (AP) — It has taken 30 months, 2,000,000 lives and more than $1,200,000,000 to bring Biafra to its knees.

Nigeria's army, up from 8,000 men at the start, is well over 150,000, drove the diminishing secessionist state to the wall with a co-ordinated and unannounced onslaught.

Now there remains the surrender, the mopping up and the staggering task of rehabilitating some 4,000,000 members of the Ibo tribe.

Nigeria became an independent state Oct. 1, 1960, and Britain pointed to it as the model of its former colonies. Nigeria's 55,000,000 people made it the most populous of the former African colonies, and Prime Minister Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa was considered an enlightened leader.

But beneath the surface, bitter tribal animosities spelled trouble for the new nation. Balewa was killed in a coup in January, 1966, but the uprising was put down by Maj.-Gen. Johnson T. U. Aguiyi-Ironsi, commander of the army and an easterner from what was to become Biafra.

In June, 1966, Aguiyi-Ironsi was slain in a coup led by Yakubu Gowon, a lieutenant-colonel from northern Nigeria. He now is Nigeria's head of state and a major-general.

Thousands of Ibos were slain in the north during tribal rioting in September, 1966, and survivors fled to their tribal territory in eastern Nigeria. Lt.-Col. C. Odumegwu Ojukwu, governor of the territory, resisted Gowon's attempts to exert authority over the eastern region and on May 30, 1967, declared it the independent nation of Biafra, with 30,000 square miles and 14,000,000 people. He said his people could "no longer be protected in their lives and property by any government outside the eastern region."

When the civil war started July 6, 1967, Nigerian leaders talked of "a swift, surgical operation" that would take only days.

They captured the first main town, Nsukka, two days later. But then Biafra took the offensive, using infiltrators to invade the adjacent Midwest state. At one point, just months into the war, they were only 150 miles from Lagos.

From there it was a steady shrinking process. Federal units moved quickly through the outer reaches of Biafra, peopled by minority tribes not always anxious to join the Ibos in what they regarded as a tribal war.

Biafra's first capital, Enugu, fell in October, 1967, and the southeastern state capital of Calabar two weeks later.

In May, 1968, the Biafrans lost Port Harcourt, their last real airfield. Encircled and hard-pressed, the Biafrans made airstrips out of roads, camouflaging them by day and lighting them with makeshift flares at night. They distilled gasoline in their backyards, built tanks out of tractors and found substitutes for scores of vital items.

Finally food shortages caught up with them. The weakest children and then the stronger ones died of starvation. Many who survived developed kwashiorkor, a protein deficiency causing mental retardation.

Foreign relief workers and Red Cross societies rushed to help. There seemed plenty of time as the federal army advanced slowly, bogged down by tortuous supply lines, low morale and other problems.

But Abe, the provisional capital, fell, and Ojukwu moved his government to Umuahia. The Biafrans lost Umuahia in April, 1968, but recaptured Owerri, a major crossroads town, and held it to the last.

From then until the final Nigerian offensive in December, the war was practically at a standstill and Biafra even made small gains.

Swedish Count Carl Von Rosen brought in a handful of light planes and some pilots and restored the rebel air force. Air raids managed to cut back Nigerian oil production, but they just could not swing the balance.

Behind new Soviet artillery and with surprising new spirit, federal forces pushed through Biafran defences that had previously held.

Ojukwu, who late last year accepted the rank of general, flew out as Biafra crumbled, saying he was seeking new means of peace. But after five unsuccessful attempts to settle the war around a table, it appeared that Nigerian commanders were determined to finish it on the battlefield.

Biafran Leader Leaves as Defeat Near

It was reported in London that federal forces had either captured or were controlling the airstrip. Biafra's last major link with the outside world.

The climax of the sudden federal push toward victory was the announcement in Lagos, Sunday that Owerri had been taken.

There were reports of panic-stricken efforts to get on the last planes flying out of Uli airstrip, the rebels' last means of flying in arms and ammunition, food and drugs.

Ojukwu, who led the Eastern region of Nigeria to secession after the slaying of thousands of fellow Ibos, and thus set off the bloody civil war, was reported on one of the last planes out of Uli Saturday night. By late Sunday, it was reported that Uli also had fallen to federal forces.

The federal Nigerian leader, Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon, appealed to all Biafran rebels to lay down their arms and warned them "to continue the fight at this stage is not only futile but useless."

Gowon, once a close friend of Ojukwu and a colleague of his at Sandhurst, issued strict orders to his troops to observe humanitarian rules of conduct and ensure the safety of refugees.

Gowon was known to be particularly anxious to avoid unnecessary bloodshed because of Biafran charges that genocide would result from a federal victory.

Hard fighting continued in the southeast corner of the former British colony as Biafran regulars resisted the progress of federal troops. Military spokesmen in Lagos said there were heavy losses on both sides.

A radio report from Gabon said the latest Biafran capital—Orlu—had fallen. Reports from Gabon added that panic-stricken members of the Biafran elite shouldered aside relief workers for the escape seals on the last relief plane leaving Uli.

"Your leader has fled," federal radio broadcasts told Ibo tribesmen, backers of the secession movement. It 'urged them to stay at home and await the arrival of federal troops to ensure their safety.

In his departure broadcast, Ojukwu said he was going to explore new peace proposals, that "some friends of both sides have made some proposals for an arrangement with Nigeria to offer to Biafra the security they need in order to secure lasting peace."

Five previous attempts to set up peace negotiations during the civil war have failed because of the Biafrans' refusal to return to a united Nigeria, and the Lagos government's refusal to talk unless the Biafrans accepted unity in advance.

Gowon Youngest Ruler in Africa

By Reuters

Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon, youngest head of state in Africa when he rose to power in Nigeria in 1966 at 32, is a professional soldier who has led Nigeria throughout the civil war.

A short man with a trim figure and an interest in sports, Gowon became head of the federal military government and supreme commander of the armed forces in August, 1966, after an army mutiny in which Maj.-Gen. Johnson Aguiyi-Ironsi was overthrown as military leader and killed.

A soldier with 15 years of professional experience, Gowon received military training in Britain and served with United Nations forces in The Congo. Before taking power he was Nigerian army chief of staff and a member on the Nigerian Supreme Council.

Born Oct. 19, 1934, fifth son of a Christian evangelist of the Angas tribe, Gowon throughout the 2½ years of civil war has pledged to end the secession and preserve the unity of Nigeria.

During the last two years he has visited several African countries to present his government's views. Last November he pledged a return to civilian rule in Nigeria and said a date would be set after the war.

After a secondary-school education in Zaria, Northern Nigeria, Gowon joined the Nigerian army in 1954 and was sent to an officer school in Ghana. In 1955 he went to Britain for further training, including almost 1½ years at Sandhurst Military College. He returned to Nigeria in 1957.

Gowon was posted in Western Nigeria as a second lieutenant and by 1960 was a platoon commander in operations on the Nigeria-Cameroon border.

In 1963 he was promoted to lieutenant-colonel and adjutant-general of the Nigerian army.

In January, 1966, he became commander of the 3rd Battalion and following the military coup of Jan. 15 was appointed chief of staff at army headquarters. He was a lieutenant-commander when he came to power and was promoted to major-general on June 2, 1967.

Leader of Ibos Oxford Graduate

By REUTERS

Odumegwu Ojukwu, once one of Nigeria's wealthiest young men, became a leader in one of Africa's bloodiest civil wars, determined to save his Ibo people from what he believed to be the threat of genocide.

Ojukwu, now 36, took the Eastern region out of Nigeria and set up the state of Biafra on May 30, 1967. Five weeks later, the Nigerian-Biafran civil war broke out.

A striking figure in a heavy, patriarchal beard and holder of an Oxford degree in history, Ojukwu is a chain smoker and has managed only four or five hours of sleep most nights during the 2½ years of war.

He had a re- federal Nigerian army before the secession. He was a major at 28, a lieutenant-colonel and quartermaster-general two years later, and commander of a battalion by 1954.

Ojukwu was military governor in the Eastern region in September 1966, when thousands of Ibos were killed in one of the worst massacres in African history. An estimated 2,000,000 of the Ibos fled to the Eastern region, later to become the self-proclaimed independent state of Biafra.

Passionately devoted to the Ibos, the majority tribe in the Eastern region's original population of 14,000,000, Ojukwu faced serious reverses in 1967 by calling on his people to "be prepared to die so our children may live."

He himself has a wife and two children.

Ojukwu was born in Zungeru, Northern Nigeria, Nov. 4, 1933, the son of a self-made millionaire businessman.

Ojukwu was appointed military governor of the Eastern region after a military coup in Lagos on Jan. 15, 1966, staged by junior officers, most of them Ibo. A second coup in July, 1966, led to worsening relations between the Eastern leadership and the central government.

Following the September, 1966, massacre, relations deteriorated to the point of Biafran secession and Ojukwu's order of general mobilization. The federal government invaded the Eastern region on July 6, 1967.

Ojukwu, by now a hero to his people who called him general, was stripped of his rank, dismissed as governor and discharged from the Nigerian army in ignominy. But he fought on, until this weekend, as leader of the Biafran secession forces.

Kansas City No Joke After Super Bowl Show

And the Chiefs took a 23-7 victory that left the National Football League champion Vikings with a 13 won-lost record — counting exhibitions, regular season games and playoffs—by cashing in on the other team's mistakes.

Perhaps Minnesota's biggest mistake was depending too long on its pass-defence theory that by giving up the short ones you prevent the long ones.

"The Chiefs had been running a lot of hitch patterns," said corner back Earsell Mackbee.

"The receiver takes two or three steps and stops. The defender needs to come back and give him a good lick.

"If the receiver breaks the tackle, you're in trouble. "The ball got to Otis Taylor about the same time as I did.

Chiefs' Dawson Aged Five Years In Seven Days

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "He aged five years this week. You looked into his face and you knew it wasn't the same Len Dawson."

Those words tell of the strain that the Kansas City quarterback lived with last week before he went out Sunday in front of a sellout crowd of 80,998 and some 50,000,000 television viewers and led the Chiefs to a stunning 23-7 Super Bowl victory over Minnesota Vikings, 13-point favorites.

For those words are the words of Johnny Robinson, Dawson's longtime friend and roommate who watched his buddy turn into a solitude-seeking recluse in the cramped quarters of Room 838 at the Fontainebleau Hotel during the week after reports linked his name with the nationwide gambling investigation.

"Whenever I looked at him it wasn't the relaxed, easy-going Len Dawson I saw," said Robinson.

"He was tense, he wanted to be in solitude. It was a tremendous pressure week for him. It was bothering him.

"There were things we would normally do he wouldn't do. He played in the room most of the time, even, when some friends wanted to take us out. He only left to attend the daily conferences for the press and one night we went out about 9:30 for a couple dozen Louisiana oysters and a steam bath.

"He had some important things to think about."

Dawson thought both about the stories he saw in the newspapers every day following his admission that he had a "casual acquaintance" with a Detroit restaurateur arrested in connection with the gambling investigation and he thought about his wife and two children.

"Lenny was more concerned about his wife and kids back in Kansas City than himself," said Jacky Lee, the Chiefs' reserve quarterback. "They were having to put up with an awful lot of stuff. Lenny knew the public was going to read more into it than is there."

With all that on his mind, Dawson still managed to deal with the other problem he was facing—the Vikings, spending 11½ hours Saturday night going over films with Coach Hank Stram, something the two never do the night before a game. But then Dawson was having trouble remaining calm.

'Like Running Through Redwoods'

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A beaten Joe Kapp, quarterback of Minnesota Vikings, said Kansas City's defensive line was "like a redwood forest" in paying tribute to the Chiefs' 23-7 Super Bowl victory Sunday.

"They took the running game away from us," Kapp, who was forced to leave the game in the fourth quarter with a shoulder injury, said in a statement released by the Vikings.

"We went into the game wanting to run the ball, and they were able to take it all away with great defensive play.

"The Kansas City defensive line looked like a redwood forest. I don't remember that one individual stood out. They were all very active."

The Chiefs intercepted two of Kapp's passes in the second half when he was trying to rally the Vikings from a 16-0 deficit.

"We seemed to be able to move the ball pretty well, but when we came up to the big play, we weren't able to make it, and we were able to do that all year."

Kapp, former quarterback of British Columbia Lions, was not permitted to see reporters after the game while his left shoulder was treated by a doctor. The Vikings said Sunday night that he would undergo x-rays today

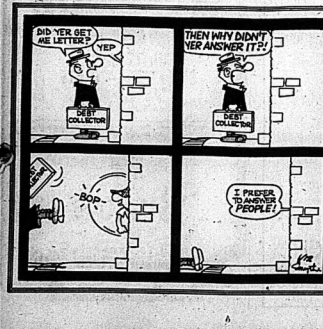
Only One Person Had Chiefs' Number

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The telephone rang twice in Kansas City Chiefs' locker room — "the White House calling," said an operator — and the result was a dramatic chapter in professional football history.

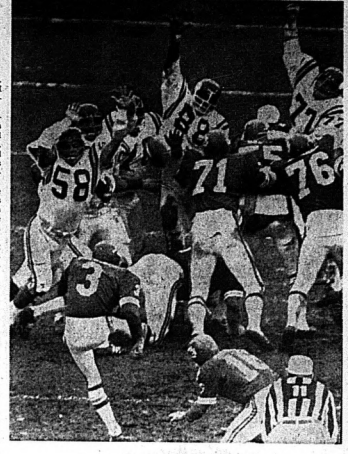
The principal character was Len Dawson, the Chiefs' veteran quarterback, half-sick, limping on a gimpy knee, tortured by news all week that he might be called in a nationwide sports gambling investigation.

"I just prayed to the good Lord that I'd have the strength and courage to play a good game," Dawson said after leading the American Football League champions to a 23-7 victory over the heavily-favored Minnesota Vikings.

His strength held, and no one doubted his courage. But much of the inspiration he poured into this magnificent performance must have come from the country's No. 1 football fan, President Nixon.



The president called Kansas City coach Hank Stram first. He didn't talk to Dawson, but asked that Stram pass along a message to the Chiefs' players. Dawson in particular.



"He said he knew that there wasn't anything to the rumors that we were involved in early in the week," the Kansas City coach said. "He told us to dismiss it from our minds and go out and play like champions."

After the game there was another call of congratulations to Stram and a private call to Dawson, who had to return the call from an ante-room in the Kansas City dressing quarters, with scores of news and radio men hanging over his shoulders.

Sport Brief

CALGARY (CP) — Debbie Brill of Haney, B.C., set a Canadian open mark of five feet, 10 inches in the women's high jump Saturday night. Miss Brill, competing in the Stampede City international track meet, broke the former mark of five feet, nine inches set by Diane Gerace of Trail, B.C., in 1964.

On Its Way

Casper Wins LA Playoff for Start on Second Million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Now," said Billy Casper, "I guess I can go to work on the second million."

The rock-steady veteran who went into a mild decline last year had just defeated Hale Irwin in a sudden-death playoff for the $40,000 first prize in the Los Angeles open golf tournament.

The earnings pushed his career total to $1,001,924.48, second only to Arnold Palmer on the all-time list.

It was a heart-breaking loss for Irwin, 24, a former football star at Colorado who never before had finished higher than 10th in a regular tour event.

Irwin, the third-round leader, held a two-stroke lead with four holes to play. Then "everything I've worked for for two years, everything I had hoped for" slipped through my fingers."

He went over par on the 15th when he was short of the green and had only a one-stroke lead.

Casper finished a few minutes later with a one-over-par 72 for 276.

Moments later Irwin pushed his 10e shot into the rough on 18, hit a tree limb coming out, and was on in three and two-putted for a closing 73 and 276 that forced a sudden-death playoff.

They went to the 16th where both drove the fairway and Irwin put his second shot in the fringe about 12 feet from the pin. Casper laced a seven iron 161 yards to within four feet. Irwin missed his putt and the quiet veteran of 17 years on the tour dropped his for his 63rd tour triumph.

Scores generally were high in the steady rain that formed puddles all over the 6,821-yard, par-71 Rancho Park Golf Club course.

Dave Hill and Bob Lunn finished in a tie for third at 277. Hill with a final 70 and Lunn a 71. Terry Dill, 70, and Bob Smith, who had the day's best round, 68, followed at 278. Don Massengale, Grier Jones, Kim Still and Dave Stockton was next at 279.

Palmer, who was seeking his third consecutive victory, slogged through the mud to an uninspired 73 and finished far back at 284.

Italians Have Luck of Draw In World Cup

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Italy, West Germany and Russia have drawn what appear to be the easiest groups in play for the ninth World Cup soccer tournament this spring.

Italy will face the relatively modest teams of Uruguay and Sweden and the relatively unknown Israelis.

West Germany, which lost to England in the 1966 World Cup final, will play Peru, Bulgaria and newcomer Morocco.

Mexico and the Soviet Union meet in huge Aztec Stadium here May 31 to open the play in the tournament.

The preliminary-round games were decided Saturday by lot in a brief ceremony which was televised to Europe and Latin America.

Monica Maria Canedo White, 19-year-old daughter of the president of the Mexican Football Association, pulled the names of the 16 teams out of four silver cups before about 1,000 delegates from the competing countries.

Group 1, to play its opening-round games in Mexico-City's 108,000-seat Aztec Stadium, will be made up of Mexico, the Soviet Union, Belgium and El Salvador.

Group 2, to alternate its games between Puebla and Leon, will be composed of Uruguay, Italy, Sweden and Israel.

Group 3, to play in Guadalajara, will include England, Brazil, Czechoslovakia and Romania.

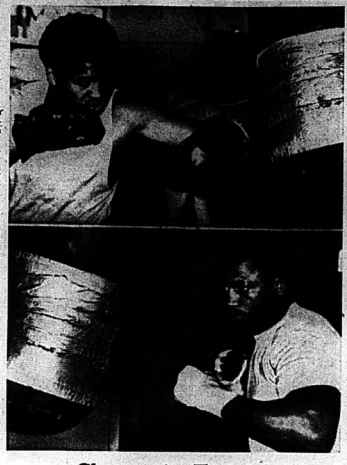
Group 4, to play in Leon, will include West Germany, Bulgaria, Morocco and Peru.

England and Brazil will meet in Guadalajara on June 7.

There will be only one game May 31 but on June 2 action starts all around.

The organizing committee avoided possible political trouble by making sure Morocco and Israel were not in the same group. Morocco, an Arab country, had said it would not play against Israel.

The draw, arranged partly ahead of time in secret to make sure that such favorites as England, Brazil, West Germany and Italy would not end up in the same group, spread the forces fairly evenly.



Woodstock Poor Gamblers

Woodstock A's decided to gamble for a tie by pulling their goaltender Sunday night and Oakville Oaks turned the tables.

The Oaks scored two goals into the empty Woodstock net to gain a 7-6 victory in Ontario Hockey Association Senior action after holding a 5-4 edge late in the final period.

In other games, Kingston Aces edged Orillia Terriers 5-4 Saturday, while Guelph Flyers downed the Aces 4-3 Sunday and Owen Sound Crescents defeated Belleville Mohawks 6-5.

Champs in Training

World Boxing Association Champion Jimmy Ellis, top, and Joe Frazier, champion of seven states, pound the bag as they train for their Feb. 16 world championship fight in Madison Square Garden. Esposito Threatens To Give Orr A Run

By CHUCK SYOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Phil Esposito may not repeat his record scoring rampages of last season but he threatens to give team-mate Bobby Orr some competition in the run for the current National Hockey League scoring championship.

Esposito, who won the 1968-69 scoring title with a record 126 points, scored three goals and assisted on another Sunday night on the way to a 6-3 Boston Bruins victory over Oakland Seals. The four points put Esposito into a tie with Phil Goyette of St. Louis Blues, 12 points behind Orr.

In other games Sunday, Montreal Canadiens downed New York Rangers 4-1 and Chicago Black Hawks defeated Los Angeles Kings 3-1. Saturday, Toronto Maple Leafs edged the Bruins 4-3, Chicago whipped St. Louis 6-2, Detroit Red Wings beat Pittsburgh Penguins 5-3, Los Angeles downed Minnesota North Stars 6-4 and Oakland tied Philadelphia Flyers 3-3.

Orr, now with 61 points on 12 goals and 49 assists, is just three points short of matching his own record set last season of most points by a defenceman in a single season. And he is just one assist away from matching the record of most assists by a defenceman in one season set by Chicago's Pat Stapleton during the 1968-69 schedule.

Esposito opened the scoring at the 16:05 mark of the first period before a crowd of 14,831 at Boston Sunday. Less than two minutes later he made the score 2-0. Dick Mattiman scored for the Seals early in the second period, but Esposito made it 3-1 for the Bruins two minutes later.

Orr failed to add to his points total Sunday but a misconduct and two minor penalties pushed his total to 92 minutes.

The win put the Bruins just two points behind the East Division leading Rangers whose five-game unbeaten streak ended in front of 17,289 Montreal fans.

Right winger Bobby Rousseau scored two third-period goals to clinch the Canadiens victory. Rookie Bob Sheehan and Jack Egers assisted on the first period before centre Walt Tkaczuk gained the Rangers' only goal in the last minute.

Sheehan's goal was his first in NHL competition and it helped him celebrate his 21st birthday. The Weymouth, Mass., native, called up from Montreal Voyageurs of the American League, was playing in only his fourth NHL contest.

Gilles Marotte, Dennis Hull and Doug Mohns scored to back up the solid goaltending of Tony Esposito for Chicago's third consecutive win. The Black Hawks now are just four points behind fourth-place Detroit in the East.

Bill Flett scored for the Kings who absorbed their third loss against one victory on their current eight-game road trip.

Toronto goalie Bruce Gamble kept Boston's Esposito off the scoreboard Saturday despite the big centre's ability to break through the Leafs' defence. Gamble made several key saves on Esposito and linemates Hodge and Wayne Carleton to preserve the victory before a crowd of 16,885 at Toronto.

Orr beat Gamble for one Boston goal and assisted on the others by Hodge and Fred Stanfield.

Russian Amateurs Rich?

One of Sweden's top hockey players said today the Soviet world champions, who are supposed to be amateurs, lived purely on the sport and earned up to $1,920 a month.

Star defenceman Lennart Svedberg, who spent two weeks training with the Red Army team in Moscow last fall, said in a newspaper interview the Russians played hockey fulltime for 11 months of the year then spent a month with their families, usually vacationing by the Black Sea.

He said his Russian interpreter had confirmed that the world champions, who are described as army officers, did nothing except play hockey.

Sports On All Fronts

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Sunday Canada will not reverse its decision to withdraw from the 1970 world ice hockey championships unless its demand for nine professional players is met.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Helmets will become compulsory headwear Jan. 24 for all Manitoba hockey players on teams registered or affiliated with the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association. The MAHA board of directors, under the chairmanship of president Bill Addison, unanimously approved the motion at a meeting Saturday. The effective date of the regulation will coincide with the start of minor hockey week in Canada.

PERTH, Scotland (CP) — Canadian curlers had a disastrous session against Scottish competition Saturday and fell back another 40 points in play for the Strathcona Cup. The Canadians dropped all of their matches against five Perth rinks, most of them by wide margins. Scottish experts said the Perth players make up the toughest competition the Canadians will meet in the three-week tournament.

MONTREAL (CP) — The board of Montreal Expos has never discussed building any kind of baseball stadium in the city, a director said Saturday. He was commenting on published reports that the Expos had spent "large sums" of money on a feasibility report of a stadium with a retractable dome to cost between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000, financed with "private money." "There has never been any discussion by the board about building any stadium in Montreal," the director said. The National League Expos now lease 30,000-seat Jarry Park from the city. It has been understood that the city committed itself to building a larger stadium when Montreal was awarded the baseball franchise last year. But a team spokesman said there is no deadline for expanded facilities for the Expos. Team officials and the National League are satisfied with Jarry Park, which drew 1,125,000 fans in the club's initial year.

Yamahas Qualify

Quinte Drivers Not Snowed Under

PETERBOROUGH (Staff) — The Weese snowmobile racing team felt like it were flake in a blizzard at the Kawartha Cup championships here over the weekend, but the unsponsored Belleville area representatives were by no means snowed under.

The team — Prince Edward Yamaha dealer Bob Weese and Bill Ireland — went to the $15,000 event expecting to do no better than get on the track with some of the well-heeled factory teams that showed up with everything from their own buses to fully-equipped service centres.

Entered in "D" Stock competition with more than 30 other machines, Weese and Ireland showed they were not out of place as novice members of the Ontario Snowmobile Racing Federation.

In Saturday's competition, Weese made the finals by running second in his qualifying heat, while Ireland also gained a berth by running his Yamaha 396 third in his elimination.

In the final, Weese ran sixth and Ireland fourth, hitting straightaway speeds upwards of 50 miles an hour.

The only other Yamaha entered placed third overall, giving the untouted and unsponsored Japanese machines three of the top seven positions in the 35-machine "D" Stock field.

Sunday, Ireland duplicated Saturday's performance, running third in his qualifying run, and moving up to a sixth-place finish in the final. Weese was running third in his elimination heat when he broke a skate-rod on his right ski and was forced to drop out.

Meanwhile, a brother - sister act teamed to take the top prizes in the two - day event billed as the North American championships.

Driving Ski-doos, Rick Clarke, 20, and Helen, 22, from Port Sydney collected a total of $3,000 in cash and prizes between them. Rick finished first in the powerful "E" Modified event and won the speed trial by turning the half - mile Morrow Park oval in 24 seconds. Sister Helen won the Molson's Cup, unofficial designation as top international women's snowmobile racer.

More than 300 machines were entered in the Kawartha Cup event, considered the prism on the Ontario Snowmobile Racing Federation's two-year-old circuit of weekly competitions.

Plans for an assault on the world's land - speed snowmobile record west awry Sunday morning when timing equipment flew at the Peterborough airport.

One Moto-Ski driver was unofficially clocked at 82.1 miles an hour, well below the official record of 95.33 mph set last year in the United States.

Maybe Next Time

The Bob Weese - Bill Ireland Yamaha snowmobile race team load their machines for the trip home after competing in the weekend Kawartha Cup competition in Peterborough. Both drivers qualified for final races during the two-day event.

Hold That Cat!

Belleville's Bill Ireland fends off the challenge of an Arctic Cat while driving his Yamaha to a third-place finish in a "D" Stock qualifying heat during Sunday's action in the Kawartha Cup snowmobile racing competition in Peterborough.

Fish and Game Club Holds Ladies Night

Plans for the annual general meeting of the Belleville District Fish and Game Club have been completed.

At a directors' meeting this week, it was decided to hold the yearly "Ladies' Night" at the Royal Canadian Legion auditorium on Tuesday, Jan. 20 starting at 6.30 p.m.

Included in the program is a rare travelogue film, door prizes and the annual awards of the fish and game competition.

The guest speaker will be Mrs. Alma Wallis of Rolphston, Ontario, well-known taxidermist and wild-life photographer who will show a film shot in BC and the Yukon in which she captured via film, mountain scenery, glaciers and such wild life as mountain goats, caribou and wild sheep.

Tickets for the dinner are now on sale at McKnight's Variety Store, Bob Bland's Sport Shop and from any director.

Club president Tom Helm told directors the February general meeting will be held also at the Canadian Legion club rooms instead of Club Canara.

Directors voted in favor of the sponsorship of a Fish Derby to be held in conjunction with the Quinte Winter Carnival. The Derby date is set for Feb. 7. Director Harry Ridley is chairman of the event.

Discussion of the termination of a lease of some 130 acres of land nine miles north of the city from the Moira River Conservation Authority was also discussed. A decision will be made at a later date.

Bull's-eye

The ANAF held a successful darts tournament Saturday afternoon, with mixed doubles play in the evening. The men's singles winner was Bob Green and runner up was Russ Bland. In doubles Jack Fitzgerald and Bob Totten came out on top, with Bill Salter and Pete Beumer placing second.

In mixed play, Mary and Hugh Northey were the winners with Ruth and George Woodhouse as the runners-up.

Ladies three high darts honors went to Ruth Woodhouse with 134. In the men's P. Cornell led with 138.

Lose 6-5 to Crescents

Red-hot Goalkeeping Stalls Mo-Hawk Attack

OWEN SOUND (Special) — No matter how many of the right hockey pieces you put together, a hot opposition goalkeeper can take them apart.

That's what Belleville's Mo-Hawks learned Sunday when they ran into Owen Sound rookie goalie Tom Coughlin on "one of those nights" and dropped a 6-5 decision to the seventh-place Crescents.

"You wouldn't believe the stops that kid made in the third period," said Mo-Hawk playing coach Davey Jones.

"We had a tremendous power-play going trying to get the tying goal in the last period, but couldn't put the puck past him. We had our hands in the air twice when we thought we had beaten him."

Coughlin is the Crescents' latest answer to replacing Chuck Jewell, who ended a sensational senior hockey career after suffering a concussion from a deflected puck in Belleville earlier this season.

If Coughlin was unbeatable, the Mo-Hawks' Steve Rexe was all too beatable, Jones indicated.

Keith Smeltzer beat Rexe three times, including twice in the second period when the Crescents won the game by outscoring Belleville 4-2.

John Lumley, Bill Abbott, and Wes Rydall also scored for Owen Sound, who, Jones estimated, were outshot 2-1 by the Mo-Hawks.

George Godson's goal near the 12 - minute mark of the last period came with Mickey Kaye and Wes Rydall in the penalty box, and was the only time the Mo-Hawks could take advantage of 14 Owen Sound penalties. Belleville caught referee Jack Clancey's eye for six minor infractions.

Godson's goal narrowered the margin to the eventual 6-5 outcome, but the Mo-Hawks couldn't buy the equalizer. No serious scoring chances resulted from pulling Rexe for an extra attacker in the final minute.

Godson's linemates Lorne O'Donnell and Al Ferguson had scored earlier in the game, Ferguson's goal making him the first Mo-Hawk and only third OHA Senior A player to reach the 20 - goal plateau.

Jones and Ralph Plane got the other goals for the Mo - Hawks, who came out of the first period tied 1-1, but trailed 3-3 after the second.

The Mo-Hawks again had to

play with an injury - riddled defence. After weathering a severe back injury to pace Friday night's 8-4 home win over Barrie, Lou Kazowski sat out yesterday's game.

Wayne Brown, who suffered a mild concussion Friday night, also failed to make the trip to Owen Sound.

Jones said he hopes to have "rookie" Lorne Ferguson in action for at least one of next weekend's two road games. The Mo-Hawks are idle Friday night, play in Galt Saturday, and Oakville Sunday.

Ferguson, an eight-year veteran of the National Hockey League, will skate with the Mo-Hawks at their regular Tuesday night practice session.

Their weekend split leaves the Mo-Hawks in a third-place tie with Oakville, with a pair of games in hand.

Experience Tells In Ellis Defeat

Coach Floyd Crawford faces an unusual predicament for a loss at this time of year — he's short of manpower, and if the winter works program is overstocked with experienced junior-age hockey players, the Belleville Ellis Junior B team would be happy to do their bit to combat unemployment.

Lack of depth told on the Belleville team Sunday as they dropped an 8-4 decision to the Peterborough Don Byes. The loss cost them a chance to move into sole possession of fourth place in the Eastern Ontario Junior B League.

The Ellis team watched a 4-3 second period lead go out the window, as the Don Byes skated around, through and over them, for five unanswered goals in the final frame.

As coach Crawford sees it, "You have to chalk it up to inexperience. The younger players are doing a good job, but this lack of experience forces many of the veterans to do double duty on the lines and power-play."

The effects of this double shift were evident in the third period as Peterborough burst the home team twice for short-handed goals.

While the play of the defenceman was greatly improved over their last two performances, the wingers were operating on a cash and carry basis, backchecking only when the spirit moved them, which didn't appear to be too often.

Defencemen Kevin Dockrii and Dalton Lambert played a solid game and centres John McConnell, Danny Lupenette and Al Jarbeau were skating well and setting up some good scoring opportunities.

Lupenette scored after winning the face - off in the opposing end and firing a backhander behind goalie Dave White. Jarbeau made a nice play to set up left winger John Hill for a first period tally, as he banked one in off the goalie's pads. McConnell did likewise for linemate Terry Meagher, in the second frame, as Meagher fired his passout in the open side. Juvenile recruit Steve Sharpe had opened the Belleville scoring after only 23 seconds of play.

Record Passenger Load

First Jumbo Jet Arrives at London

LONDON (Reuters) — The first of the jumbo jets flew into London today carrying the largest planeload of passengers ever to arrive anywhere.

It was the first plane that a Jumbo jet—the new breed of aircraft designed to revolutionize flying in the 1970s—had travelled outside the United States with a full load.

On previous proving flights the plane had flown with many seats empty, a Pan American spokesman said.

The bulbous-nosed craft, named Clipper Constitution, thwarted conventional methods by an engine change and heavy air traffic at the takeoff point.

To cope with the flood of baggage, Heathrow Airport authorities have allotted two conveyor belt systems to the 747 instead of the usual one a plane. The baggage was whisked off the plane aboard special containers which are expected eventually to cut unloading time down to 15 minutes.

The 747 carries 3½ times as many passengers as the 707. Its 231 feet make it half as long again as the 707—roughly as long as a 23-storey building is high.

The Jumbo's tall plane is as high as a six-storey building.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

'Body Counts' In Vietnam Called Phoney

NUI BA DEN, South Vietnam (AP) — The Americans pulled off the slopes of Black Virgin Mountain Sunday, claiming a scoreboard victory. But the mountain caves still belonged to the North Vietnamese.

"It's a ludicrous game," said one junior officer who took part in the five-day sweep of the battered mountainside, 55 miles northwest of Saigon. "It involves risking the lives of American men to make enough noise so a decent body count can be reported.

"They want bodies, so we give 'em bodies. When we spot a target, we shoot up some ammo, call in artillery and gunships, and when all the noise is over, we call in a reasonable count of kills that will satisfy higher authority.

"Sometimes we know we didn't give anybody more than a headache. But it's all part of a game, and we all play our part."

Troops of the 1st Brigade, U.S. 25th Infantry Division, were airlifted to the 3,226-foot summit of Nui Ba Den—or Black Virgin Mountain—early last week. They worked their way down the jungled mountainside and surrounded the North Vietnamese force on the rocky cave-pocked lower slopes.

Tanks and artillery at the base of the mountain pounded the North Vietnamese positions with hundreds of rounds a day as fighter-bombers and helicopter gunships poured bombs, napalm and rocks from the air.

A 25th Division machine-gunner, who said he had been on the mountain three times before, shook his head.

"I'll probably have to go back up the damn thing again," he said, "but I'll never know what they expect me to accomplish."

Multi-level natural caves wind deep into the mountain, providing the North Vietnamese shelter from American fire and endless storage space for supplies. Fresh water is available from underground streams, and entrances to many caves are protected by 20-foot boulders that litter the side of the mountain.

Officers in command of the operation told reporters at the scene Saturday that this time U.S. troops were going to search out every cave and drive the North Vietnamese army off the mountain for good. Relief columns were scheduled to be flown to the area Sunday.

But sometime during the night the orders were changed, and the Americans pulled back. A brigade spokesman said bombs and rockets would finish the job.

$100 Million Ransom Offered For PoW

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas millionaire H. Ross Perot disclosed Sunday he has offered to buy the release of United States servicemen held prisoner by North Vietnam. And he said he would go as high as $100,000,000 if necessary.

Perot, who tried unsuccessfully to fly Christmas gifts and messages to the war prisoners, said he sent a cable to North Vietnam with the offers but has not had time to receive a reply.

The offers were disclosed on the ABC interview program Issues and Answers.

"This week I sent another cable to the prime minister of North Vietnam," Perot said, "and made two offers to him, concurrent offers.

"The first is to supply everything it takes, food, medicine, other supplies, to run the prisoner-of-war camps, and as an incentive to the North Vietnamese to allow these supplies to come in on a continuing basis to supply the same quantity of supplies in addition to the people of North Vietnam to bring relief to them.

"The second proposal was to build facilities, supply food, clothing and other non-military items, badly needed by the North Vietnamese people in exchange for the prisoners of war —in exchange for release of the prisoners-of-war."

Koreans Deny Atrocity Claim

HONOLULU (AP) — A report by an American anthropologist in Honolulu that he has evidence South Korean troops shot Vietnamese civilians at random was denied Saturday by a Korean military leader.

A. Terry Rambo, now a student here, said he came across evidence of atrocities in 1968 while heading a government-sponsored research project. He said that he took the information to the United States defence department in 1967 but nothing was done about it.

The spokesman for all Korean troops in Vietnam, Col. Kim Byung Kown, said in Saigon that Rambo's account of alleged atrocities in Vietnam's Phu Yen province is false.

Rambo said he heard refugee accounts of atrocious atrocities, all by South Korean marines, while he was conducting a government-sponsored refugee research project as an employee of Human Sciences Research Inc., in 1966.

Rambo said he had two American assistants on the refugee project, one of them being Jerry Tinker.

Tinker, now a doctoral candidate at American University in Washington, confirmed Rambo's story and said the refugees' report was printed by Human Sciences Research Inc., in July, 1967.

"As far as we know they (the atrocity reports) were true," said Tinker, 30.

Jesuit College Closes In Dispute Over Faculty

MONTREAL (CP) — Loyola College, a Roman Catholic institution operated by the Jesuit Fathers, has shut down for a week in the hope this will speed up settlement of a dispute over reductions in faculty.

The college administration said in a statement Sunday that it hopes cancellation of all classes, meetings and other scheduled activities at the west-end campus this week will "facilitate a freer and more profitable exchange of views of all concerned."

The dispute erupted over the administration's decision not to rehire 27 professors, of whom 17 are in the English department.

Loyola has 4,300 students. One hundred of them have organized a protest against the administration, which they continued during the weekend. They have unfolded a camping tent nicknamed Liberation City in the lobby of the administration building and conducted a sit-in, sustained by soup and sandwiches from campus groups.

The Quebec government became involved in the dispute Friday when Brian Mulroney, a lawyer representing professors whose contracts are not being renewed, and four professors went to Quebec City to see Yves Martin, deputy minister of education.

Mr. Martin said he would not agree to the delegation's request for a fact-finding mission until he had talked to representatives of the college administration.

He met the executive committee of the Loyola board of trustees Sunday and the committee said in a statement afterwards that "initial progress was made."

"Discussions are continuing without interruption in order to expedite an early solution."

A. G. Hooper, chairman of the English department, has resigned, charging the administration with a "political purge" of his department.

The administration has said the decision not to renew the 27 contracts was taken because of an anticipated decrease in student enrolment next year and a desire to improve academic standards.

The administration announced Sunday that any of the 27 could appeal the decision up to Feb. 15. The deadline had been Jan. 15.

Some of the administration's opponents on the issue have claimed that it is refusing to rehire professors who supported S. A. Santhanam, a physics professor who became the centre of controversy last year when the college decided not to renew his contract.

Dr. Santhanam appeared at a buffet dinner attended by some 400 students, faculty members and faculty wives Saturday praising the student protesters for their "courage and sense of justice."

They were "establishing a new standard of behavior in Montreal universities."

Canadian Plane Home from Race

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's seven daring young men—and their flying machine—flew into the frigid Ottawa air Sunday after completing an air race in the trailblazin' tradition of aviation romance, a sprint from London, England to Adelaide, Australia.

The five-man Canadian Armed Forces team had piloted their twin jet Falcon half-way around the world—about 9,000 miles—in a race against a Qantas Airlines crew. The competition, with purse of $130,000, was sponsored by the Australian government and a British oil company.

"It went to a good team," said Maj. D. R. (Doc) O'Connor, the plane's captain. He attributed the Aussie win to fast turn-around times at stop-overs along the route.

Maj. O'Connor's men left London Dec. 27, stopping at Athens, Tehran, Karachi, Calcutta, Bangkok, Singapore, Indonesia, Darwin, and on to Adelaide.

Smoking Causes Damage to Cells

NEW YORK (AP) — Cancer researchers said Saturday they have laboratory evidence proving for the first time that cigarette smoking causes cell damage in the larynx, or voice box.

The cell damage increases with heavier smoking, they reported.

Earlier, "strikingly similar" cell damage had been found in the bronchial tissue of the lung and the tissue of the esophagus in smokers.

The findings in all these cases, the scientists said, are consistent with statistical studies linking death rates from cancer to smoking habits.

Further, the scientists reported finding more evidence suggesting that cells damaged by smoking repair themselves in persons who have stopped smoking.

The larynx study was carried out by researchers from the Veterans Administration Hospital in East Orange, N.J., and the American Cancer Society, and a report appears in the latest issue of the Journal of the National Cancer.

Dr. Oscar Auerbach, senior medical investigator at the hospital, and pathologist at New York Medical College, said the study was made on larynxes taken at autopsy from 971 men who died at the hospital from causes other than larynx cancer between November, 1964, and December, 1967.

Tweed

TWEED — The draw held recently on the money tree at the Western Tire store at Tweed, took place with the lucky winner being Arthur Caudwell of Tweed.

A successful dance and draw was held recently at the Stone Parish Hall, 1st prize, hand - made quilt, Fred Preston of Thomasburg; 2nd prize, turkey, Rae Wright of Kingston; 3rd prize, pillow cases, Pat Healey, Stone. Mrs. Lou Van de Wey, President of St. Edmund's Catholic Women's League, thanked everyone who had helped in any way to make the dance and the draw a success.

PETS UNWANTED

MONTREAL (CP) — The SPCA says dozens of unwanted puppies and kittens flood every local branch shortly after Christmas each year. "A pet must be wanted by the whole family, especially mother, if it is to be a success," says Mrs. Alex Casgrain, a member of the SPCA's education committee. Parents should supervise small children when they are playing with a pet to make sure the animal is not over-teased, she says.

Your Car

Some General Hints Are Given For Do-it-yourself Mechanic

A reader writes:

"I have six children and to protect them from the polluted city air I mortgaged my life and bought a place in the country. To make things worse, since I must travel 30 miles a day to and from my work I had to sink $1,800 into a new compact which also had to be financed.

"For the next five years my budget will be such that I just cannot afford a lot of repair bills and, since I am a millwright by trade and have a good tool kit, I plan on doing most of my own maintenance work. A friend who is a licensed mechanic has, for a modest fee, agreed to guide me on the more delicate operations.

"Any advice you have to offer would be appreciated." — Mr. J. B., Brampton, Ont.

It is pathetic how little the average Canadian knows about the mechanics of his vehicle. Just a trivial failure can, to him stranded, as well as saving money, most men who probe into the innards of their vehicles find it an enjoyable hobby.

In Europe, many people make a point of gaining a good working knowledge of their vehicles. Apart from economics, it's a matter of personal pride not having to rely on their garage for every minor detail.

The first and most important step is to buy a master manual for your particular make of car. These manuals are available through the parts department of your franchised dealership. Everything from minor adjustments to major overhauls is clearly defined and diagrams give the name of each component and the order in which they are assembled.

Before starting, remove wrist watch and rings. Metal objects can become jammed between a live wire and a ground and are soon red hot, resulting in serious burns to the fingers or wrist.

Never have such items as tools, cigarettes or pencils in your upper shirt or coat pockets that may fall out when leaning over the engine. When in my teens I learned about this the hard way. A small screwdriver dropped out of my upper pocket, hit the revolving fan blade, bounced back, smashed my glasses and cut a deep gash in my forehead.

Never work with loose clothing that may get caught in the fan belt or pulleys. It's dangerous to walk away and leave the hood open when the engine is running. Children climb up on the front of the car and little hands can be severed in split seconds. Gasoline should never be used to wash parts. Cleaning solvent is recommended for this purpose.

An extension light should not be placed on top of or around the area of the radiator. If the engine is running, the vibration can cause it to drop into the fan which can result in a shower of metal objects flying in all directions.

Before raising the car with a bumper jack, block the front and rear of one of the wheels and never leave the car suspended on a jack. Before crawling underneath the car be sure it is supported by solid wooden blocks, or recommended stands. Bricks or cement blocks can crumble and collapse.

Before working on the electrical system, especially under the dash, to avoid the possibility of a short circuit, disconnect one of the battery cables. And, remember, no tuneup without first washing all the oil and grime from the engine and ignition components. Dirt on the ignition is a prime cause of starting failure in damp weather.

A word of warning. Without the guidance of a mechanic it is dangerous for the uninitiated to become involved in such things as brake and steering work. Just a slight oversight in these areas can prove disastrous.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Uranium Mine No Arthritis Cure

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My mother is 76. I am 45. We are the only ones left of our family. In addition to being lively, we have another problem. Both of us suffer from arthritis.

The doctor we used to go to called it degenerative or osteoarthritis. But all he would give us for it was aspirin. He refused to prescribe cortisone.

One day we heard of a special treatment. The man admitted he wasn't a real doctor, but claimed he had discovered an abandoned uranium mine which miraculously cured arthritis. All we have to do is sit in what looks like a cave, hold hands for half an hour, and come out. We take this treatment once a week. We paid him $300 down, and $10 (each) a week for use of the mine.

For a while we felt a little better. But now we feel even worse than we used to. In fact, my mother caught a severe bronchitis from sitting on the cold ground of the cave.

My question is this: Shall we try it a while longer Or shall we go back to our doctor. We hate to do this because he doesn't promise us any cure. The man who's treating us now is certain that we will be better within six months. — Miss C.

Comment: I mean nothing personal, but letters like yours upset me for days. Whenever I learn of a specific instance where a quack of some kind is taking advantage of some innocent soul, it makes me boil.

Quacks, in my opinion, are the lowest form of humanity. Like carrion birds, they feed on human misery. How they can walk to the bank without having their consciences crippling them up is something I can't understand. But forgetting about how I feel, how about you and your mother, Mrs. C.? I suggest that you stop your "treatment" in the "uranium mine." They are worthless. Be thankful your doctor was straightforward, and didn't "promise" any cure.

Osteoarthritis, the most common form of arthritis, affects most people (to some degree) after the age of 40. Cortisone doesn't help; aspirin does. Sometimes other drug combinations help.

But there is no cure, only relief from pain and stiffness. Better get out of the clutches of this quack and into the hands of your physician who is trying his best; and is honest enough to say he can make no promises for "cure".

Dear Dr. Steincrohn; My daughter suffers from acne. She is getting depressed; and the rest of us are, too. We hate to see her alone in her room, not going to dances or going out with friends.

She is very sensitive. We want to help all we can. We have taken her to a skin specialist. He wants to prescribe an "antibiotic." But we wonder if she should take it. Will it harm her — Mrs. N.

* * *

Comment: Taken under a doctor's supervision, you should have no anxiety about her taking it. Although there has been some difference of opinion about how much antibiotics help in acne, lately doctors are beginning to believe it should be given a try.

For example, a recent survey of over 1,400 dermatologists indicated that 87 per cent used "broad spectrum" antibiotics in treating their acne patients.

A recent editorial in the Annals of Internal Medicine, in reference to this problem, states in part: "The foregoing considerations suggest that a rational basis for certain types of antibiotic therapy in acne has been established."

'Little Man' Big Threat

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The greatest threat facing the U.S. is not from the Military-Industrial Complex. It is not from the Establishment. It is not from the demonstrators, the dissenters, the hippies, or even the militant revolutionists. It is from the ordinary "little man" as he calls himself.

It is from the man who is bewildered and frustrated, frightened and angry at social forces he cannot comprehend and does not like. The man who finds his familiar world turned upside down and inside out by the rate of change in modern society.

The only "alienated" in American life today are not so much the black, the poor, the young or the radical. They are the white, the working- and lower-middle-classes, the older, and the more conservative. They feel betrayed, unrepresented, manipulated and ignored — and threatened on all sides, by the urban sprawl, automation, racial demands, the cost of living, and a war they never wanted — across all of the old shibboleths and slogans they grew up to believe in.

Resentment is their major reaction — resentment of the news media, of the federal and schools, of intellectuals, of planners, of politicians, of people who push them around against their will and involvement.

It is hard not to sympathize with their bafflement and exasperation. No one has ever bothered to explain to them exactly what is going on in this last third of the 20th Century. Economics, with its complex, politics is too confused, philosophy is too abstract, religion is too diffuse — what can a man believe, what can he know, what can he rely upon?

This is the public condition, and the spirit, that makes for Fascism in a country. Fascism is less a political ideology than an emotional response to problems that seem unsolvable any other way. It is a gut reaction to ambiguity and frustration; it supplies simple answers to complicated problems, and makes such people feel better about living, because it takes out their anxieties on somebody else.

No one has ever taken the time and trouble to educate these people. No one has ever tried to train their feelings. No one has patiently explained to them how modern technology has made the world an utterly new place, and how we must devise new social systems to match our physical systems — or perish in confusion and conflict.

These people are potentially more explosive than any other of the seemingly incendiary elements in our society. They are the ones who carry the big and little Hitlers to power everywhere. Not because they want to, but because we have offered them no options between resentment and reaction.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For January 13

Your birthday today: Your course now involves more firm decisions and the means of bringing them to reality. You find yourself taking the initiative in all sorts of issues, including some where you'd be better off letting others lead. New friends are attracted wherever you are involved in serious enterprises.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Credit buying is very tempting but apt to get out of hand. Care with mechanical and electrical equipment is also essential.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Nobody wants to be pinned down; you're way ahead by skipping the hard-sales effort. The later working hours be come complicated.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): There's a trick to every practical today. Keep your sense of humor while you cope with the world. Leave space for distractions. Co-operation becomes critically important this evening. Go along with the other fellow's project.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Competitive urges upset your perspective. Your own bright ideas need context, help in work. And, of course, somebody tries to provide jealousy today. Stay near home and get a great deal of routine done.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You are plagued with unsolicited advice and tempted by unrealistic schemes. Family and associates accidentally leave the most important. Test your Intuition about how to extricate yourself will guide you through this temperamental phase.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Keep working along lines which are normally predictable as this is not the day for experimentation. Good ideas must wait for the right moment. New friends offer some unfavorable impressions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Haste improves nothing. Take your time; do it right the first time. Friends are all too busy to be helpful. Promises likely fail, so that your success now depends mainly on you and your own resources.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): New ventures carry a certain harshness in what they are and the way they are done—but promise early success. Use immediately applicable practices rather than long-range theoretical schemes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): The present situation is a quickly passing phase. You may be expecting too much from friends and loved ones. It will help if you stay out of your regular haunts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Abide by your established emotional ties rather than respond to tempting adventures. Sudden impulses are likely to produce results you have not thought about.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Make a clean break with the past; abandon habits and personal customs which have lost their meaning. Your mood evolves such forthright declarations, yours and others', that diplomacy is given a good workout. Seek a change of scene at an unfamiliar place this evening.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Amid tall stories and much sound and fury, work as hard as you can at your regular job. Wait for the complete picture before taking action. Prayer and meditation are appropriate for the evening.

Nudity Is Hazardous

Flu Bug Finds Ready Targets

LONDON (AP) — The flu epidemic and common cold crisis sweeping across Europe have caused considerable abstention in the topless, bottomless, do-your-own-thing world of the London stage.

Apparently the sight of a curvaceous ingenue blushing blue in the altogether in a drafty West End theater turns on the viewers as much as it does the audiences.

"We had to close for nearly a week during the holidays when three of our four girls were hit by the bug," wheezed luscious Luan Peters, cuddling up to a hissing radiator backstage at the Whitehall Theatre.

Three times a night, in support of a former Broadway farce called Pyjama Tops, Miss Peters exposes 32-22-36 inches of prime target to the predatory bacillus that has nearly hobbled a continent.

Like the other girls in this occasionally made but not crude offering, Miss Peters also is called upon to splash about in an on-stage swimming pool that the management swears is heated to 85 degrees but, which the cast thinks would freeze the tail feathers off an Arctic owl.

Over her art, Miss Peters has garnered considerable critical acclaim, nightly awes and applause, a bad bout of Hong Kong flue, a touch of pharyngitis, a lingering common cold and three dresser drawers crammed with vitamin pills, penicillin capsules, aspirin, antibiotic lozenges, cough syrups and, for the crunch, 10-proof alcohol.

When not shivering on stage in all her nubile glory, she can be found in the wings brewing a kettle of beef tea over an electric plate while a steel pool that the management swears is heated to 85 degrees but which the cast thinks would freeze the tail feathers off an Arctic owl.

Over her art, Miss Peters has garnered considerable critical acclaim, nightly awes and applause, a bad bout of Hong Kong flue, a touch of pharyngitis, a lingering common cold and three dresser drawers crammed with vitamin pills, penicillin capsules, aspirin, antibiotic lozenges, cough syrups and, for the crunch, 10-proof alcohol.

Sometimes as many as 17 and sometimes as few as six in the cast of 28 strip off most of their inhibitions and all of their costumes, but apparently the weather has nothing to do with it.

The British version of this money-grossing farce, in its second year, is owned by a group of backers that includes five members of Lloyd's. They insured the cast against mass absenteeism by providing everyone with influenza inoculations early in winter. Even so, the common cold and a variety of throat ailments have hit the cast so hard that at times only 18 people turned up.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"How can I love my neighbor when he plays his stereo full blast at two o'clock in the morning?"

Mounties Started Drug Ring Expose

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — RCMP here have been credited by United States customs officials with initiating an investigation which has pulled the wraps off an international drug-smuggling operation.

Five men are under arrest and value of hashish seized by police could be as high as $400,000 on the illicit market.

Insp. J. H. Carrell, head of the London RCMP detachment, said Sunday local Mounties working with St. Thomas customs officials seized about 55 pounds of hashish during a raid in St. Thomas last week.

William Francis Braun, 22, of St. Thomas, was arrested and charged with illegal importation of narcotics and is scheduled to appear in court in St. Thomas today.

Following the seizure, London RCMP allowed about five pounds to continue on its way, hidden in a hollow steel tubing sculpture.

Police said a station wagon was picked up and kept under surveillance after it crossed the border at Buffalo, N.Y. They said the vehicle used back roads before arriving at Plainfield, Vt. where it was stopped and a seizure was made Saturday afternoon.

Commons Resumes Its Sittings Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons resumes today after a Christmas vacation that began Dec. 19, and there is no indication that the initial legislative program will set off any severe controversy.

Spokesmen for government House Leader Donald S. Macdonald say the first bills to be discussed likely will include one to establish an international development research centre and another to amend the Corporations Act. After this the House is expected to deal with water pollution as it considers the Canada Water Act.

Mr. Macdonald has referred to the water act as "an essential measure." It is designed to co-ordinate the efforts of various governments in the fight against increased water pollution.

On the eve of the resumed session, Mr. Macdonald said the House should be spending more time on fundamental issues, such as the pollution bill, and less time on routine housekeeping matters. He had said earlier that he was not satisfied with the progress made so far this session.

Housing Fund Won't Disappoint

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Andras, minister without portfolio in the federal cabinet, said Sunday he does not think Stanley Randall, Ontario's minister of trade and development, will be disappointed with the amount of federal funds allocated to low-income housing in Ontario in 1970.

Mr. Andras, the cabinet minister responsible for housing, was commenting on a Friday statement in which Mr. Randall said the Ontario Housing Corp. has been instructed to freeze immediately its development program for family, senior citizen and student housing. The freeze would be on until the federal government indicated what funds will be available in 1970, Mr. Randall said.

Mr. Andras said in an interview that the funds to be made available by the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. will be announced "in two or three weeks" and that he will be in touch with Mr. Randall before they are announced.

Tradeau Ignores Reporters

Looking tanned and fit, Mr. Trudeau came off the aircraft, waved at reporters and photographers and was whisked away in a black limousine.

Earlier, the prime minister, in response to reporters' request, said by radio message from his flight before it landed that he did not want to see them.

Reporters sought an interview with Mr. Trudeau about a story that his personal use of a government executive jet on earlier trips cost taxpayers at least $10,000 and perhaps more than $20,000.

Mr. Trudeau has spent a week skiing in the French Alps.

Benson Denies Tax Proposals Inflationary

TORONTO (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson said Saturday he does not believe that tax relief to low-income groups as outlined in the white paper on taxation will contribute to inflation.

He told the annual meeting of the St. Paul's Liberal Association that "some businessmen" are contending that putting more money in the hands of the poor would be inflationary.

The minister said he does not agree because tax relief given the poor will be balanced by higher taxes on upper-income groups.

"And I would point out that the reform, whatever its content, will not go into effect until some time next year. . . . Who knows, maybe we'll even want something to spur the economy in a year or 18 months."

The minister said the proposed tax reform also has been attacked on the grounds that it was devised solely to increase the government's revenues at the expense of the taxpayer.

He said the tax reform, as set down in the white paper, will give the government additional revenues of $600,000,000 a year within five years, but this increase could be avoided by readjusting the tax rates.

Airliner Hits Poles

HARLINGEN, Tex. (AP) — Attempting to land in a dense fog, a Texas International jetliner sheared the top off an 18-foot tree and knocked down power and telephone lines near this lower Rio Grande Valley city before flying on to a safe landing 150 miles away at Houston.

Aboard the DC-9 aircraft when the incident occurred Sunday were 37 passengers and a crew of four. Texas International said there were no injuries.

Longest Shipping Season Is Ended

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — The longest Great Lakes shipping season on record officially ended at 11:42 a.m. EST Sunday, as the Irving S. Olds, owned by U.S. Steel, passed through the Poe Lock here.

The previous record for the longest shipping season was set last year when the last ship passed through the Sault locks on Jan. 4.

The shipping season on the Great Lakes normally ends in mid-December, but has been extended in recent years as weather conditions permitted.

The Olds and the Phillip R. Clarke, another U.S. Steel vessel which preceded the Olds through the locks, were being escorted to Lake Huron by the United States Coast Guard cutter Mackinaw.

Canadian Ship Plans Trip to Soo

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Captain W. C. Dexter of the Canadian freighter Yankcanuck said Sunday he'll have another go at the Lake Huron icefields.

The Yankcanuck arrived here Saturday night with a cargo of 4,650 tons of steel from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Heavy ice extended the trip to eight days instead of the usual 30 hours.

The freighter left Sault Ste. Marie Jan. 2 and was ice-bound two days later. Most of the time since then was spent stuck in thick ice, waiting for the United States Coast Guard icebreaker Acacia to free her.

Captain Dexter said that instead of giving up for the winter he plans to start for Sault Ste. Marie today—even if the return trip takes another eight days.

Strikes' Cost Found Not Large

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor Secretary George P. Shultz cited new evidence Saturday to support his theory that some major strikes do far less economic harm than feared.

He said a labor department study of United States longshore strikes in 1963, 1965 and 1969 concluded that "the strikes had no visible impact on the U.S. economy as a whole."

Shultz said the report on the dock strikes tended to bear out an earlier department study of the long 1959 steel strike which concluded that "the impacts of strikes on the economy are usually seriously exaggerated."

Shultz has proposed major strike-law changes to the White House.

The longshore strike study said strike losses of up to $10,000,000 a day in the U.S. balance of trade would be compared with total American foreign-trade volume which had grown to $70,000,000,000 in 1969. Much of the lost business was made up later, it said.

Many firms prepared for a strike by stepping up business before the strikes and catching up again afterward and some found other means of transportation to ship their goods, it said.

Relief Experts Say Biafra Can Be Fed

Enough Food Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday night that the major obstacles to flying in food supplies to starving Biafrans were removed with the end of the Nigerian civil war.

"The task which faces the world community today is to give to the government and people of Nigeria every possible assistance as they face the task of reconciling their differences and rehabilitating the areas where the fighting has been taking place."

Mr. Sharp said he is confident that Nigeria is prepared to cooperate with other nations in accepting relief and facilitating its distribution.

He also said that there are stocks of food now available in Nigeria and nearby countries sufficient to meet the immediate needs of the Nigerian population.

The big problem was distribution of this food and the world community must rely on the Nigerian Red Cross and the Nigerian rehabilitation commission to get this work done.

Mr. Sharp said Canada is prepared to provide aircraft to supplement the work of Nigerian organizations. The planes would help in airdrops to inaccessible areas, or in making airlifts where landing strips are available.

The special debate, which lasted 2½ hours, ended with agreement to send the question of Biafra and Canadian aid to Nigeria to a Commons committee.

Planes Not Needed; Supplies Available

LAGOS (AP) — European Relief advisers said today there would be no difficulty feeding Biafra's hungry millions, because of early planning, fast donations and help from front-line soldiers.

"The need for airplanes no longer exists," said one high-level source in this federal Nigerian capital. "Supply lines are shorter, facilities are better. With lorries, confident we can handle anything that comes."

He added: "We want the airlift to stand by, but we don't want to be glutted with every outlandish thing, crowding Ikeja (Lagos) airport and jamming our storage facilities. It would only hinder us."

He said that it must be accepted, however, that the Nigerian Red Cross remains the authority in charge of co-ordination.

Relief workers, with obvious emotion, described scenes of Hausa soldiers of the federal army shepherding Ibo refugees from Biafra carefully into trucks to feeding centres.

The army points out pockets of starvation to us—if we don't know about them—and we can be there by sundown," said one worker. "I am sure this was a major cause of the surrender—Ibo refugees were pouring out by the tens of thousands. They moved freely back and forth and the word must have spread that they were being treated well."

All relief is channelled through the Nigerian Red Cross, an agency moving with speed and agility rarely found in government gave it autonomous stature.

It replaced the International Committee of the Red Cross last June after a growing dispute. For months it floundered without power and was disastrously broke until the government removed its shadow, freeing other Red Cross societies to donate funds.

Since Biafra's collapse, $2,000,000 was whisked into the fledgling bank account.

"Those trucks over there," said an adviser, "For six months they were idle for lack of spare parts. Now, $250,000 worth of parts came in, they just arrived."

Advisers who long planned for an orderly program to care for Biafra's 3,900,000 to 4,000,000 are worried their efforts may be hampered by too many people getting into the act.

The government has stipulated the Nigerian Red Cross is in charge of feeding and caring for all Nigerian refugees, from either side of the now-melting front-lines.

The agency has slightly more than 100 Europeans in the field and many hundreds of Nigerians.

the federal side of lines. How to integrate relief workers from the Biafran side remains a problem to be solved, though they are expected to be put under the aegis of Nigerian Red Cross.

Many countries including Britain, the U.S., Canada and France have offered to take part in a huge airlift of supplies to Nigeria for the Biafrans when Nigeria gives the green light.

Reuters news agency listed these developments in the worldwide effort:

The Joint Church Aid organization, which alone has kept on supplying relief supplies to Biafra since last summer, has offered 17 transport planes, a church spokesman said in Oslo, Norway.

Joint Church Aid, consisting of 21 Roman Catholic and Protestant organizations in 21 countries, has been flying supplies into Biafra from the Portuguese island of Sao Tome.

In Geneva, the International Red Cross and the League of the Red Cross Societies pledged to put all available assistance under the disposal of the Nigerian Red Cross.

The United States has promised an additional $18,000,000 in aid, on top of the $70,000,000 already sent, which Nigerian embassy officials in Washington said was a friendly gesture and would be considered along with other offers of help.

Thousands Could Die In Hours

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian relief said Monday that hundreds of thousands of people in war-torn Nigeria could face death within 48 hours unless immediate action is taken to provide relief.

In a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau, the relief agency said some 5,000,000 people have had virtually no food since Nov. 1 and relief flights were halted following the weekend capture of Uli airstrip by federal Nigerian troops.

The telegram says reliable reports from relief workers in Biafra indicate that "death rates will reach catastrophic proportions if relief supplies are delayed."

The agency said it and other agencies operating under the Joint Church Aid relief program could supply up to 1,000 tons of food immediately once permission was obtained.

The announcement said all planes returned safely.

The planes hit the big administrative base at Tel el Kabir, about 30 miles west of Ismailia and the Suez canal, and the air force base at Khanka, in the Nile Delta 13 miles northeast of the Egyptian capital.

The raid was the second deep air strike into Egyptian territory in less than a week. Last Wednesday, Israeli planes attacked military camps and installations along the Nile Delta less than 20 miles from Cairo.

Israeli military sources said the camp near Khanka contained Egyptian air force equipment. They described the camps at Tel el Kabir hit in a similar raid last Wednesday as being the administrative rear base for the delta region.

The sources said Egyptian ground fire was ineffective, Egyptian planes took off, but no air battles developed, they said.

The sources said the base at Khanka was about 11 miles south of Inshas, struck in last week's raid, and was situated in an agricultural area.

They said important rail junctions, two power stations and a broadcasting station were located in the region and the shipping canal linking the Nile just north of Cairo with the Suez canal at Ismailia passed through the area.

Mines, Banks May Suspend Price Boosts

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the federal government is expected to announce shortly that copper firms have agreed to suspend temporarily a recent 16-per-cent price increase, and that chartered banks have agreed to reverse recent interest-rate increases for consumer loans.

In an Ottawa dispatch, the newspaper says the announcement will probably be made in the Commons today or Wednesday.

It says this will "represent a breakthrough in Ottawa's efforts to halt price increases and check inflation."

Finance Minister E. J. Benson is reported as confirming that a statement is imminent.

Starving Refugees Flee Battle Zones in Biafra

LAGOS (CP) — Jubilant Nigerians celebrating the surrender of Biafra were beaten back by tear gas in downtown Lagos today while in the battle zones starving refugees fled the vanquished secessionist state.

Federal Nigerian troops pushed deeper into the remnants of independent Biafra to make their first contact with surrendering rebel forces.

Although Uli airstrip—Biafra's last link with the outside world—was believed fiftily in federal hands, a relief agency plane flew in Monday night to pick up 43 Biafran refugees. The pilot returned to the Portuguese island of Sao Tome with his aircraft riddled by bullets.

Literally millions of starving refugees still remained inside Biafra. Around the world relief agencies and governments were pledging aid and making plans but mercy operations were stalled pending a go-ahead from Nigerian authorities.

Lagos radio said today that the Nigerian government had ordered all foreign relief and aid to be channeled through federal authorities in the Nigerian capital.

The government said that direct transportation of relief supplies to war-ravaged areas would be considered as meddling in Nigeria's internal affairs, the radio said.

Biafran units apparently were heeding the orders of their new commander, Maj-Gen. Philip Effiong, to quit fighting. There was still no word on the whereabouts of Maj-Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu, who was reported to have fled Biafra aboard a relief plane which left Uli Saturday night.

Police used tear gas in the centre of Lagos at lunchtime when hundreds of wildly-cheering students celebrated the Biafran defeat. Police opened up with tear gas shells when the jubilant crowd defied orders to disperse.

Some demonstrators clambered atop buses to sing All We Care is One Nigeria to a Beatles tune, and others waved placards reading "Hottest Part of Hell for the Pope."

Pope Paul's new representative in Nigeria took up his duties in Lagos today a few hours after the federal government criticized the pontiff for expressing fears that Nigerian troops might slaughter Biafran refugees.

Archbishop Amelio Poggi has succeeded Archbishop Luigi Bellotti as papal delegate to Nigeria, Ghana and Sierra Leone.

A federal government broadcast today described as "provocative and deplorable" a statement by the Pope expressing fears for the safety of Ibo tribesmen in areas of Biafra cleared by federal troops.

Fugitive Biafra Leader Said Planning Return

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (Reuters) — Maj-Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu intends to return to Biafra at any cost, President Albert Bernard Bohgo of Gabon said today.

The president told a news conference that the leader of the Biafran secessionists was not in Gabon. He said he knew Ojukwu's whereabouts but refused to disclose them.

He declined to say whether the general—not heard from since he left Biafra three days ago—was still in Africa.

Diplomatic sources in Zambia said he was expected in the Zambian capital Lusaka in the next 24 hours.

The president, whose country was one of four African nations to recognize Biafra, said Ojukwu was in good health but he still had his plans.

"All I know is that he has taken refuge somewhere in order to negotiate and he will return to Biafra at any cost," the president said.

Russia Favors U.S. Presence At Europe Talks

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet Union has told the United States that it has a "favorable attitude" toward U.S. participation in a European security conference, chief government spokesman Leonid Zamyatin said today.

He said the Soviet attitude was conveyed to the Americans through Anatoly Dobrynin, Soviet ambassador in Washington, about two weeks before the December NATO ministerial council meeting in Brussels.

Coin Flip Breaks Tie

Clarke Returned as School Board Chairman

The flip of a coin last night decided the chairmanship of Hastings county board of education for 1970.

James Clarke was returned as board chairman after a tie vote required a coin flipping contest between him and trustee Macdonald Smith.

In accord with provincial legislation, Mr. Clarke stepped down as chairman at the end of December and the first board meeting of the new year began with director of education Eric Rosancrans as board secretary, in the chair.

Before beginning the nominations by chairman and vice-chairman, the board passed a policy decision on the manner of electing its officers. This policy called for a tie vote to be settled by a "draw," a device the board hardly expected to have to define more precisely within a few minutes of approving the policy.

Raymond Rowe of Frankford, 1969 vice-chairman of the board, and Ralph Weaver of Trenton proposed Mr. Clarke for chairman. Everett Fairman of Belleville and P. John Fulls of Bancroft proposed Mr. Smith. Milford Waller of Marmora proposed Mr. Rowe, who asked, however, that his name be withdrawn. With 14 members of the 16-man board present, the written ballots showed an even vote of seven for each candidate.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Clarke withdrew with Mr. Rosancrans to the director's office to decide the contest with a draw.

"Just what do we mean by a draw?" queried a trustee after the three men left.

When they returned to the board room, Mr. Smith announced that a toss of a coin had decided the chairmanship.

Mr. Smith was nominated for vice-chairman, but withdrew on the grounds "we need a man from outside Belleville for the job".

P. John Fulls polled a majority of votes over Raymond Rowe and was declared vice-chairman for the year.

"In my five years this board has accomplished a great deal," said Mr. Clarke in accepting the Chairmanship. "Now we can carry on with our program and re-evaluate our work."

He called for a committee to review the board's organization. Trustees later approved the setting up of a business administration committee and an academic organization study committee to assess procedures adopted so far and changes in policies and programs.

"Boundary realignments can take place in 1971," the chairman noted. "I suggest we set up a mechanism of meeting with other boards to foster cooperation and in investing a tie, resolving of geographical problems."

A Halen committee for this purpose was later approved by the board.

(When the county boards were formed one year ago, Ameliasburg sought permission from the department of education to join Hastings county instead of Prince Edward county. Ameliasburg had been a member of the Bay of Quinte District High School board and its secondary students were educated in Belleville schools. The permission was refused, but Ameliasburg officials were informed the matter could be reopened in 1971. Since then, plans have been proposed by the Prince Edward county board for a high school in Ameliasburg.)

Mr. Clarke mentioned it is a question of school taxes and said the end of the issue is not yet in sight.

"Forming of a large board with subsequent leveling out of taxes across a county, was bound to create tax problems," he noted.

The report of the arbitration committee on the assets and liabilities each of the 31 individual boards brought with them into the county board will further change the tax picture this year.

The arbitration committee's report is now in the hands of the Ontario Municipal Board in Toronto.

At the suggestion of the chairman, a temporary committee will be set up to meet with Belleville separate school trustees to discuss how the arbitrators' report will be presented to the public meetings.

The committee will also meet soon with OMB officials in Toronto to discuss the report.

Seat Delay Installation Requested

Robert Temple, manager of the Belleville Mc-Hawks senior hockey team has asked that installation of the remaining seats at the Belleville arena be delayed, until after the end of the current hockey season.

He said that installation of the new seats would mean the loss of 150 "front row" seats and would result in complaints from season ticket holders.

He said a survey of season ticket holders showed that many patrons would be unhappy that the present front row seats would be eliminated.

Recreation and Arena committee chairman Ald. Donald Sinclair admitted that 150 seats would be lost, but said more comfortable seats would be provided in rows further back.

He felt it would be better to fill 1,500 seats at all times, rather than 1,500 seats for a few games.

New seats have now been installed in the end sections at the arena and arena committee plans to have them ready with the installation of seats in the side rows.

Council Protests Unwilling Role as School Board's 'Banker'

Belleville city council will recommend to the Ontario Legislature that municipalities be required to levy over in county school boards only school tax monies actually collected, and not the entire board requisition as is now required.

The action was taken at yesterday's meeting as council approved a two-part recommendation requesting changes in the present school tax legislation.

Both recommendations were brought in by Mayor J. Russell Scott, who said that under present legislation, municipalities were "both collection agents and bankers" for school boards.

He said Belleville could have as much as $500,000 in uncollected current taxes for last year of which 40 per cent or $200,000 would be school taxes.

Under present legislation the city would have to borrow the $200,000 to pay the school board with interest costs going onto the general rate.

Municipalities should be required to pay over only the actual school taxes collected, he asserted. The balance of the payment would be made as tax arrears were collected.

The second recommendation passed by council asked that legislation be amended to provide that when an area board of education is required to borrow money due to the fact that a municipality within the area has not met the school board requisition for funds, that any and all interest and other charges in connection with the borrowing be charged to the municipality defaulting in payment.

Ald. E. A. Orr said he was sympathetic to Mayor Scott's recommendation but said there was also another side to the question.

He wondered whether the first recommendation presented by the Mayor might mean that the incentive for municipalities to collect taxes on time might be lost.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey took the same view, stating that Ald. Orr's view was valid.

But Mayor Scott didn't agree.

"Taxes are collectible and if not paid in three years there is a tax sale," he pointed out.

"So all taxes do come in."

School taxes should be considered separately. The city should not be requires to act as the school board's banker.

The two recommendations will be forwarded to the Ontario Legislature, the department of education and other Ontario municipalities.

Interest Could Run $17,500 Yearly

Interest costs for money borrowed by the municipality to pay over uncollected school taxes to the county school boards could cost Belleville up to $17,500 per year.

This is the estimate of city tax collector Frank Morrell who says that in any one year the city could have $500,000 or more in uncollected taxes.

Of this amount school taxes would total about 38 percent, which at 8¾% per cent would mean over $17,000 if the money was borrowed for a full year.

Mayor J. Russell Scott feels that municipalities should be required to pay over to school boards only the actual amount of school taxes collected and city council yesterday in a recommendation called for an amendment to the school act which would make this possible.

This Could Be 'The Year of the Bridge'

This year will be another big year for roadway and bridge construction in Belleville if present plans are carried out.

Last night council gave first and second reading to a bylaw authorising construction of the third phase of the Dundas Street project, and also directed that application be made for the Canadian Transport Commission approval regarding the CTC grant for the proposed Sidney Street Bridge.

City manager J. R. Reynolds said the cost estimate for the Dundas Street roadway project from the Moira River to the top of Devil's Elbow hill was just over $900,000 of which the city's share would be $285,692.

The construction bylaw will be forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval before it returns to city council for third reading.

The construction of approaches for the new Dundas Street bridge will be done as part of the Dundas Street roadway project.

Plans approved last year are to construct the proposed four lane Sidney Street bridge in two stages — the first stage would be done this year and the other at a later date. The present bridge would remain in use during first stage construction.

Mr. Reynolds told council that the city was committed to build the first stage of the Sidney Street bridge this year. Approvals for the first stage construction of which the city's share would be $267,000, have already been received and the construction bylaw passed.

But it still seemed unclear whether the first stage construction would actually go ahead this year.

Ald. Donald Soutter said he was not entirely satisfied that the bridge was a priority item.

Mayor Scott however assured that council would have full opportunity to vote on the new bridge proposal before the project got underway.

The city had delayed asking the CTC for order and accepting the railway's contribution of 13⅓ per cent on the possibility that the grant might be increased.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said it did not appear now that there would be any increase in the CTC grant, for the Sidney Street bridge. He said, however, the increased grant for the proposed Haig Road overpass could mean as much as $100,000 to the city.

"It was a good try anyway," he said.

The total cost of the first phase of the bridge is estimated at $683,000, and t hat of the second phase $246,000, or a total cost of $1,631,000 for both phases.

The Railway Transport Committee of the Canadian Transport Commission would contribute 80 per cent of approved costs up to $250,000 from its grade separati on funds, while the CN share would be 12½ per cent or a maximum of $62,500.

The Ontario department of highways would also subsidize the project.

Food for A Computer

Health Unit 'Guinea Pig' In Computer Operation

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

An outbreak of data has hit the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

The reaction may not be exactly feverish, although marked symptoms include a steady, even plodding attention to detail.

Its results also will benefit similar operations across Ontario.

The Quinte unit has been chosen for a pilot project by its provincial parent — the Ontario department of health.

It's the age of communications and the department has drawn a head on streamlining information processes involving Ontario public health administration.

Its target is computerization of statistics from every health unit in the province. T'he some-day ideal is a central information bank servicing the department and its public health network.

The computer, kept up-to-date with a flow of current information from the provincial units, some day will speed up administration processes and greatly reduce clerical operations, health officials say.

But achieving the ideal is a painstaking process. First, a voluminous information l o g involving all past and present records of the units must be organized for feeding the computer's memory circuits.

It is imperative to discover the swiftest method of doing this.

Needless steps in compilation of data must be eliminated.

In recent weeks there has been a constant exchange between the Toronto computer and the health unit staff — nurses, inspectors, clerks, t h e people compiling the grass-root statistics.

It is a steady stream of information which eventually will be distilled into the vital statistics making up the computer's memory bank.

The Quinte unit was selected for the trial because of its diverse territorial background, believes medical officer of health Dr. C. H. Lenk.

"They chose us because we are fairly representative of all units. The area we cover is both rural and urban.

"We agreed — even though we knew it would be 'a lot of work.'"

The unit already has some statistics of its own on the work stimulated by the project.

So far nurses and clerks have worked 640 hours in the two-way communication with the computer.

To date, this covers only two phases of the unit's operation — sanitation and immunization.

In its initial stages the process sounds like a perpetual-motion machine.

Records must be sorted and checked. Sent to Toronto, they are broken down and advanced one computer step further. Newly aligned the data is dispatched to Belleville for further local processing — and returned to Toronto.

A dominant problem is ensuring the data is totally correct — since the computer's memory must be beyond reproach. This makes for demanding effort as pretested can be "tedious" the health officer says.

However, it's all in a good cause he indicates. "We're in the age of computers and we must not struggle against them," he cautions.

"When it is finished our statistical records will be so much improved and we will need so much less clerical work."

Tweed Winter Carnival Plans Are Progressing

TWEED — Several committees presented reports on plans for Tweed's annual Winter Carnival, which will be held Feb. 13, 14, and 15, at the directors' luncheon held in Hotel Tweedsmuir on Tuesday, Jan. 6.

Owing to the number of subjects covered, however, no definite action was taken on any separate project. A second directors' meeting will be held at Hotel Tweedsmuir at 8 p.m. Wednesday evening, Jan. 14 when it is hoped to finalize arrangements for each day's program.

Booster buttons (as in previous years) have been ordered and are expected to go on sale shortly.

Ticket sales for the snowmobile sponsored jointly by the Kinsmen and the Chamber of Commerce were reported to be selling well, but the committee hoped to see the sales pick up more once the holiday rush is over.

The advertising committee will begin distributing bumper stickers, sending out posters, and press releases at an early date. Spot announcements on radio each weekend were also discussed. President David Morton told the meeting it looked like a good carnival program was shaping up, but a lot of work remained to be done between now and Feb. 1. First on the agenda, were plans for the Friday night opening parade.

The parking and gates committee met Jan. 9 to straighten out some of the kinks.

Council Changes Method Of Handling Letters

How to deal with certain items of correspondence posed a procedural problem for members of Belleville city council at their first regular meeting of the year last night.

The question was posed through a letter from the Belleville Rotary Club asking for a grant of $200 to provide prizes for the club's music festival.

Council spent considerable time discussing whether such items should come in under notice of motion or be dealt with under suspension of the rules.

Mayor J. Russell Scott observed that such letters were being given a privilege not accorded council members who were required to give notice for such requests.

Ald. Paul Russell said all letters should be treated in the same way and brought in under notice of motion.

City manager J. R. Reynolds suggested there was a third way to deal with the matter.

"All council has to do is to refer the letters to the committee of the whole," he said. "Then they can be considered as each item comes up."

Council went along with the suggestion and later voted the $200 to the Rotary Club, and also approved a second request from the service club that the "Mayor of the Week" program initiated last year, be continued.

Council agreed that the $200 be considered as an award rather than a grant and directed that the amount be included in the city's cultural award committee's budget.

City Hall Offices Undergo Reshuffle

Last week's hiring of a deputy city clerk will require some office shuffling to provide accommodation for the new city hall employee.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds told council yesterday that Earl M. Datore, the new deputy clerk who is to take office Feb. 15, will occupy the office presently used by City Clerk Adam Skarlatos, with Mr. Stalker to move into office space formerly used as the welfare office.

Also the present staff room will be moved into the former welfare office.

Council authorized an expenditure of up to $500 to carry out the necessary alterations.

As a still further shift in city hall, the planning department will be moved into office space formerly occupied by the assessment department.

New Ice Surface 'Urgent' Need

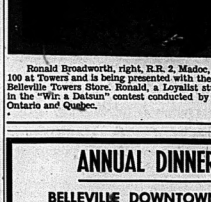
Urgent need for a new covered ice facility was stressed to members of city council yesterday by a delegation from the Quinte Action Centre Committee.

The delegation asked city financial support to make the proposal a reality.

Richard Hurst, committee chairman and spokesman for last night's delegation, reviewed the committee's history, pointed out the need for another ice surface and outlined the group's fund-raising efforts to date.

He said the committee had raised $9,000 toward the project, but that money - raising schemes through voluntary effort were too slow. City financial assistance was required to meet the need now.

Proposed is a medium-priced arena costing about $200,000, with an 85-by-200 - foot ice surface, and seating from 400 to 600 persons.



Mr. Hurst said the greatest demand was for additional ice time for various winter sports. The present downtown arena was inadequate to fill the need and was in use f o r various activities about 75 hours per week.

As a result, public skating has almost disappeared at the arena and many hockey teams were forced to practise in out-of-town centres, resulting in revenue loss of about $5,000 per year.

Fire Victim's Condition Is Still Serious

A Madoc township m a n, Murray R. Norris, 42, remains in serious condition in Hotel Dieu Hospital in Kingston, where he was admitted Sunday with burns.

Mr. Norris w a s rescued from his burning house on the Queensboro Road by his 18-year-old daughter Susan. Miss Norris and her three-year-old brother escaped unharmed, although the fire completely destroyed the house, a converted cheese factory.

Ronald Broadworth, right, R.R. 2, Madoc, was the lucky winner of a Datsun 100 at Towers and is being presented with the keys by Ken Gear, manager of the Belleville Towers Store. Ronald, a Loyalist student, was one of the five winners in the "Win a Datsun" contest conducted by the Towers chain of 30 stores in Ontario and Quebec.

The Biafran Tragedy

With military operations in Nigeria almost at a halt following the collapse of resistance in the eastern breakaway region known as Biafra, it is to be hoped the federal leader, Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon, will make good his promise of humane treatment for Biafrans.

Following capture by federal troops of Owerri, last remaining town in Biafran hands, and bombing of the air strip at Uli, Gowon urged his troops to continue adhering to a strict code of conduct.

General Odumegwu Ojukwu, the Biafran leader, has fled the country, albeit with a promise to return. In the circumstances his resolve seems rather forlorn.

The immediate task now, even as the Lagos government begins the task of restoring its authority over the entire territory, must be the care and feeding of the thousands who are starving.

Hunger is the foremost problem. Already a veritable host has died and huge numbers are near death as a result of malnutrition.

General Gowon has warned "all foreign governments, organizations and persons to desist forthwith from meddling in the internal affairs of Nigeria so that the suffering of the population in the rebel-held enclave should not be prolonged."

We admire Gen. Gowon's concern for those in need in his country, but how does he propose to stave off the hunger that is gnawing at such large numbers? It is common knowledge that had it not been for Canada and other countries, practically the entire population would have died of starvation.

Thus, the federal leader would do well, not only to accord rebel Biafrans humane treatment but also permit continuing aid from overseas. The problem is of such magnitude that nothing less than this will suffice.

Quality of Life

In a materialist world, is the 'quality of life' as high as it might be?

Generally speaking the answer must be that in such an impersonal atmosphere the humanities, the sense of family cohesion and regard for people as people rather than as economic units, inevitably must suffer.

Dr. Donald Dodds, an ecologist at Acadia University in Wolfville University, Nova Scotia, had something of this nature in mind recently when he said that national prosperity as a goal is incompatible with a quality environment.

He pointed to the impaired physical and mental health that stems from the all-consuming personal sacrifice involved, and noted that some of the American dreams "are turning into nightmares."

Ottawa, he said, operates on a budget greater than any world government, except the United States and the Soviet Union, while North Americans, through consumer propaganda, had become a people of champagne tastes on beer incomes.

Or as former Bank of Canada Governor James Coyne once put it: "Canadians are living grandly beyond their means."

According to Dr. Dodds our affluent society contains such anomalies as the fact that in Saskatchewan there are more television sets than houses with indoor bathrooms, the tendency being to get the TV and build the house around it. Similarly, the car before the garage.

These are examples of our mixed-up values. In such circumstances, what a downfall a depression would bring. How brittle would be our values then, how lacking our inner resources, how perilously weak our faith. Like a house of cards, so much would disappear from our lives, and in the moment of economic truth that would follow would come the 'real test of what life is all about.

Senior Citizens

The question of improved ground-floor accommodation in a central location has yet to be decided, but it is encouraging to note renewed initiative on behalf of Belleville's senior citizens.

The 153-member senior citizens' group is seeking accommodation for a drop-in centre and additional office space, and it is to be hoped satisfactory arrangements can be made for this purpose.

There seems to be a need beyond the requirements of the immediate membership, for the number of people in the city 65 years and over has been put at more than 3,000.

With all the emphasis on the younger generation, let's not forget the older folk; and let them in turn "do their thing," and give the rest of us the benefit of their wisdom and experience.

Peaceniks..Anarchists..CBC Under Fire

Public Has Had Enough of Dissent and Permissiveness

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — You should skim through some of former Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker's mail these days.

It is consomed, disturbed even angry.

Seems that the people who write it have more than had their fill of anti-American students "occupying" External Affairs Minister Sharp's office, of hippies making a "camp-in" at the new $48,000,000 National Arts Centre, of peaceniks marching up and down Parliament Hill, of the glorification of draft dodgers and deserters, of the exploitation of drugs and sex on CBC, of the testing around the Centennial Flame of the warshippers of Castro, Che and Mao, of the demeaning of the Queen's uniform and the discounting of patriotism.

While these noisy minorities have been the top prime time news on national television and often the priority of political activists, the silent majority has been coming to a slow boil.

You can see it bubble over in the Diefenbaker mail. It comes to the old "Chief" because above all others in Parliament he has stood for the old virtues and values.

He has had the guts to scorn the fashionable cult of permissiveness.

"Without apology I am a square.

"Square against sin and sadism, riot and revolt, gutlessness and Godlessness.

"Square against hedonism and humanism; against sophistries and philosophies which seek to destroy those values that made Canada great.

"Square against dancing the permissive polka with those who would 'whirl me to Hell while whispering that God is dead and the devil a myth; against those ministers who would convert my house of worship to a bootlegging hall for a political forum.

"Square against downgrading the flag, denigrating the armed forces, demoralizing the veteran, the working stiff, the taxpayer, the police and law and order.

"Square against being scourged with the lash of collective 'anyoung' guilt, as if I personally bossed the alcoholic, pushed the narcotic, molested little old lady, created the slum and invested the bomb.

"Square against the glorification of welfarism over work, pot over plok lemonade, the pill over purity, demonstration over dedication, desire over discipline, nihilism over nobility, selfishness over sacrifice, and 'rights' over right.

"Square against the 'portrayal of my American friends as 'fascist pigs' and Ho Chi Minh as Christ; against those who preach 'peace' to promote surrender, against student radicals who are so enamoured of their own worth they must destroy all other worths.

"Square against the stupefying sentimentality of professional do-gooders who, like carved wooden monkeys, see no evil, speak no evil and hear no evil — even when it runs the gas, club, gun and bomb; who would rewrite Little Red Riding Hood to have the grandmother eat the wolf while screaming 'batemeger' at the rescuing woodsmen."

There are, no doubt, few cases of that type of letter, but this is perhaps the most striking.

The letter-writers see the old "Chief" as the bulwark against homosexuality, soft divorce, pornography, easy sex, drugs, crime-coddling and abolition of all the old standards. They have heard him and voted for him defending "old-fashioned" morality and time-tested values.

He looks and sounds like a steady rock of ethics in a choppy sea of permissiveness.

And so they write him more and more of them, to tell him they feel the same way and are starting to stand up and shout off against the insults, inconvenience and intimidations of the noisy minorities.

One more sample reading from the "Diefenpost."

It carried a Vancouver postmark and set out: "The Ten Commandments of Dissent and Protest:"

Thou shalt not allow anyone else to dissent.

Thou shalt not set forth a program of your own, but tear down all others.

Thou shalt not trust anyone over 30.

Thou shalt not honor thy father or thy mother.

Thou shalt not heed the lesson of history.

Thou shalt not write anything longer than a slogan.

Thou shalt not offer any negotiable demand.

Thou shalt not accept any established social idea.

Thou shalt not revere any but totalitarian heroes.

Thou shalt not ask forgiveness for thy transgressions but instead demand amnesty for them.

"It's for you: the toy car is being recalled by the manufacturer!"

Threat of Extinction
Hunters, Wolves, Nature—and Fair Play

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The recent letter from "A Sportsman" prompted me to write in the name of perhaps the 'silent majority': all the other hunters and the people who do not hunt with rifles and would like to see the balance in the nature rediscovered and thus save a species of an animal from extinction.

Of course, "A Sportsman" is mostly interested in obtaining his deer and quite a few of these hunters look upon the wolf as a competitor and therefore as as unwanted, dangerous, and what - have - you animal. They probably did not outgrow the concept of the bad, bad wolf as pictured in fairy tales. Wild running dogs do much of the damage attributed to the wolf. However, should the livestock of some farmers be in danger or actually be killed by the wolves, then one could assume that the wildlife officers of the Department of Lands and Forests are quite capable of keeping this predator down to healthy numbers and by doing so, save the taxpayers' money which otherwise would be given out for bounty. Paying higher bounty would endanger the wolf far beyond the heavily - populated and farmed area as there is no proof of where the animal was killed by the hunter.

Many scientific papers, based on research in the field, and numerous books have been written about this magnificent animal. I suppose it would be asking too much of all those who propose a higher bounty or wholesale killing of this animal, to read but one simple paperback: "Never Cry Wolf", by Farley Mowat and published by Dell (price: 50 cents).

We should keep in mind that the number of hunters is rapidly increasing and pretty soon will outnumber the deer population. I would rather believe Mr. Chesshire from the Tweed District Office of Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, who's a qualified wildlife official, than any hunter who wants nature altered or modified to suit his own ends. To be a real hunter, one must accept nature such as it is and blend into it without causing any disturbance.

The Public Schools And A Youngster's Upbringing

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In discussing the Public School System on CJBQ a few days ago, there is much one can say in favor of it. Not only because this single system is more efficient and more economical to the taxpayer than a system which is composed of many different denominational schools, but also because it is more beneficial to the entire community for moral reasons. Young people who mix and are well-acquainted with each other are less likely to be prejudiced than those who are segregated.

There is no need to worry about a child going astray in the school. A youngster will not suffer loss if he is well-trained at home, if he is well grounded in his faith, through education and good example in his church and in his home environment.

On the contrary, through his own good behavior and because of his own faith in God he may be a good influence to others.

The public school may be just the right place for a young person to exercise his God-given duty and privilege of leading others, less fortunate ones, into a more blessed and more satisfying kind of life.

There is one more thing I would like to have in connection with CJBQ's program on this subject. I would like to correct a statement made by the moderator about Adolf Eichman, the mass murderer of Jews claimed to be a Christian. This statement is false. According to available reports from Israel, Eichman, although he admitted a few days before his execution that his belief in the existence of God, never at any time claimed to be a Christian.

UK's Interest
South African Trade Boom

Africa Express

The escalating interest in British - South African trade is evident from the number of British trade missions that have already begun to make arrangements to visit South Africa in 1970.

Passages have been booked for 15 such groups, representing a wide variety of British industry covering catering, publishing, medical instruments, textiles, pumps, construction equipment and various other fields.

Ten trade missions from the United Kingdom have visited South Africa already this year and included the Scottish Export Council and the British Plastics Federation.

The total for the year will be made up to 14 by December with the arrival of missions from the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce, the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders, the Investors Chronicle and the Wolverhampton Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

Also in South Africa recently was a 16-member New Zealand trade mission which visited all the main centres in a stay of two weeks.

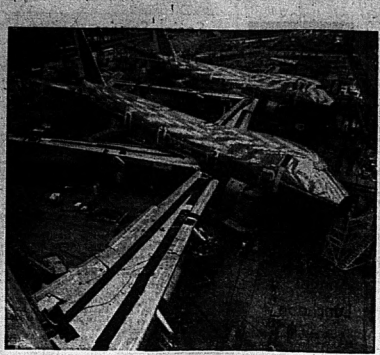
Twenty firms will be represented in a trade mission to South Africa in January 1970 which the Northern Ireland Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring in co-operation with the Ministry of Commerce and the support of the British National Export Council.



Brenden Keohane, of the Northern Ireland Ministry of Commerce, will be the mission's secretary. The wide range of products to be promoted by the mission will include chemicals, synthetics, textile yarns, carpets and cutlery.

Jumbo Jets in An Impersonal World

Windsor Star

The growing impersonality of society will get a boost when the world's largest commercial jetliner, the Boeing 747, goes into service this autumn.

The new jet, recently given full passenger flight approval by the U. S. Federal Aviation Administration, can carry 362 passengers in 'normal service and can accommodate up to 450. At that figure it is something like a flying movie theatre, without one must except nature such as it is and blend into it without causing any disturbance

Air Revolution

When completed, at a cost of $20,000,000 each, these three Boeing 747 jets will join the fleet of 800 Boeing hopes to sell by 1975. In Canada, 747s will be in use by Air France this summer on its flights between Montreal and Paris. Air Canada plans to start using the 747s, which experts say will revolutionize air travel with both increased passenger and cargo space, by March 1971.

Bishops of Paraguay Unite Against Dictator

ASUNCION (AP) — Paraguay's Roman Catholic bishops, spurred on by Vatican council teachings, have accused President Alfredo Stroessner's government of systematically violating human rights and trying, with violence, to silence the church.

Bishops in other Latin American countries have opposed governments from time to time, but Paraguay's are the first to be united in opposition, under the new progressive banner of the church.

Stroessner, 57, an army general who seized power in 1954, presides over Latin America's oldest dictatorship. His monolithic control of the country had seemed unthreatened until the Paraguayan Episcopal Conference announced in November the existence of a church-state "confrontation."

Stroessner, in recent public declarations, has attempted to minimize the dispute. He tells Paraguay's 2,600,000 people, most of them Roman Catholics, that he, too, is a fervent Catholic." Only a few subversive priests, the government says, are to blame for trouble with the church.

But the Episcopal Conference, composed of the nation's 13 bishops, insists that most of the 400 priests support it. Many from the countryside have criticized the government in recent months. If there is opposition within the clergy, as the government contends, it's silent—or it runs the risk of church censure for speaking out.

The weekly newspaper Comunidad, published by priests as the unofficial voice of the Episcopal Conference, was closed by the government in late October.

"From now on," said a Comunidad editorial, "the church refuses to 'pacify spirits' at the expense of justice . . . and for the benefit of a privileged minority enjoying the fruits of wealth and power."

The bishops have urged Stroessner to bring political prisoners to trial, restore freedom of the press, stop contraband, end "police brutality," deal realistically with the problems of a "wretchedly underdeveloped economy," and enter into a dialogue with the church.

Figures cited by priests and bishops show Paraguay's average annual income is $250, 26 per cent of the population is illiterate, 15.4 per cent of public funds are spent on education.

By backing the Paraguayan bishops, the apostolic nuncio, Rt. Rev. Antonio Innocenti, has given their cause the sanction of Rome.

The bishops avoided direct conflict for months but the suppressed tension exploded on Oct. 22.

At noon that Wednesday, the police forcibly expelled from the country a Spanish Jesuit, Rev. Francisco de Paula Oliva, accused of encouraging students staging an anti-government hunger strike. That evening, 200 priests, nuns and students held a march to protest the expulsion.

The police and armed civilians—members of Stroessner's governing Colorady party—broke up the march and invaded a Jesuit residence, beating several priests, church spokesmen said.

Comunidad attempted to appear two days later with an account of the incident and an editorial which concluded: "One thing is certain: this regime will pass, and the men of this regime will pass, and the church will bury them."

The edition was seized before it got to the streets and Comunidad was closed.

The Episcopal Conference suspended all masses that weekend. Three officials—the minister of interior, the police chief and the chief of the security forces—were held responsible for attacking priests and were excommunicated.

Violence Studied

U.S. News Media Must Share Blame

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study prepared for the national violence commission says the news media contribute to violence in the United States by failing to report thoroughly on the social problems that lead to clashes.

"Too many news organizations fear social ideas and social action," the commission's report on mass media and violence concludes.

"As a result, they stimulate, dissatisfy, and arouse anxiety only to fall silent or limit themselves to irrelevant clichés when thoughtful solutions are required."

The report is a 613-page book prepared under the direction of a former justice department lawyer, Robert K. Baker, and a Seattle sociologist, Dr. Sandra J. Ball. The report does not carry the endorsement of the full commission.

The 13-member commission itself, headed by Milton S. Eisenhower, disbanded Dec. 10 after 18 months of investigating and reporting on violence in the United States.

The report describes the news media as over-sensitive to outside criticism.

"Never before have the American news media been so defensive while being so successful," the report says.

"When a threat of criticism from outside the media appears, media operators can be counted on, in the main, to meet the threat with portentous warnings against the undoing of our free press, coupled with promises of increased attention to self-regulation."

But the report says "the media have contributed to the widespread use of confrontation as an instrument of social change by their failure to report adequately the conditions underlying current protest, by the proposals for solution of pressing social problems, and by their action-oriented coverage of conflict. . . .

"The news media can play a significant role in lessening the potential for violence by functioning as a faithful conduit for intergroup communication, providing a true marketplace of ideas, providing full access to the day's intelligence, and reducing the incentive to confrontation that sometimes erupts in violence. That is a subtle and uncertain mission."

While the news media could do more toward lessening the tensions that breed violence, the report says the press is sometimes overly blamed for the violence itself.

"It is undoubtedly true that some groups have learned to use violence and the press to exploit their goals. They have learned that the media generally can be counted on to give violent behavior a prominent role in the day's news.

"The result is that when they seek publicity for their grievances, conflict and possibly violence may be one of the techniques used to the fairly certain knowledge that the press will make sure 'the whole world is watching.'

"Although there is truth in this charge, it is probably a good deal less than serious to be popularly believed. First, violence is not necessary to gain media attention. In the case of television particularly, any kind of physical action or dramatization of conflict will usually suffice.

"Second, groups who engage in violence are apt to have their message lost because of the media tendency to focus on the violence to the exclusion of the message.

"Third, the use of violence, as is usually the case in university confrontations, is a political instrument used to provoke the police and thereby radicalize large numbers of students who are sympathetic to new left goals, but ordinarily reject new left tactics."

Starving Refugees Flee Battle Zone in Biafra

Reliable sources in Lagos disclosed that federal leaders were discussing the possibility of ordering some Biafran leaders to stand trial for war crimes but no definite decision has been made.

As federal troops began mopping up operations in what was left of Biafra, federal leader Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon ordered his forces to protect rebel troops and the estimated 4,000,000 to 6,000,000 refugees there.

Gowon at midnight Monday night accepted Biafra's capitulation and said his commanders had been ordered to put into effect immediately arrangements for mass surrender of secessionist forces. Many of the rebel troops are believed to have fled into the bush or have joined the uncounted thousands of refugees streaming into secure federal territory.

Biafran leaders always said that if necessary they would carry on a guerrilla war campaign but there was no report of any such resistance today.

One report said Ojukwu flew out in a super constellation which carried members of his family and staff together with tons of baggage and the Biafran leader's personal white Mercedes.

Food Is Ready

tee for study and recommendations.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood), whose motion prompted the debate, said it is urgent that the international observer team be expanded and relief efforts be increased.

He quoted an official of the Church World Services of the United States who said that there are 4,000,000 Biafrans now getting one meal a day and who were on the verge of starvation.

If supplies were cut off for 48 hours, "1,000,000 people would die within 48 hours," the official said.

Mr. Brewin said that without effective, international action quickly "the result will be the same as if genocide had been deliberately planned."

Gordon Fairweather (PC—Fundy-Royal) said that without the efforts of the Joint Church Aid and Canairelief "no food and medicine during the awful months from June until a day or two ago would have got into Biafra."

"There is a lot of cynicism about the relevancy of churches in today's order of things," he said. "But I suggest that without the churches the death toll would have been even more ghastly."

Mr. Fairweather said Canada is entitled to assurances from Nigeria that no purge of Biafrans will take place and that prisoners will be fairly and humanely treated.

"The British government, which has a major responsibility for this war, now has an obligation to the people of Biafra, Nigeria and the world to ensure that the Biafran surrender is accepted honorably," he said.

Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) said he is disappointed in the government's lack of sense of real urgency. The government should be concerned with getting relief in, not about technicalities.

Robert Thompson (PC—Red Deer), who was in Africa in December, said he found leaders there opposed to outside interference in the Nigerian conflict.

"Those who say Canada should have been involved don't know what they are talking about," he said.

Bernard Dumont (Creditiste —Frontenac) said Canada had taken the attitude of a Pontius Pilate—the Roman governor who tried Jesus—toward the war. It also had not wanted to upset the interests of financiers who benefited from the war.

Ray Perrault (L—Burnaby-Seymour) said Canada's 21 Hercules aircraft should be sent to Nigeria with relief supplies this week.

David MacDonald (PC—Egmont) said the Trudeau government could no longer enjoy the luxury of waiting.

"Surely to God we don't have to sit and watch another period of time go by . . . in which there is unnecessary death for millions," he said.

Planes Not Needed

aid Ziegler said the money would be funnelled through international relief organizations.

President Nixon also has promised logistical assistance for the Nigerians.

External Affairs Minister Sharp told the Commons Monday night that Canada is prepared to provide aircraft to supplement the work of Nigerian organizations. The planes would help in airdrops to inaccessible areas or in making airlifts where landing strips are available.

The Nigerian embassy in Washington, meanwhile, acted to head off alarm over possible reprisals or maltreatment of the Biafrans—mostly Ibo tribesmen —when federal troops finally seal the fate of the breakaway state.

Charge d'affaires Peter Udoh said in a statement that the embassy categorically rejected imputations of mass killings and mistreatment of civilians by Nigerian troops.

He said reports of possible mass starvation were exaggerated and that the federal government would take immediate steps to feed the hungry and rehabilitate the refugees.

In Rome, a spokesman for Pope Paul said he was sending the Caritas Internationalis president, Msgr. Jean Rhodain, to Lagos to direct relief efforts in Biafra.

In Lucerne, the Swiss branch of the Catholic relief organization said it and the Swiss evangelical churches organization were seeking new routes to take help to the civil population.

From its headquarters in Geneva, the World Council of Churches appealed to its member organizations to contribute $2,000,000 as quickly as possible for full-scale relief programs.

The Equity Growth Annuity

It can complement the guaranteed value life insurance you already have. And give your financial planning a balance we couldn't offer you before. With Mutual Life's new Equity Growth Annuity your savings now have an even greater opportunity for real growth.

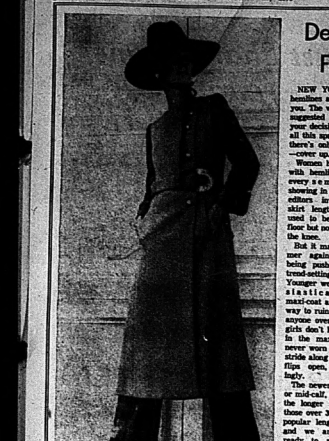
How does the Annuity work? Money from you and other purchasers is pooled. And then invested by our financial experts in units of Equity Fund A, which consists mainly of selected Canadian common stocks. The objective is capital appreciation.

How do you make money? Over the long term, you may enjoy capital gains from the increased value of the units of the fund. Plus the addition of dividends and interest which are re-invested in the fund. The value of your Annuity at any given time reflects the performance of the fund.

Is your money guaranteed? No. Because it's linked to the stock market which varies from day to day. Where there's anticipation of greater return, there's also greater risk. However, since its start in 1962, The Mutual Life's Equity Fund A has had a substantial growth rate.

Can you get your money out? Yes. In several ways. You can withdraw all or part of the current value of the Annuity, or you may take it out in monthly payments. The amount will be determined by the value of the units in Equity Fund A at time of withdrawal.

How much does it cost? Mutual Life's new Equity Growth Annuity can be purchased in amounts of $500 or more. Or with monthly instalments as low as $25.



Who can buy it? Everyone. Even if you're presently uninsurable. Because there are no medical requirements.

Are there other benefits? Many. Including tax advantages if you register the plan with the Government. And, at retirement, your Annuity will be based on the value of the units in the fund. It will provide you with an income for life. And, if you can qualify, you may insure the continuation of your savings plan should you become totally disabled.

Where can you get all the facts? From your Mutual Life of Canada representative. He has all the details on how the Equity Growth Annuity can balance your financial program. And help your dollars grow.

Designers at American Showings Feature Midi-length for Spring

HEMLINE DROPPING — This midi-length Swiss jersey coat taupe and navy silk tunic trouser costume is the type of fashion designers are predicting for women in the 1970s. Designers are reaching into the past to find new fashion trends on the theory that women are always more ready to accept something they've worn before. (CP Photo)

NEW YORK (CP) — The hemline has dropped down—by you. The waistline is there or suggested or ignored. It's your decision. In the midst of all this spring permissiveness there's only one fashion rule —cover up.

Women have been obsessed with hemlines for years. At every semi-annual showing in New York, fashion editors invariably ask for skirt lengths by inches. It used to be inches from the floor but now it's inches above the knee.

But it may well be the former again, for skirts are being pushed lower by the trend-setting designers. Younger wearers have enthusiastically endorsed the maxi-coat and are well on the way to ruining this length for anyone over 25 years. Young girls don't know how to wallk in the maxi-length. They've never worn it before. So they stride along and the coat skirt flips open, quite unbecomingly.

The newer length, the midi or mid-calf, may well become the longer skirt length for those over 30 years. It was a popular length 10 years ago and we are always more ready to accept something we've once worn.

Besides, if skirts are going to go below the knees, the midi is a comfortable length and once your eye gets used to it and get it in flattering to most women's legs. The skirt cuts across what, with many women, is an unsightly leg bulge. But eyes have to become accustomed to this closefitted look.

However, there isn't likely to be a rush either for the midi or the full-length. It took the fashion industry some three years to bring the maxi into acceptance.

All the top designers at the American Designer Showings for spring featured the midilength, deploying it as a general deploys his shock troops. It's an attack, in force, on our sensibilities. After being bombarded by reams of fashion stories and hundreds of photographs showing the midilength, we'll capitulate and even believe that it was we who wanted the length.

But don't rush out and order a midi-length dress immediately, unless you want to lead the fashion parade. Start now, mentally, to adjust to the length and, perhaps by next fall, you'll be prepared.

Waistlines aren't as arbitrary as skirt lengths. But even here we have to be won over gradually to any new waistline interest. The high-bosomed Empire look wasn't accepted overnight. And the low-waisted revival of the 1920s was resisted by many.

The only recent style that seems to have pleased practically everyone was the skirt or chemise. Women loudly proclaimed they would never forsake its comfort. But a couple of seasons ago bets were introduced again.

This spring belts are still important but we haven't gone to the extreme of the cinched-in look. Most belts are fashionable rather than functional. The trend is to loosely placed and tied self belts. Many coats and suits dispense with belts and suggested a waistline only by shaping. And there's even an undercurrent back to restrained shapelessness.

Several trend-setting designers have slipped into their spring collections a few chemise dresses and short full coats. The latter can also be belted for a rippling swinging effect. This anything-goes mood is really a case of having your cake and eating it, too. But the looser look is definitely here.

WHA Plans Annual Luncheon

A talk dealing in particular with hospital management will highlight the annual luncheon meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary to be held in Education Hall, January 20 at 1 p.m.

Guest speaker will be R. Alan Hay of Prescott, executive director of the Ontario Hospital Association and immediate past president of the Canadian Hospital Association. It is felt that his talk will be most interesting from one so experienced in the hospital field.

Members of the Auxiliary are anticipating a large attendance to hear this outstanding speaker.

At the meeting the various annual reports will be given with the election of officers to follow.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. J. Garth Bradshaw, Belleville announce the engagement of their eldest daughter Mary Anne Pamela (Penny) to Mr. Wayne Cornell Nolan, youngest son of Mrs. E. Nolan, also of Belleville and the late Mr. Nolan. Marriage will take place on Saturday, February 7, 1970, at 1 p.m. in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Belleville.

While playing cribbage with her husband on Friday evening, Mrs. Jack Meaney held the 29 winning hand in crib. Three fives, jack of diamonds, and five diamonds turned up.

Social Service Assists In Homemaking Problems

EDMONTON (CP)—Mental depression is on of the biggest hurdles for those who live on basic or inadequate incomes.

One mother of six — four of whom are pre-schoolers—now in receipt of welfare, but considers herself lucky because she gets out a little.

She credits a homemaker from the Edmonton social service department who helps her overcome her depression and learn to budget.

To begin with, she was so depressed that "I was really down on the kids."

"Everything they did was wrong, Lake I realized that it wasn't the kids at all."

This mother of six attends group discussions run by the city's social service department under social worker Phyllis Jones. Mrs. Jones has six housemakers who go out to homes that need assistance.

The three areas where families have the most problems are budgeting, child care and family relationships she says.

Frances Cullan, home economist for the department, says a main problem is that people on welfare can't afford to buy in quantity. Only the affluent can save enough to buy by large-enough quantities that will result in savings.

Adequate storage and lack of transportation are other problems for the low income family.

The mother mentioned above considers herself lucky because her brother-in-law usually drives her to her shopping. Her 11-year-old daughter baby-sits. The store is about eight blocks away, and the drive saves her bus or cab fare.

This woman also considers herself lucky that her brother-in-law often takes her out on Saturday night to a show. Welfare money doesn't stretch that far.

"Now we have enough to eat and the children are healthy," she says, praising what she has learned in her group sessions.

And the family has one luxury—a television set. With the help of the homemaker, the woman worked out a budget whereby she could purchase it on a rental plan for $14 a month over a one-year period.

She finds that it really helps to occupy the children's time and keep them from becoming depressed.

Church Groups

READ C.W.L.

READ — The Dec. meeting of the Read CWL was held at St. Mary's School following Mass. Mrs. William Barkley opened the meeting with the league prayer. Since this was a Christmas party the regular business was put aside for this meeting.

There were seven boxes of chocolates sent to sick and shut - ins. Used clothing was sent to Father Jim Farrell. Tickets were sold on a doll and wardrobe and the proceeds were sent to the Scarboro Foreign Mission.

The social welfare committee headed by Mrs. T. F. Corrigan and Mrs. Jerry Horrigan presented a quilt to a family whose home was burned.

The president, Mrs. William Barkley turned the meeting over to Mrs. Jim Kehoe and Mrs. William Durkin who had charge of the party. Contests, bingo and an exchange of Christmas gifts and cards took place. Prizes were given to the oldest members. Mrs. Liz MacAvoy and Mrs. J. E. Walsh were the recipients. Afterwards a lunch was served.

Female Mathematician Heads Scientific Society

And she has enjoyed it enough to carve out an illustrious career that now is making her the first woman president of the largest American scientific society—the 122,000-member American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Rees helped to develop high-speed computers, but herself is the antithesis of cold electronic calculators, no computer with curls. Totally feminine, warm, vivacious, she has dark blonde curls and possesses, says another scientist, "a very sharp mind and a highly organized one."

In the voting by mail for the presidency of the AAAS, Dr. Rees to her surprise won over another mathematician, Dr. Mark Kac, of Rockefeller University. NY. She never expected to be elected and tried to hide the fact she had even been nominated from her husband, Dr. Leopold Brahdy, a physician. She didn't succeed—he was getting mail from the AAAS in his own name.

Dr. Rees, 67, is president of the graduate division of the City University of New York, a post she has held since serving as dean of Hunter College in New York from 1953 to 1961.

She now is president-elect of the AAAS and will take over as president Jan. 15, 1971, succeeding Dr. Athelstan Spilhaus, an oceanographer of Palm Beach, Fla.

Dr. Rees says one of her great concerns is in helping people acquire the information that they need to make decisions—as they must in a democracy—as to what science and technology should be doing, where they should be going.

Born in Cleveland in 1902, Dr. Rees was reared in New York City, received her bachelor's degree from Hunter College in 1923, her master's degree from Columbia in 1925, and her PhD from the University of Chicago in 1931.

Mathematics was her first love from the beginning, she says. But for one year she attended law school at New York University, dreaming, perhaps, of becoming a judge. But she went back to mathematics when, she says, she found she would "have to work with lawyers all the time."

She finds mathematicians to be "human beings with many interests outside mathematics," and her own include oil painting, ceramics, bird watching, travel and cooking.

She is the only mathematician in the family—her father was an insurance agent and three brothers and a sister are in business.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

NORTH-EAST DISTRICT

Enrolled were Denise Chartrand, Sandra Nauss, Linda Decker, Michelle Temple, Charmaine Callaghan, Angela Black, Andree Boyle and Lisa Kelly.

Chapter Plans 'Winter Fantasy' Ball

The Argyll Chapter IODE held its monthly meeting on Jan. 7 in the Officers' Mess with 21 members present. Mrs. F. R. Allan, Regent, conducted the meeting. Mrs. A. W. Gray read the secretary's report in the absence of Mrs. J. B. Milroy. The treasurer, Mrs. J. K. Bradford reported that contributions had been sent to National Chapter in support of funds to which the Chapter contributes annually.

Services secretary, Mrs. P. M. Till requested articles for knitting and sewing be turned in and members were asked to bring the necessary items to fill personal property bags to the February meeting.

Mrs. F. M. Sprague read an interesting article from the Intelligencer on the transplant of veins, a technique developed by Dr. W. M. Cosgrove of the University of Toronto.

Cancer clinic convener, Mrs. H. Smith reported a clinic would be held on January 26 at the work rooms on Bridge Street.

Mrs. A. H. Duffy requested assistance for the Red Cross blood donor clinic being held on January 21 at Loyalist College from 2 to 4 p.m. and clinic at Club Carnara on January 22 in the afternoon and evening.

On behalf of Mrs. J. Sherry, citizenship convener, Mrs. Allan thanked all the members who assisted at the Citizenship Tea held in December in honor of the new Canadians.

A request for financial assistance for the 1970 Rotary Music Festival was received and the members voted to donate $25 in support of this worthwhile community project.

A new member Mrs. F. S. (Barbara) Jenkins was introduced by Mrs. H. Kokesh. A letter was received from the Regent Chapter at Yeotes Court expressing thanks for being entertained at a potluck dinner held in their honor at the Officers' Mess in December.

Plans were completed for the 'Winter Fantasy' dance to be held in the Officers' Mess on Saturday, January 31.

Mrs. H. Kokesh, chairman of the nominating committee presented the slate of officers and conveners for 1970. An executive meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. B. Milroy for the reading of annual reports.

Refreshments were served by the executive.

Women's Reformatory Gone Under Wrecker's Hammer

TORONTO (CP) — A 100-year - old institution that attracted such descriptions as "the last of the Victorian slum" has gone under the wrecker's hammer.

The cost of the job — about $7,000 more than the original cost to build it — to raze the Toronto Reformatory for Women on downtown King Street.

When Mercer closed last April it was the curtain that accepts in vogue when the reformatory opened a century ago as an "home for fallen women."

Its dungeon - like cells with its windows known as the "Bible" to the prisoners, went out of use only five years ago.

Mercer's oak floors will become firewood and its red bricks are being dumped into Lake Ontario to help create man - made islands for a $13,000,000 provincial government project.

Mercer was repeatedly branded, as the "degrading," "shocking," "inhuman" and "a demeaning slum" by a series of juries and politicians who tramped through it over the years.

It was built with funds provided by the estate of Andrew Mercer, a bachelor who died without a will or known heirs. An early settler, Andrew Mercer was an issuer of marriage licences and his estate was eventually worth several million.

The province had to fight several legal battles, including an appeal to the Privy Council in London, to obtain legal possession of the estate.

Even as late as 1933, the provincial cabinet rejected the claims of new alleged heirs of Mercer living in Hamilton and Calgary.

One of the most startling items was a mannequin, left behind by the prison dressmaking class.

Counter Top Survey Report

NEW YORK (AP) — What do women look for when they buy kitchen counter tops? A survey conducted by the Mica Corp. shows that of 100 women surveyed, 62 per cent were most concerned with safety factors — fire resistance. Twenty-four worried about how easy it would be to keep clean; 10 per cent were most concerned with durability. Less than five per cent put esthetic beauty at the top of the list.

Quebec Liberal Candidate Calls for Women's Support

MONTREAL (CP) — It is time a woman was elected president of the Quebec Liberal Federation, Pierre Laporte, a candidate for the leadership of the Quebec Liberal party, told a group of female supporters Monday.

Speaking at a service club to about 150 members of Fernina Pl., an organization representing Mr. Laporte's female supporters, the candidate said:

"Women in the Liberal party have reached such numbers that they should be able to elect women to every executive post in the near future, if they want to."

"The Liberals were the first to have a female member elected to the Quebec national assembly, the first to have a woman in the cabinet and the first to appoint a woman as a judge. A woman president would be another first for us."

Mr. Laporte said nothing will be forced upon the women's group.

"If you want your organization to remain separate from the male half of the Liberal party, you can do so. We will come to you to ask what you want."

The meeting was closed and lunch was served by Miss F. Reid assisted by Mrs. E. Green.

Points for Parents

By MARY BETSON

Mother: "We're a very close family. We have much good times on weekends when we can do things together as a group. We're all going skating this afternoon."

Mother: "Jim is going to take Penny to the office with him Saturday morning and then they'll have lunch downtown. Next week, it will be Terry's turn to go to lunch with his father."

Family togetherness is important when children are growing up, but so is the type of companionship that can result from an exclusive outing of one child with one parent. Every child needs to feel occasionally as if he is an only child.

Successful Living

Many Children Lack Health Needs

By DORIS CLARK

"Every child needs adequate food, rest and exercise — and it is astounding how few get it!" This is a statement I heard read by an outstanding educationist at a recent parent-teacher meeting.

It brought me up short. Then I thought of my little friend Anne, and the dark shadows under her eyes. And of Paul, who, at 11, scorns to eat the white of an egg and who has to be persuaded to taste even a small spoonful of any vegetable.

And there's Marjorie and Mary, eight-year-old twins, who rush home from school to settle before the TV, when they should be out playing.

Every night two-thirds of the children in the world go to bed hungry. We in Canada live mind plenty and we have the knowledge of how to give our children robust health. Yet we don't do it.

Dear Doris: I received a parcel of used glassware from a church in Saskatchewan with 39 pairs of "old eye glasses." Unfortunately they put on a value of $90, so I was charged $22, which is pure ridiculous. The glasses are helping people but it is important to send not more than $9 in one parcel, mark it GIFT and do not declare a value of more than $4. Then I should be able to continue helping people without having to pay customs. After all, we don't sell them.

Another real need — used birthday cards. The people who repair them get 'nice' earnings and that is the main point, so it is a self-help program — the best kind of giving. The cards should not be cut up at all and they can be sent either printed matter or parcel post and they should not be registered.

So many people don't know what to do with those beautiful cards after they have enjoyed them a while. I'll not have any for Christmas cards as we are really getting out of hand, but we would like birthday cards and all year round.

We do so appreciate the help you have been giving us for some time now. Frances Stevenson, Institution, 5-6 compound, 14 Old Sehore Road, M.P. India.

Dear Fran: Glad to help. Sorry about those customs charges.

Ladies, please note that to value should be estimated on any one parcel more than $4. Then I should be able to continue helping people without having to pay customs. After all, we don't sell them.

Another real need — used birthday cards. The people who repair them get 'nice' earnings and that is the main point, so it is a self-help program — the best kind of giving. The cards should not be cut up at all and they can be sent either printed matter or parcel post and they should not be registered.

All I ask is a little consideration and companionship; all he talks of is making money. To me he has a split personality. (Mrs.)

Dear Granny: I'm sorry. It seems there's a great gulf between you.

A man may get so wrapped up in the business of money making that he forgets what he's doing it for. Certainly you should have some knowledge of his finances, especially you need to know where you stand in the event of his death.

Could it be that away back there he was a kid, he saw his mother treated as a second-class citizen. This might explain her. Ask it's not what will change him — although some skilled counselling could help.

Is it a point of etiquette that is troubling you Doris can tell you how it's done in Canada.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Hors d' Oeuvres from Brussels Sprouts

By MARY MOORE

In December I received a letter from a reader asking for various ways of using up the bushels of Brussels sprouts that they had harvested during the Fall.

Just before Christmas a newspaper publisher telephoned me asking for a recipe for his wife and said "incidentally Peg has a new hors d'oeuvres that is tops today — marinated Brussels sprouts." I immediately asked for her method and two days later it came in the mail (see below). /

The recipe called for 8 oz. Italian French Dressing but marvjlins, I made my own (see below). The marinated, Brussels sprouts are a new party hors d'oeuvres for your cocktail parties and the Italian French Dressing is a chef's method of making his own.

PEG'S MARINATED BRUSSELS SPROUTS
(hors d'oeuvres)

1 lb. small firm Brussels sprouts
½ cup Italian French dressing (see below)
½ tsp. dill weed

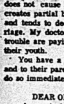
¼ cup thinly sliced small green onions (including some tops)

Select small firm sprouts if possible. Wash and trim off bottoms and loose side leaves. Cook in boiling water with 1 tsp. salt until only three-quarters tender — about eight to 10 min. Drain in colander and chill quickly under running cold water. Drain and pat dry. Turn into flat dish in one layer, add dill weed and onion and marinate overnight in

ITALIAN FRENCH DRESSING

¼ cup lemon juice (or vinegar)
¼ cup water
¾ cup corn oil
1 tbsp. catsup or canned tomato paste
1 tsp. paprika
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. garlic salt
¼ tsp. black pepper
¼ tsp. dry mustard
Shake of cayenne

Mix all ingredients in jar with cover, shake well. Pour over sprouts, store covered overnight, turning them once.



Serve marinated sprouts, well drained, with a toothpick in each in your finest cut glass serving dish. These were ever so popular.

NOTE: I tried heating some of these marinated sprouts in the top of the double boiler to be used as a hot vegetable and they were great. I hope our girl with the bushels of sprouts will see this for it is another variation to add to her collection.

Ann Landers

Reader Disappointed With Ann's Answer

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Pam shocked and disappointed in you. I refer to your answer to the teen-age who wrote to ask you about the harmless effects of masturbation. You replied,

ANN LANDERS

"Masturbation will not cause insanity, V.D., or dark circles under your eyes, nor will it hurt you in any way. The worst thing about masturbation is that it produces guilt because of the old wives' tales which have been scaring kids to death since the Year One."

Your answer has virtually given the green light to millions of young people to go ahead and indulge in this rotten, shameful, disgusting habit.

Why didn't you tell the teen-ager that while masturbation does not cause impotence or V.D., it does dull the responses, erodes partial blurring of the sight, causes nervousness and tends to decrease the pleasure of normal sex after marriage. My doctor told me that older men who have prostate trouble are paying the price for practicing masturbation in their youth.

You have a responsibility to the young people of America and to their parents to change your advice and I trust you will do so immediately. — ORANGE COUNTY.

DEAR ORANGE COUNTY — and the hundreds of others who wrote in a similar vein: My advice on masturbation did not come off the top of my head. It is the combined counsel of top medical authorities. They agreed unanimously that masturbation does not produce any ill effects, except the guilt feelings resulting from parental admonition and scare stories. It is true that a prostate condition can be aggravated by masturbation, but marital intercourse would do the same.

I've received thousands of letters from teen-agers whose guilt feelings over masturbation have produced severe personality problems. They avoid close friendships for fear someone will learn of their "despicable habit." Many teens have the notion that because they masturbate, they are homosexuals. It's not uncommon for a teen to write and describe himself as "weak, worthless and not fit to live." Some teen-agers become so despondent they consider suicide.

Every clinical study which I have seen indicates that approximately 96 per cent of all males and 82 per cent of all females have masturbated at some time during their lives. If masturbation caused blurring of sight, absentmindedness, and prostate trouble, there would be about 140 million blurry-eyed, absent-minded prostate sufferers wandering around.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are aware that your column appears all over the world. Those who live in Tokyo enjoy it in the Asahi Evening News. As an editor of that newspaper I have been asked by our readers to learn what you meant when you said, "Your husband is a liar. Give him the deep six."

What, please, is the "deep six?" — SATOSHI SUGITA.

DEAR SATOSHI SUGITA: It might interest your Japanese readers that several U.S. citizens wrote to ask the same question. "The deep six" is a slang expression that literally means a grave. I wasn't recommending homicide, however. I meant to suggest that the women get rid of the liar and bury the relationship six feet under.

Confidential to HOLES IN MY SHOES: He's not waiting for a "rainy day," he's waiting for The Flood. Tell him you need to enjoy the fruits of his labors with him — now — rather than later, with a second husband — after he has worked himself to death.

Buys Return Fare to Japan Just in Case

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — A Japanese bride arrived in Canada recently armed with a return ticket to Japan in case she didn't like the prospective bridegroom. She married him a week later.

Reiko Kimura of Tokyo met her husband-to-be for the first time at the Toronto airport after a brief mail courtship arranged by their families.

Her bridegroom, Kenji Niwa, 29, came from Nagoya, Japan, about 18 months ago. He decided the time was right to marry, so he wrote to his family and asked them to choose a suitable bride for him.

His family had friends whose daughter was of marriageable age. The two young people exchanged a few letters and photographs, and a month later Reiko flew to Canada.

She says she waited to see what she thought of Canada and Kenji.

"I had a return ticket in case I didn't like him."

She says it is customary for marriages to be arranged in Japan, though nowadays a prospective bride and groom can make their own final decisions.

Reiko says her family had been trying to arrange a marriage for her for years, but she wasn't interested.

"I didn't want to marry until I was 26 years old."

She says she liked being single. She was a cook in a Jewish restaurant in Tokyo, had been to Australia for six months, and was waiting for her working papers so she could go to New York City when Kenji's marriage proposal arrived.

Boss Brass to Sound Off in Aid of Crippled Children

By BARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Reporter

Rob McConnell's Boss Brass, described by Radio Station CJBQ manager Frank Murray as probably one of the top "hi" sounds in television and radio today, will perform in Belleville Thursday, March 26.

The evening performances at Centennial high school auditorium is being sponsored jointly by CJBQ and Belleville Rotary Club in aid of the latter's Easter Seals campaign for crippled children.

The 19 musicians of the Boss Brass, regular performers on CBC radio and television, will be accompanied by glamorous Dianne Brooks, vocalist, and a supporting rock group.

Mr. Murray said that 37 minutes of the two - hour show will be recorded and broadcast the following week from coast-to-coast, affording further publicity for Belleville during this period of already steady growth and increasing status.

"I hope we will be able to put about $1,000 toward helping the crippled children.

"It is also necessary we get Belleville's name before the public from St. Peter's to Victoria," he said.

Admission will be $1.50 and further details will be announced shortly.

Arnold Campbell gave a report on expenditure of more than $1,000 on behalf of the area's crippled children. This covered transportation, drugs, treatment at Hiawatha summer camp and other contingencies.

The money was the club's share of the area total of $8,000 last year, including $1,500 contributed by the Rotarians themselves.

Among the guests at lunch was Miss Hilda Lane, area nurse of the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Rotary president Bob Lan-

ning said the club was one of nearly 100 to contribute to an appeal for funds by the Variety Institute for the Family. This was started in all 128,000 which the federal government augmented with a dollar-for-dollar contribution, making a total of $37,000.

Youtheatre Conference Here Could Be Oversubscribed

The Belleville Theatre Guild's conference on youtheatre to be held Jan. 23, 24 and 25 may have a slight overcrowding problem.

According to the guild's resident artistic director, Roy Higgins, the conference is attracting more delegates than the guild and the Eastern Ontario Drama League, the co-sponsors, were expecting.

Mr. Higgins told The Intelligencer that a number of cities in Eastern Ontario were requesting that they be allowed to bring busloads of delegates to the conference to be held in the Belleville Theatre Guild's Pinnacle Playhouse.

As plans for the conference developed it was expected that 50 adults and 50 young people would take part in Saturday Jan. 24's activities and that 50 young people would be part of Sunday's lectures and discussions.

"We hate to turn anyone away," Mr. Higgins said. However a letter, copies of which have been sent out to all parts of Eastern Ontario, states that the conference is a case of first come first served.

Participants have a choice between attending the guild's production of Wait Until Dark or the guild's Mabra Haverbottom Blues Festival featuring Whiskey Howl, Milkwood, Two-Minute Hate and Bill the Lizard.

The activity will continue into Saturday and Sunday with a reception at the Hotel Quinte, lectures and discussions and a youtheatre art exhibit at the Corby Public Library.

Young Debunk Symbols

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — Young people looked on "debunk" national symbols they associate with war and exploitation, says sociologist Rev. A. A. MacDonald.

Interviewed at St. Francis Xavier University's extension department here, Dr. MacDonald said he feels there also is a certain questioning of nationalism in the traditional sense.

The recent PhD graduate of Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y.—where he observed student revolt at close hand—is himself happy about Canada's new symbol of nationalism, the flag. "It's nice to see when you're away from home," he grinned.

But the attitude of many students to nationalism was: What will it do? Will it provide food for the hungry, education for the ignorant? Is pride of nationhood a great motivating factor for such things?

The changes that have to come about in Canada's institutions in the next 10 years or so are great, but I think nationalism will have little or no part of it."

Most universities had merely transmitted knowledge from one generation to the next, rather than concerning themselves with changing society for the better. This explained the attitude of rebellious students who wanted to get at the root causes of poverty and conflict.

Dr. MacDonald said it is "amazing," however, to study and realize how some priests here were preaching 40 years ago ideas which now are considered new and sometimes almost revolutionary in the university context everywhere.

The late Dr. James Tompkins and Msgr. Moses Michael Coady—better known to thousands of all faiths as "Father Jimmy" and "Doc Coady"—passionately advocated the idea of universities as engines of change.

The Coady International Institute, which attracts students and scholars from around the world, popularized their work along with the extension department, formed in 1928 at the crest of social crusading priests, notably Very Rev. Michael Gillis, now retired in Sydney, N.S.

Some years ago a Cornell survey placed at 6,000,000 the number of graduates in many climes who had benefited from the work of the extension department of the Antigonish Movement. One newspaper estimated a few weeks ago the total at the number of about 10,000,000 with the work of the Coady Institute since 1960.

The social gospels of Coady and Tompkins, cousins, involving self-help, economic co-operation and unlocking the potential of the silent masses, were not fully understood by their contemporaries and are still not fully accepted today.

U.S. Investment Up

The value of U.S. private foreign investment has risen at an average rate of nearly ten per cent in the past ten years. Investment in Canada — almost one third of the total — continues to be larger than in any other country or area in the world.

George Stratton Named Master of Moira Lodge

George (Bud) C. Stratton was installed as Worshipful Master of Moira Lodge AF and AM No. 111 G.R.C. on Wednesday evening, Jan. 7, 1970 in the Masonic Temple before a capacity attendance of Masons from the city and district.

Installation ceremony was under the direction of a Past Grand Steward of Grand Lodge and a thirty second degree Mason of the Scottish Rite, Very Wor. Bro. H. S. Robbins who was ably assisted by Past Masters of Moira and other district Lodges.

The officers installed and invested for the ensuing year were: Wor. Master, Wor. Bro. George, (Bud) Stratton; senior warden, Bro. Keith Elliott; junior warden, Bro. Stan Reid; chaplain, Bro. Alfred G. Cooper; treasurer, Wor. Bro. Wally Manner; secretary, V. Wor. Bro. Harold S. Robbins; sr. deacon, Bro. Douglas Wright; jr. deacon, Bro. Peter Anderson; organist, Bro. William G. Conner; director of ceremonies, Wor. Bro. Ralph Swan; inner guard, Bro. Gord Parrinder; jr. steward, Bro. Ernie Kells; sr. steward, Bro. Wally Reynolds; tyler, Bro. Harper McElrath. The latter two officers were appointed and will be invested at a later date.

Auditors are Bro. Frank Leach and Bro. Herb D. Wilkerson; rep. Masonic Temple Corp., Rt. Wor. Bro. Merrit M. Hackett; rep. to Past Master's, Masters and Wardens Association, Wor. Bro. Clare Faulkner; auditor Masonic Temple Corp., V. Wor. Bro. Harold S. Robbins; Moira Lodge Trust Fund Trustees, Rt. Wor. Bro. W. J. Anderson, Wor. Bro. D. F. Foster, Bro. Keith M. Day.

Various committee chairmen for 1970 were appointed.

Following the installation ceremony, Wor. Bro. Cliff Brown expressed appreciation of the fine support given by all Past Masters, officers and members of Moira Lodge, while he has been Acting Master during the absence of Worshipful Master, Norman G. Browne who was transferred to Kitchener in July.

At this time Wor. Bro. Cliff Brown presented to the Master a gavel, suitably inscribed on behalf of Mrs. Stratton and family.

The banquet hour was presided over by the new Master who gave an inspiring address concerning "Masons in Modern Day Society". Toasts were proposed to Grand Lodge by junior warden Bro. Stan Reid and to the visitors by Bro. Doug Wright. Replies to these toasts were given by Rt. Wor. Bro. Merrit M. Hackett and V. Wor. Bro. Percy Kerr.

Special thanks were given to Mrs. W. Manner and Mrs. Keith Elliott in assisting the stewards during the banquet hour by Rt. Wor. Bro. J. R. Grant, and was heartily endorsed by the brethren.

Bros. Jack Stoliker and Bro. Norm Stoliker brothers-in-law of the Master, George Stratton are members of honor and they also extended their congratulations. The junior warden's jewel was presented by Bro. Stan Reid closing the evening.

U.S. Names Units Leaving Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. command announced today the major units among the 50,000 American troops being withdrawn from Vietnam by April 15. They include the 1st Infantry Division, the 25th Marine Regiment and the 3rd Brigade of the 4th Infantry Division.

Also pulling out will be three squadrons of the Air Force's 12th Tactical Fighter Wing, navy service support units and "a number of smaller combat support and service support units of all services," the command said.

These smaller units will include several artillery batalions and a civil affairs company, it was learned. A 16-percent cut also is being ordered in support headquarters staffs.

Headquarters said the first units will begin moving out early next month. The 1st Infantry Division was the first army division sent to Vietnam, 4½ years ago.

The latest withdrawal, the third ordered by President Nixon, will reduce the authorized U.S. troop ceiling in Vietnam to 434,000. It will replace the total number of American troops withdrawn since last July to 110,000.

The U.S. command announcement said the 50,000 men being withdrawn in the next three months will include 29,500 army, 13,500 marines, 5,600 air force and 2,000 navymen.

A weekly summary also issued today by the U.S. command showed that American troop strength in Vietnam dropped 6,000 last week, to 467,500, the lowest since November, 1967.

This is 16,500 men below the present authorized ceiling, but U.S. spokesmen said troop strength around the Christmas season always falls considerably below the authorized maximum. The notation is transferred to the U.S. are expedited to get the men home for Christmas, while replacements are often delayed so the men can be home for the holidays.

Junior Volunteers Help Make Hospital Tick

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

"What do junior volunteers mean?", repeated the young girl. Then she smiled, as she confided the question reminded her of school. Wanting to reach for the right thought, she said simply, "to me it means helping others, and in helping them, helping myself."

With that one remark, Mary Rowbotham set only explained how she felt about being a volunteer, but put her finger on the direction of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary volunteer program — people.

Ranging in age from 16 to 18, the girls are part of an even larger group of auxiliary volunteers who devote their time, often on a daily basis, as part and parcel of this form of community involvement.

But it is the junior volunteer program which attempts to tap the interest of the young people in Belleville, by offering them the opportunity to reach out and help others.

"The only requirement for our program is that volunteers be in minimum of 16 years of age", said Volunteer Services Chairman, Mrs. Selma Bochnek.

"Other than that, we ask only that the volunteer have a serious interest in being an active part of the auxiliary's volunteer program."

"Their role is particularly important to what we are trying to do here, and that is make the patient's stay in hospital pleasant."

The girls have various responsibilities which extend from the lending library cart to the supervision in the fourth level pediatrics.

When a young girl decides she wants to become a part of the auxiliary's hospital volunteer program, the first step is an interview with the director, Mrs. Bochnek.

"Each prospective volunteer is shown a list of what exactly the juniors do and can name her preferences. Once the decision about what she is going to do is made, the new volunteer can be initiated into a training program".

The junior volunteer program encompasses a number of specific duties, all geared to make the time the patient spends in hospital as pleasant as is possible.

A patient can choose either a book or a magazine free of charge from the library. And there is always some friendly conversation to be had while deciding.

The girls are also responsible for supervision of the fourth level pediatrics — keeping the young patients busy with stories or arts and crafts.

"Junior volunteers take care of the catalouging as well as the preparation of the complete kit, ordering and follow up procedures."

"Each volunteer is given training preparation to enable her to understand what exactly she will be responsible for so that she can complete her duties to the best of her ability."

At the present time there are 26 volunteers participating in the program, with more "recruits" coming in all the time.

Each particular division of the volunteer program has its own adult supervisor, who trains and then assists the girls in carrying out their duties.

"The girls come in after school, and often in their spare time, too", said Mrs. Bochnek.

"They come in on their holidays as well — which indicates their tremendous interest in what they are doing, and their desire to devote as much time as they can to their work."

The junior volunteers are a part of a continent - wide movement within the hospital auxiliaries often referred to as candy stripers, because of their uniforms, first began in the United States and later moved into Canada.

With the expansion of the hospital into bigger, brighter quarters, the need for more volunteers of all ages, has grown at the same time.

"We always are in need of more volunteers", emphasized Mrs. Bochnek. "The rewards, as most volunteers will tell you, are the intangible, personal kind that provide lasting satisfaction", she concluded.

Books for Patients

Junior Volunteer Lorraine Van Dusen makes sure the lending library cart gets to the bedside of almost every patient in the Belleville General Hospital. The books and magazines in the library are all donations from the public as well as auxiliary members.

The First Step

Director of Volunteer Services Mrs. Selma Bochnek shows junior volunteer Mary Rowbotham how the whole process begins — with an interview and completion of an application form. From here, the new volunteer will begin her training in preparation for her future duties.

Time for A Chat

Two-year-old Gail Young takes time out from being a patient to chat with Junior Volunteer Rosemary Reilley. Junior volunteers assist in the supervision of fourth level pediatrics, playing with the youngsters, and getting them started on arts and crafts projects.

Cunningham First To State Expenses

Everything costs money and modern government costs the most.

Politicians are the first to feel the bite of democracy in election expenses.

The satisfaction of victory or increments of office are compensations.

But what about the losers? Gerald Cunningham was one of four Bellevillians defeated in last December's city council elections.

But, today, if it's any consolation, he probably becomes the first local government candidate ever to reveal his election expenses.

In all, it cost Mr. Cunningham $274 to be defeated.

Mr. Cunningham is president of the Belleville and District Labor Council. He ran as the official candidate of organized labor. His election expenses were outlined in a report to the council last night.

The report showed:

As a sponsored candidate he received donations — $100 from the labor council, $50 from the city's Steelworkers while the Autoworkers gave $20. There were $20 subscribed in "private donations," for a campaign fund total of $200.

On outlays, the bulk of the money went on getting his campaign messages across — almost exclusively by newspaper advertising.

To this end he spent $118 with The Intelligencer, $36 with the weekly Belleville Times.

Some $56 was spent with the printing firm of (unsuccessful candidate) Richard Ellis and $19 went to a paint merchant.

Mr. Cunningham is a CN railroader. He took time off from work to campaign. This added $150 in lost pay to his expenses.

The result: A deficit of $174.

It could have been "easily doubled", Mr. Cunningham reported, "except we did all the sign-painting ourselves."

Mr. Cunningham was working last night and his report was read by his wife, Lorraine, also an executive member of the Labor council. Mrs. Cunningham said her husband would have to meet the deficit from his own pocket.

In the December election Mr. Cunningham gleaned 2,893 votes and was allotted 12th place among the 14 candidates.

As reported last night, his election expenses equal about 12 cents per vote.

Mr. Cunningham's report last night called for formation within the labor council of a year - round "political action committee.

"Only in this manner can we hope to compete with the political machines that operate in favor of the majority of municipal candidates in this city," he warned.

School Administration Can Borrow $14,500,000

Hastings county board of education last night authorized its business officials to borrow up to $14,500,000 during 1970.

This sum is equal to the last approved maximum income of the board, and is the largest amount it is entitled to borrow in one year.

Business Manager K. F. Wormald told the board it borrowed — in installments — a total of $10,000,00 in 1969, but never had that much owing at any on time.

Trustees expressed concern that the province was late in announcing the grant regulations last year. The result was that tax levies were submitted to municipalities much later than the March 31 deadline required by the Schools Administration Act.

Payment for Services

Industrial Role Natural One Chamber Told

PICTON — How can an industrial commissioner who also acts as a chamber of commerce manager benefit a chamber?

Clare Shaver, representative of the Ontario and Canadian Chambers of Commerce explained the value of "a man wearing two hats" during a directors' meeting of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce held at Prince Edward Yacht Club last night.

Mr. Shaver observed that the man who acts in the roles of industrial commissioner and chamber manager simultaneously is far from a strange coincidence in Ontario. "It usually works out extremely well," noted Mr. Shaver who is responsible for annual visits to 150 chambers of commerce in this province. The Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce does not have a manager nor does Picton or Prince Edward have an industrial commissioner.

"We are working to eliminate the term 'grants' in relation to funds obtained from municipalities. The taxpayer can place the politician in a very awkward position when he asks him to justify a grant to a businessman's association. He suggested, without a difference in monies, that the terminology become "for services rendered." If a taxpayer challenges this and the chamber has an industrial commissioner-manager, he is challenging a service. If you are selling a service, municipalities have to ask where else they can get it and for how much money."

Mr. Shaver suggested that a direct request for funds might be questioned or turned down but when payment is asked in return for service the response is more likely to be positive. "This is a better way of getting money from a municipal government," he commented.

Organizations signing at the local level are strong at the provincial and federal levels said Mr. Shaver, in the Ontario chamber a legislation bulletin is published regularly and if a bill is disapproved it can be protested before its third reading in the House of Commons. Mr. Shaver felt that this was one of the Ontario chamber's biggest services.

White Papers Aid Governing

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — White paper legislation became part of Dr. Morris Foster's address on parliamentary affairs when he spoke last night at a Kiwanis Club dinner meeting held in the Royal Hotel. Welcomed by Kiwanian Harry Hicks as "one of the local boys who made good," Dr. Foster is formerly a resident of Bloomfield and now Liberal MP for Algoma riding. "Basically the white paper represents what the government thinks it should do, usually concerning a very complex problem such as complete taxation reform," commented Dr. Foster. He added that by producing such a reform as a "white paper," the government enables the whole Canadian society to tear it apart. "Parliamentary committees can discuss it and make changes and the government receives better, more acceptable legislation."

Dr. Foster briefly examined the white papers concerning taxation, veterans' legislation and Indian policy to illustrate this. He observed that 'most of us in Canada' expect a capital gains tax to be introduced in the white paper on taxation

A general proposal in the white paper on taxation concerns the taxation of income, the most important part of federal taxation.

It is suggested that this tax will be based on the individual's ability to pay. "Most progressive societies would agree with this," said Dr. Foster. "The basic plan will provide little interference with our economic development and business in general. There will be increased personal exemption and exemption for working wives forced to employ baby sitters."

The white paper on veterans' legislation, according to Dr. Foster, will affect about one million Canadians. "It proposes changes that have been real problems for veterans in equities," he noted.

On Indian policy, the speaker emphasized his personal interest in its proposals. "The white paper has drawn much criticism and there will be some changes in it before it is implemented. Since confederation, about 250,000 Indians have been living on reservations, set apart. They should become citizens in the provinces in which they live. They should be absorbed in the provincial system of health, welfare and municipal government. There are many problems surrounding the implementation of a policy to bring the Indian people into full participation and to allow them to make contributions to their country."

Dr. Foster expressed h i confidence in today's "better educated, more sophisticated teen-agers." He felt the voting age should be lowered from 21 to 18 years of age. Dr. Foster observed that the question of when the voting age will be lowered is of prime concern to teenagers today. He said 16-year-olds are especially eager to see the voting age dropped to 18 so that they can cast votes in the next election. "Old timers in the government caution that the young people will vote en block if they are permitted to cast ballots as teenagers," remarked Dr. Foster. But, he said, in provinces where the voting age has been lowered the voting pattern remains basically unchanged.

In timk, party affiliations will be marked on voting ballots in Dr. Foster's opinion. "When a nuisance candidate is run it can confuse the voter. This idea will be studied, discussed and, ultimately, enacted."

At the federal level a publication called The Ottawa Profile performs the same service. "If there are things you don't like, make representation," urged Mr. Shaver.

Outlining other Ontario Chamber of Commerce projects he referred to a brief for law and order now being drawn up and to the Ontario conference on local government designed to acquaint people with how the government operates from its lowest to its highest levels. "We can't keep up with the demands for this course," said Mr. Shaver.

Operation Placement, a student employment program, was described by Mr. Shaver as the biggest project of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. Under this program high school graduates and university students are offered summer work "on the management side." "We feel students are graduating without real knowledge of the country's business operations," said the speaker. Operation Placement is aimed at overcoming this problem by allowing students to learn through doing.

Referring to the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Shaver commented on the involvement of its members and several non - members in organizing snowmobile races in Picton next month. He suggested that members enthusiastically planning toward the event could possibly become chamber members in the future through participation. "I like your idea of member involvement and the involvement of those non-members."

Book 105 Years Old

A relic of Belleville publishing history turned up in the city over the weekend — brought here all the way from Cherry Hill, New Jersey.

Walter Young brought a 105-year-old book, Rebellion in the County of Wexford in the Year 1798, back to The Intelligencer, where it was published in 1864. Mr. Young, visiting in the city for the funeral of a relative, has owned the book for 50 years, having received it from his father.

As well as publishing The Intelligencer, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, later Prime Minister of Canada, ran a thriving commercial printing plant on his Front St. premises now the site of Milady Shop.

In its heyday, 100 years ago, the commercial printing plant published many hard-cover books, most of them reprints of British books dealing with political affairs in Great Britain.

Like the book Mr. Young has preserved, most editions turned out by The Intelligencer printers featured a clear, readable type on good quality paper, which has stood up well to the effects of aging.

Len Dawson on Centre Stage for First Time in Two Decades

KANSAS CITY, (AP) — Len Dawson had to fly airlines flying back to a hero's welcome Monday and tried to put into words what being No. 1 on professional football's No. 1 team means after playing the game 21 years.

"It is what everybody strives for, but so few people ever reach it," Dawson said as he led his U.S. pro football champion Kansas City Chiefs home to a thunderous welcome by fans who didn't get to New Orleans for the Super Bowl.

"I've known people who've had outstanding careers but never realize this," Dawson said. "We set these goals every year, but we don't always accomplish them. This is the ultimate; this is all there is."

"It's a satisfying thing, of course," he said. "But it goes deeper than that. It's not an individual thing. It's something you obtain only with a team effort.

"I've been quite fortunate to have the opportunity to play on some fine teams. I've been surrounded by talent. I'm surrounded by talent on this football team."

For Dawson, who began playing football in the ninth grade 21 years ago in Alliance, Ohio, Sunday's triumph culminated the dream of a lifetime.

The Chiefs won the American Football League championship in 1962, but Dawson said "that didn't count." They also won in 1966, but lost the first Super Bowl game in 1967 to Green Bay Packers of the National League.

"We just wanted to win, like it or not, it's the winner who gets the recognition," said Dawson, who has never won acceptance among many in pro football as an outstanding quarterback.

The 13-year pro veteran, now 34, let it be known he expects the public to accept the Chiefs as true champions.

"Some people thought we shouldn't have been in the Super Bowl because we lost two games to Oakland," Dawson said. "We lost to Oakland 10-6. But then we beat the New York Jets, Oakland and Minnesota.

"We beat those teams. We earned that right to go to the Super Bowl. We didn't back in the back door.

"We overcame a lot of adversity. We were a better football team than Minnesota Sunday. In a championship game, there is no tomorrow. You play on a given day and that's it.

"We lived with that thing in 1967 until today. We happened to get beat by a good football team. A lot of people lost to the Green Bay Packers.

"I just hope the public and the news media realize it's no disgrace to lose to the Kansas City Chiefs."

Flyers Make Pole Prophet Without Team

By CHUCK SYOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A measure of irony accompanies Philadelphia Flyers today as they visit Oakland Seals in the only scheduled National Hockey League encounter.

The irony comes from the Flyers' possession of second place in the West Division—the standing former general manager Bud Poile said they would finish the season with.

"We—I mean they—are going to finish in second place," Poile said the day after he was dumped from his post in a surprise move by Flyers owner Ed Snider.

Orr Leads Loot Parade at Break

MONTREAL (CP) — Defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins, centre Phil Goyette of St. Louis Blues and Chicago Black Hawks' goaltending duo of Tony Esposito and Denis DeJordy are majority stars in the National Hockey League's mid-season monetary awards, the league announced today.

The NHL reached the halfway point in its schedule Sunday and the players split the $1,000 mid-season awards.

Orr became the first defenceman in NHL history to win bonus money from the league for a scoring race, while Goyette won his first individual monetary award from the league. Esposito and DeJordy were declared mid-season leaders in the Vezina Trophy race.

After Boston's first 38 games, Orr had 12 goals, 49 assists and 61 points, which earned him $300 as the league's individual point leader at the half-way point. Goyette won $250 as runner-up with 17 goals, 32 assists and 49 points. Esposito, who leads the league in shutouts with eight, and DeJordy share $250.

Orr is only one assist away from the all-time record for a defenceman in last season by Chicago's Pat Stapleton, and three points shy of his own record for points in a season by a defenceman. The record was set during the 1968-69 schedule.

Goyette won his money Saturday and then saw his lone second-place standing disappear Sunday as Phil Esposito, Tony's brother and the defending scoring champion, went on a-three-goal, one-assist binge against Oakland Seals to move into a tie with Goyette. However, the Oakland game was Boston's 39th season game, one past the half-way mark.

Tony Esposito's league-leading goals-against average of 2.12 is the best mark by a Chicago goaltender in 30 years. The last Black Hawks netminder to post a lower average was Paul Goodman in the 1939-40 season when he had 62 goals against in 31 games for a 2.00 average.

A Few Viking Fans Manage To Keep Chins Up

The remark, by a local airport policeman, seemed to be what everyone was thinking as only 400 persons welcomed Minnesota Vikings home Monday.

The National Football League champions, minus quarterback Joe Kapp and seven others, received a warm but subdued welcome on their return from New Orleans where Kansas City Chiefs of the American League beat them 23-7 in the Super Bowl Sunday.

Kapp Out Of All-Star Bout

Kapp will not play in next Sunday's Pro Bowl game in Los Angeles, but he was to leave New Orleans for Los Angeles Monday with seven other Vikings who are playing in the Bowl. The remainder of the squad returned to Minneapolis.

Bob Berry, Atlanta quarterback, has been named to replace Kapp on the Western Conference squad. In the Pro Bowl game, National Football League all-star teams from the Western and Eastern conference compete.

Kapp, who suffered torn muscles and ligaments in his left shoulder in the Super Bowl, flew to Los Angeles with his seven teammates who will play in Sunday's Pro Bowl, Kapp will not play in the game. He has been replaced by former teammate Bob Berry, now with Atlanta Falcons.

Wife carried a newspaper advertisement which said: "We still love you, Kapp. January as we did in September."

Each player was greeted by applause as he walked past the crowd, but smiles were few and weak.

Among the scattered signs was one which said "We're proud of our coaching dads." It was signed by the children of head coach Bud Grant and offensive backfield coach Bus Mertes.

Kathy Grant, 18, said she and her sister Laurie, 16, and two of Mertes' daughters, Sally 17, and Kelly, 14, had made the hastily-lettered sign at the airport.

The girls said they had watched the Super Bowl game on television at the Mertes home. Asked if they were making any predictions for next year, Laurie laughed and said:

"Yeah, we won't watch it at Mertes' house."

Grant was the last person off the plane. He accepted a distinguished service plaque from Stenvig and then walked stone-faced through the crowd as they gave him their most enthusiastic applause.

The greeting was all over in a few minutes, and the fans, many of them still somewhat dazed by what had happened Sunday, put away their "purple power" buttons and pennants until next year.

Sports On All Fronts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks will retain their name when they join the National Hockey League next season. So says Tom Scaltsis, head of the new owners, the Medicor group of Minneapolis. "The fans spoke out and we heard them," said Scaltsis in a telephone interview from Washington, D.C. He referred to a newspaper writin poll which found 89 per cent of respondents in favor of keeping the name — in use here for 20 years.

DUBROVNIK (Reuters) — A $1,000,000 golf course — the first in Yugoslavia — is being planned near this southern Adriatic resort, financed mostly by Canadian money, informed Yugoslav sources say. The project, including a hotel for golfers, would be financed by a group of Canadian and some American businessmen, and a Yugoslav hotel enterprise.

NEW YORK (AP) — Debbie Meyer, the lithe teen-ager who added new dimensions in 1969 to her stature as the world's reigning swim queen, was selected Female Athlete of the Year today in the 20th annual Associated Press poll. Miss Meyer, barely beaten out for the 1968 award by Olympic figure skating champion Peggy Fleming, was the landslide choice of the sports writers and broadcasters this time around. The 17-year-old schoolgirl from Sacramento, Calif., a triple gold medal winner in the 1968 Olympic Games, lowered one of her own four world freestyle records in 1969 and made a triumphant splash as a novice medley swimmer.

Poles Will Move Up If Asked

WARSAW (AP) — Poland announced Monday it is willing to play in the A group of the world hockey championships in Stockholm next month.

Officials of the Polish Ice Hockey Association said they are changing the schedules of domestic championships to prepare for Stockholm, although no official invitation from the international board has yet arrived.

The United States turned down an offered promotion to the top group after Canada withdrew from the tournament following a dispute over its projected use of professional players.

Off-track Bets

Taxes Could Be Used

MONTREAL (CP) — Off-track betting "could be beneficial to racing if handled properly," John J. Mooney, managing director of the Ontario Jockey Club, said Monday.

However, he added, "tight government controls will be necessary, and the tracks will have to participate. Without proper protection for the public, it may be disastrous."

Mr. Mooney made the statement in an interview at the fifth annual conference of the National Association of Canadian Race Tracks, which is scheduled to discuss off-track betting today.

Merv Peters, racing director for the British Columbia Jockey Club, said "strict control will be necessary since the smaller tracks can't survive without related income from attendance," and race track concessions could suffer if off-track betting were legal.

Betting shops have long been a part of racing in Britain, France, Australia and other countries, but Canada's only venture in this area was a rash of messenger service betting last season.

Ontario off-track betting shops came into being after two Welland, Ont., men successfully appealed a decision against their operation in February of last year, but in July the federal government made it illegal to take off-track bets for a consideration.

Some off-track shops have continued in business by selling 50-cent daily trotting forms to customers who place bets with out paying the usual 10-per-cent fee.

Raymond Lemay, executive vice-president of Montreal's Blue Bonnets Raceway and president-elect of the NACRT, said "tracks have a big investment and shouldn't suffer" from any plan.

He felt off-track betting could be good for racing if well-managed because "it will reach people."

"I think it's coming because governments are always looking for new ways to make money. Taxes [illegible] betting will be a joyful way to get it."

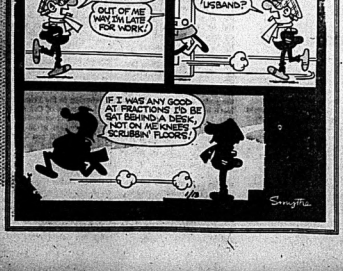
The NACRT, representing 12 thoroughbred and 27 harness tracks across Canada, also discussed the possibility of adopting uniform medication rules across the country.

Rules concerning the administration of drugs to sibling horses vary in different areas and owners and trainers feel that uniform rules would be desirable.

Delegates are also discussing the possibility of standardizing allowances for claiming events in harness racing.

Canada Runs Own Show

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro told the Commons Monday that the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and Hockey Canada are making plans for a tournament for Manitoba to be staged by the now-cancelled international competition.



The March tournament at Winnipeg was cancelled after Canada withdrew from world hockey competition because of a row over what players would be eligible.

Mr. Munro said that the Canadian national team would be kept together at least until it fulfilled all playing commitments in Canada. But he couldn't say how soon after that the team would be disbanded.

Skaters Cut Up at Trenton

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

Entrants from 20 clubs will be skating for a ticket to Edmonton this weekend in the first annual Eastern Ontario Section Figure Skating Championships at Trenton's Community Garden.

Depending on how much they impress the 15 world-calibre judges, some of the field of 105 entrants in the three-day sectionals will be declared qualified to compete in the Canadian Figure Skating Championships in Edmonton Jan. 29-31.

No member of Belleville's Quinte Figure Skating Club has ever attended the Canadian Championships, but club professionals Bonnie Boundy and Gordon Crossland think at least two of the 11 Quinte Club skaters in the sectionals are good enough.

Patsy Jean Allore, 17, a Nicholson Catholic College student, and 19-year-old Michael Fitzgibbon, a second-year University of Toronto student and a 10-year Quinte Club member, are entered in the Junior Pairs category, and their pros think their 2½-minute free-skating routine could be their ticket to Edmonton.

Skating begins at noon Friday, continuing until 10 p.m. Saturday, the sectionals run from 8 a.m. through to 10 at night, with Sunday's day-long competition winding up with presentations at 6 p.m.

Patsy Jean Allore and Michael Fitzgibbon -- Belleville's Hopes on Ice

Leading the Quinte Figure Skating Club's 11-entry contingent to this weekend's Eastern Ontario Sectional Figure Skating Championships will be Patsy Jean Allore, 17, and 19-year-old Michael Fitzgibbon. Competing in Junior Pairs, the Belleville duo will be among 105 entrants vying for trips to Edmonton for the Canadian Figure Skating Championships Jan. 29 - 31. Nearly 40 Eastern Ontario figure skating clubs will be represented at this weekend's competition, to be staged at Trenton's Community Gardens. The Belleville pair are seen practising the two-and-a-half-minute free-skating routine chosen by Quinte pros Bonnie Boundy and Gordan Crossland for the competition.

Golden Hawks Given Bird

COBOURG (Special) — The cats came back last night and as a result, a gross of Hawks were given the bird.

Outplayed badly by the Trenton Golden Hawks in a 5-3 Eastern Ontario Junior B loss Friday night, the Cobourg Cougars rebounded to hand Trenton a 10-2 pasting.

As a result of the win, the Cougars find themselves alone in fourth place, two points ahead of Trenton and Belleville. The Trenton team has a game in hand however over the two other fourth - place contenders.

Ahead 1-0 at the end of the first period on Pete Ulman's tally Trenton saw the opposition connect for four goals in the second period and six more in the final.

Randy MacGregor had a four goal night for Cobourg. Garry Hart hit for two, with Kelly, Watson, Lunn and Sherwin - getting the others. Stonebury scored the second Trenton goal, in the middle period.

Trenton's next game is at home Friday night, when they take on the third - place Peterborough Don Byes.

Central Keeps Up With Belvedere

Central Taxi failed to gain any Quinte Hockey League ground on the first place Belvedere Hotel last night, despite edging the Aluminum Star entry 2-1. Meanwhile, the Hotelmen maintained their narrow two-point lead by defeating Stinson's Construction 6-3.

Elmer Cain was the top scorer for Belvedere notching a goal and two assists, while Doug Hallam had one of each. The other goals were divided among Bob Ebbert, Larry Stewart, Jack Gilbey and Jack Lucas. Bruce Symons had two goals for Stinsons and Art Deline collected the third.

Central's Doug Bolte was good for a goal and an assist while Andy Prudden scored the winner for the Taximen. Terry Casselman picked up assists on both goals. Ron Post scored the lone goal for Aluminum Stars, who continued their scoring famine.

The Quinte League All-Stars play the Belleville Ellis Juniors in a game on Thursday, Jan. 29, beginning at 8:15.

Mustangs Collar Leaders

The Downtown Merchants who have been winning almost everything in sight in the Gas House League, were presented with a horse-collar by the second place Mustangs who blanked them 2-0 last night.

The win moved the Mustangs to within two points of first place, despite the fact that the Merchans have only lost twice in 11 games.

In the other game Mulroney's Sunoco extended their lease on the league's basement apartment by dropping a 3-1 decision to third - place Marrysville.

Bob Mulvihill had a goal and an assist for the Mustangs, while Jack Garvin scored the other goal. Paul Smith recorded the shutout. The losers drew four of the game's six penalties.

Marrysville got a three-point performance out of Harold Pascoe, on two goals and an assist. Brian McCormick scored once. Mulroney's scorer number 8 was not listed.

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian football and baseball teams are possible targets for the expansion-minded Medical Investment Corp. of Minneapolis, says company president Tom Scallen.

"Canada is great for sports and you'll be hearing lots from us," Scallen told a news conference Monday.

His company, better known as Medicor, holds a majority interest in Vancouver Canucks, the organization which now operates in the Western Hockey League and next season will enter a Vancouver team in the National League.

Medicor, which started as a firm leasing medical equipment to doctors, has since become involved in entertainment and sports.

Scallen was here Monday to promote one of his interests, the Ice Follies, but mentioned other sports his company is considering.

"We've bought the Vancouver franchise in the National Hockey League and now we're looking around to buy a football team in Canada. I don't know which one and wouldn't name the clubs we're interested in."

Canadian Skiing Lacks Dedication

HALIFAX (CP) — Canada has never been a big threat to the established powers in men's events in the skiing world because it does not take the sport seriously enough, says Roland Brunner, Nova Scotia's first professional ski racing coach.

Brunner, a 28-year-old native of Constance, Germany, received a Canadian Ski Instructors teaching certificate this year and now is coach of the Nova Scotia zone for the Canadian Amateur Ski Association.

"It seems here in Canada that skiing isn't taken as seriously as in Europe," he said in an interview. "In France and Switzerland, for example, skiing is big business much the same as politics is in Canada.

"European coaches are concerned with the skiing situation and in fact many coaches in Europe know more about what is going on in skiing here than some Canadians do."

Brunner said he has been skiing for 24 years and has visited some of the best skiing areas in the world. He has trained with the national teams of France, Austria, Switzerland and Italy and last season worked out with the Canadian team.

"European national teams train almost on a full-time basis," he said. "To be in top condition a racer must ski at least 200 days of the year."

The coach said many of his colleagues in Western Canada found it amusing when he told them he intended to work in Nova Scotia.

"There is far more interest and drive here in the East than there is in the West."

Sheep unchanged.

Lambs unchanged.

Hogs unchanged.

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange fell sharply in light mid-morning trading today as they moved into their seventh successive week-end session.

On index, industrials dropped .87 to 180.56, golds .52 to 160.95, base metals .45 to 116.26 and western oils .42 to 206.41.

Banks led the industrial decline with Canadian Imperial off ⅛ to 20%, Montreal ⅛ to 15¾, Nova Scotia ¼ to 21¼, and Toronto Dominion ¼ to 22¾.

Copper producers were weak. Inco lost 1⅛ to 44¼, Lake Dufault ⅛ to 15¾, Opemiska ⅛ to 13½, Mattagami ⅛ to 28¾ and Sherritt ¼ to 18½.

Observers attributed weakness in both groups to published reports that chartered banks have agreed to roll back recent interest rate increases for consumer loans and that copper firms have agreed to suspend temporarily a recent 16 per cent price increase.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 729,000 shares compared with 925,000 at the same time Monday.

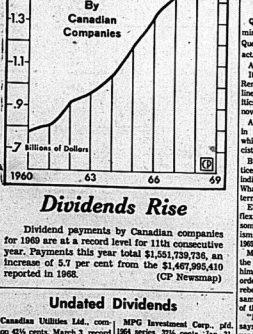
On index, industrials were down 1.59 to 181.43, western oils 3.13 to 206.83 and base metals .09 to 116.71. Golds gained 2.24 to 161.47.



Volume was 2,553,000 shares compared with 3,220,000 at the same time Friday.

Sixteen of the 17 industrial components were lower; construction and material issues were unchanged. Banks and industrial mines led the decline.

Among banks, Royal lost ¼ to 21¾, Canadian Imperial ⅛ to 21¼, Toronto Dominion ¼ to 22¼ and Nova Scotia ¼ to 21¼. In industrial mines, Dominion lost 1 to 37¼, Inco ¼ to 44¼, Mattagami Lake ⅛ to 29¼ and Noranda ¼ to 35¾.

Placer gained ⅛ to 47, Canadian Exploration Ltd., Placer's subsidiary, will spend about since his disappearance.

Dividends Rise

Dividend payments by Canadian companies for 1969 are at a record level for 11th consecutive year. Payments this year total $1,551,739,736, an increase of 5.7 per cent from the $1,467,995,410 reported in 1968. (CP Newsmap)

Conformity Necessary But--

Remi Paul Stands for Freedom

QUEBEC (CP) — A justice minister by any other name in Quebec, from the viewpoint of activists, is a Remipol.

A Remipol?

And it has also had variations in the form of a music scale which reads: Do Re Mi Fasciste!

But Remi Paul, Quebec justice minister since last July, is indifferent to the name-calling. What he isn't indifferent to is terrorism.

Even then, he speaks with a flexibility and understanding of some people involved in terrorism, on the rise in Quebec in 1969.

Mr. Paul, 48, says that one of the greatest dilemmas facing him is ensuring that law and order prevail in an increasingly rebellious society, while at the same time protecting the rights of the individual.

"Individual freedom," he says, "must not be curtailed beyond measure.

"I say beyond measure, because theoretically, man has all the freedom in the world, yet he is called upon daily to give up a measure of this freedom for the common good of mankind.

"Since man can't live outside society, he must conform to the rules of this society, which in turn must adopt laws that ensure that the weakest in society are not at the mercy of the strongest.

"In a democracy, our laws are made to regulate this individual freedom which, however, must not be completely restricted, because then we would have a police state which I, like 99.5 per cent of the population, am opposed to."

A few months ago, anyone would have sworn that the justice minister was livid with anger when he branded bombplanting terrorists as "cravingly invertebrates who aren't even human and who would sell their mothers."

Mr. Paul has since modified his description of terrorists.

"The majority of terrorists are new Canadians," he says. "Most of them, since they are unemployed and experiencing financial difficulties, are easily recruited and encouraged to do things, the consequences of which they don't always fully appreciate.

"And for fear of retaliation, they are often forced to remain in the group of about 50 hard-core terrorists which make up the brain trust of the movement."

Mr. Paul makes a definite distinction between terrorists — "innately fine people (de bravo gens)" — and terrorists.

"I say . . . that in the case of 20.8 per cent of the Quebec population (6,000,000), you are dealing with good people. A few have strayed and even there, there may be justification.

"Our separatists are not terrorists — they are nationalists. But in this group of nationalists we find terrorists who have infiltrated themselves over the years."

He concedes there are separatists in the Montreal police department and in the Quebec Provincial police, but explains:

"It's not impossible. In a group of 3,000 persons, don't you think there'll be differing opinions? It's not because you have a police force that you automatically have a wall preventing undesirable elements from coming in.

"But it is the exception to the rule. We have every reason to be proud of our police forces."

He is confident that the anti-terrorist squad his department set up from three police forces will successfully end Quebec's terrorist activity.

He is worried, however, about the loss of potential economic investments in the province as a result of terrorist activity.

"Because, under the false pretense of promoting the French culture, terrorists are stunting it by hindering the province's economic development."

Missing Minister In Custody

WINNIPEG (CP) — Rev. Donald Eldon Mimms, 27-year-old Thunder Bay minister sought by police since he disappeared Jan. 3, turned up in Winnipeg Monday night and was taken into custody by police.

In Thunder Bay, Ont., Police Chief Oani Harty said in an interview that Winnipeg police have charged Mr. Mimms with public mischief. He is to appear in court later today.

Police said the Church of Christ minister was picked up by downtown Winnipeg after they received a phone call from him.

Thunder Bay police said earlier two ransom notes demanding $10,000 had been received

Electric Reduction Co. Fined $40,000 for Phosphate Control

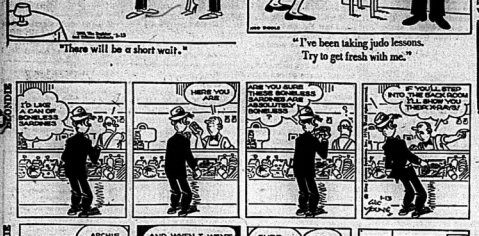
TORONTO (CP) — After pleading guilty to three violations under the Combines Investigation Act, the Electric Reduction Co. of Canada Ltd., Monday was fined $40,000 in the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice Alexander Stark also told the company was prohibited from entering long-term contracts with either customers or suppliers.

Two charges dealt with maintaining a monopoly against the public interest in connection with being the only supplier of industrial phosphates to three detergent manufacturers—Lever Bros., Procter and Gamble and Colgate-Palmolive-Peet.

The third charge of forming a merger to eliminate competition with Erco's 1959 purchase of Dominion Fertilizer Co. Ltd.

Special prosecutor R. J. Macklaier told court Erco paid $200,000 to $300,000 bonus to acquire Dominion Fertilizer and thus eliminate competition.



He said Erco entrenched its position by a series of agreements with suppliers which gave the company almost exclusive rights to raw materials in Canada. This put the company in a favorable position to keep prices just below the delivered price of foreign goods, including tariff and transportation costs, he said.

Mr. Macklaier said 10-year contracts with Procter and Gamble and Lever Bros., which account for 80 per cent of Erco's sales of sodium tripolyphosphates, made it uneconomical for a beginning competitor to enter the market.

Defence counsel J. D. Arnup said the "long-term value of the monopoly is questionable in this light."

He said the soap companies with large buying power are able to look after themselves. He said the other 20 per cent of Erco's customers, small manufacturers, will be the ones to benefit from the court restrictions placed on Erco.

Mr. Arnup predicted Erco will lose $30,000 in profit in a single year from the court ruling.

Research for Have-not Lands Will Cost Canada $30 Million

OTTAWA (CP) — The government promised Monday to sink $30,000,000 over the next five years into high-priority research centre for underdeveloped countries in the next five years.

Dealing in the Commons with the bill to establish the Ottawa-based international development research centre, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said the $30,000,000 is a minimum.

He foresaw eventually "the allocation of five per cent of our total developmental aid funds to the centre," but gave no timetable for reaching the objective.

At current annual aid amounts ($230,000,000), five per cent would put almost $17,000,000 a year into the centre, expected to open in a few months. As the Canadian foreign aid budget advances to $300,000,000—as expected—the five-per-cent formula would give the centre $25,000,000 a year if applied.

If the government sticks to the minimum over the next five years, the annual allotment would be $6,000,000 on an average. Mr. Sharp said one-third of the minimum allotment would go into headquarters operations, the remainder into research projects that are to produce scientific and technological developments for the benefit of underdeveloped countries.

Outside the House, Maurice Strong, director of the federal foreign aid arm, the Canadian international development agency, said the centre will attract to its governing board and staff "some of the great minds of our times."

He could divulge no names yet, but he hoped the centre "will be the natural home of the creative eccentric."

—The chairman and most of the centre's governing board will be Canadian, but some members and some staff will be foreigners including people from less developed countries.

—The centre will operate on a decentralized basis under the guidance of a small headquarters staff which will identify problems and develop programs to solve them.

There may be five or six such programs in the first few years with participation by institutions from underdeveloped countries in all cases.

—Although a Canadian-dominated centre at the outset, it could some day become more international in scope and operation.

—Centre headquarters would likely become a central clearing house for the world for technical data relevant to internation-al development.

Police Boss Surprised Relative Not Charged

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto police superintendent said Monday he had asked fellow officers to allow a relative arrested for impaired driving to go home, but was amazed when he later learned no charges had been laid.

Superintendent Howard Mahaf-fy was testifying at a Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission inquiry into allegations by a former constable that senior officers had intervened to prevent charges being laid in impaired driving cases involving prominent citizens.

Superintendent Mahaffy said he had spoken by telephone to two police stations after his relative-by-marriage, Ralph John Beck, 49, president of a wholesale tobacco firm, was arrested Feb. 24, 1968.

But he denied speaking to the arresting officer, Constable Ian Samuel, or that he had later thanked the constable for not charging Mr. Beck.

The superintendent said he had asked that Mr. Beck be allowed to go home but that he understood his relative would be charged by summons.

He said he did not learn until last October a charge had not been laid.

Inspector Donald Meads, then a sergeant at No. 1 traffic station, told the inquiry he had been present when Constable Samuel brought Mr. Beck to the station. He had ordered that Mr. Beck be taken to No. 11 station because there were no cells at No. 1.

The inspector said he had received a telephone call from Superintendent Mahaffy requesting that Mr. Beck be allowed to go home and that he should be summoned.

The inspector replied that he would ask the arresting officer, Constable Samuel, to call the superintendent. When he did so, Constable Samuel became irritable, but made a telephone call which the inspector did not listen to.

Whether Constable Samuel telephoned Superintendent Mahaffy was not established by testimony.

Sgt. Joseph Latimer told the inquiry a police officer who brought Mr. Beck to No. 11 station had telephoned Superintendent Mahaffy for Mr. Beck.

The sergeant said he was asked to take part in the call, and had told the superintendent that Mr. Beck "didn't look too bad to me."

When the superintendent asked him to release Mr. Beck, he replied that the superintendent would have to contact No. 1 station.

Sgt. Latimer said he released Mr. Beck only after receiving authorization to do so in a telephone call from No. 1 station.

"I could not let him go without that, but I do not know who telephoned me," the sergeant testified.

Nuclear Hydro Station Refuelling Halts Again

TORONTO (CP) — Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. announced Monday it has "indefinitely postponed" an attempt to refuel the 200,000-kilowatt Douglas Point nuclear generating station because of a broken heavy-water line.

Reloading the reactor in the station, built by AECL but operated by Ontario Hydro engineers, is considered essential if the station is to produce power at a price competitive with other types of generating stations.

The refuelling was to have taken place Monday.

It was the second failure in attempts to refuel the reactor while it was on power. The first attempt failed when the refuelling machine jammed on the face of the reactor.

AECL has succeeded several times in changing some of the bundles of uranium rods which fuel the reactor while it was "not"—not operating but with all conditions ready to operate.

The refuelling machine has been used successfully a number of times at AECL's demonstrator reactor in Ottawa.

AECL said in a statement that while repairs are made after the latest incident in the 12-year history of the generating station, power at reduced levels will be produced and fed into Hydro transmission lines.

Ontario Universities Have Lots of Space

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario universities now have more space than they need to accommodate students efficiently, says a report released Monday by the Ontario government's committee on university affairs.

The CUA said its calculations, based on a formula which assigns an optimum numbers of square feet to each student, show that some universities have two or three times as much space per student as do others.

There is an over-all surplus of 1,219,000 square feet among Ontario's 14 provincially-assisted universities, the report says.

North's Highways Being Insulated

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario highways department announced Monday it is stepping up a program to insulate Northern Ontario roadbeds with a plastic foam to prevent the familiar potholes and bumps known as frost heaves.

The foam, first tried in 1966, now is used in the districts of North Bay, New Liskeard, Cochrane, Kenora, Thunder Bay, Sault Ste. Marie and Kingston.

This year, plastic-foam blankets are being built into roads in 103 areas where frost has been a serious maintenance problem, causing cracks and dangerous heaves.

To install the foam, the roadway in an affected area is excavated to a depth of 18 inches. Foam slabs are laid in thicknesses of two to four inches, and compacted granular base tops the insulation just below the paving mix.

To eliminate frost heave by older methods, the roadway had to be excavated to the depth of frost penetration—in the North Bay area an average 68 inches.

Frost heave is caused by a combination of soil that attracts and holds moisture and freezing temperatures.

When the water freezes and expands, it causes the potholes and bumps familiar to motorists in northern areas of the province.

Ban on Pesticide Termed 'Disgrace'

RIDGETOWN, Ont. (CP) — Provincial legislation banning pesticides is a "bloody disgrace" because it is a reaction to pollution charges made by unqualified and irresponsible persons, a federal government pesticide expert said Monday.

Dr. C. R. Harris, head of the soil-pesticide division of the agriculture department in London, said "the people of Canada and Ontario have been given a snow job."

Pesticide pollution is "90 per cent political and 10 per cent actual" he told an audience attending the opening session of Ontario Farmers Week at Ridgetown College of Agricultural Technology.

"I'm sick of listening to ivory tower academics . . . I'm tired of listening to twittering old ladies in conservative clubs . . . and I'm tired of irresponsible union leaders who make absurd claims about pesticides poisoning grapes."

With some of the materials which are being introduced to replace the banned pesticides, Dr. Harris said, "we literally run the risk of sterilizing the environment."

Ridgetown is 12 miles east of Chatham.

Loyola College Quiet As Protesters Leave

MONTREAL (CP) — All is quiet at Loyola College today following the violently random Monday of about 250 students and faculty protesters who had been sitting in at the administration building since last Wednesday.

The demonstrators, who filed out in what one student described as a "funeral procession" while 30 policemen watched from a distance, have vowed to return—but exactly when is not known.

A meeting was tentatively scheduled for noon.

Officials of the Jesuit College called police and read an eviction notice to the students sprawled in sleeping bags and on desks throughout the building.

The administration had announced Sunday that the campus would be closed this week while discussions continued on proposed faculty reductions.

GM MARK OF EXCELLENCE

Skylark is the intermediate-size Buick that more and more people are discovering every day.

Take a glance at some of its features, and you'll soon see why.

Thoughtful details like a radio antenna hidden in the windshield glass, and hidden windshield wipers keep Skylark's lines smooth, clean and uncluttered.

Bias-belted tires, standard on all models, give improved traction during braking, cornering and acceleration; significant increases in tread life; and substantially superior resistance to road hazards.

And with a Skylark's sensible price, you can afford luxury options like an AM/FM radio, a stereo tape player, or even a Four Seasons Air Conditioning unit.

Skylark has so much going for it, it's no wonder Buick owners stay Buick owners . . . they really have found something to believe in.

We intend to keep it that way.

Help of Relief Bodies Is Spurned by Nigeria

No Brutality Seen By Nigerian Troops

LAGOS (CP) — Biafran troops are surrendering by the thousands to federal Nigerian forces advancing through reclaimed secessionist territory, Nigerian officials said today.

Latest official estimates in the Nigerian capital said that at least 6,000 Biafrans, mainly from the Ibo tribe, have abandoned their arms and reported to sector commanders of the Nigerian 1st Division.

Federal troops have direct orders from the chief of state, Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon, to observe strictly their code of conduct safeguarding lives and property in the areas they take.

Nine centre have been set up along the River Niger to receive refugees coming out of the areas once held by secessionists.

Travellers back from the war zone said troops were surrendering without difficulty and refugees were pouring out.

They said there were 2,000 prisoners-of-war at Ikot, Ekpene and Port Harcourt and said they saw no signs of mistreatment of Biafran troops or civilians.

The travelers, who asked anonymity, toured much of the southern war sector.

Gowon said Nigerians formerly in secessionist-held territory would be welcomed back to the Nigerian community and there is no question of treating any of them as second-class citizens.

Everyone is assured of equal treatment, he said.

Ibos have a part to play in the reconstruction task ahead and they should not listen to or allow themselves to be carried away by vicious and malicious foreign propaganda intended to smear the image of the federal government, Gowon said.

"I have given them my word of honor."

The Nigerian radio said federal marine commandos have captured the Biafran radio base, but it did not indicate the radio station's exact location.

The commandos have been operating largely through the southern sector of the Biafran enclave but they are believed to have pushed many miles farther north in advances since the secessionist surrender Monday.

Space Agency Purse Slim

WASHINGTON (AP) — After enjoying lavish funds in the 1960s for its exotic forays into space, the U.S. space agency is beginning the 1970s with a purse drawn so tight it can barely whistle.

It won the race with the Russians to reach the moon, and now it is losing out to the national needs of the '70s.

Its already shrunken work force is being cut by 50,000 people. Other curtailments may signal an indefinite delay in sending men to Mars and a slowdown by at least a year in the next big space moves—building a space shuttle and advancecd earth stations.

To save money, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will stretch out its moon landing flights to two a year for the seven flights remaining, skipping 1972 entirely. It will postpone a planned unmanned landing on Mars by at least two years and order no more Saturn V rockets beyond the eight being built or nearing completion.

Administrator Thomas O. Paine announced the cuts Tuesday, saying he is "taking actions to redirect portions of our space program to bring NASA's total operations in line with the budget which we will work with in fiscal 1971."

He did not say how much space agency money President Nixon will request when he submits his budget Jan. 27, but it was obvious the figure will be no more than $3,700,000,000—the lowest in a decade. The total may even go below $3,500,000,000.

With three moon flights in the current fiscal year, NASA's spending will be about $3,600,000,000. down from a high of $5,250,000,000 in 1965.

The number working in NASA programs will decline from 190,000 at the end of fiscal year 1970 to about 160,000 at the end of fiscal year 1971, Paine said.

Last September, while the country still was flushed with the success of the Apollo 11 first landing on the moon, President Nixon received recommendations from his group on space goals.

Agencies Fight Over Control

LAGOS (AP) — Maj. - Gen. Yakubu Gowon, Nigeria's head of state, has scorned the massive rush of international relief offers to get aid to civil war victims.

He has made it clear he wants no help from such relief agencies as Joint Church Aid, which he blames for helping to prolong the war by its aid to the Biafran rebels.

"Let them keep their blood money," he told an interviewer on the government radio. "We don't want their help or assistance. We will do it ourselves."

Other Nigerian officials said the government has all the food it needs, but the problem is getting it to where the war has disrupted communications. They said all efforts to help the hungry must be channelled through government-approved agencies.

The relief effort was threatened by internal bickering.

Sir Adetokunbo Ademola, Nigerian' Red Cross chairman, said his agency would control the distribution of relief supplies. But the government-affiliated National Commission for Rehabilitation challenged his authority, saying it was responsible for receiving and allocating all foreign donations.

But the squabble seemed to be resolved today when Timothy Omobare, said of the commission, said his group "is in charge of determining priority of emergency relief operations, while the Red Cross is in charge of emergency operation."

"We don't trouble them at all.

Military Personnel Are Banned

GENEVA (Reuters) — Nigeria will reject President Nixon's offer of the use of eight cargo planes to fly relief into Biafra, the chief of the Nigerian diplomatic mission here indicated today.

Ambassador Alhaji Solo Kolo also said that Nigeria would not permit UN airstrips in Biafra to be used for relief flights.

Indicating rejection of Nixon's offer, Kolo said the planes are waiting in the United States would not be allowed into Nigeria unless they had civilian crews.

American aid officials already have said that under U.S. regulations only military pilots could fly the big freight planes to Nigeria.

Kolo said that under no circumstances would Nigeria allow any foreign military personnel into the country, even at Lagos International Airport.

Sharp Flayed By MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — It was a trying time Tuesday for anyone in Ottawa involved in the issue of relief for the victims of the Nigerian civil war.

Despite the assurance of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp that the crisis is not so critical as it is said to be, the reports continued that death by starvation is facing hundreds of thousands—if not millions—of Biafran survivors of the war.

Mr. Sharp himself faced caustic criticism in the Commons external affairs committee as he explained why the government feels it must show every confidence in the will and ability of the Nigerian government to meet the threat.

His position wasn't strengthened by a report from Lagos that the Nigerian government will not permit foreign military planes to operate in the country. Nor could he say whether the Nigerian government will even accept offers of international aid for the conquered Biafrans.

On the other hand, members of opposition parties were unable to get around the government position that nothing can be done in Nigeria without the consent of Lagos. "One wonders if there is a recognition by the minister that there has been a war," said David MacDonald (PC—Egmont) as he questioned

Teachers Ask 35 Per Cent Pay Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto's 7,500 high school teachers are asking for a 35-per-cent pay raise for 1970-71 and a voice in determining their working conditions.

A brief containing the teachers' demands has been submitted to the committee of school board chairmen which negotiates for Metro's six school boards.

The teachers are asking that the salary for a beginning teacher with a university degree and one year of professional training be raised to $9,200 a year from $6,800.

They also want a say in determining class sizes, work load, and extra-curricular duties. Also requested are revisions in policies regarding sabbatical leave and time off for professional development.

Negotiations are to resume Thursday.

'The Pill' May Cause Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A researcher told Senate investigators today there is strong reason to believe birth control pills can cause cancer.

"Breast cancer have been induced in at least five different species of animals by treatment with the same synthetic hormones being marketed in the oral contraceptives," said Dr. Hugh Davis of the Johns Hopkins University school of medicine.

Davis told the monopoly subcommittee of the Senate small business committee in prepared testimony that every agent which has been shown to cause cancer in humans also has been shown to cause it in animals.

"There is no reason to presume," he said, "that the single exception . . . will turn out to be oral contraceptives."

He said no woman should take the pill continuously for more than two years.

Berserk Gunman Races Into Homes

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuters) — Squads of police with tracker dogs today hunted a berserk gunman who killed two persons and wounded three others Tuesday night, racing from home to home through rainswept streets to seek out victims.

The gunman first burst into the home of Cesario Cinfio, 50, and his wife Domenica, 50, in the working-class Ingleside district of San Francisco.

Cinfio, was killed, and his wife seriously wounded by the gunfire. She ran into the street screaming.

The gunman then tried to commandeer a car but seemingly changed his mind and shot the occupant in the chest, police said.

The gunman later forced his way into a second home, fired a shot into the ceiling, but left the house when he was surrounded by half a dozen children.

Five blocks further on, he beat on the door of the second floor apartment of Yolanda Daniels, a divorcee with three young children.

One of the children opened the door and the gunman forced the mother into the bedroom, ordering her in undress before raping, stabbing and fatally shooting her, police said.

All the victims were shot with a .38 calibre revolver, police said.

Ice Fishing - - for Information

Drill team is probing Bay of Quinte floor this week, seeking details on its makeup. Tests are preliminary to major waterworks project which sees laying of 36-inch intake pipeline 2,000 feet to city filtration plant.

Tenders Soon on Intake Pipe

The winter's last day of Quintet is being closed for information this week.

Drilling experts are now probing the topography of the Bay bed preliminary to an upcoming major waterworks project.

Now on the books of Belleville's public utilities commission is a new water intake pipe, expected to run 1,500-2,000 feet into the Bay from the city's westend filtration plant.

The project is complicated by the need to protect the 36-inch diameter pipeline from damage.

Since the Bay is a busy waterway in summer there is always the possibility of a boat anchor or passing ship scoring a costly hit on the pipe, says E. L. Burnham, utilities general manager.

Therefore, the pipeline must be protected and plans call for it to be laid two-feet below Bay floor level, he says.

Hence the present tests being run by an Ottawa company from a drilling rig in mid-ice.

The probes will determine the layout of the Bay bed and enable consultants to estimate the cost of the project.

"After that we'll be ready to call tenders on the job," says Mr. Burnham.

Ballet Comes in One Week

The teenager of world ballet comes to Belleville one week from tonight.

Fittingly, for its age-group, its program will have a fresh, vigorous style.

For its 1970 visit to Belleville the National Ballet will present two new works: Ballet in Action, and The Lesson.

The production, in Belleville Collegiate auditorium, will feature such well-known National Ballet members as Nadia Potts, Earl Kraul and Murray Kilgour.

Only 7 years old, the National Ballet has fashioned a glittering international reputation for itself. In a few years it has achieved, as a Danish ballet expert recently pointed out, a standing that has taken other world companies decades, even centuries.

It also injected dynamics new glitter into the Canadian cultural scene, introducing a home-based classical ballet in a country with no such tradition.

Its flourishing success was the major accomplishment of a woman whom Bellevillians will see onstage next week — Celia Franca.

As artistic director, she has fashioned the company's public standing from initial skepticism to present acclaim.

It will include excerpts from two famous ballets — the pas-de-deux from The Nutcracker and the tango from William Walton's Facade.

The Lesson will form the second half of the program.

Protest Too Late

Overhead Services Okay

Residents of West Park Village have lost out in their request that underground electric services be provided for phase 1 of the village subdivision but there is still hope for the north half of Glenarden area.

Several weeks ago a delegation of West Park Village residents appeared before council protesting against the overhead wiring services being installed on new streets north of their homes.

They claimed the overhead wiring would reduce the values of their subdivision properties where electric services are underground.

Council was sympathetic, but indicated it could do little other than write the housing contractor Charles Lambert asking for his consideration.

Council this week received a letter from the Belleville Public Utilities Commission, stating that body, in this case, was in no position to force Mr. Lambert to place the services underground as there was no ruling or bylaw to this effect.

The letter noted, however, that there was a separate subdividers agreement for the north half of the Glenarden subdivision and it was suggested that a clause could be inserted to this agreement requiring that electric distribution circuits be underground.

This, it was suggested, would prevent the same thing happening in the Glenarden subdivision.

The subdivision agreement for the first phase of West Park Village called for underground electric services, but this was not called for in the agreement for phase two.

Committee to Meet Humane Society

Aldermen Ben Corke, Jack Ireland and Mrs. Jean Scott with Mayor J. R. Scott will be a special committee of council to meet with the Quinte Branch of the Ontario Humane Society to negotiate a new contract and iron out any complaints.

And the committee already has one complaint to take up with the Society.

The complaint is contained in a letter to city council from a Wellington woman who says that she bought a dog from the pound only to find out when she got it home that it had distemper. The dog was taken back to be destroyed.

Council directed Monday that the Wellington woman's letter be turned over to the new committee.

City Gets More Beds At Manor

Belleville city council Monday accepted the offer of Hastings county council of additional bed accommodation in Hastings Manor but as a contributor toward the capital costs of the institution feels it should be entitled to a financial statement.

Under the agreement with the county, Belleville is entitled to 71 beds at the Manor. But the county has revised its admission policy and has offered additional bed space for city residents.

Council expressed appreciation for the additional bed space and indicated it would accept any financial responsibility involved. The present per diem rate at the Manor is $2.50 but information from the county was to the effect that this would likely be increased in 1970.

The city will ask for a financial statement regarding Manor operations when this is available.

Car Parking Privileges Expanded

Belleville aldermen are to get full time parking permits — good anywhere, any time in the city and not just for use during city hall meetings.

Last year aldermen were given parking permits good for the city hall area while members were on city business.

But Ald. Gerald Joyce says council members frequently are on city business at places other than city hall.

Mayor J. R. Scott, said he would write the city parking authority asking that the permits for this year be valid city wide.

Bus Routes to Continue To Be Tendered Only

An attempt to write flexibility into the transportation policy of Hastings county board of education was defeated Monday night when trustees decided all school bus contracts must be tendered.

A recommendation by administrators would have given the board the option, in extenuating circumstances, to award a contract by negotiation without recourse to public tender.

But when an operator wants to sell his business; the buses are worthless without the routes," said Donald Williams of Stirling in defence of the recommendation.

A situation in which a school bus operator wanted to sell his business and route contracts had arisen only three times in 15 years with the former Bay of Quinte District High School Board, the trustees said.

However, Milford Waller of Thurlow thought the policy of negotiating a contract with a new owner instead of tendering could lead to abuses in the future.

"You are directing business to another man," he commented.

The motion to permit contract negotiations on bus routes was defeated, and the board will continue to tender on all new contracts.

Nursing Home Plan Supported

Belleville city council has concurred in a Hastings county resolution supporting the extension of Ontario Hospital Services Commission coverage to all approved nursing homes.

The county resolution was passed at the December session of Hastings county council with the request that similar resolutions be passed by Belleville and Trenton.

City Agrees To Sponsor Reception

The city will act as host at a reception in May for participants in the British Empire Games and Weightlifting trials to be held in Belleville.

The Belleville recreation-areas committee has agreed to act as sponsor for the trials, while council will underwrite the costs of a civic reception to the extent of $750.

Council was told that this was the first time for a Dominion championship sports event to be held in Belleville.

Obituaries

MRS. CARMELITA POWELL

Mrs. Carmelita Powell of 113 Union St., Napanee, died Friday in the Kingston General Hospital a few hours after she had been admitted. She was in her 69th year.

Born in North Fredericksburgh, she was the daughter of the late Thomas Bowen, and his wife, who was Mary Bradshaw prior to her marriage. Following her marriage to Thomas Powell, she and her husband lived for a short time in Campbellford before settling in Napanee in the home where they have resided ever since. She was a member of St. Patrick's Church and of the Catholic Women's League. She was a devoted wife and mother, and her interests lay almost entirely in her home, her children, and her home.

Surviving are her husband; her children, all living in Napanee or the area except one: Thomas, R.R. 6; Jack; Mrs. Otto (Marjorie) Kabel; Mrs. Joseph (Ann) Celestini; Norman, Selby; Mrs. Joseph (Mary) Laidlaw; and Marie, Dolores and Michael at home; by 14 grandchildren; by her sister, Mrs. James (Edna) Jaynes of Newburgh and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ray Bowen of Deseronto. She was predeceased by her brother, Ray Bowen, and by her sister, Mrs. Rose (Mabel) Thompson of Napanee.

The funeral service was held in St. Patrick's Church, Monday, Rev. J. J. O'Neil, the parish priest, celebrated the Requiem Mass. The pallbearers were: Mayor Lorne Smart, Councillors Grant Clark, Ernie Marshall and Clyde Woodcock; Dennis O'Connor and Edmund Dowling.

Interment was in St. Patrick's Cemetery.

GREGORY EDGAR DUKE (Tweed)

TWEED — The funeral of Gregory Edgar Duke, 52, proprietor of the Tweedsmuir Hotel, who died suddenly at the hotel on Sunday morning from a heart attack was held from the Bush Funeral Home, Tweed, on Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. Virgil Earle conducted the service in the chapel and also the committal rites, when entombment was made in St. James' cemetery vault with interment in the spring.

The bearers were Fred Rivers, Arthur Cassibo, John Rashotte, Lorne Wilson, Norman Duke and John Aitken.

Mr. Duke was in his 67th year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Duke.

Mr. Duke was a member of St. James' Anglican Church in Tweed. Fraternally he was a member of Mount Dennis Lodge AF and AM, a life member of Toronto Lodge of Perfection and the Chapter of the Rose Croix.

Surviving are his wife, the former Ethel Perkins, one daughter, Mrs. Kenneth (Marion) Little and two grandchildren, Sharon and Greg Little.

Also surviving are three brothers, James Duke, Toronto, Clifford of Northwest Territories and John of Elmvale.

EDWARD STANLEY DAWSON

The funeral for Edward Stanley Dawson was held from the John R. Nash Funeral Home on Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. Virgil Earle conducted the service in the chapel and entombment was in Belleville cemetery vault with interment at Victoria cemetery in the spring.

The honorary bearers were Ted Christopher, Levi Latone, Bert Hughes, David Chambers, Max Peoples, and Carl Shaw. The active bearers were Clinton Rutter, Herbert McCann, Earl Latone, Carl Haynes, Norman Hall and James Arbuckle.

Kiwanis Speaker

Lorne Shewfelt, headmaster of Albert College, brings some facts, aspirations and philosophy of the school to the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

Drug Abuse Discussion In Hillier Jan. 20

WELLINGTON — A discussion of drug use and abuse will be held the evening of Jan. 20 at Hillier Hall.

Sponsored by the Hillier Liberal Association under the chairmanship of Mrs. George Teskey, the evening presentation will feature a film, Youth in a Fix. John Tinlin of Teen Challenge in Toronto will be the guest speaker.

Fielding queries in a question and answer period will be Picton lawyer William Lane and Wellington physician Dr. R. A. Thompson.

The city of Belleville was chosen to act as host more than two years ago, and according to President McCabe, was singled out again because of its "central location."

The federation, which encompasses Sales and Ad Clubs throughout each of the provinces, works for the "good of sound advertising and selling in Canada."

"Members form a cross - section of the community, from businessmen to professionals in every field. Each is interested in ethical advertising and selling", remarked Mr. McCabe. "Our club alone has 150 members", he added.

As part of the federation, each individual member and club is interested in raising and selling, as well as making both more effective tools for business and more useful to the public.

Though not a service club, each member, through a diverse program that is community-motivated, offer opportunities to members and the public to improve their knowledge and abilities.

The best example of what we are doing is the public speaking course we are offering beginning tonight at Moira Secondary," said the club president.

Mr. McCabe explained that Tuesday's meeting will see the discussion of a wide-ranging number of topics, including Finance Minister Benson's White Paper on taxation.

The president related that through discussions of the paper, various recommendations may be made to the minister.

"Much of the agenda concerns the progress of the clubs already in the Federation, and the new ones that are just beginning.

"We also will talk about our annual convention, to be held in Calgary July 6-8.

"The Calgary convention will provide the opportunity for a finest exchange of ideas and information among all the clubs in Canada. In addition to the business session, members will be able to listen to the most qualified speakers in Canada", explained Mr. McCabe.

"The visiting delegates in the city is Tuesday's meeting will also have the opportunity to attend the regular meeting of the Belleville Sales and Ad Club, scheduled for that evening.

"This chance will enable members to see at first hand what is happening to Belleville's Sales and Ad Club, and possibly gather new ideas for their own clubs back home," the president pointed out.

Headmaster: 'We Must Advertise'

More Day Students Would Aid Albert

Lorne Shewfelt, headmaster at Albert College, told The Belleville Kiwanis Club yesterday that the school is often taken for granted because of its long history in Belleville.

"Our main problem at Albert College and Belleville is that we've been here too long," he said.

Mr. Shewfelt addressed the club concerning the college and its old and new role and functions, a topic which he described as "difficult."

With basic opening facts he informed the Kiwanians that the college was a high school and it was residential and co-educational.

He said there were 16 teachers, 32 extra staff members and 128 students. He added that $320,000 was spent annually in Belleville as a result of the college's presence here.

From an educational point of view, he explained some other aspects of Albert.

"We have smaller classes," he said. "The teacher load on individual teachers is much less."

He explained the college's affiliation with the United Church saying that the school was "fairly self-sufficient in this respect."

The school does, however, have a chaplain, one period a week and an occasional interdenominational church service.

Mr. Shewfelt said that the college was supported by fees and other private support such as donations.

But he felt that the school needed more day students from Belleville explaining that Albert College could handle 150 students.

"We must advertise," he said.

And the byword for Albert College will soon be "the world," comes to Albert College.

Mr. Shewfelt said that students at Albert were from all over the world — Denmark, Pakistan, Africa and other countries.

"I would welcome day residential students from Belleville," he said. "They form a different part of the community that is intimate."

He outlined some of the points about the school that he found particularly interesting and attractive.

Mr. Shewfelt mentioned the intimacy between the students and the headmaster, commenting: "this I enjoy."

"I hope to be able to take students out more often," he said, stating his aim to provide afternoon timetables for outings.

"I'd like to have it much freer. I would like to do different things to allow informal mingling between teachers and students."

He found the students at the school had the ability to size and mix even though they were of every color and creed and from all parts of the world.

"They're in a situation where they forget color," he said. "They're working for the unity of the organization. It's a place to get an education and to educate themselves."

"It's not just that place over the hill, but a school with every cross section of young people."

Sales and Ad Representatives Plan Meeting in Belleville

The Belleville Sales and Ad Club has been chosen to act as host to 30 representatives of the Federation of Canadian Advertising and Sales Clubs from across Canada for their third annual meeting, slated next week.

President of the Sales and Ad Club is Jim Coty, Terry McCabe, turned the choice of Belleville as the host city for the meeting was announced.

"We will have the president of the Federation Peter Franklin, here in Belleville, as well as the first vice - president, Keith Garrett," said Mr. McCabe.

New Councillors Are Welcomed By Deseronto's Mayor J. Sharpe

DESERONTO — Mayor James Sharpe's address was brief and to the point. He welcomed the new councillors, gave a resume of the accomplishments of the past year, and looked ahead to 1970 as a year with great promise for Deseronto.

Once the water and sewer systems are completed, there will be nothing to hold Deseronto back, he declared. But, also important, is the wisdom shown by council, and its use every means to entice industry and housing to our community," he declared.

"Every businessman knows that to make money we must spend money. We are responsible for the business of this town, and so must not hesitate to invest money if it will bring good returns. But we must never forget that it is the money of the taxpayer that we are handling. We have a responsibility to them."

Among the projects in 1969 of which the mayor is particularly proud, are the new police quarters and the rink which has recently opened. He gave credit to Councillor McCullough and her committee for the former, and to Councillor Layfield and the other members of the community centre board for the latter. With respect to the rink he praised the work done by the many volunteers.

Clock Strikes Again

Belleville's City Hall clock is once again marking off the hours.

But its recent time lapses were due to human failure on the part of its attendants, not mechanical failure of the timepiece itself.

"The clock is in perfect condition," says Jerry O'Connor, city jeweler who has the contract to maintain and repair the clock. "It just needed winding."

Monday at exactly 12:28 p.m. Custodian Bruno Marchiori started the pendulum of the old clock swinging again. It has stopped four or five times since daylight saving ended in October because of failure of city hall staff to wind the time piece.

Complicating the situation at one time was the loss of the key to City Hall tower. The clock wound down while the lock was changed on the tower door.

"The clock has an eight-day movement," Mr. O'Connor says. "That means it must be wound once a week. This involves cranking up two weights — one for time and one for striking."

Honorarium Referred To Budget

The request is for an increase of $250 per member for the three members. The present board received its $600 for the chairman and $400 for members.

The increase must be approved by city council and Monday night a covering letter from the commission was read requesting approval.

Ald. J. A. Ireland, member of last year's commission told council that the duties of commissioners were becoming increasingly onerous and complex with increased numbers of meetings being required. The present remuneration was insufficient to attract good candidates, he said.

Council referred the request to its budget meeting.

Farm Girl

The unconscious humor of the young — even that of a sophisticated 15-year-old like National Farmers' Union Queen for Ontario Nancy McAllister — can be very winning.

Interviewed on such contemporary issues as drugs, student riots and the generation gap, Miss McAllister acknowledged there had always been such a gap, only it was more publicized in the 60s. Then she came up with this gem: "Usually teenagers think that anyone over 30 doesn't know what is happening, but speaking for myself, I haven't had any serious run-ins with the generation gap. My mom's over 30 and I get along perfectly with her."

We are sure though that Nancy herself does not consider her mother's still youthful years too ancient. A dark-haired beauty from Mallorytown, west of Brockville, her academic interests show a bent for the glories of the past as well as an important sphere of natural science — archaeology and oceanography respectively. When a 15-year-old addresses herself to subjects like these you know that age is only relative.

Some other views of this interesting young woman: Drugs — "We've discussed drugs in school and with other teens and from all I've heard, I can't understand why people would take them. I wouldn't want to use drugs myself. It's a coward's way to escape reality and cop out."

Student riots — The students started out to go after what they wanted — they had legitimate complaints. Now it's just a fad. You don't have to tear down a door to get what you want."

Life on the farm — "There is nothing like it. Something's happening all the time — there's never a dull moment.'

Milk prices she feels are one of the major problems facing the Canadian farmer today and she suggests that rather than being responsible for raising prices farmers are working constantly to try to lower them.

A Grade 10 student at Brockville Collegiate, Miss McAllister has a number of speaking engagements scheduled in which she hopes to tell people about modern farming. A member of the school choir, library and drama clubs, and a basketball team player, she is the kind of youngster local teens and organizations might like to invite to Belleville. In March, incidentally, she will represent Ontario in the national contest.

Those Plates

The Department of Transport vehicle slitting outside the licence bureau understandably bore 1970 plates. But after all it was a government auto and . . . well, shucks, what's a little ol' routine matter like that?

To most of us, after Christmas and the New Year, it is a lot — and that same benevolent government does give us until the end of February to make our peace with Queen's Park.

Meanwhile a look around the downtown area reveals a majority of drivers soldiering on with 1969 plates. Of 25 vehicles parked in and around Market Square at one point Tuesday morning, only one sported 1970 plates.

So it goes. Anyway those 1970 plates are not all that interesting to look at.

When the time comes we'll be in line!

'Duke' Moves In

Mayor Jean Drapeau of Montreal is not a man to let a terrorist explosion at his home get him down. Still, he is not taking any chances, as witness the recent addition of a 90-pound bull mastiff, Duke, to his unofficial staff. Mayor Drapeau will soon move back into his home, damaged by a bomb blast last year and anyone with further designs on him, his family or the security of the home will have to reckon with Duke. Montreal's chief citizen likes big dogs and this one has been trained to defend him. We wonder though if Duke (or Duc) will take bilingual commands . . . what if an English-speaking miscreant takes a notion to burgle the place? Probably Duke will attack first and let his master ask questions afterwards.

One of the Boys

President Nixon, right hand raised recently before Santa Fe county clerk William St. John, while registering as a California voter with his wife and daughter Tricia, is reported to have hesitated in deciding his occupation. Then he suggested "government worker." Not "lawyer" or even "president," but just one of the boys as it were, in Washington, D.C!

Nigeria Ends Biafran Insurrection... But

Soviet Aid Affords Moscow New Foothold in Africa

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Vastly outnumbered by better-fed and better-armed federal forces and demoralized by a constant diet of starvation and death, the beleaguered Ibos of Biafra have been ordered by their new commander to surrender, ending a 30-month war whose deep scars may take years to erase.

Political and military observers frequently predicted that the Biafran could never hope to sustain their separation without a great deal of outside help. The fact that it took the federal forces such a long time to crush the secessionists, with the meagre Biafran weaponry, indicated the strength of the Ibos' determination to become independent.

But while Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu accurately estimated the will of his countrymen to fight, he overestimated international support and underestimated the skill of Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon, the federal forces commander, to sustain a long war.

Ojukwu had hoped that large numbers of countries would give him support and recognition. He also had hoped that as the war continued, more tribes within Nigeria would revolt from federal taxation and control, thereby reducing pressure on the Ibos.

But though tribal revolts threatened at times, Gowon showed striking ability to retain control. He obtained large quantities of arms from both Britain and the Soviet Union, as well as other sources.

Just why the Soviet Union decided to back Gowon is the big puzzle. British informants maintain that the Russians, having lost their base of operating in Ghana with the change in leadership, are seeking to build a new base through Nigeria. Having accorded Soviet support, Gowon may have a debt to pay.

Just how he goes about paying it may form part of the next vital chapter in Nigeria's stormy history.

But by far the more urgent task is to rebuild Nigeria itself, to attempt to restore national unity.

With Ojukwu having fled the battlefield and with hunger and starvation still before them, many Ibos undoubtedly will obey the order of their new commander, Maj.-Gen. Philip Effiong, and surrender.

Surrender does not by itself ensure unity. The instinctive reaction of victorious soldiers is to take revenge.

However, international aid efforts are building up to such a point that even Lagos is impressed. With peace in sight, Ibos may get food that could not reach them before.

The next challenge for Gowon is whether he will allow an extensive team of international observers to patrol the former battle area. Their presence would help protect the lives of the Ibos.

Letters to Editor

The Needs of Senior Citizens

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

In one of the issues of your paper last week I noticed the council had decided not to build the addition on the recreation building on Pinnacle street for the Senior Citizens (See Editor's note). They were going to wait until the Health Centre moved out, but we all knew it was too good to be true that we could we just seem to be crowded out. Moreover our member ship has increased to over 200 instead of 153, as mentioned in the paper, and many more have had to quit as they can not climb the stairs.

It is not fair to expect older people to have to do this; as they get on in age their hearts are not too strong. If fire ever broke out it would be impossible for every one to get out.

We are the ones who have paid taxes over the years while everything is done for the young people and sports.

We pay taxes, yet we do not have a place to meet. Other clubs use the same hall and we are only allowed two nights a month. In any event, there is hardly enough room to move around.

I would like to see the Mayor and some of the aldermen come up there when we have a good turnout and see if they don't think they should get us a place on the ground floor; and much larger than we have now.

It is a good central place there and very handy for the older people to catch buses.

They have talked so long about the Health Centre moving out, it just seems an excuse not to build the addition for us. We were pre missed the Salvation Army building on Pinnacle Street when they built their new church, but instead the city rented it to the Theatre Guild so we are still in the same place.

A SENIOR CITIZEN

* * *

EDITOR'S NOTE: We draw Senior Citizen's attention to our report of Jan. 8 which indicated that a Recreation Area committee recommendation for construction of an addition to the recreation centre for use of senior citizens is being held in abeyance.

The report said: "Action on the recommendation will be held in abeyance until it is learned whether there is any possibility that the county health unit now occupying the ground floor of the recreation building would move to other quarters.

"If so the ground floor accommodation could be used for a senior citizens' drop-in centre."

Our information from this meeting is that membership is 153, but this may well vary from time to time.

Snowmobilers
The Few Who Spoil It for the Many

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Snowmobiles are bringing pleasure to many people and enthusiasm for the sport is increasing. The majority of owners and operators are polite and conscientious people who would not dream of committing a deliberate social faux pas. However, there exists also a number of inconsiderate boors who disregard others and inflict their unwanted presence on private property, often driving over small trees and fences as they pass.

The frozen bay surface is ideal for snowmobile races and many owners take advantage of this natural outdoor arena for some fast exciting runs. Most stay well out from shore where the risk of running into groups of skaters is negligible. But, again, a few white eyes areas which have been cleared of snow for use by children as skating rinks.

And nothing is more distracting or frustrating than the buzz of snow vehicles racing about the bay until, in some instances, well after midnight!

Last winter animal life in the bushlands was disturbed by the motors of the snow machines which enabled man to invade the formerly inaccessible areas of Northern woods. Rabbits and deer fell prey to a few sadists in snowmobiles who chased them and left them exhausted; easy prey for wolves or dogs.

New forest growth was also destroyed in some bushes, and some departments of lands and forests officials expressed concern over these reports.

Most snowmobilers are ordinary people who observe common courtesies and simply enjoy the new winter sport. Sadly enough, however, it seems inevitable that legislation governing the use of snowmobiles will be necessary to protect society from the few careless and ignorant people who seem determined to spoil the sport for the innocent majority of sportsmen, as well as for themselves.

SPORT ENTHUSIAST

A Citizen's Protest Against High Taxes

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

(Copy of a letter addressed to Finance Minister Benson)

I am deeply alarmed and annoyed at government spending. No government may think that we will be satisfied to retain only 50 per cent of our income, the rest going to a government with little idea of curbing costs, having the responsibility that the county health unit now occupying the ground floor of the recreation building would move to other quarters.

"If so the ground floor accommodation could be used for a senior citizens' drop-in centre."

Our information from this meeting is that membership is 153, but this may well vary from time to time.

It is time the taxpayers, and we feel we pay enough taxes to qualify for that title, began to demand that we pay less by having the irresponsible spending on the government's part.

The Prime Minister's personal expenses are his own business, but certainly should come out of his own pocket.

LORETTA GREEN

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Felice Orsini, Italian revolutionist, attempted to assassinate Napoleon III of France 112 years ago today —In 1858. All three bombs thrown missed the emperor's carriage but killed three bystanders and injured 156 others. Orsini was decided to remove Napoleon as the chief obstacle to Italian unification and independence from Austrian rule, and, when this failed, made a death-cell appeal to his intended victim to take up the Italian cause. Italy was later unified under the king of Piedmont and a constitution was proclaimed in 1871.

1814—Denmark's king ceded Norway to Sweden.

1852—Nineteen men died in an underground gas explosion at the McGregor coal mine in Stellarton, N.S.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1945—British and American forces linked northeast of Ortsheville, western tip of Ardennes salient; nearly 4,000 Allied planes struck at Germany's oil and communications resources and enemy lines of retreat in Belgium; Russian troops shattered enemy's Warsaw-Krakow defence line in Poland.

Ontario's Declining Population

Hamilton Spectator

Rudolph Kugler, an Ontario government economist, believes that the birth control pill could reduce the province's population growth rate to the level of the 1930s. For the last four years, immigration has accounted for more than half the growth.

Such a decline would have profound social and economic effects. The growth rate of which we have been so proud in the last two decades would sag and employment opportunities would diminish.

In the 1930s, when the Great Depression got under way, the natural increase of population in Canada sadly declined, although this country was far better than most in Europe, particularly France where the death rate equalled the birth rate in the mid-1930s.

For years after, the low birth rates of the 1930s had a dulling effect on Canada's growth. According to the 1951 census, the 10-19 year group was only 15.6 per cent of the total population. The 20-24 year group was a mere 7.2 per cent.

In the early 1950s, weddings were relatively few. In these days of crowded campuses and classrooms, it seems unbelievable that in 1954 only 10,000 graduated from Canadian universities.

The Pill and declining immigration could help halve Ontario's growth rate. Would it really be a bad thing?

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 14, 1950.

Despite a miserable rainy night mixed with treacherous walking Bridge Street United Church choir practically filled with hundreds of enthusiastic music lovers who came to hear for the second time within the last eight months, the famous Leslie Bell Singers.

Mrs. Edward E. Falkwell, and daughter, Mary Beth, George St. and Lillian Courneyea, Charles St. have arrived in Florida where they will spend the next few weeks. They travelled via plane from Toronto to Miami.

30 YEARS AGO

January 14, 1940.

Presenting a colorful and brilliant pageant-in-action Picton Arena the Quinte Skating Club of Belleville delighted a large and appreciative audience in a program sponsored by the Picton Juvenile Hockey Club. Twenty-eight members of the Skating Club took part in the program with A. F. Y. Leslie as master-of-ceremonies.

A number of members of the Canadian Concert Association were in Peterborough to see the recital by Argentinita and her Spanish dancers.

40 YEARS AGO

January 14, 1930.

Unless a sudden cold spell develops the present situation is likely to arise through the Moira River flooding. Five days of mild weather broke its winter bonds and has been on a rampage since then. The ice came down over Cooper's Falls and blocked the river between the footbridge and the lower bridge. Some of the residents have placed their stocks which have been stored in the basement, out on the first floor as a precaution to be a real flood. Some basements have six inches to 12 inches covering the floors at present.

50 YEARS AGO

January 14, 1920.

The following officers were elected at a meeting of St. Michael's Athletic Club: Honorary presidents, Rev. Father Killeen and Rev. J. Whalen; president, Dr. Daley; vice-president, Pat Drumm; treasurer, Frank Barrett; secretary, Allan G. Meagher. A hockey team will represent the club in the city hockey league.

Preserving Old Buildings

Brockville Recorder and Times

The on-roomed school house, a 1.udmark throughout Leeds and Grenville counties until a few years ago, is now scarcely recognizable today. The odd one has been torn down and the remainder converted into homes or barns. Now seems to have been preserved for posterity. And that is tragic, we feel.

While schools that date beyond the 19th century are non-existent, we believe, many of the same buildings used by the pioneers still stand. In some parts of Ontario the old schools are very much in demand as city folk who convert them if homes. Many of our old schools have been converted and we cannot recall any that have been restored to their original condition.

We think every municipality, perhaps in co-operation with the provincial government, should make some effort to insure that schools, and churches, of distinctive architecture and historic value, should be preserved.

Port Harcourt, Town in Biafra Region, Ready for Relief Use

From Reuters-AP

Port Harcourt, the major Nigerian coastal town which once was in the hands of the defeated Biafran rebels, will be open for relief shipments once the Nigerian government gives the go-ahead, Reuters news agency said it learned today.

Paul Edwards, United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) spokesman, told a news conference at UN headquarters in New York that a cable from the UNICEF representative in Lagos, the Nigerian capital, indicated that the port was now available for relief shipments.

The representative, Pol Larsson, also said the Nigerian government is asking for strict coordination among the various relief organizations to prevent the country's ports and road outlets from being swamped by supplies.

Larsson also asked that UNICEF send its supplies to Port Harcourt instead of the Portuguese island of Sao Tome, which has been the main assembly point for relief supplies.

Relief flights in several countries were standing by waiting for approval from Lagos.

The Canadian Commons unanimously asked its government to urge the Nigerian government to get church relief goods moving immediately into Biafra.

In London, Prime Minister Wilson announced that Britain would give Nigeria £3,000,000 ($13,000,000) for relief work in Biafra. The Lagos government temporarily banned British jet-liner planes from flying into its territory, but it earlier had notified Britain it would accept emergency supplies flown in by civilian aircraft.

Elliot Richardson, U.S. undersecretary of state, said in Washington that the United States has put $7,000,000 at the disposal of the Nigerian Red Cross and has informed UNICEF that it has 46 trucks ready to be airlifted to Nigeria.

President Nixon announced Monday that $10,000,000 is available for relief work in Biafra.

In Geneva, the League of Red Cross Societies announced that about 12,000,000 Swiss francs ($3,200,000) had been pledged to it for Nigerian relief operations.

The Netherlands has opened a campaign at The Hague to get food and medical supplies as soon as possible to the Biafrans.

In Paris, visiting President Philibert Tsiranana of the Malagasy Republic said after a meeting with French President Georges Pompidou that his country was ready to supply rice to the Nigerian civil war refugees.

Relief Bodies' Help Spurned

had been promised, far more than could be distributed and stored. Other relief officials said airlifts were unnecessary since peace meant opened roads and ports.

The Red Cross said there were 13,000 tons of food on hand, and that another 10,000 tons would be available within days.

A federal statement warned relief agencies and foreign governments not to violate Nigerian airspace under the guise of aiding Nigerians.

The four-nation team sent to Nigeria to investigate allegations of genocide returned from a four-day visit to the front but would say nothing to reporters.

Canada has two observers with the team.

Reliable sources in Lagos said the observers were believed to have spoken with prisoners in the special compounds and found them in good condition and well-treated although complaining about lack of food.

Another missionary said he saw some looting and fighting over food, but that it was not widespread.

"The Biafran resistance just sort of disintegrated," said the priest.

Even while refugees were streaming toward territory still held by Biafra, he added, "the word was getting back that civilians behind the lines in the southeast sector were being well treated by the Nigerians."

Princess Cecile de Bourbon-Parma, who fled to Europe Saturday after two years of relief work with the Order of Malta, told a different story. She said that widespread killing of Biafrans had been reported from behind the advancing federal lines:

"Last Friday, at Mbaise, I learned from reliable eyewitnesses that a large number of Ibo men were killed and what happened to the women was even worse."

Brandt Ready to Negotiate Peace Pact with East Germany

BONN (Reuters) — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt today proposed negotiations with East Germany on an exchange of declarations renouncing the use of force.

The chancellor made his offer in a State of the Nation address to the Bundestag (lower house).

Brandt said that following the start of talks with Moscow last month on a similar exchange of declarations, his government declared the opening of talks with East Germany to be a practical proposition.

The negotiations, on the basis of equality and non-discrimination, would provide a good framework for a broad exchange of views on all problems of importance in arriving at a settled relationship between the two states, the chancellor said.

In East Berlin today, East Germany accused Brandt's new coalition government of continuing a 20-year-old West German policy of discrimination, blockade and hostility toward its Communist counterpart.

The accusation, published in the newspaper News Deutschland, said "Bonn's policy of attempting to speak for the whole of Germany is the main obstacle toward a regulated neighborliness between East and West Germany."

Brandt's coalition government started confidential talks with the Russians on exchange of mutual-force renunciation and intends to open a similar dialogue with Poland in February.

Brandt told East Germany, which has submitted a draft state treaty which would establish full diplomatic relations between Bonn and East Berlin, that it is no use saying "this is my draft, and only it can be accepted."

In the interest of reaching an agreement, there should be a direct exchange on all problems of concern to both sides before going into details—a procedure that was being followed in the current talks with the Soviet Union, Brandt said.

Brandt said the exchange could start soon. He would make an appropriate proposal to East German Premier Will Stoph.

Helmers To Address Association

The Belleville Downtown Business Association — representing downtown businessmen — holds its annual meeting tonight. Guest speaker at the event in the Hotel Quinte will be Henrik Helmers, associate professor of business at Queen's University.

A graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, Mr. Helmers's academic background includes degrees from Harvard and Michigan universities.

He also is author of several works on U.S. and Canadian economic themes.

Sharp Under Fire in House

Mr. Sharp in the committee meeting.

The committee agreed, to submit a report to the House, urging the government "to continue and strengthen" its representations to the Nigerian government to permit the Joint Church Aid organization to resume relief operations.

The report, accepted unanimously by the Conservatives, recommended that the program be supervised by any agency—such as the Nigerian Red Cross—available in Lagos and that it be continued for as long as the Nigerian government felt necessary.

Meanwhile, four Canadian experts in relief and foreign aid walked to get reservations on a commercial flight to Nigeria to assist in relief operations and report to Ottawa on what is needed.

As announced by Mr. Sharp, they were: Gen. Arthur E. Wrinch of the Canadian Red Cross; Col. T. M. Hall, a defence department expert on transportation; Noble Power, in charge of the African planning division of the Canadian International Development Agency; and Robert Elliott, a former counsellor in the Canadian high commission in Lagos. Another external affairs department official will confer in Washington today about co-ordination of international relief.

Mr. Sharp told the committee the government also had waiting three Canadian Forces Hercules air transports, loaded with food and medical supplies and ready for dispatch to Nigeria. Without permission from Lagos, however, the aircraft remained on the ground and the government had plans ready to move the supplies by chartered jet.

Mr. Sharp maintained the Nigerian government is justly concerned that it should suffer no outside interference as it tries to reconcile its torn country. Furthermore, he did not think there is any indication of "hundreds of thousands dying of starvation within the next few days" as Mr. MacDonald suggested.

"I for one," the minister said, "am inclined to believe the Nigerians and the Nigerian government have just as great an interest in seeing that these people are fed as we have.

"To think otherwise would display a colonial attitude I would have hoped we had lost a long time ago."

Space

It listed three choices, all incorporating development of the space shuttle—an airplane-like craft able to fly into space and return repeatedly—and the advanced space station, to house 100 persons. Two of the options envisaged landing men on Mars in the 1980s. The third left the timetable open.

It was known the president favored a progressive program and the announcement was expected about Christmas.

But following passage of the tax reform bill the president took soundings of the mood of the people, White House sources say, and apparently found going to the moon for more rocks was not of high priority. As a result, there is still a chance he may cut off some moon flights.

Paine said the president may not announce space goals until late winter or early spring, probably to give the White House time for more pulse taking.

Lesage Retires... and Suddenly He Finds He's A Nice Guy

QUEBEC (CP) — People who retire tend to be doomed to praise as great guys.

Suddenly, everybody remembers what a fine fellow you are, how much ability you have and all the good things you've done.

So it is these days with former premier Jean Lesage, who gives up the leadership of the Quebec Liberal party this weekend amid a chorus of praise.

In his own party, there are comments like:

"Jean Lesage is worth more than the three leadership candidates combined."

Even his political opponents say:

"You know, Jean Lesage was probably the best premier Quebec ever had."

In the media, it now is fashionable to look back in fondness at the role Mr. Lesage played as premier from 1960 to 1966.

He is remembered as the father of Quebec's Quiet Revolution, as the man who brought modern government to Quebec in the 1960s.

But Judy LaMarsh once described Mr. Lesage as a Canadian de Gaulle and Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland once accorded him the undoubtable rank of emperor.

If a retiring political leader has any power, it is the power to exercise influence over the choice of a successor.

Mr. Lesage has used this power in favor of Robert Bourassa, the 36-year-old economist he brought into politics in 1966.

There is plenty of second-hand information on why Mr. Lesage would want Mr. Bourassa as his successor. Sources close to the former premier say Mr. Bourassa is the candidate who best offers continuity to the Lesage leadership.

One only has to examine Mr. Lesage's speeches in his Opposition years to note that he ranks economic questions as the priority problem.

Mr. Lesage had turned away from constitutional problems to bread-and-butter talk, which is Mr. Bourassa's forte.

Furthermore, the sources say, Mr. Lesage feels it is time for the Bourassa generation to take over in both the government and public administration.

In this sense, Mr. Lesage is seen as the spiritual father of what he has called "the Quebec society to be invented, the society of our youth."

This Is Fun?

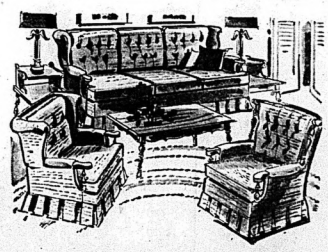
Sentry Box Only For Watchman

OTTAWA (CP) — Those "sentry boxes" the government set up for "security reasons" on the bridge connecting Thorn, Ont., and Temiscaming, Que., are just shelters for night watchmen, Solicitor-General George McIlraith said Tuesday.



Mr. McIlraith was commenting in an interview on a newspaper story Monday which quoted Carl Legault (L—Nipissing) describing the shelters as sentry boxes.

In a North Bay interview, Mr. Legault was also quoted as saying Mr. McIlraith had told him the boxes were being set up for "security reasons," that they had been authorized by the RCMP and that similar boxes would be put up at other "key positions" across Canada.

St. John Ambulance Serves Community in Many Ways

By NANCY BARRIAGE
Women's Reporter

The campaign to recruit new members for the St. John Ambulance got started on Jan. 7 in Belleville.

It would be interesting to note how many people are actually aware of the part to which the St. John Ambulance carries out community service activity. It is a worthy one, most which includes the Trenton and Picton areas as well as the Belleville and district local members. Its function is to get help for the brigade in order that it can carry out its work and run and organize first aid classes. Some funds are received from the United Community Services.

Mr. R. E. Johnson, County Superintendent, explained the work of the brigade. Its members, unlike those of the association, wear uniforms. The brigade includes a men's division — No. 39 ambulance division, nursing divisions, cadets, combined divisions of both men and women in Trenton and Cobourg and a mobile section. These men and women are efficiently trained and volunteer their services upon request at concerts, picnics events, parades and especially the Quinte Exhibition (Belleville Fair) where a first aid hospital post is maintained.

The men's division has been active since 1941. It has 23 members but it is hoped that more people will be found so that there will be less work for the present members.

The mobile section called the Belleville Patrol Patrol, has public relations as well as traffic control at walkathons. Its members are also trained in first aid.

During the past year active public duty hours in and around Belleville totaled 1,243 for the men and 1,462 for the women's division. The men handled 3 patients and the women 300.

The brigade is fundamentally a semi - military unit. At its head is a superintendent. Mr. Johnson, corps superintendent for the Trenton district heads two corps staff officers, a corps surgeon, a major and a corps surgeon, Dr. K. Doughas. The nursing division is headed by superintendent Mrs. H. Arnott and the surgeon is Dr. McSherry. Superintendent of the cadets is Mr. A. Eddy and surgeon is Mayor; Dr. J. Russell Scott. The provincial cadet officer is Mrs. C. D. Ashley.

St. John Ambulance is one of the oldest organizations in the commonwealth, explained Mr. Johnson. It dated back to the first crusade in Jerusalem.

The black uniforms and white cross are symbolic of the Black Knights of Templer, who fought in the Crusades. St. John has been teaching home nursing in Canada for over 70 years. This past fall a home nursing course was set up in Belleville and the instructor was Mrs. R. Petrie. Thirty women took the course. Mrs. Braidwood, secretary, of the association, sees that a course is set up if enough people in the community show an interest. Employees of the Home for Mentally Retarded Children, old folks' homes and nursing homes are required to take the course, which includes eight weeks of two hour lectures as well as practical instruction. They are all given a book on home nursing and a kit from St. John in Toronto. Also donations are made from the hospital and local drug stores.

The members learn how to care for the sick, elderly people, bandaging techniques such as proper splints, how to care for babies, how to make beds, take temperature, treat emergency cases; how to prevent accidents in homes. They also receive lectures on how to deliver a baby. At the completion of the course the members write government exams. They are also tested on their practical work by another registered nurse. A follow up course is offered by the Red Cross. Some go into hospital practical jobs after the course is completed.

Mrs. Petrie said that many gain an insight into the nursing profession and later take it up as a vocation. She herself gains personal satisfaction from teaching and knowing that others will be helped through her instruction.

Another part of the organization is the cadets. They can be divided into three categories — young boys and girls of 8-11 known as juniors; 11-14 year olds and the 14-21 age group known as "crusaders." There are about 25 members at present. Their duties involve being messengers at walkathons, where posts are set up to take care of the injured, baby sitting and assisting at all outdoor events as well as escort duty for the Shriners and providing resting places for older folks at the Quinte Exhibition. They also make puppets for the children in the hospital. All cadets must take a first aid course as well as courses in home nursing, child care and care of animals. All of their work is voluntary.

In July, 1967 Mrs. C. D. Ashley accompanied the Canadian cadets to Wales. They also toured Scotland where they met cadets from the other commonwealth countries.

The St. John Ambulance is an important organization carrying out a necessary service for the community. New members are welcome and will undoubtedly find the work most rewarding.

Feeding Time Again!

Mrs. Ralph Petrie demonstrates the proper feeding method of a baby. She has been the instructor of the home nursing course for the St. John Ambulance organization.

Club Activities

SENIOR CITIZENS

MARMORA — Twenty-two senior citizens met in their club room Wednesday afternoon for their January meeting, with Mrs. Eva Post presiding. Reports of various committees were given, and Mrs. Percy Gordon, nursing convener, stated that twelve quilts had been completed by the senior citizens during the year.

Members will sponsor a card party on Friday evening, January 23, with euchre, games, prizes and lunch.

The regular Wednesday afternoon euchre parties will begin January 14.

COOLING OFF

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Mrs. E. Peiser parked her car in front of her garage. Then the headbrake failed. She watched the car roll down a garden slope, slip neatly through a patch of shrubs and land in the middle of the swimming pool. Mrs. Peiser calls her house "Journey's End."

The Intelligencer Social Activities

River Valley WI Meeting

RIVER VALLEY — Mrs. Harry Morrow was hostess on Thursday, Jan. 8 for the River Valley Women's Institute with an attendance of 25 adults.

Presiding over the program was Mrs. Stanley Irwin. The members responded to a safety rule and Mrs. Ed Kent read an article about the bright side of life.

George Rhynsburger, bylaw enforcer of Stirling village, gave an informative talk on snowmobile safety, several "don'ts" regarding electricity, precautions to be taken in the home and fire prevention information.

He was thanked by Mrs. T. C. Tucker and presented with a gift. During the business period, Mrs. Ray Tucker welcomed four guests and extended a happy new year to all. Twelve people were remembered with Christmas cheer boxes.

Mrs. Austin S. Zoeller, president FWIO, in her letter stated that they were asking the branches for continued support of the 75th anniversary project for the expansion of MacDonald Institute at Guelph.

Plans were made to have a potluck supper at the centre in February. Mrs. Percy MacMullen, friendship link secretary, distributed the individual purse calendars sent from Abbot's Leigh WI in England, for Christmas gifts. She also synopsized the book written by Paul Jennings entitled "The Living Village".

The writer viewed 120 winning scrap books compiled in 1965 to commemorate the golden jubilee of Institute work in England. The national federation sponsored the competition. There are 9,000 branches with 461,000 members and 1,000 historical books were lodged. Mr. Jennings travelled 10,000 miles from county to county. In the book he gives a vivid description of his trip. He copied numerous excerpts from the winning scrap books.

Thanks were expressed to Abbot's Leigh members for individual gifts and the book.

The pennies for friendship were gathered and reports were given.

At the close of the social hour, Mrs. Alex Bush thanked those responsible for hospitality, the program and refreshments.

SOCIALS

Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Joseph Durkin (nee Mary Jayne Doran) was honored at a miscellaneous shower given by the Misses Ann and Pat Durkin; at a kitchen shower given by Miss Myrna Darling with Mrs. William Murray as co-hostess; at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Jody Sager with Miss Marilyn Hurst as co-hostess; at a cup and saucer shower given by Mrs. Raymond McConnell with Mrs. Claude Tucker as co-hostess and at a staff shower given by Miss Sharon O'Leary with Miss Helen Conroy as co-hostess.

Furniture Designer Wins Eedee Award

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto designer Thomas Lamb Monday received the grand Eedee award and a prize of $2,000 for his entry in the 1968 Ontario Furniture Design Awards competition.

Stanley J. Randall, Ontario trade and development minister, was host at the awards presentation and complimented participant designers and manufacturers on the quality of design and workmanship.

Award winners were chosen by an international committee from 83 nominees, originally chosen from over 300 designs entered by 35 designers and 81 manufacturers.

Other winners were:

Michael Baldwin, Waterloo; Moffat and Stewart Ltd., Toronto; Forrest, Bodrug and Associates, Toronto; Goenter G. Sperling, Newmarket, Ont.; Jeffrey Fear, Toronto; David Newman, Locust Hill, Ont.; and Brian Crassfield, Greenwood, Ont.

MR. AND MRS. JOSEPH DURKIN

Durkin – Doran

St. James the Minor Church, Stirling, was the scene of the recent marriage of Mary Jayne Doran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Doran, Stirling and Joseph Edward Durkin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Durkin of R. R. 1, Shannonville. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. Father J. F. McGarvey. Organist was William McArton and Miss Marilyn Hurst was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full - length gown of white lagoda, featuring long sleeves with lace trim and matching lace trim on the edges of her cathedral train. She wore a three - tier shoulder - length bouffant veil falling from a small ring of white lagoda. Her bouquet was white carnations, red roses, holly and mistletoe.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Judy Sager, Belleville, wearing a full - length red silk velvet dress with three - quarter length sleeves. She had a spray of holly and mistletoe in her hair and carried a nosegay of white and red carnations, holly and mistletoe.

Bridesmaids were Miss Pat Durkin, Shannonville, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Myrna Darling, Milton, and Miss Ann Durkin, Shannonville, sister of the bridegroom. They were dressed identically to the matron of honor in dresses of moss green velvet.

Best man was Owen Durkin, brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Ron Durkin, cousin of the bridegroom, Ross Durkin, brother of the bridegroom and Tim Doran, brother of the bride.

For the reception held at Sun Luck Gardens, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a gold metallic dress, a gold hair bow, brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations, red rose and holly and mistletoe.

The bridegroom's mother wore a blue Staron silk jacket - dress with cowl collar fitting over the jacket and navy blue accessories. Her corsage was white carnations, pink rose, holly and mistletoe.

Ballerina Unable to Find Work

TORONTO (CP) — A Hungarian ballerina who has danced with Moscow's Bolshoi Ballet has been unable to find work in Canada since she arrived here a year ago.

Edith Devenyi, 26, studied ballet from the age of six at the Budapest State Ballet Institute where they teach classical ballet, folk dances, acrobatics and drama.

At 16 she danced her first lead in The Nutcracker and that year won a first prize at the International Ballet Competition in Vienna. She danced as a soloist for two years in Budapest before taking a scholarship to study at the Bolshoi.

In January, 1963, she became the first student to dance a leading role in the Bolshoi in The Nutcracker and later in Les Sylphides.

She toured Russia, then went back to Budapest, except for seasons in Paris, Zurich and Salzburg.

Last year she and her husband Erdos, an official at the Hungarian Concert Bureau, left the country because he was under pressure as "a political undesirable."

Of the three major Canadian ballet companies, the Royal Winnipeg Ballet has no room for a new principal. Les Grands Ballets Canadiens in Montreal is temporarily disorganized and the National Ballet is under temporary government "freeze" on spending. It is promoting dancers from its own corps and bringing in guest artists for leading roles.

Moreover Edith Devenyi is a strong, muscular dancer of the traditional East European style, much in contrast to the sleek girls of the National Ballet. And her strictly classical repertoire and training may make it more difficult to adapt to the modernist Western companies.

What is troubling her most of all now is that she has no place to practise.

"Two hours of practice every day is not enough—she needs eight hours," Erdos said.

"Even a principal needs a ballet master to instruct her, and it's not good for her to practise alone."

Successful Living

Marriage Seems to Be Heading for Rocks

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: For the past couple of years our marriage has been getting progressively worse, until I have reached the point where I believe the only reason we stay together is because we have two small children. I feel I am too close to the problem to be able to work it out myself. Besides, it would be all ocesided and my husband is as miserable as I. I cannot sympathize with his misery any longer; I just feel I have to get out.

We have tried to discuss our problems but only ended up quarrelling again. We have several times discussed going to a marriage counselor but have never done anything about it, because we didn't know where to go. I have never been able to discuss my marriage with my family or even a close friend.

Do you thing a family agency would be able to help us? I am not sure that we would qualify because we are not separated and are not on welfare. — Afraid to Sign

Dear Afraid: I'd hate to hazard a guess as to how many couples are struggling along in the same mute misery! Of course you are too close to it all to manage on your own. And so is he.

Not long ago there was no such resource as social work; a skill which can help marriage partners clear the air and begin more satisfactory living. But we have it now; and one horrible hurdle has already been jumped by you: you both know you need help. Far better to get it before separation; and government assistance has nothing to do with it.

Waste no time in getting an appointment with your Family and Children's Services of Hastings County, 311 Front St., Belleville.

Be ready for a sustained period of treatment in which you put all you've got. This didn't happen overnight; and the cure takes time.

• • •

Dear Doris: As a beginning teacher I am much concerned with children. However, I am not too familiar with exceptional children. Can you suggest any reading material on the intellectually gifted child and the speech defective child, with respect to their special needs, abilities and educational requirements? — Beginner

Dear Beginner: The term "exceptional children" is high IQ's and the low, the handicapped, the retarded; all, in fact, who need special understanding and special kinds of help.

The place to write is the Council for Exceptional Children, National Education Association, 1201 - 16th Street N.W. Washington, D.C. 20036, USA. The Council has 1,500 members, parents, teachers, psychologists and others who work with children.

I'm also sending my listing of texts for speech improvement, and can supply leaflets on children with Learning Disabilities and on Mental Handicap.

• • •

Dear Doris: I am on a self-improvement program, and would like your formula for a wrinkle cream for dry skin.

I have been told that witch hazel is very good to use as an astringent and for removing excess cream from the face. A young Japanese girl told me, also, that it is good to put witch hazel in the fridge to make it nice and cold, use it on pledgets of cotton, to be placed on the eyes while resting. I would like to know, however, if you consider it a good astringent.

Your column is terrific. I would not miss it for the world. — Avid Reader

Dear Reader: Witch hazel is a good astringent and the little soaked pads of cotton on the eyes, if given a ten-minute stretch-out, can make a new woman of you. Try it.

• • •

Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents and a large six - cent stamped, self-addressed envelope, unless otherwise specified.

The Experts Say

2,000 Get Lost Every Winter in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — It may sound extreme to say you should take a survival kit with you when you head for the outdoors on a winter day, but about 2,000 people get lost every winter in Ontario. Probably all the other provinces could match the statistic.

Bert Berglund says he has known people to get turned around—and therefore into trouble—on a Sunday afternoon walk in the woods.

Mr. Berglund has been teaching survival courses for 28 years, for the Swedish and Canadian air forces and as a private citizen for the Toronto Anglers' and Hunters' Association.

He says the survival kit he recommends is about two by four by three inches and will fit in a pocket along with a compass and snap and a good pair of sun glasses. It takes only about half an hour in bright snow to suffer snow blindness.

The kit should contain aspirin, adhesive bandages, aluminum foil (for cooking, wrapping, as a reflector for the fire and to signal aircraft searching for you), bouillon cubes, unsweetened chocolate, fish hooks and line, about 25 feet of nylon string (to put up a shelter, repair your clothing), antiseptic of some kind, water purifying tablets and, most important of all, waterproof matches.

"You don't usually need purifying tablets, but it doesn't hurt to have them. You can purify water with household bleach—put two drops of it in a cup of water.

"You can waterproof matches by sealing the box with wax, or by dipping each match head in paraffin. Before you need it, just flip the paraffin off. A paper match is no good; you want a match that will light on anything.

"You should also have a piece of plastic about four by eight feet to make a shelter."

If you do get lost or your car or snowmobile breaks down far from base, Mr. Berglund says, try not to panic.

"A lot depends on the frame of mind you're in. The biggest enemy is panic. It can kill you if you are in a situation where you don't feel at home. Your behavior for the first half hour may determine if you will live. Sit down and think, get used to the thought that you are lost.

"Cold is the biggest enemy after panic. Collect wood, and when you think you have enough, double it. Get a fire going, be as comfortable as you can, then you can survive the first night and re-assess the situation in the morning.

"We recommend that you stay put in most cases. People often don't realize how far they've travelled. They are out trying to walk back and exhaust themselves.

"Don't expose yourself to accidents, either, climbing trees, trying to right a snowmobile or lift a car out.

"And remember, it takes about 10 days to get a full-scale search going."

Mr. Berglund says one of the best things you can do to avoid trouble is to make sure someone knows exactly where you will be and when you should be expected back.

He has a number of incidental tips.

If you are at a resort you should look at a map before you go out, place yourself and take the compass with you.

If you are going ice fishing, carry duba. They are a handle about three inches long with a spike attached. If you fall in, you can dig them into the ice to pull yourself out.

If you are going skiing, carry extra clothing and an extra aluminum ski tip for emergency repair of a broken ski.

And always dress sensibly.

Ann Landers

Guests at Dinner Shocked by Tabby

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last week my husband and I were invited to dinner in the home of new friends. The main course was fish, which I thought rather odd since not everyone likes fish and it wasn't Friday.

ANN LANDERS

Halfway through the dinner a huge grey striped cat appeared out of nowhere and hopped up on the hostess' lap. Quick as a flash, the cat had his face in the plate and he ate every bit of fish. When he finished, he jumped off the woman's lap and raced out of the room. The hostess appeared unconcerned and she didn't say one word to the cat. I was horrified.

Finally, I couldn't keep quiet another minute. I asked, "Does the cat jump on your lap and eat off your plate very often?" She gave me a look that suggested I was an idiot and replied haughtily, "Any doctor will tell you cats are cleaner than people. The chances of Tabby catching something from me are much greater than my catching something from him."

I could not respond since I do not have the facts. Do you? — SHOCKED.

DEAR SHOCKED: The bacterial count varies from human to human and cat to cat. One would have to examine both the hostess and Tabby to determine the possibility of one infecting the other.

Although animals do sometimes carry diseases, physicians agree that as a general rule, a healthy human would not get sick from eating off the same plate with a cat or a dog. A guest who is unaccustomed to the sight, however, might become nauseated or suffer a sudden loss of appetite. In my opinion, the practice is extremely unesthetic and I don't recommend it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I just read the letter signed, "Blood Is Thicker Than Water." The girl's brother had written his wife asking her to meet him at the airport when he returns from Vietnam. He had requested specifically that she come alone and not bring his parents or any other members of the family. The GI's sister was hurt and his parents were crushed.

My story is a little different, but I hope you will print it.

My husband decided to surprise me when he came home from Vietnam. He wrote his parents and asked them to meet him at the airport but he made them promise not to tell. They agreed. Can you imagine how I felt when I entered his parent's living room and saw the entire family — aunts, uncles, cousins, friends and neighbors — and then Joe walked in! What should have been the happiest experience of my life turned out to be a nightmare. After dreaming of our reunion for months, and counting the days, I had to share that precious moment with a pack of relatives!

I don't think I'll ever get over it. I hope you will print this letter, Ann. It might spare another GI's wife from going through the same thing. — LAST TO KNOW.

DEAR LAST: Your letter is a fine example of how good intentions can go haywire because someone didn't use his head. A husband's homecoming should not be used as a parlor trick.

Thank your lucky stars that he did come home and forget about the rest. About 31,000 American wives would give anything to change places with you.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Who ate most of the roast? I was planning to have it for dinner tonight."

Son: "Jim and I were hungry after school so we had a couple of sandwiches. I thought it was there for us to eat."

Have an understanding with teen-agers — and perhaps with Father, too — if you want to save leftovers for future meals.

Mother: "I'll put snack food on this second shelf. Please don't eat things I have wrapped in plastic on the other shelves. I plan to use them for meals. The fruit on the table is for you to eat also."

U.C.W. Meetings

SPRINGBROOK UCW

The regular meeting of the Springbrook United Church Women was held Thursday, Jan. 8 in Springbrook Manse with a good attendance.

Opening the meeting was the president, Mrs. Williams. She thanked the hostesses and women responsible for the program and read a paper entitled "We are not a bunch of competing super markets." Christ must be discovered outside of the church as much as possible."

Mrs. Murney Mason prepared the worship, choosing "responsibility" is keeping with the new executive which will be starting its term-Mrs. Jos Thompson showed a film illustrating how Christianity was brought to the Indians and settlers of our country. Mrs. McFaul, Mrs. Bill McKeown and Mrs. Fleming all had readings.

In charge of installing the new executive was Mrs. Cox. She conducted a worship service. The executive includes past president Mrs. George Williams, president, Mrs. Lorne Bailey, first vice Mrs. Murney Bateman, second vice Mrs. Bill McKeown, secretary, Mrs. Clayton Burkitt, treasurer Mrs. Murney Mason, pianist, Mrs. Harry Haskell. This part of the meeting closed with a reading, "A charge to keep I have," in unison.

The new president took charge and asked the support of all members in the next two years.

In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Murney Mason read the minutes and gave her treasurer's report for the month and the past year.

Thank-you notes were read from Gerald Dunford, Mrs. Mae Sine, Mrs. Clayton Burkitt, Mrs. Emma McCurdy, Mrs. Georgina McIntyre and Mr. Zufelt from Quin-Mo-Lac Camp. The president then closed the meeting.

WEAR THE PANTS

LISBON (AP) — Portuguese women, only recently granted the right to vote, now will be allowed to wear trousers to schools and offices.

WALLBRIDGE

Wallbridge UCW met at the home of Mrs. Ted Evans recently with a fair attendance. It was the final meeting here. Plans were made to unite with other units to meet at Westminster United Church. Afterwards Mrs. Evans served refreshments.

Wallicidge LOBA No. 1168 held its first card party of the new year with 12 tables in play. Following cards lunch was served.

Wallbridge W. I. met at the home of Mrs. Ted Evans recently once again with a good attendance. The lunch committee served refreshments.

Women's Institutes

RIVER VALLEY — River Valley held its first card party recently on Jan. 8 at the River Valley Women's Institute centre with 13 tables in play. The agricultural group was in charge and provided the refreshments.

Two men played cards as women. Prizes for high, second and low were as follows - women's - Douglas Kane. Mrs. Leonard Waterfall and Glenn Bush. Men's - Harry Jeffries, Norman Rosebush and Stephen Bush.

The parties will continue on Friday evenings until the end of March.

Authentic Pumpernickel Recipe

By MARY MOORE

A reader wrote "the recipe I have for pumpernickel is not pumpernickely enough."

So I have made authentic pumpernickel — three loaves and last night the neighbors and I had slices of the bread fresh from the oven with a cup of tea. I am hoping this wonderful bread will be made by every reader of this column. If you are a small family make the three - half batch anyway so you will have one to give away to the neighbors.

PUMPERNICKEL

(3 loaves of the real thing)
2 pkgs. granular yeast
1 cup lukewarm water
1 tsps. sugar
3¼ cups lukewarm water (second amount)
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
½ cup molasses
1 tbsp. margarine
2 cups unseasoned hot mashed potatoes (about 4 — see below)
⅔ cup corn meal
2 tbsps. salt
2 tbsps. caraway seeds (optional)
3 cups unsifted rye flour (usually dark)
1 cup whole bran cereal or all bran
About 9¾ cups unsifted, white flour — all-purpose

Scrub and trim blemishes from four medium-sized potatoes; boil covered in water to cover until tender. Drain, peel and mash until there are no lumps. Measure two cups.

In a very large mixing bowl or clean dishpan soak the yeast and sugar in the one cup lukewarm water for 10 min.

Meanwhile heat together in large pan until lukewarm the 3¼ cups lukewarm water, chocolate, molasses and margarine. Remove from heat, and mix in mashed potatoes, corn meal, salt and caraway seeds. Mix well and stir into risen yeast liquid. Add the rye flour and bran and beat for five min. Add three cups white flour and beat until you have a soft dough — at least 5 min. Now add four more cups white flour, mixing in well, scrape down sides of bowl, cover and let rise at least 1 hr. Sprinkle kneading board with 1 cup of the leftover flour. Turn dough out on it. Sprinkle top with ½ cup of remaining flour and begin kneading surplus flour into dough until it is not sticky. Flour your hands with the remaining measured flour liberally to make kneading possible. As soon as it will hold its shape (you will need all of this flour) and is uniformly kneaded, shape into roll, cut in three pieces. Shape them into small footballs and place in buttered standard loaf pans. I used three Pyrex which gave the outside of the loaves a lovely crust. Let rise under light 1 hr. or until risen 1" above rims of pans. Bake at 350 deg. F.ahr. about 30 min. or until when rapped with knuckles it sounds hollow. Do not overbake.

Club Activities

MILLTOWN BIRTHDAY CLUB

Milltown Birthday Club was held at the home of Doris Sine. Prizes went to Lillian Bennett, Lillie Lafaete, Olive Vance and Leona Hinchey. The next party will be at the home of Grace Merry, Jan. 22.

THE WEDDING RING CLUB

The devotions were given by Kay and John Dowling and each of the four groups provided the program. Larry Brown and Monty Moorcroft, with Bill Lott at the piano led in a sing-song.

The bowling party planned by the social conveners Muriel and Carl Woods was a huge success and enjoyed by all. Refreshments were served in the church parlors after the bowling.

CURES DEFECT

PRAGUE (AP) — Immunity from jealousy is the goal of a group and individual training program opened under Czechoslovak psychiatrists headed by Dr. Miroslav Plzask. The Communist paper Vecerni Praha said that while medical treatment is free here "jealousy is not an illness but a cosmetic defect of the personality," and the fee for a six-session group course is $22.

Well-known Costume Designer Shows Fashions to Public

Miss Head, who has dressed stars in more than 1,000 movies, adapted the new line from clothes she created for Airport.

Wearing an orange brocade dress and jacket, she greeted guests for a dinner at the Pavilion Monday for the New York couture Business Council, Inc. fashion showings. Her skirt was about three inches above the ankle.

"Is it a midi?" she was asked.

"It can't make up its mind," she answered, holding on to her purse, an old hand warmer, once filled with coals on winter nights.

Labelled the Airport Look, her new line is made from trivera, a polyester that is wrinkle-free and able to take on the qualities of fabrics like wool, silk or linen.

Benson Requests Industry to Hold Price Line Until March 1

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced all the authority of his office behind an appeal Tuesday to private industry to forego price increases at least until March 1.

Mr. Benson's authority rests on his ability to convince business leaders it will be in their interests to hold the line on prices.

Mr. Benson told the Commons the government has no legal power to prevent price increases. It could use only its powers of admonition and request.

But so far, this had been enough to convince copper producers, the railways and two chartered banks to roll back recently-announced price and interest rate increases.

The government would reconsider the price freeze at the end of March when the prices and incomes commission should have an indication whether its bid for voluntary restraints will work.

Outside the Commons, Mr. Benson said the government had not been required to make concessions to obtain the rollbacks. The companies involved had agreed to do it in the public interest.

He said the rollbacks were sought at this time because the government felt it would bolster discussions leading to the February federal-provincial conference on inflation.

But Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield told reporters outside the House that Mr. Benson's announcement was only a modest holding action, giving the prices and incomes commission time to get agreement on general voluntary restraints.

Mr. Benson told the Commons the agreement to suspend copper-price and freight-rate increases and higher interest rates by two banks was, in fact, a price rollback.

Some of the higher rates had taken effect Jan. 1; he said, and now are being cut.

Prices affected were:

—A 15-per-cent increase in copper sold by producers for Canadian production. The price went up nine cents a pound to 66 from 57, and now will be returned to 57 cents.

—A request by the railways to raise a wide range of freight rates by up to three per cent, effective Feb. 1, from rates temporarily in effect in December. The December rates were two to six per cent above regular rates previously prevailing. That increase is suspended.

—The Toronto-Dominion Bank and the Bank of Nova Scotia announced higher rates for personal instalment loans, effective Jan. 1. Toronto-Dominion's rate went to 12.8 per cent from 11.8, and Nova Scotia's to a range of 13½ to 13% per cent. Both agreed to cut back.

T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said in the Commons Mr. Benson's proposal was "totally unsatisfactory."

All the increases made by the copper industry during 1969 remained, Mr. Douglas said.

There should be an inquiry into price increases, for example, price boosts in automobiles, steel and oil.

It was "a terrible lie" to suggest that these measures would help consumers obtain all the money needed to purchase the goods and services they produce.

Mr. Stanfield said it is a mystery to him why the government delayed so long in taking action. It had allowed increases in other industries, making it difficult for the prices and incomes commission to achieve results.

The government's monetary and fiscal policies were creating unemployment and would be unacceptable to Canadians.

He said he hopes Mr. Benson's assurances mentions that the government plans a comprehensive program with specific terms.

CRTC Head to Explain Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Stanbury, minister without portfolio, said Tuesday that Pierre Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, will appear before the Commons broadcasting committee, probably Thursday, to explain the CRTC's position on microwave use.

The government could not answer for the commission's recent decision to ban microwave use for importing United States television programs to Canada.

Business Community Backs Government in War on Inflation

TORONTO (CP) — Major sectors of the business community Tuesday announced support, with reservations, for the government's anti-inflation policies but there was no immediate indication of a change in organized labor's hard-line position.

The Canadian Manufacturers Association, Canadian Chamber of Commerce, railways, copper producers and three chartered banks now have promised to try to hold the line on prices and loan charges.

But William Mahoney, Canadian director of the 150,000-member United Steelworkers of America, reiterated labor's belief that wage restraint formulas proposed by the federal prices and incomes commission would only permit the rich to get richer while the poor get poorer.

The Canadian Labor Congress previously had rejected any voluntary wage controls unless the government moves to implement a comprehensive incomes policy restricting profits, prices, rents and other forms of income as well as wages. At the same time, however, it indicated it does not believe such a policy is practical.

Announcement of support from the business community came as Finance Minister E. J. Benson told the Commons he had formally asked private industry to hold the price line at least until March 1—or face strong government disapproval.

His statement followed a series of meetings between business leaders and government ministers and officials which began last week.

Mr. Benson said the businessmen agreed, without concessions from the government, to observe a policy of price restraint until at least March 1, by which time the latter will have been discussed at a federal-provincial premiers' conference.

The Feb. 16-18 conference is expected to be preceded by a meeting in Ottawa of about 200 business and professional men to discuss inflation at the invitation of the prices and incomes commission.

Mr. Mahoney, commenting on the latest developments in the anti-inflation battle, noted that steel and nickel producers recently raised their prices "without a murmur from the government."

Announcement now that increases in copper prices will be deferred "is a piece of hypocrisy," he said.

Mr. Mahoney said the government could fight inflation by imposing an excess profits tax and by removing tariff protection on some commodities to provide price competition.

Specific measures won by the government in the meetings with business leaders include:

1. Agreement by major eastern Canadian copper producers to suspend temporarily a price increase of nine cents a pound, to 65 cents a pound, which was to have been effective Jan. 1.

2. Agreement by the Bank of Nova Scotia and Toronto Dominion Bank to reverse increases in personal instalment loan rates introduced earlier this month. The two banks had raised rates by about one percentage point to levels ranging from 12.8 per cent to 13.8 per cent. Other banks did not follow suit.

3. Agreement by the two major railways to suspend temporarily freight rate increases of about three per cent on selected items. The new rates were to have gone into effect on Feb. 1.

Announcement of these decisions came almost simultaneously with statements of support from the manufacturers' association and Chamber of Commerce, although there were elements of restraint in their words.

The association agreed to recommend that its 7,500-odd members adopt an association version of the prices commission proposals. But under the complicated association version, an increase in prices might be justified where it would not be justified under the commission proposals.

C. F. Wills, president, also noted in a statement to the commission made public in Montreal that the commission proposals recognize that "individual firms, faced with particular circumstances in their respective industries, will make their own decisions."

The Chamber of Commerce, in a statement issued in Montreal, expressed confidence that business would co-operate in the anti-inflation fight but did not agree with the prices commission proposal that it have the power to give advance approval of proposed price changes.

Quebec Old Folks Home Didn't Have Right Permit

NOTRE-DAME-DU-LAC, Que. (CP) — A labor department inspector testified Tuesday that the owner of an old-folks home where 26 persons died in a fire Dec. 2 did not have a permit to care for crippled patients.

Jean-Louis Anderson, 53, the inspector, told a combined coroner and fire commissioner's inquiry that Charles-Eugene Tardif had a licence to look after only three persons who could walk by themselves.

Mr. Tardif, 57, was the owner of Repos du Vieillard, a three-storey wooden house which crumbled into charred ruins in hours. He said his establishment had 64 pensioners who paid $125 a month to live there.

Mr. Anderson told Commissioner Cyrile Delage he had visited the home twice and that Mr. Tardif always met the department's orders and requirements "to the letter."

"My orders were always respected," the inspector said, "but I never knew that the home admitted chronically-ill persons."

Mr. Delage retorted:

"If it is the labor department which issues permits to house old people who are able to walk, isn't it also its role to ensure that there are no cripples there?"

Earlier, Mr. Tardif testified that he knew Louis Chiasson, 64, had been convicted of arson and had served eight months of a two-year sentence.

He described Mr. Chiasson as a resident of the home "just like all the others" but added that he caused certain problems.

"He made advances on female staff and even offered them money to obtain their favors."

Chiasson, who did odd jobs at the house without pay, also got drunk "every three or four months" and liked to show off in front of other patients.

Mr. Chiasson was one of 29 persons who escaped. Thirty-eight were killed, another died later in hospital and one is missing.

All seven staff members escaped.

Cause of the fire has not been determined.

More than 40 other witnesses are expected to testify.

Conservationists Alarmed

Little Known Agency Suddenly in Spotlight

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tiny agency that has worked for years in obscurity trying to keep the Canadian border clear of weeds and heavy undergrowth has found itself part of the growing controversy over environmental control.

For 15 years, the International Joint Commission routinely used chemicals to help clear sections of the border.

Then, last October, Senator Gaylord Nelson (Dem., Wis.) wrote the state department to question the practice of using a chemical he said also is a defoliant in Vietnam.

In his letter Nelson said 800 to 1,000 miles along the border had been sprayed, and although the chemical would not directly harm fish and wildlife, there is an intrusion into the balance of nature.

All of a sudden, conservationists and other critics discovered the commission—phone and mail business for the six people in the office has been brisk.

In Vermont, where a commission spokesman said no problems were encountered last summer in getting landowners' permission to work the border, a legislator wants a state investigation.

Marie Sheehy, administrative officer for the commission, said from 250 to 300 persons have phoned or written to complain lost "about 98 per cent of them are conservationists who haven't even been to the border to see what we are doing."

Conservationists are jumping to erroneous conclusions on some misinformation circulated about the scope of the project, she said.

Tordon 101, commonly called picloram, is used by the commission on 2.47 square miles in the United States, she added.

Mrs. Sheehy said the chemical is similar to that used as a defoliant "by utility, highway, nursery and agriculture departments in nearly every state."

The mixture of the chemical used by the commission is "suited to the conditions along the border and doesn't kill the berry bushes or grass," she said.

The 20-foot strip along the border—half of it on the Canadian side—"is not a demilitarized zone, it is becoming more parklike because the growth is so low."

"Since the 1925 treaty, we've been maintaining the entire boundary—5,526 miles—and we spray only the extremely wooded areas. We've used department of agriculture-approved chemicals that are widely used commercially for control of undesirable growth.

"We have always taken all precautions—we haven't had years."

Second in Austria

Ski Experts Color Betsy 'Greene'

BADGASTEIN, Austria (AP) — "I loved those two runs although I had a lot of trouble on them," 16-year-old Betsy Clifford of Ottawa said after the slalom race here.

She finished second with runs of 42.32 and 46.90 and a total of one minute, 29.22 seconds, behind Ingrid Lafforgue of France who clocked 1:27.81.

"On the first run, I hit my cheek against a gate pole and later almost lost my ski pole," she said. "On the second I got back on my skis in a gate and I had to make a big effort not to miss the next one. . . ."

Betsy had been third after the first heat. She pushed up by one place in the second.

Her performance drew praise from other competitors.

"She was a real lady fairly strong last year," coach Jean Beranger of the French team said. "This year she is even stronger, we'll be watching her."

The coaches said, however, it was too early to compare Betsy with Nancy Greene, a World Cup champion from Rossland, B.C., now retired from international competition. For one thing, they said she must improve in the downhill.

But the coaches also said that the Canadians always manage to come up with strong girl skiers in alpine skiing, and Betsy followed a tradition which before Nancy included Ann Heggtveit and Lucille Wheeler.

"There is hope that Betsy Clifford can be as good as Nancy Greene by the time of the Olympic Winter Games in 1972."

Betsy Second-best

Betsy Clifford, Canada's top skier, speeds through gate to finish second in the women's slalom skiing in race that counted towards the World Cup. A French skier, Ingrid Lafforgue, was the winner with runs of 42.84 and 44.97. Miss Clifford, a 16-year-old Ottawa girl was clocked in 42.32 and 46.90 for her runs.

Clay Won't Give Plot Away

BOSTON (AP) — Cassius Clay agrees with those who say boxing needs a strong tonic to cure its problems—and he says he knows just the right medicine.

"The real champ must return or the game will die," the dethroned heavyweight titleholder said at a news conference Tuesday.

"Sure boxing needs reviving," he said in answer to that question. "There's no more poetry, no more shuffling, no more predicting rounds. They can't talk and they're ugly."

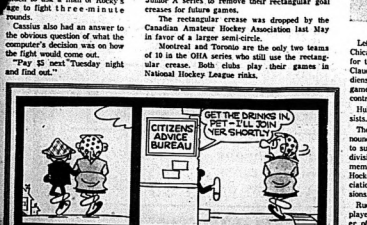
But wouldn't it be tough for him to come back after his three years of enforced absence from the ring due to his difficulties with the draft?

"If I fought Joe Frazier tonight I know I could beat him, even though I haven't fought for three years," he said. "I could beat him just on speed and natural ability."

Clay was in town to promote his computerized "fight" with Rocky Marciano.

"You'll see two real champions—history's greatest—not this homemade champion," he said of the film. "This is the controversial showdown of the battle of champions, the greatest in history."

Clay told the news conference there will be plenty of action—much of it real—in the film.



"We did everything that could happen in a real fight—everything," he said. "One round he'd be coming at me, another I'd be coming at him. Sometimes he would pin me against the ropes and in the corners, other times we fought at long range with me jabbing and hooking."

Clay explained that Marciano, who died in a plane crash last year, "lost 50 pounds and trained for four months" to get ready for the filming of the computerized fight.

He said they boxed 75 one-minute rounds, since it was too much to ask a man of Rocky's age to fight three-minute rounds.

Cassius also had an answer to the obvious question of what the computer's decision was on how the fight would come out.

"Pay $5 next Tuesday night and find out."

Hull Still Sees All-star Action

MONTREAL (CP) — Glenn Hall and Bobby Hull, two National Hockey League stars who have seen little action this year, have been picked to play in the league's 23rd annual all-star game in St. Louis next Tuesday.

Burns Permanent

Charlie Burns' optimism has been rewarded and the 33-year-old National Hockey League veteran now can resume his duties behind the Minnesota North Stars bench knowing his job is as secure as any coach's job can be.

North Stars general manager Wren Blair picked Burns from Pittsburgh Penguins in last summer's intra-league draft and last month installed the veteran centre as assistant coach.

Their association is one of long standing since Burns starred for Whitby, Ont., Dunlops when Blair managed and coached them to the 1958 world championship — the last such championship won by Canada.

When the North Stars play host to St. Louis Blues tonight, Burns will be full-time coach. Blair announced the promotion Tuesday.

Since Burns took over as coach last month, the team has lost two games and tied three. One of the losses was to Philadelphia, which last weekend took over second place in the West Division from Minnesota.

Sports Brief

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association has ordered London Knights of the Junior A series to remove their rectangular goal creases for future games.

The rectangular crease was dropped by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association last May in favor of a larger semi-circle.

Montreal and Toronto are the only two teams of 10 in the OHA series who still use the rectangular crease. Both clubs play their games in National Hockey League rinks.

Scotty Bowman, coach of St. Louis Blues and the West Division all-stars, asked special permission, especially since the game is in St. Louis, to name goalie Hall of the Blues as an added starter, allowing the veteran netminder to play in his 12th all-star game.

Hall has played in only 10 games this season.

BOBBY HULL

Hull has 12 goals and 10 assists.

The two coaches Monday announced their choice of players to supplement the 12 from each division selected earlier, by members of the National Hockey League Writers' Association in the respective divisions.

The 12 players already selected for the East team are: Goaltenders Ed Giacomin of New York and Tony Esposito of Chicago; defencemen Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins, Jacques Laperriere of Montreal and Jim Neilson and Brad Park, both of New York; centres Phil Esposito of Boston and Walt Tkaczuk of New York; right wingers Gordie Howe of Detroit and John McKenzie of Boston; and left wingers John Bucyk of Boston and Jacques Lemaire of Montreal.

The 12 players chosen for the West are: Goaltenders Jacques Plante of St. Louis and Bernie Parent of Philadelphia Flyers; defencemen Al Arbour and Barclay Plager of St. Louis, Carol Vadnais of Oakland and Bob Woytowich of Pittsburgh; centres Phil Goyette and Red Berenson of St. Louis; right wingers Bill Goldsworthy of Minnesota and Frank St. Marseille of St. Louis; and left wingers Ab McDonald of St. Louis and Danny Grant of Minnesota.

Collegians Filling Vacancy?

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says an unofficial North American college hockey championship may be held in Winnipeg in late March to take the place of the cancelled world championship tournament.

The newspaper says two college coaches in the Ottawa area, unidentified, approached officials of Hockey Canada last Thursday with such a proposal and the national team organization expressed interest.

However, the City of Winnipeg and the Manitoba centennial commission have shown only lukewarm interest, the paper says.

Maurice Regimbald of Laurentian University, Sudbury, is quoted as telling The Gazette that the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union may be willing to let member teams play in the tournament.

Want Pros Eligible For Senior Hockey

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) — The Alberta Hockey League will ask the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association for a regulation change to allow professional hockey players to play in senior hockey leagues.

Glen Chapman of Medicine Hat, governor of the Alberta league, said Tuesday he has requested Clint Eisenhut, vice-president Joe Krycska to arrange a meeting with the senior representatives of the CAHA. He also asked that all senior leagues in Canada attend the meeting.

Under Chapman's proposal, Canadian senior clubs could use a specified number of professionals on each team. Each senior league would set up a board to decide where the professional players would be allocated to maintain the strength of the teams. Salaries of professional players would be paid by the sponsoring senior clubs.

Chapman said graduating junior players are sent in professional leagues by National Hockey League clubs who wish to retain them on the protected lists.

Under present CAHA rules, such players are not protected if playing for Canadian senior clubs.

USED BUICKS
A GOOD BUY?

Thirty-five hundred dollars will buy you a fine new car (and Elliott's will be pleased to sell it to you). This amount and in most cases less, will also buy you a fine used Buick. And we must say, in all honesty, that for some people a used Buick is a better buy.

In terms of pure value, a used Buick is almost unbeatable. Styling changes in Buick are subtle, from year to year. So a well cared for Buick can scarcely be told from new. Also, Buicks the last few years carry as standard equipment most of the options for which you pay extra in other car lines. Then, finally, Buicks are built to go 100,000 miles or more without extensive repair work.

Some people can simply never feel happy buying anything but a new car. But if you get distinctive pleasure from owning an automobile that represents the finest workmanship available, the purchase of a used Buick could represent an investment in satisfaction as well as trouble-free motoring.

GMAC terms are available and Elliott's can finance a Used Buick quickly and inexpensively. And down payments are low.

An Elliott Buick costs less than you think. Come out and talk about it.

Things Started Slow

International Hockey's Breakup Only Took Ten Minutes

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Sports Editor

All hockey power in the world was represented in that musty meeting room. It deserves the duty they tore apart the shaky international structure of the game.

For two days the talks were quiet, then in 30 minutes of charge and counter-charge, the whole thing blew up.

And you get the feeling "what in all this got to do with putting the puck into the net?"

It was a setting made for intrigue.

The executive council of the International Ice Hockey Federation met in the Den Bergen Hotel, where a commissionaire guards the door and the vaulted windows look out upon Lake Geneva.

At the head of the table was J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation and head of the European zone.

On his right was Fred Page of Vancouver, a member of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and an IIHF vice-president. To his left, his interpreter droning quietly, was Andre Staravoitov of Russia.

Scattered around the table were delegates from East and West Germany, Switzerland, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Finland, and more Canadians.

One of the Canadians was Charles Hay of Toronto, head of Hockey Canada, an organization which includes representation from the National Hockey League and the NHL players' association.

But the one man whose power and influence had brought them all together was not present. Avery Brundage, 83-year-old czar of the Olympic Games, had spoken, and his word had shaken everyone there.

The IIHF had decided Canada would be allowed to use selected professionals in the world hockey championship. Such professionals, of course, would not be permitted to compete in the 1972 Olympic Games. Nor would any former professionals reinstated into amateur ranks.

But the IIHF had left a loophole. If the International Olympic Committee objected to the way the IIHF was proposing to allow professionals into its tournaments, there would have to be a second look.

The IOC, in the form of correspondence to Ahearne from Brundage, did object. Anyone who played with or against —professionals would find his Olympic eligibility tarnished.

Harry Lindblad of Finland pointed out that it was only through its Olympic affiliation that hockey in his country received any government aid, without which it could not carry on.

Walter Wasservogel of Austria agreed, saying that Olympic participation is the pinnacle of prestige in Europe and far overshadows the annual world championship.

Ahearne said the question of whether to play in the 1970 world championship—with Canada using professionals—was up to the five countries involved with the Canadians —Finland, Sweden, Russia, Czechoslovakia and East Germany.

Canadians shook their heads and muttered that the Finns would vote the way Sweden told them to and that Sweden —as the backup team—stood to profit by $500,000 if the tournament were switched from Canada to Sweden.

Russia, the Canadians said, controlled the votes of East Germany and Czechoslovakia and was a certainty to retain its world championship if Canada were deprived of the use of its pros.

The Canadian delegates were angry but stuck to what they considered their right to stand on the agreement that allowed them to use professionals.

Duff's Days with Habs Appear to Be Numbered

Duff, 33, and a National Hockey League regular since he started with Toronto Maple Leafs in 1953, missed the team's regular workout Monday.

When he showed up for the Tuesday practice he was told by coach Claude Ruel to report to general manager Sam Pollock.

Duff announced his retirement earlier in the season, but he was talked out of the decision by Pollock. After minor surgery he reported to the club Nov. 15.

He last played Dec. 31 against Pittsburgh Penguins, but has not been dressed since that time because he missed a New Year's Day practice.

In all, the Kirkland Lake, Ont., native has appeared in 17 games this season and scored one goal and assisted in one other.

AFL Stars All Subs

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — John Hadl for the west and Mike Taliaferro or Jack Kemp for the East were tabbed Tuesday as the probably starting quarterbacks for Saturday's American Football League all-star game.

Joe Namath of New York and Daryle Lamonica of Oakland had been selected to direct the all-star attacks but both, withdrew with injuries.

Injuries or other problems also eliminated Houston's Pete Beathard from the East squad and knocked Lenny Dawson of Kansas City, Gregg Cook of Cincinnati, and Steve Tensi of Denver out of contention for Lamonica's spot.

Lou Sabes of Denver, coach of the West, said he will start Hadl of San Diego and use Mike Livingston, Dawson's understudy with the pro football champion Kansas City Chiefs as the backup.

George Wilson of Miami, coach of the East, indicated he will alternate Taliaferro of Boston Patriots and Kemp of Buffalo Bills.

Fresh Yankee Wins

MONTREAL (CP) — Fresh Yankee, owned by Duncan MacDonald of Sydney, N.S., Tuesday was declared a winner of one of six achievement awards at the annual meeting of the National Association of Canada Race Tracks.

The six-year-old mare was earlier named Harness Horse of the Year in Canada. In 1969, she boosted her lifetime earnings to $407,076.

No specific rules or fixed categories are set for the awards initiated in 1955 although they are based on Canadian achievement in both thoroughbred and harness racing.

Majestic Prince and owner Frank M. McMahon of Vancouver and Calgary were named in the thoroughbred division.

The Prince was the No. 1 attraction in the thoroughbred racing world for most of 1969—undefeated through the Santa Anita Derby, Kentucky Derby and the Preakness, before bowing to Arts and Letters in the Belmont Stakes.

The 12-year-old steeplechaser, Highland Wedding, and co-owner Charles F. W. Burns of Toronto were honored for winning the Grand National last March.

The Canadian two-year-old Trotter of the Year, Crimson Duchess, owned by Dr. John S. Findley of Arnprior, Ont., also received an award.

Thoroughbred Tudor Queen, owned by John H. Stafford of Toronto, received an award. The two-year-old filly was named North American champion by several racing publications late in 1969.

Mo-Hawks Getting Out of Town!

By MAURICE SWITZER
Staff Reporter

Belleville Mo - Hawks are getting out of town, but not to wait until the "heat is off."

As a matter of hard hockey fact, the temperature is just beginning to rise as the Mo-Hawks head out of town for a pair of weekend road games in Galt and Oakville.

Playing-coach Davey Jones learned this week that the club will have to wage their battle for third place in the OHA Senior A standings for the next two weeks without the steady defence services of Wayne "Wedner" Brown.

Brown suffered a slight concussion in Friday's 8-4 home win over Barrie, and didn't come out for the third period. He also missed Sunday's 6-5 loss in Owen Sound.

With Brown out and Lou Kaszweski's back still acting up, Jones can only count on healthy blades from Lionel Bolly and Greg Marchen as the Mo-Hawks welcome the second-place Nemets back from their European tour Saturday night.

Sunday night in Oakville, the Mo-Hawks will try for their first win of the season against the Oaks, one of the teams jamming the middle four positions in the eight-team senior league.

A 6-5 road loss and a 3-0 home setback have resulted in meetings with the Oaks, who sport the services of league-leading scorer Jim "Spike" O'Brien (29 goals, 24 assists).

Surprisingly, the Mo-Hawks have enjoyed more than their share of success against the defending Allan Cup Champion Hornets.

They have 4-3 (in overtime) and 4-2 wins and a 3-3 tie to their credit, against a 7-4 loss in Galt.

"It was a rotten time to lose "Wetner"; said Jones. "After this weekend, four of our next five games were home, and he's been available for practically all of our home games this year."

Jones added he was continuing negotiations this week for the services of a defenceman with 10 years of pro hockey experience to help bolster the Mo-Hawks with playoffs only 12 games away.

Meanwhile, "rookie" Lorne Ferguson will probably see his first Mo-Hawk action in Tuesday night's 8:30 Memorial Arena encounter with Kingston Aces, Jones said.

Ferguson, an eight - year National Hockey League veteran with Boston, Detroit, and Chicago, impressed Jones in last night's weekly club practice session.

"Lorney snapped a couple past Steve Reze in the scrimmage before he knew what hit him," chuckled Jones. "He knows what to do with that puck. Besides, he's big, and that should help our checking in and game."

Jones said he has not decided definitely how to work Ferguson into the lineup. One possibility would be to play him right wing to Billy Armour and Ralph Plaus, another on the right side of Jones and rookie left - winger Ray Johnston.

Whatever they net from their weekend road jaunt, the Mo - Hawks intend to leave no doubt about the outcome of Tuesday's home square - off with Kingston.

They have lost their last three meetings with the Aces after taking the first three decisions of the schedule, the last a 10-3 injury-shetted humiliation in Kingston.

Tuesday night's "rubber match promises to be everything but good clean fun.

Juniors Inconsistent

Inconsistency continues to haunt the Belleville Ellis Juniors and the Trenton Golden Hawks in their battle with Cobourg for the remaining play-off spot in the Eastern Ontario Junior B League.

Play of the two teams varies widely from game to game, and even from period to period, and they have more ups and downs than the Coney Island roller coaster.

At the present time they are tied in fifth place, five points behind the Cobourg Cougars.

One of the major problems shared by both clubs is keeping opposing clubs off the scoreboard. Trenton goalies have been bombed for a goals-against average of 6.12, while Belleville's is three points higher.

At the other end of the ice, Belleville has 16 more goals than Trenton and two scorers in the league's top ten. Both Terry Meagher and John McConnell picked up a point in Sunday's game with Peterborough. Meagher now has 27 points, including 16 goals, and McConnell 29 points.

Trenton has been stymied by erratic shooting and failure to cash in their scoring chances in their last two games.

The 52 shots they've blasted at opposing goalies have resulted in only six goals in their last two games. Another goal went into an empty Cobourg net.

Belleville's next game is Friday night against second - place Kingston, whom they defeated 3-2 in their last meeting in Belleville.

The Trenton - Peterborough contest has been moved from Friday to Sunday night at 8:00 p.m., because of the Eastern Ontario figure skating championships being held in Trenton's Community Gardens.

Moira's Rob Ralston and Greg Brown of Trenton battle for control of the boards in the senior contest of a high school basketball triple - header played at Trenton last night. The Trojans used a 26-point third quarter to move to a 62-45 victory.

Nobody Plays 'Homer' In School Basketball

Belleville schools may decide to give up home games permanently, if last night's Bay of Quinte basketball action was any indication of the success they enjoy on the road.

BCI swept three games from Centre Hastings, in Madoc, while the Moira Trojans were taking two out of three at Trenton.

The senior Collegians had three scorers in the twenties as they coasted to an easy 72-49 victory over Centre Hastings. Mike Scarlett hooped 22 points for BCI, with Dave Wright getting 21 and Jim Wright 20.

The BCI juniors stayed four points back of Moira, while maintaining a game in hand, as they swamped Madoc 65-8. Bob Woodley had 13 points to lead the scoring and was followed closely by Jeff Morton (13), Larry Burnett (12) and Al Gallupe (11). Lees had four points for Madoc.

The midgets kept pace with the seniors, recording their seventh straight victory by dropping their Madoc counterparts 76-28. Rick Donovan had 19 points and Keith Watson 18 for Belleville. Dick Price scored 14 in a losing cause.

Moira seniors came back from a 39-38 third-quarter deficit to win 62-45 in a game that often closely resembled English rugger. Dave Thomson had 22 points to lead the Tropans, with nine of them coming in the final quarter. Martin Wormald had 18 and Rob Ralston counted 11 points.

Spiro Dandias was best for Trenton with 18 points and Greg Brown hit for 10 more.

The Moira Juniors stayed out in front by virtue of their 40-25 win. They hit for 23 of their points in the second half to open up the 15 point margin of victory, after Trenton trailed by only three after two quarters.

The Trenton midgets parlayed a tough man - to - man press and a distinct height advantage into a 38-32 victory. Garrett had 11 points and Belfall 9 for the winners. John Olivson was high for Moira with 13 points.

No Generation Gap Among Figure Skaters

Actually, the centenarian is the Quinte Figure Skating Club's team of Lillian Sprackett and Joe Calberry, who are 100-years-old plus and will compete in Sunday's Veterans Dance segment of the three-day sectionals at Trenton Community Gardens.

Miss Alore will team with 14-year-old Ian Hayman for two minutes of free skating in the novice pairs competition.

In all, 11 Quinte Figure Skating Club members and two from the host Trenton club are included in the 105-skater field, some of whom will be selected by the 15 world-calibre judges as eligible for the Jan. 29-31 Canadian Championships in Edmonton.

Admission for the competitions — which begin at noon Friday and conclude with presentation ceremonies around 6 p.m. Sunday — is $1 daily, or $3 for the three-day duration.

Winning Goalie Just Allows Nine

Bata weathered the puck barrage best to come out with a 14-9 victory that assured them of at least a second-place tie with Sunderland in the four-team group.

The Braves carried a 7-3 lead into the final period before exploding for seven goals in the last 20 minutes.

Bata's next game is Thursday night when they play at home to first-place Little Britain.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I've had a glorious day of shopping, and now would you like to top it off with one of your hilarious temper tantrums?"

Witness Testifies She Saw Constable Shot

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Witnesses testified Tuesday at the capital murder trial of William Roy Rosik, 22, that the accused shot and killed one policeman and wounded two others before surrendering.

Patricia Bakter, 15, a Sandwich West neighbor of Rosik's, told the Ontario Supreme Court judge and jury she was walking in front of the Rosik residence when the shooting started.

A former baby sitter for the Rosiks, she told the court she heard a conversation between a man, who sounded like Mr. Rosik, and Mrs. Rosik and then there was a shot.

She said Mrs. Rosik ran from the house screaming: "Oh, my God, he's going to kill himself."

The witness said that a few moments later a police cruiser arrived in the driveway, driven by Constable Carrick.

The officer then went to the front door of the Rosik house, talked briefly with a man inside, shouted "wait a minute Bill!" and ran behind the police cruiser before a shot from the house rang out.

"More shooting then followed and then the officer was hit in the head," Miss Baker testified. "He crawled into the cruiser and radioed for help."

Constable Carrick went to the back of the cruiser and was trying to get something from the trunk when he was struck in the chest. Minutes later he was shot in the face, she said.

Miss Baker ended her testimony by saying she had been crouched behind the police cruiser along with Constable Carrick during the shooting.

Cabinet Asked For Regional York Government

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Ontario's municipal affairs department has requested cabinet authorization to draft legislation establishing a regional government for the 800 square miles of York County between Metropolitan Toronto and Lake Simcoe.

The newspaper says that once authorization is given, perhaps at the cabinet's regular weekly meeting today, the department will prepare recommendations for resolving areas of disagreement among the 14 affected municipalities.

These recommendations would provide a basis for final discussions with the municipalities and the drafting of legislation for introduction in the legislature session starting Feb. 24.

Department officials have been trying to obtain agreement among the municipalities since Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough proposed last April that a two-tiered system of regional government be introduced in the county by Jan. 1, 1971.

The newspaper says the two major areas of dispute concern the boundaries of the townships of East Gwillimbury and Whitchurch.

Neither township believes there should be a change in internal boundaries, with one minor exception. The provincial government originally suggested the consolidation of the existing 14 municipalities into six.

Foreign Control Limits Canada's Future Options--Douglas

OTTAWA (CP) — Foreign control of the Canadian economy now has reached alarming proportions and continues virtually unimpeded, New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas said Tuesday.

"As a result, Canada's options for the future are being increasingly closed off," Mr. Douglas said as the Commons debated amendments to the Canada Corporations Act.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin said the proposed amendments would allow the government to intimidate and harass business for political purposes.

Under the bill, all federally-incorporated firms with assets or annual income of $2,000,000 or more would be required to disclose their finances in annual statements.

New loan, trust and insurance companies also would be incorporated under letters patent from the government rather than by special acts of Parliament.

Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) said a licence to operate a consumer loan company in Canada "is like a licence to print money." He cautioned the government against granting such licences to foreign concerns.

Mr. Douglas said foreign control over the Canadian economy had alarmed the former Pearson government and prompted a royal commission investigation.

Yet none of the commission's recommendations had been implemented and the government had made no statement about what it intends.

Meanwhile, the situation worsened.

The commission had reported in 1963 that two-thirds of the Canadian economy was under foreign control. Since then the government had admitted that another 600 corporations under federal control had been bought out by outside corporations.

"This is to say nothing of the hundreds of companies coming under provincial jurisdiction which have also been bought out," Mr. Douglas said.

Mr. Baldwin said that MPs should not assume that because a person is in business, he should be condemned automatically and subjected to unwarranted and unjustified investigation and interference.

That should not be permitted unless a prima facie case can be made," he said.

Eldon Woollams (PC—Calgary North) said he is tired of hearing Canadians talk about American investment as evil. Without it, Western Canada's petroleum industry would be in trouble.

Hees and Trudeau Duel

OTTAWA (CP) — George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) suggested in the Commons Tuesday that perhaps Prime Minister Trudeau should send federal government observer teams to Nigeria in a government Jetstar aircraft.

When Mr. Trudeau replied that the plane would have to refuel in the middle of the Atlantic, Mr. Hees, a former transport minister, said he had bought a Jetstar for the government and he knew "it can make the flight with the proper stops on the way."

Mr. Trudeau cut off the brief exchange by firing back at Mr. Hees: "I do not think it would have to stop if the honorable member went along and breathed into the tank."

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"I'm afraid you'll have to take me back where you picked me up. I don't seem to have any money."

Opposition Will Assault Tax Reform Proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — Political battle lines have been drawn in the Commons finance committee, one of the few places on Parliament Hill where partisan political arguments are rarely heard.

Opposition parties are prepared to mount all-out offensives against Finance Minister E. J. Benson's proposals for tax change, made public last Nov. 7. The committee opens public hearings on the proposals Thursday, and they are expected to go on until early summer.

Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said late in November the government's plan to tax capital gains will make Canadian business more vulnerable to foreign take-overs. He said the government should reveal its plans for reforming excise and sales taxes before pushing income and corporation tax changes through Parliament.

David Lewis, deputy leader of the New Democratic Party, said the income tax system, continuing but raising the levels of personal exemptions, will retain some inequities. Rather than allow basic exemptions, the system should be radically altered to pay credits to taxpayers on substandard incomes.

Neither Mr. Stanfield nor Mr. Lewis is a member of the Commons finance committee, but their party spokesmen on it are expected to follow the same lines of argument.

Some Liberal members of the committee, moreover, have already put forward alternative plans, implying criticism of the proposals set out in Mr. Benson's 95-page white paper.

Robert Kaplan (L—Toronto Don Valley) saw some discouragement for business expansion and called for a system of expansion allowances, giving businessmen accelerated write-offs for capital expenditures on new plants and larger inventories.

The prize for the strangest criticism, however, would seem to have to go to Eldon Woollams (PC—Calgary North), not a committee member, who told the Commons last month Mr. Benson's red-covered booklet of proposals is a Red manifesto, smacking of totalitarianism.

He called Mr. Benson a "small-town bookkeeper," who would not grasp the implications of the tax plan. Mr. Benson is a chartered accountant and, prior to his election in 1962, was an assistant professor of commerce at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont.

Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) criticized the white paper proposals as doing little to help people below the poverty line. According to the Economic Council of Canada, a married couple with two children would require a minimum income of $4,200 a year, but these would still be taxed.

The white paper proposes raising personal exemptions to $1,400 a year from $1,000 for single taxpayers, and to $2,800 from $2,000 a year for married taxpayers. These new exemptions would free from income tax about 750,000 persons now being taxed.

The proposals would make no changes in basic deductions for dependents, but would allow working mothers to deduct baby-sitting expenses from incomes, up to $500 a year per child under 14 or $2,000 a year per family. They would also allow up to $150 a year for the expenses of earning income from employment.

Parole Board Lets Prisoners Plead

KINGSTON (CP) — George Street, chairman of the national parole board, says prisoners applying for parole will be allowed to make personal submissions to a panel of national parole board officials.

He said in an interview Monday the procedure was the first in the board's 11-year history and would begin Wednesday at four Kingston penitentiaries.

Currently, a prisoner applying for parole had his file submitted to the parole board in Ottawa. The file, containing reports from prison and local parole board officials, was used as the sole basis for granting or rejecting an application for parole.

The Brain Centre

Norm Brown, Ontario School for the Deaf television technician, runs test on recently-installed equipment. Console above is sophisticated brain centre for closed-circuit soon to go in operation at the school.

A Centenarian Goes Modern

OSD Prepares for Television Debut

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Despite its great years, the Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville is indulging in contemporary education trends — and doing it better than institutions a fraction its age.

Among other things, the OSD this year is marking its 100th anniversary by breaking into television.

The result, in educational television, is one of the most sophisticated, closed-circuit installations in the province.

"We're just now in the last stages of installation," says Norman Brown, the school's recently-appointed television technician.

When fully operational, the service will include: A studio, with cameras, videotape recorders, a portable videotape camera and one of the most versatile control consoles on the school television circuit.

The production system is loaded with special effects and — apparently can simulate results achieved by professional television.

Televising programs for the deaf presents special problems.

The viewers are deaf or hard of hearing. Written messages are necessary to ensure the theme gets across.

Hence the character generator — the electronic age name for a machine that makes up words for televising on screen or taping.

Straight forward in operation, words are punched on a keyboard for transmission. They may be flashed or rolled on screen, projected over picture transmissions — thus ensuring the programs uninterrupted flow.

The generator also is equipped with a memory bank and can store 1,000 word lines, instantly selected and recalled by touching a button.

The portable videotape camera also adds a further dimension to OSD productions. The tape machine is shoulder-slung, the camera handheld, thus facilitating work in the field.

At present a score of OSD teachers and resident counsellors are undergoing training in production techniques. Because of numbers, the course is divided between the school and Loyalist College television studios.

Already, they have put together one program for closed-circuit.

"It has been highly-praised as a matter of fact," says Mr. Brown, who came out of professional television last May to take a department of education appointment.

For his electronic workshop, the OSD gave Mr. Brown a converted dormitory. Soon, this will be the nerve core of the new venture in electronic education techniques at the school.

And, despite the sophistication of the equipment it may be just a beginning.

"There's no doubt in the world that once we learn how to use it to the best advantage, we're going to find things we need and wish we had," said Mr. Brown.

"There's no doubt that, in the not-too-distant future we are going to have to go into color."

Prince Edward Moves Toward Hiring Industrial Commissioner

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County warden Gordon Lloyd, yesterday predicted that county council's newly-organized industrial and development committee could lead to the employment of an industrial commissioner.

Formed at council's inaugural session this month, the new committee replaced the Prince Edward Industrial and the County Development Committees.

Although Mr. Lloyd does not feel that an industrial commissioner can be hired this year, he looks forward to the day when such a step will be financially possible.

He estimated that county council would be required to budget from $10,000 to $12,000 annually to pay the salary of a full time industrial commissioner.

Mr. Lloyd, also president of the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce, suggested that an industrial commissioner could successfully combine the job of chamber manager with his other duties.

He explained that under a manager's direction the chamber could benefit substantially.

Referring to the Prince Edward chamber's industrial committee, Mr. Lloyd commented that although it operates efficiently; none of its members has professional training.

The University of Waterloo offers instruction courses to chamber members, but the Prince Edward chamber has been financially unable to sponsor a representative.

Mr. Lloyd observed that the industrial committees organized by county council and the chamber of commerce could work together toward their common goal.

Wellington reeve, Douglas Marvin, a member of council's industrial committee is also the county's representative to the chamber of commerce.

He serves, too, on council's airport committee with council's industrial committee member, Allan Ralley.

Although Mr. Lloyd favors co-operation, he does not feel the two committees should merge.

"The Chamber of Commerce should be free to set any committee it wants," he said.

If an industrial commissioner eventually is hired for Prince Edward County, Mr. Lloyd thinks his office should be located in Picton's county buildings.

What insurance would county residents have that Picton would not receive favoritism over other municipalities as an industrial location?

County council is broad enough, Mr. Lloyd remarked, to believe that as long as an industry locates in Prince Edward County, that is all that is important."

Picton OKs DDT Pickup

PICTON — Following provincial legislation banning the use of D.D.T. except by permit, the public works department here has agreed to co-operate with the Ontario department of health in collecting all products including pesticides containing this chemical. Residents have been requested to package all offending products securely on regular trash collection days during January and February. The bundles of tabu goods must be tied separate from household garbage normally picked up on collection days. This service has been implemented to insure safe and proper disposal of all D.D.T. products.

Fire Agreement Still Pending

PICTON — A tentative agreement for fire protection between Picton and the townships of North Marysburg, South Marysburg, Sophiasburg, and Athol, remains under discussion following a special meeting last night.

Attending the meeting were reeves George Foster (Sophiasburg) Keith Brumwell (Athol) Allan Ralley (South Marysburg) and Harold Harrison (North Marysburg).

Reeve Barney Hepburn and deputy reeve Donald Thompson, represented Picton.

Town clerk Andrew Jarvis revealed today that "nothing concrete or conclusive" resulted from the meeting.

He remarked they was discussion concerning certain points of cost.

During the meeting Picton fire chief L. K. Tripp was directed to obtain up-to-date prices of firefighting equipment recommended for purchase in the agreement.

The total cost will be compiled as soon as this information is received.

Four councillors negotiating with Picton will return to township councils once more with the proposal. When the total costs are known, each municipality must decide whether the agreement is financially within its means.

A further joint meeting will be held at Picton fire hall following the township conferences.

Ontario to Expand Homes for Retarded

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Thomas Wells announced Tuesday a new building program to provide more residence space for the mentally retarded with emphasis on Northern and southwestern Ontario.

In an address prepared for delivery to a Toronto group aiding the mentally retarded, Mr. Wells said the building program will give the north and the Hamilton-Niagara ar eas top priority.

A 600- to 500-bed building is also planned for Toronto. Another is to receive a 300-bed residence and a regional centre is planned for Orillia.

"We feel that persons living in the North, who have long distances to travel to residential facilities, have our first priority for new facilities, and those living in the Hamilton-Niagara area who must travel several hundred miles to a residential facility have our next priority," Sudbury has been tentatively selected for a northern facility, he said in an interview, but a site for the Hamilton-Niagara centre is still under consideration.

Mr. Wells said the Orillia program calls for a "drastic reduction" in the population of the present building.

"It will primarily serve as a regional centre for the northern portion of the central Ontario region as well as to provide some special treatment services for the central Ontario area as a whole."

Toronto's centre and the 300-bed building planned at Aurora are to serve younger children who must be near their families and rehabilitated persons about to re-enter the community.

Fighting the Ice

The motor vessel Yankcanuck (foreground) weaves through the ice of the St. Clair River near Sarnia, Ont., during the weekend. The U.S. Coastguard cutter Acacia follows. The Yankcanuck, bound for Windsor, Ont., had been trapped in a heavy ice field for about a week. (CP Photo)

Diphtheria Breaks Out at Red Lake

RED LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Twenty four children and six adults have been placed in isolation at a Mennonite Home in this small community 225 miles northeast of Winnipeg after six cases of diphtheria were diagnosed last month.

Dr. D. F. Playfair, medical officer of health for the district, said in a telephone interview from Kenora Tuesday night that he "would be very surprised if it were not contained at present".

He said the general immunity of the community of 2,500 "is good", and the outbreak "very well contained."

None of the victims of the disease—one adult and five children—is seriously ill, he said, because all have varying degrees of immunity.

He attributed the spread of diphtheria in the home to an incomplete program of diphtheria inoculations received by some of the home's children.

He said many of the children, who are placed at the home by the Children's Aid Society or by parents unable to care for them, come from northern bush communities and have only received one or two diphtheria inoculations. Full immunization requires three inoculations and a subsequent booster.

The six diphtheria patients are receiving drug therapy and until all indications of the disease are negative, no persons will be allowed to enter or leave the home.

Diphtheria is spread by personal contact or by infected material such as eating utensils. It has become rare since mass inoculations against it were introduced in 1928. Toronto reported only one case in 1969, a three-year-old who had not been vaccinated.

Deserted Wife Wins Right to Have Boarder

TORONTO (CP) — A deserted woman with four children who had her welfare payments discontinued when she took a male boarder has had the payments restored with the help of the Canadian Civil Liberties Association.

Alan Borovoy, the association's general counsel, said in an interview Tuesday the settlement would seem to establish that, apart from actual financial transactions, the personal affairs of deserted wives on welfare are no concern of the provincial government.

The unidentified woman had been receiving $220 a month in welfare when she was informed last May the allowance would be discontinued because "from information on file, it would appear you are not living as a single person."

CIA Under Fire

CANBERRA (Reuters) — Australian police moved to protect United States secret service men from angry demonstrators outside Parliament here today as Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew concluded a meeting with Australian cabinet ministers.

A small crowd, carrying anti-Vietnam placards, gathered around the Americans shouting "Go home, CIA."

Airliner Crashes At Samoa

APIA, Samoa (Reuters) — A Polynesian Airlines DC-3 crashed into a lagoon and exploded into flames shortly after taking off from Faleolo Airport here Tuesday, killing all 29 passengers and three crew.

Apart from the two New Zealand pilots, all those killed were Samoans—including a party of 28 from the Grey Lawn Congregational Church, Auckland, returning to New Zealand from a Christmas visit to their homeland.

Four of the dead were children.

Farm Body Control To Shift

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Agriculture moved Tuesday to turn control over to individual member farmers instead of marketing boards and other agricultural organizations.

The proposal by the federation executive, already approved in principle by the marketing boards, would also reduce the role of member county federations, educational farm organizations and co-operatives.

The move would leave the OFA in the hands of farmers who have bought $25 individual memberships, first sold late last year.

The proposal, which would reduce the role of organizations in a five-stage process, must still be approved by the OFA's 80-member organization at a meeting Thursday.

It calls for removal of almost all the education organizations from voting membership as a first step, leaving only a French-speaking group in eastern Ontario to be maintained until a French service is developed.

Eventually, county organizations and individual members are to be integrated.

La Marsh Sued for Libel

Judy States Plaintiff 'Destroyed My Friends'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judy LaMarsh said in court Tuesday that broadcaster Ed Murphy, who has accused her of libel, wrote stories which "destroyed my friends and brought sepia of them to their death."

The former federal cabinet minister was testifying as Mr. Murphy sued her in British Columbia Supreme Court over a statement about him in her 1968 book, Memoirs of a Bird in a Gilded Cage.

At issue in her description, in the hard-cover edition, of Mr. Murphy as a "brash young radio reporter . . . headily detested by most members of the press gallery and members."

Several of Mr. Murphy's colleagues disputed that description of him after it was read into the court records. Asked about it himself Mr. Murphy, 40, said: "I deny that emphatically."

Miss LaMarsh testified: "His friends have told me he is a charming guy. But I know him as a man who wrote stories which destroyed my friends and brought some of them to their death."

She did not explain what she meant but was obviously referring to Mr. Murphy's part in breaking stories of scandals that rocked the Pearson government, in which Miss LaMarsh served, in 1964.

The statement in the book came in a section stating that Mr. Murphy had learned that Maurice Lamontagne, former secretary of state, had obtained furniture (from a Montreal firm) but hadn't paid for it.

Miss LaMarsh said Tuesday that anybody who engages in "that kind of journalism" attracts strong dislike. She also said: "It was my firm opinion that it (the statement) was correct."

Said Mr. Murphy: "I deny that emphatically. I don't think I was detested by the colleagues I worked with for years in Ottawa. I think I am perceptive enough to know if I was heartily detested by the MPs."

Miss LaMarsh said she hardly knew Mr. Murphy. When she wrote her manuscript, his name was not included; she had forgotten it. She saw it in another book, she said, then added it to proofs of her book.

Miss LaMarsh, former health minister and former secretary of state, was asked if she had consulted other members of the press gallery about the statement in her book. She said she hadn't.

At separate times before Chief Justice J. O. Wilson, Mr. Murphy was asked his opinion of Miss LaMarsh and Miss LaMarsh was asked her opinion of Mr. Murphy.

Mr. Murphy, who now has an open-line show on radio station CKWX here, replied:

"I always thought Miss LaMarsh was a very fine person, a very Christian woman. She did once call me a bastard but then she was quite partisan."

Miss LaMarsh said Mr. Murphy was not one of her favorite people. She wouldn't say she disliked him. She didn't give him any consideration, she continued.

"Everything I heard about him in the press gallery was not to his advantage," said Miss LaMarsh. "But he was a man so good at his job that he attracted controversy. When his name was mentioned people didn't like him."

During his testimony, Mr. Murphy said that once in Moncton, N.B., Miss LaMarsh had asked him into her motel bedroom for an interview; he had conducted it sitting on the edge of her bed.

"I almost fell off my chair today when he said I had invited him into my bedroom," Miss LaMarsh said in court later. She added: "I deny it. I have no recollection whatsoever."

McLelland and Stewart Ltd., Toronto publishing house, is named as co-defendant in the suit. Questioned in court, Mr. Murphy said he had not asked the publishers to stop distributing the book.

Miss LaMarsh said Mr. Murphy's name appeared only in the first, hard-cover edition, of which about 35,000 copies were distributed.

"I certainly didn't think it would have offended Mr. Murphy to this degree," she said.

"I could not believe what had been written," said Mr. Murphy. "The long-term effect could be very damaging to me."

Buffalo Brings Down Snow

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — United States government weather researchers said Tuesday the city of Buffalo—the heat it generates and its smokestacks and auto exhaust—plays a role in increasing the amount of snowfall from storms sweeping in off Lake Erie.

Researchers said the city actually is an island of heat that can be as much as 8 degrees warmer than surrounding snow-covered terrain during daylight hours.

The heat and air rise above the city, they said, and rising with them are particles from industry, cars and residential areas—particles that form the nuclei or cores for snowflakes.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

Here's a New Year's resolution that is really a snap — seatbelts. It is a lot easier to take up the seatbelt habit than to give up cigarettes. . . and like giving up cigarettes, it could lengthen your life by years. Seatbelts save lives and reduce injuries in collisions, both at highway and at city speeds. Before you turn the key, do up your seatbelt.

Walking across the street on a flashing green light can get you into a lot of expensive trouble.

Advanced green lights are installed to give drivers a chance to turn at busy intersections — not to give pedestrians a running start on traffic. Until the light turns solid green, pedestrians must stay on the curb except when there is a "walk" — "don't walk" signal, in which case they must obey the signal. If you walk across illegally against a flashing green light you can be tagged with the same fine handed out for walking on a red light. Under the new scale of fines, this can range from $20 to $100. Under the Highway Traffic Act, over-anxious pedestrians can also be fined for stepping into the roadway against a red light while waiting for the light to change.

The new maxi-coat trend is a source of dismay to girl-watchers and now the British Royal Automobile Club is joining the opposition as well. Their reason isn't aesthetic— they are simply afraid that girls who drive cars wearing the new long coats are going to get their skirts caught in their gear changes. "Never drive a mini in a maxi," is the club's advice.

QUESTION: We are spending a month on the West coast of Florida this winter and would like to visit a number of the popular resorts. Could you please give us this information?

ANSWER: Florida's Gulf Coast has superb beaches and the sunny days are cooled by the breezes off the water. The three principal resorts are: St. Petersburg, Sarasota and Clearwater. But there are many smaller resorts that are popular also.

In Tampa, the Busch Gardens are an outstanding tourist attraction. They are among the most modern zoological gardens in the world. The animals roam free within the park and to observe them you travel in a train. In St. Petersburg, there are big new housing developments attracting many younger people, making it a more swinging town without losing its old charm. It used to be a popular spot for retired people. Another worthwhile attraction there is the replica of HMS Bounty, built by Nova Scotia craftsmen for the film "Mutiny on the Bounty". The "Sunken Gardens" at St. Petersburg have more than 5,000 varieties of Floridian plants and many colorful tropical birds.

Clearwater Beach is connected with the mainland by the landscaped, 2-mile drive of the Garden Memorial Causeway. The broad, white sand beach on the Gulf of Mexico is the main attraction, making it a very popular resort. The Clearwater marina has a large sportfishing fleet. Boats for deepsea fishing may be chartered daily.

Weeki-Wachee is a natural spring, 137 feet deep, located on U.S. No. 19 near Homosassa Springs. It features a complete underwater show, with live mermaids, 16 feet below the water's surface, which can be observed from an underwater observatory. Glass-bottom boats take you on a leisurely trip down a jungle river passing many native wild animals and Indian trading posts.

Sarasota's chief attraction is the complex of buildings on a 43-acre estate, built by millionaire circus owners John and Mable Ringling, now owned by the state of Florida. The Ringling Art Gallery is housed in a reproduction of an Italian Renaissance palace. It is surrounded by formal statuary and the art collection includes works by Rubens, El Greco, and Gainsborough, as well as many other famous artists.

Sarasota Jungle Gardens have more than 5,000 tropical plants and birds. If you drive further south down the coast to Fort Myers, you can visit the summer home of Thomas Edison. His home and laboratories have now been converted into a fascinating museum. Nearby you may also visit the Caribbean Gardens, depicting the most beautiful rose gardens imaginable. A porpoise show is presented at regular intervals here with a display of dancing waters accompanied by organ music.

DANGEROUS MACHINE

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Safety League estimates Canadians could lose 5,000 toes, 1,000 fingers in power mower injuries this year. The Safety League says that companys, nowadays, are making mowers so tough you could drive a steel stake one inch in diameter into the ground, drop a power mower onto it so the blade hits the stake—and nothing would break. The League recommends wearing shoes with 'safety toes' and turning off the machines before clearing matted grass.

Los Angeles Morals Drive Shows 50 Per Cent Success

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Guardians of this city's morals have scored 50 per cent in their drive to protect citizens from illegally salacious entertainment.

They helped put the play Oh! Calcutta! out of business, but they have failed to prevent the movie I Am Curious (Yellow) from public exhibition.

Last week producer Lou Shaw announced he was closing Oh! Calcutta! after five troubled weeks at the Fairfax Theatre, a made-over movie house. The New York revue, in which the entire cast appeared nude and sex acts were simulated, had been raised by police.

On Dec. 29, vice-squad officers seized prints of the Swedish film I Am Curious (Yellow) at five Los Angeles theatres. An additional theatre cancelled showings of the movie, in which sexual intercourse is portrayed, after being notified of the raid. All the theatres had been warned that the seizure would take place.

Backers of the film won a temporary restraining order against further seizures and it is being shown in seven Los Angeles theatres.

The actions against the play and film appear to be part of an uphill struggle by law enforcement agencies to clamp down on entertainment that deals flagrantly with sex. The struggle is uphill they say, because the U.S. Supreme Court in recent years has ruled out most of the traditional pornography laws and has set down strict guidelines on when the law can interfere in the areas of artistic expression.

George Francell, a lawyer in the Los Angeles city attorney's office, said thousands of complaints about I Am Curious (Yellow) had been received during the months it was shown prior to the seizure.

"We did nothing because we did not have the expert testimony with which to substantiate our case," he said.

Lawyer Stanley Fleishman, who represents Grove Press, distributor of the film, declared the city's method of proving its case "ridiculous."

Marmora May Get Sewage Program

MARMORA — Members of Marmora Village Council met Wednesday with Messrs. Don Collins, chief engineer of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, Leonard Pitura, associate director of the municipal development of the OWRC, and William Mitchell, engineer for R. V. Anderson Associates, all of Toronto.

The meeting was arranged by Clarke Rollins, M.P.P., Hastings, who chaired the important discussion which covered details concerning the water extension and sewage program proposed for Marmora.

Reeve William Shannon expressed the gratification of Council that the OWRC is moving ahead with water extensions in the village, and added that the work be commenced as soon as possible. Mr. Pitura said that the final design be completed by R. V. Anderson Associates in March, tenders advertised in April or May, the work begun in late August or September, with completion possibility in December. The cost of the new water extension, which will complete water service in the village, will be approximately $180,-000.

Don Collins outlined the sewage program, noting that a great many small towns have been stalled on sewage and waterworks due to the cost. Because of lower assessment from little industry, the high charge had been too much for the community to bear. He said "The smaller the town, the greater the problem, and in Marmora there is rock to compliceate it." However, a study was made with the Treasury department and the OWRC was able to come up with a formula which will mean a 50 per cent grant from the province. This would bring the cost of sewage installation to $470,000 approximately.

Mr. Collins added that the growth rate in Marmora is small, and if there is no water or sewage, even small industry is nervous about getting tied in. This will be a "plus" towards attracting industry as well as homeowners, and he commended Marmora Council for sparkplugging the program.

The layout of the proposed scheme was explained by Mr. Pitura, who stated that the system of collector sewers make up the bulk of the cost, and the cost is higher because of the presence of rock.

In answer to a question as to whether sewage would be paid for by the individual on a rental basis, or frontage, Mr. Pitura said it was customary to use the frontage rate of 40 cents per foot. The person whose home does not connect would still be required to pay a connection charge of $16 a year, and the frontage charge of $28 which would be about $45 a year. Those who do connect would be paying $45 plus a surcharge on the water bill totalling about $140-$145.

A motion was passed that the clerk-treasurer of Marmora village forward a resolution to the OWRC entering into this undertaking.

Mr. Pitura stated that the attitude of the government is that the OWRC must be in a position to give water and sewage to every community that wants it.

It is anticipated that the Ontario operations will cost the OWRC $12,000,000 annually up to 1975 which guarantees water and sewage in perpetuity. Every assistance possible is given to the small community, and if people are going to be encouraged to live in a small community, then it should be developed, and a sewage system is a must.

Reeve Shannon asked if there was any way that the sewage work could be moved ahead to tie in with the road construction on the main street. Mr. Mitchell said that while it would be less expensive to construct a single job or up the road rather than on each side, there is no way that there will be sewers in before summer to coincide with the road coistruction.

At the suggestion of Clarke Rollins, it was tentatively agreed to consider installing sewers behind the business section, in preference to completing the highway, then tearing it up for the installation of sewers. Reeve Tom Burnside of Madoc, who was also present with Harry Roscoe, said it was done in this way in Madoc, and the OWRC officials remarked that there would be greater cost in restoring the street than in the removal of rock on the two sides behind the business section.

The areas covered by the proposed sewage installations were reviewed, and the cost of incorporating extensions on the west side of Crowe River will be investigated during the design period by Anderson Associates.

Mr. Rollins concluded with the statement that members of the Council of the Village of Marmora are in agreement on the water and sewage proposals, so that it is now a matter of working arrangements between Council and the OWRC to proceed with the projects for this village.

Show Was Natural

NEW YORK (AP) — Those funny old days when the horseless carriage was scaring the horses and when dare-devil motorists in goggles and dusters were dashing down dirt roads at a dizzy 20 miles per hour seem to hold a special fascination for the makers of TV documentaries.

With so many antique car collection and archive photographs around, the subject is, visually, a TV natural.

ABC's The Golden Age of the Automobile special Tuesday night was a gay, colorful history of the years between 1900 and 1927 when the "flivver" departed and the automobile really came of age. Much of the hour's charm was the contemporary film of beautifully restored old cars filled with drivers and passengers in the costumes ofthe period showing the good life'in in lizzie days.

Mixed into producer John Secondari's narration was a sense of humor, and evidence of solid research and sociological footnotes.

He mentioned almost in passing that in 1912 cars, once cranked, were able to get going by means of the self-starter.

For those of a more practical turn of mind, there was nostalgia for the good old days almost 60 years ago when a sturdy Model T could be purchased new for $290.

ABC, incidentally, ran into a programming bind with its Movie of the Week that followed. The feature, Foreign Exchange was a jumpy, cliche-laden secret agent drama. Robert Horton played a tough retired agent shoved back in the business for one final caper in Moscow. He emerged intact, of course, but the program wound up after only 75 minutes, leaving the network with 15 minutes to fill. It elected to use an illustrated film history of the American revolutionary war. That was all right except that they broke it off abruptly, almost in the middle of a sentence explaining events in 1778, and shot right into Marcus Welby, M.D.

The Wonderful World of Disney was the most popular program on the air during the week of Dec. 29, followed by Laugh-In and Gunsmoke. In the Nielsen ratings averages, NBC again led with 21.7, followed by CBS with 20.2 and ABC, with 15.5.

Damage by Tire Studs Causes Worry Only in Ontario, Quebec

By BOB PARKINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Studded tires, blamed in Ontario for cutting the normal life span of highways by up to 75 per cent, are causing little concern elsewhere in Canada.

Except for Quebec, where the government is still studying the problem, provincial highways departments say no restrictive legislation is planned.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press found that highways spokesmen outside heavily-populated areas feel few traffic volumes solve the problem for them.

In Ontario, however, the department of highways estimates studded tires may do $127,000,000 worth of damage to 8,000 miles of highways and roads in the south in the next nine years.

The department says studs mounted with a pneumatic gun which rivets them firmly into the tires—can cut the life span of an average stretch of highway to little more than three years from 12 to 14 years.

Only about 35 per cent of Ontarians vehicles are equipped with studs, but the department expects the figure to rise to 60 per cent by 1971-72 and remain there. Studs are legal in Ontario from Oct. 1 to April 30.

While the department continues to do research on the problem, Edward N. Barrie, a department engineer, says Ottawa's Queensway expressway will have to be resurfaced 15 years earlier because of studs.

He says surface loss from studs on the thoroughfare is a quarter inch during the winter. The department allows one-inch maximum wear before resurfacing.

In Quebec, Jacques Charland, research director for the roads department, says a study begun last winter is still comparing public cost with safety.

There will be no decision this year, Mr. Charland says, but research so far indicates that while studs are useful on sheer ice they may not perform much better than ordinary tires on sand-covered ice.

Samples show 15 per cent of Quebec vehicles with studs this year compared with 47 per cent last year.

Elsewhere, officials say there is virtually no problem.

Newfoundland Highways Minister Harold Starkes says no consideration has been given to banning studs, legal from Nov. 15 to April 15, because traffic volume is not heavy enough to do extensive damage.

New Brunswick allows studs at any time of year, plans no studies on the extent of the damage they do and, says Deputy Highways Minister R. H. Sweet, finds low traffic volumes mean they present little problem.

In Halifax, a Nova Scotia highways engineer said his department has not found that studs, permitted Oct. 15 to April 15, cause significant damage.

Prince Edward Island has not been able to link studded tires with highway damage. But, a spokesman said, the province's policy is being studied. Studs can be used from Nov. 1 to April 30.

Joe Borowski, transportation minister in Manitoba where studs are legal from Oct. 1 to April 30, says no further restrictions are planned. More research into road construction may be needed, Mr. Borowski suggests.

An Alberta highways spokesman said his department is studying damage rates but has had no indications of serious harm to roads. Like Mr. Borowski, he said the safety gained through stud use outweighs damage to highways although regulations may be considered —Alberta does not restrict use to winter.

Saskatchewan reported no problems with studs and British Columbia, where they are allowed from October through April, is asking highways department engineers around the province to watch for signs of road damage.

Humane Society Directors Will Meet to Decide Policy

TORONTO (CP) — Directors of the Ontario Humane Society will meet later this month to determine future policy under new provincial legislation governing the use of animals for research.

T. I. Hughes, society general manager, said Tuesday the board will make a recommendation as to whether the society should continue to operate 20 municipal pounds. That recommendation will then go to a general membership meeting for a final decision.

He said that if the society decides to give up its pound operations, it would try to sell the pound-shelters to the municipalities. Funds realized from such sales would be used to establish regional animal shelters.

Mr. Hughes also said he has written Provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton requesting an increase in the province's annual $20,000 grant to the society.

He said additional funds are necessary to cover increased costs for society inspectors resulting from the animal legislation passed during the last legislature session.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Parents Can Hurt Child by Kindness

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I was reading the paper last night and came across the letter in your column from the mother who "hats 100 per cent." She was confused about her son who left a good home, and a college education to become a hippie.

As I read her letter I saw so much of myself written there — the background pattern was very similar. In your answer you suggested a lack of love from the parents that caused the boy's behavior.

Maybe I can help Mrs. X with my answer, based on the child's need to escape from everything given him to become an individual.

I am a 14-year-old girl who lives with both her parents in an air-conditioned, split-level home located in a high class neighborhood. We are members of the community swimming pool for the few families living here. We own a boat, and two fairly new cars. Daddy owns a tractor to mow the yard. It is the biggest machine in the neighborhood. Before that he owned the fastest boat.

Funny thing is I don't need or really appreciate any of it. My parents can't understand my attitude. They say, "Why, I would have been thrilled with all this when I was young." Mom tells me, "I never had it so good when I was a kid."

Well, Mom, I do. I've never been hard up for anything. Then how am I to appreciate what I have if I've had nothing worse to compare it with?

Material things, though, are not all they have given me. Love has always weighed heavily. On every trip they have ever taken, I was included. They loved me enough to spank me or tell me "NO" when it was needed.

I am not allowed to go "hog wild" without restrictions. They insist on knowing where I am and whom I'm with. Which shows they care. Their mistakes, as with many other parents, is in giving too much in material items to show love. A little toy every time mom goes to the store soon turns a child into a spoiled brat. If as a kid you aren't rich in love, you are certainly poor, no matter how much money you have.

Perhaps Mrs. X's son became a hippie because he was tired of accepting too many favors and wanted to be independent. Although they mean well, some parents kill you with kindness. — Miss P.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have a very mild case of cerebral palsy; it is hardly noticeable. People need to know that many with cerebral palsy appear very normal; their problems may not be visible to the ordinary man on the street.

They also need to know that convulsions are not necessarily part of cerebral palsy. Neither do all of us work in sheltered workshops; many hold high paying jobs with private corporations.

In addition, they are not necessarily retarded individuals. For example I will soon receive a doctorate from one of the nation's largest and best universities. Thank you. — Miss X.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I do not know what to say or do about my doctor. He has never even examined me once. All he does is give me pills and ask me to come back in a month. I've never even had a stethoscope or blood pressure test. I am 67 years old with a family of six children and I feel like 90. Don't you think I need more help than I'm getting? — Mrs. B.

Comment: I resolve never to pass judgment (in absentia) on how well any doctor is treating any patient. Nevertheless, I can suggest more help by advising that you seek a consultation. I believe that any doctor (bearing your complaint) would recommend that you see someone who will give you a more complete examination.

Bettors Don't Know Odds

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I asked a friend of mine, who has been a Life Master, the highest rank in bridge, for more than 20 years, this question: "If there are three finesses available to you in playing a hand, and you have to make two out of three in order to succeed, what are the odds?"

He thought a moment, then replied, as many people would, "One-third." But the true answer is 50 per cent, or one-half. (For those who care enough to want to know why, there are eight possible combinations, four of which will succeed, and four of which will fail.)

For a public that is so betting-minded, we are singularly innocent of the odds in almost any wagering activity; gamblers do not have to be crooked to win; they simply play with the odds, depending on the amateur's ignorance of the percentage against him.

"System" players, at the roulette wheel or at the track, for instance, almost always go broke because they adopt precisely the wrong attitude — they make small, regular bets, and in the end inevitably the "house" percentage grinds them down, which is a five per cent at the croupier's table or 18 per cent at the track.

The largest play (in terms of frequency of donation) is given to lotteries — including the "numbers" game — and slot-machines; and both of these are precisely the forms of wagering which offer the smallest returns. At least 65 per cent is returned to the promoters of the lottery or the owners of the slot-machines, which is staggering compared to the mere five per cent advantage of the house in blackjack or craps.

Poker players always lose to professionals, again not because of the latters' dexterity or psychological acumen, but simply because the average poker player has little idea of what's going for him or against him, or how to estimate the size of a bet compared with the size of the pot. Winning at poker has far less to do with managing your cards than with managing your money.

But gambling, of course, is not a rational activity. Professional gamblers do not gamble, in the sense that other people do; they play only with the odds, or with an edge, and are mathematically guaranteed not to lose in the long pull. The rest of us gamble — if we do — for largely unconscious reasons that doom us to defeat.

Wilson Mizner, who knew the subject better than most men, once defined "gambling" as "The sure way of getting nothing for something." Even when we know the odds, most of us get a secret thrill from spitting in the eye of fate.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For January 15

Your birthday today: The coming year will probably be the most expensive, productive and critically balanced of your career. Many new opportunities for service open to you, along with various responsibilities will lasting more to other people's welfare than to your own. Self-improvement programs are strongly emphasized.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Money is easily scattered with little visible result. An air of seriousness prevails; use it for practical, progressive moves. Your work efforts are better organized than usual.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): The question comes up: "Is repair or complete replacement preferable?" Sizable deals are worrisome until you have the full story, then turn out well. Chronic problems remain the same.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your intuition will lead you to put a little extra distance between yourself and an impatient acquaintance. Some of your belongings need replacement very soon; make plans accordingly.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your money is too available for a sad story. Check it out before you give. Begin to plan now for closing an important transaction this coming Tuesday. You may feel the need for solitude this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): If you can take the day off from your work, good — go to some place that is strange to you. If you can't, take great pains not to mix personal affairs and business. Find a good show tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Choose the simple, most direct approach to everything. The figures and facts coming to your attention should change your thinking about some business matters. Be very careful not to make too many promises of money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Your presence may act as a catalyst provoking others to do things they wouldn't do if you weren't there. Be aware of your responsibility, make your visits short.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Group finances, shared enterprises have heavy going today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Think twice before you blurt out what seems to be a bright remark. Prepare for some probable delays if you must travel. Speculation should be avoided completely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Quick progress takes a bit of extra doing but is more than worth the effort. Bestir yourself! However, be patient with unstable moods of family and associates.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Taking sides in issues that do not really involve your interests would hinder your future opportunities. Stick to subjects which mean something to you. Common sense is a rare commodity today.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Good manners, a touch of formality are very helpful. Others are relieved to find you willing to understand their busyness and distractions. This evening include some reflection about the day's events.

Duke of Windsor Says Collision Was Inevitable

LONDON (AP) — The Duke of Windsor, now 75, said Tuesday night he would have collided with the establishment as king even if he had never had met Wallis Warfield Simpson.

The duke, who abdicated as King Edward VIII in 1936 on his marriage to Mrs. Simpson, an American divorcee, said in a BBC television interview his ideas about the role of the monarch, constituted an invitation to trouble.

"The establishment . . . it's not easy to explain. Prince Philip is not really a member. He goes out very much on his own. Nor was the Duke of Windsor. My father (George V) and my brother (George VI) certainly were.

"Why wasn't I? Because I was independent. I didn't rebel. To some extent, I collided."

The duke dispelled any idea about regretting his decision to marry "the woman I love" by saying he would like to have gone on being king, "but I was going to do it under my own conditions."

The duke said in the interview in his Paris home he wanted to do a "job" for Britain but he said "most of the people who prevented me are underground now."

Asked about any rapport with his father, he said he had "none at all."

"My dear boy, you must remember who you are," his father would say.

"Now, who am I?" the Duke would reply.

"I got no answer," said the Duke.

The Duke as Prince of Wales defied his father on wearing top hats, refused to wear medals awarded in France during the First World War, declined to ride in a Rolls-Royce on a trip through slums because it wasn't seemly and battled the king over an occasional joke he would put into a speech.

Enquiry Useless Claims Thomson

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian-born publisher Lord Thomson said Tuesday he does not believe the current senate inquiry into the mass media will serve any useful purpose.

The 75-year-old publisher, in Canada for a business trip, said in an interview:

"It seems peculiar to pick on communications media as being in special need of investigation.

"In every town there are always crackpots who are unhappy with the media, usually because they don't get a big enough airing for their own weird views.

"These kind of people would always be wasting the time of a press council with unnecessary complaints."

Lord Thomson said the commission might recommend establishment of a Canadian press council, but he did not think such a body was necessary.

Lord Thomson also defended multiple ownership of newspapers, which he felt the inquiry might attack.

"Multiple ownership brings financial security and better business methods, not editorial interference, and it serves to raise standards."

Horsburgh Gets Readmission

CHATHAM (CP) — Kent Presbytery of the United Church of Canada voted Tuesday night to recommend that Rev. Russell D. Horsburgh's application for readmission to the United Church of Canada be given "qualified acceptance."

In 1964, Mr. Horsburgh was charged by Chatham police with having encouraged immoral behavior after members of his youth group allegedly were involved in immoral acts in the Chatham church annex.

He was found guilty on five of eight charges, but some of the teen-agers on whose evidence he had been convicted later said they had lied. The Supreme Court quashed all charges against him in 1967.

Mr. Horsburgh, who still is an ordained minister, resigned from the United Church in 1963 and has worked since on his book From Pulpit to Prison—the story of the charges against him and his successful appeal to the Supreme Court—and a youth counselling organization in Toronto.

The conditions for his acceptance, outlined by the presbytery are:

—A probationary period of one year;

—That Mr. Horsburgh be under the effective supervision of the presbytery in whose bounds he works;

—That Mr. Horsburgh undertake psychiatric therapy because of his recurring difficulties in various congregations in working with people.

The presbytery, on Nov. 20, 1968, recommended against readmitting Mr. Horsburgh to the ministry. But officials said the action did not "close the door to Mr. Horsburgh's readmission at a future date."

Mr. Horsburgh made his second application to the Kent Presbytery for readmission to the ministry on Sept. 13, 1969.

Man Dies At Wheel Of Truck

TWEED (Special) — Howard Brook's, a 45-year-old Madoc area man, died Monday morning as the result of a heart attack while driving a dump truck on the Jarvis Lake Road, four miles west of Madoc.

Provincial police said Mr. Brook was believed to have suffered the heart attack following which the truck left the roadway and crashed into a tree. Damage to the truck, owned by Stokloar Marble Quarries Ltd., amounted to $700.

Increase in Jobless Below Expectations

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment rose to 383,000 in December, up 29,000 from November, and amounted to 4.7 per cent of the labor force, the manpower department and Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The increase in unemployment was less than might be expected at this time of year, the report said. Employment held stronger than is usual.

A year earlier, there were 373,000 unemployed, which was also 4.7 per cent of the labor force at that time.

Taking seasonal factors into account, the report said unemployment at mid-December amounted to 4.8 per cent of the labor force, the same as in December, 1968. This was down from seasonally-adjusted rates of five per cent and more in the previous three months.

Ontario Cities Hit By Flu Bug

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The flu bug has hit several Ontario communities, cutting school enrolment and industrial manpower, but elsewhere in Canada there appears to be little cause for alarm.

A Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press indicates that London and Niagara Falls have been hardest hit, with each calling for curtailment of hospital visitors.

St. Catharines also was affected. Toronto reported two cases of Hong Kong flu.

A London hospital, while disputing reports of an epidemic, said one of its wings had nearly half its staff off with Asian flu. In Niagara Falls, the Greater Niagara General Hospital said 60 of its 600 employees, including 25 nurses, were off work.

Talks Commence

Aid for Ibos Gets Priority

LAGOS (CP) — Biafran negotiators began armistice talks in Lagos today with Nigerian federal leader Maj.-Gen. Yakubu Gowon amid strict security precautions.

Reliable sources said the five-man Ibo team received from Gowon received assurances for the welfare and security of the Ibos in Nigeria. The Ibos are the main tribe in Biafra.

The Biafran delegation flew into Lagos from Port Harcourt earlier in the day to open armistice talks, and official sources in Lagos said the main subject of first negotiations would be Ibo security and welfare.

There will be talks yet about constitutional arrangements under which Biafra will resume a place in the Nigerian federal system, they said. These will be reserved for a future constituent assembly of representatives from Nigeria's 12 states, the sources added.

The five-man armistice delegation was headed by Biafran Chief Justice Sir Louis Mbanefo. Other members were J. I. Eme-baku, Biafran attorney-general; Prof. Eni Njoku, former vice-chancellor of Lagos University, Chief A. E. Bassey and E. Aguna.

Resistance Collapses

They arrived a day after a federal government spokesman captured Radio Biafra indicated that all organized Biafran resistance had collapsed. In the broadcast, Col. Olusegun Obasanjo, chief of the top 3rd Federal Division, said he had ordered all tactical troop movements to cease and had arranged for Nigerian police to take over maintenance of law and order throughout the Eastern state (Biafra).

"I hereby guarantee the safety of all law-abiding citizens who are resident in the Eastern state," Obasanjo said. He appealed to "all brothers and sisters who are in hiding to come out and resettle. . . . I also appeal to soldiers who fought on the Biafran side and are still in hiding to come out and declare themselves and their weapons."

Governments and organizations which have offered aid for war victims were still waiting today for news of openings in Nigerian relief policy before they could go into action.

Four Nations Barred

The Nigerian government announced Wednesday night it will ban aid from four white governments and all private agencies that helped Biafra.

But it said it is consulting "a number of friendly governments for immediate requests for relief."

The ban affects the governments of France, Portugal, Rhodesia, and South Africa as well as such groups as Caritas, the Roman Catholic relief agency; Joint Church Aid, grouping a number of agencies, Canada's church-sponsored Canairelief and the French and Nordic Red Cross.

The government also put the persona non grata tag on "all foreign relief workers who operated illegally in the secessionist state" and said they would not be permitted in Nigeria. Presumably this means expulsion for those still in what was Biafra.

Trudeau Offers Help

Prime Minister Trudeau sent a personal message to Gowon which external affairs department sources said outlined Canada's aid proposals.

The note stressed Canada's reluctance to send any supplies without Nigerian consent.

Lord Hunt, who headed the British team that conquered Mount Everest, arrived in Lagos today with a committee to work out plans for British relief. His government has allocated $1,000,000 for aid and 19 tons of relief supplies are waiting in London for airlift to Nigeria. The Nigerians first refused to allow them to be brought in on military planes, then submitted a request for extra medical supplies to be included in a civilian airlift.

No Refusal of Aid

The U.S. state department announced Wednesday night a U.S. envoy that the Nigerian government will not hesitate to call on the United States for assistance.

"There is no problem of delay or refusal to accept relief," said one official in Washington. "It is just a question of working out practical detail."

"I hope the Biafrans like the color."

Synopsis: Milder air will be moving into the forecast district tonight and Friday. The Windsor-to-Sarnia area could get some snow today but the rest of southern regions are unlikely to get snow until Friday.

Winter's Grip Is Month Old

By HARRY HULBALL
Staff Reporter

Winter's polar bear hug on the Quinte district could be relaxed tomorrow.

Warm air, flowing in from the west, may thaw the current cold weather crunch, boosting temperatures as high as 30 degrees above zero, the CFB Trenton duty forecaster predicted today.

However, there are possibilities a cold front could move in again next week, he warns.

Today's high should be 10 degrees above, tonight's low will be zero, believed the forecaster.

But, with the arrival of warmer air Friday and Saturday should see temperature highs around 20 degrees, maybe as high as 30 degrees, he said.

The current cold bout is a frigid peak in a prolonged period of freezing weather that could be something of a record.

In Toronto, weather records show this to be a record.

However, with fully detailed data is available to make Quinte comparisons.

The life span of the approaching warmer front is being closely watched and could depend on other snow-bearing weather disturbances further south of the district next week.

If they bypass the Quinte area, cold weather could be back, says the Trenton forecaster.

News of tomorrow's probable warmup is welcome relief to Quinte residents for whom the cold spell has cast no magic in recent days as temperatures went on the skid.

But even these readings were insignificant compared to one cold zone on the U.S. side of Lake Ontario.

Low this morning at Watertown, N.Y., reported the Trenton forecaster, was 29 degrees below.

'It Was I Who Set Fire' Handyman Tells Inquest

NOTRE-DAME-DU-LAC, Que. (CP) — "It was I who set the fire," Louis Chiasson told a hushed audience Wednesday at a coroner's inquest into the deaths of 38 old and crippled persons during an early-morning blaze Dec. 2 in a home for the aged.

"I only wanted to set a small fire so that I could put it out and so that everyone would realize how useful I was around the home," said the 64-year-old resident of the home, who served as an unpaid handyman.

The almost whispered statement came after about 90 minutes of harrowing questioning by Cyrille Delage, who was conducting both a coroner's inquest and a fire commissioner's inquiry into the fire, and by crown counsel Lucien Cartier. At the outset of his testimony Chiasson denied any connection with the fire.

Then with dramatic suddenness he said he had set fire to some newspapers in the laundry room of the wooden-frame building in this town 160 miles northeast of Quebec City.

Chiasson, formerly of Mincoo, N.B., has been a resident of the destroyed home—Repos du Vieillard—for the last eight years.

The inquest was held in the 675-seat movie theatre of this town of 2,500 on the shores of Lake Temiscouata.

Sitting between two microphones on the floodlit stage of the packed theatre, Chiasson at first stoutly repudiated statements he had made to police concerning the origin of the fire. Coroner Delage had earlier admitted the statements as evidence.

As Crown counsel Cartier twice went through the police statement paragraph by paragraph, Chiasson agreed with it point by point, never read a part dealing with responsibility for the fire.

"I loved my old people too much for that," said Chiasson.

Mr. Carrier continued to ply Chiasson with questions as the handyman finally mumbled: "Yes, it was I who set the fire."

As he left the stage, Chiasson covered his ears at the insults yelled by the crowd.

Canadian Charged with Draft Evasion Rescued by Student

VICTORIA (CP) — Nick George Olah says he is tired and just about broke. He is also relieved he is not in San Francisco facing a draft-evasion charge.

Olah, 21, who says he is a Canadian citizen, was brought here by air Saturday by Norman Wright, 47, president of the student council at University of Victoria.

Olah's wife Linda, 22, formerly of Port Credit, Ont., flew here from San Francisco Monday.

"We're too tired to think of what our next move will be," Olah said Wednesday. "We're pretty broke too."

Olah was to have gone on trial Feb. 12 on a charge of evading the United States military draft, for which he registered while in high school in San Francisco.

He says he was told he had to register or he would not be allowed to graduate. "So I complied although I was a Canadian citizen."

He did this while living in San Francisco with his father.

Olah said the Canadian consulate in San Francisco turned down his request for help. He says a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau was referred to the external affairs department and nothing happened.

He also wrote to the Vancouver Sun, saying he wanted to leave "this insane country."

Wright heard of the case and eventually went to San Francisco himself.

The two, and Mrs. Olah, planned to leave Saturday.

They found San Francisco airport humming with FBI hunting a dope-runner. The three left the airport but Olah and Wright took a later flight by a Canadian airline.

At Vancouver International Airport, a voice asked over the public address system for Mr. Johnston—Olah's temporarily assumed name—to report to immigration officials. He didn't.

Wright took him to Victoria.

"I'm grateful," said Olah. "I couldn't have left on my own from San Francisco but I knew if I didn't I wouldn't stand a chance."

In a telephone interview from San Francisco, Michael Kennedy, who had been representing Olah, contended the draft board "fraudulently and deliberately" failed to tell Olah that as a Canadian he did not have to register for the draft.

Olah was in Canada and was in his second year at Sheridan College, Brampton, Ont., when ordered to report for induction.

He ignored the notice. Last September, in San Francisco to visit his father, he was picked up for a traffic violation and authorities discovered his draft status.

Olah was held in custody until his father, Don Olah, put up $1,000 bail.

Paul Sloar, assistant U.S. district attorney, said the $1,000 will be liable for forfeit if Olah fails to show for trial Feb. 12.

In addition, he said, Olah would face a bail-jumping charge.

Olah came to Vancouver after the Hungarian uprising of 1956. He lived there for six years, then went to San Francisco to join his father.

Change--and Survive Business Motto of Seventies

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

The watchword in the new decade will be "change" although this will affect every facet of life. And for the businessman, that can only mean innovation, new methods and the improvement of what he has to offer to meet the new wants and needs of the consumer.

Holding out that the businessman personally must be prepared to take advantage of the new opportunities that will open, Stephen O. Flamers, assistant professor of the School of Business, Queen's University, Kingston, told the Downtown Business Association's annual meeting last night they must be flexible in their ability to adapt.

The association saw the nomination and acclamation of Ivy Shulman for the office of Ivy Shulman for the office

Loyalist Law Committee

At a luncheon following a meeting of Loyalist College's consultative committee on law and security management, Teaching Master David Paine, right, emphasizes a point in discussion and Belleville Police Chief, Douglas Crosbie; Metro Police Inspector Fern Alexander, Toronto; and College President J. K. Bradford "weigh the evidence."

Law Officers Review Course

Senior law enforcement officers from the Quinte region, the Federal penitentiary at Warkworth and Inspector Fern Alexander of the women's division, Metropolitan Toronto Police Department, who comprise the special consultative committee on law enforcement and security management at Loyalist College, met with College officials in Belleville, Wednesday.

Loyalist is one of the Ontario community colleges where a two-year course in law and security management is offered. The purpose of the meeting, President Bradford explained, "was to provide an opportunity for the consultative committee to work with the dean of applied arts and business, Dean George Brooks, extension director H. J. Butterill and teaching master David Paine to evaluate the program after its initial year of operation. The assessment was in relation to both the first and second years of the diploma course and discussions included an expanded application of the program to all areas of law enforcement," Mr. Bradford said.

Among the members attending was Trenton's new deputy police Chief, D. Saunders, former chief of police at Deseronto, who takes over his new position officially, Jan. 15.

All three levels of law enforcement, jurisdiction were represented: Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie; Belleville Area, No. 9 District OPP Superintendent, D. E. Wellesley; Superintendent L. MacGillivray, Officer Commanding No. 8 District OPP, Peterborough; Deputy Warden Gordon Taylor of the federal institution at Warkworth and the only female law enforcement officer on the committee, Inspector Alexander of the Metro Toronto police force.

Bunnett Heads Fair Board

Cameron Bunnett was re-elected to serve a third term as president of the Belleville Agricultural Society last night.

The society, which sponsors Quinte Exhibition, held its annual meeting and election of officers in the city hall council chambers. A good representation of the organization's large membership braved sub-zero temperatures to participate.

Mr. Bunnett, in acknowledging the vote of confidence, said "the two events in my life I look upon with great pride-is the year 1958 I served as the last president of the Belleville Fair and 1969 when I held office as the first president of the Quinte Exhibition. And now you have honored me again."

The other directors returned were Jack Bush, first vice-president; Phil Flagler, second vice-president and Myles Benedict, Arthur Canfield, Harold Caldwell, Bill Gault, Hudson Ketcheson, Lyle Langabeer, Dr. J. F. McComb-dale, A. D. Revill, Douglas Rollins, Percy Ray, Bob Sills, Don Spencer, Harry Smith, Ken Vivian and Ridley Wallbridge.

The City of Belleville is represented on the society's board of directors by Ald. Arthur Keegan.

The board of directors appointed Gerald Vance a life member of the society. Mr Vance has served as chairman of the stake race committee a number of years.

The Topic Is Pollution

Quinte area farmers, Kurt Kaiser, Prince Edward County poultry raiser and Carl Clayton, Sillsville area hog raiser south of Napanee, talk agriculture pollution problems with Everett M. Biggs, deputy minister of agriculture and food, at yesterday's Quinte area farm conference.

300 Farmers on Hand

Farm Pollution No Rival to City Waste

Pesticides and fertilizers used in agriculture, as well as animal wastes, do cause pollution, but urban municipalities and industrial wastes are the big offenders.

This was the story heard yesterday by approximately 300 Quinte district farmers who turned out for discussions on pollution as related to Agriculture at the Quinte Farm Conference at Club Canara.

The day's theme was Focus on Pollution and new government experts as well as practising farmers tell what is being done to combat the problem.

One of the day's keynote speakers was Everett M. Biggs, deputy minister for the Ontario department of agriculture and food who said that pollution was everyone's problem.

takes 2,3,4,5 indent en

He said the trend was toward fewer and larger farms. With larger units of livestock production, generous use of fertilizer and application of pesticides was an essential part of today's agriculture.

However, at the same time the public expected agriculture to use protective tools in such a way that the environment would be protected for future generations.

Accordingly, controls had to be established with a special government committee of experts assigned to keep abreast of the problem.

Ontario had been fortunate in that it had been warned of the damage pollution could do and had been given an opportunity to do something about it.

Winter Of Their Discontent

PICTON — Picton residents may remember the early week of 1970 as the winter of their discontent.

Following last week's record breaking snowfall of 22.3 inches in a 24-hour period the town is now in the grip of the big freeze.

Mr. J. E. Morrison, President of Southumberland Enterprises Limited, is pleased to announce the formation of Southumberland Public Relations and the appointment of Mr. D S. Swain, Vice President of The Company as General Manager of the new agency. With offices at 72 Dundas Street East, Napanee, Ontario, Southumberland Public Relations will be providing public relations, custom design printing and advertising services in the Quinte - St. Lawrence Area.

ment of soil science, University of Guelph, spoke on the subject "Is Agriculture Causing Pollution?

"If we believe the press reports, then apparently this is so," he said.

He agreed that pollution was a subject which aroused the emotions, but at the same time warned "we must be careful not to allow emotions to overrule common sense."

He admitted that pesticide residues were increasing but claimed there was a pollution problem only if these residues got into food.

Chemicals were getting into water and plant life and fish and were causing threats to the environment but not all were caused by agriculture.

Dr. Miller said we must see that pesticides are used with more caution and discretion than in the past.

Agricultural fertilizers did not cause pollution to ground water and therefore did not get into well water but as a result of surface erosion did get into streams and lakes, where it promoted algae growth.

But tests had shown that the phosphorous content in streams increased very little as a result of passing through agricultural areas.

It was said to be quite clear that the great percentage of water pollution resulted from industrial wastes and large urban centres with detergents being a big offender.

Recommended rates of application for fertilizer caused little or no pollution, he claimed.

Animal wastes were a cause of pollution caused by agriculture with large poultry and livestock enterprises on confined areas causing problems in built-up neighborhoods.

Minimum acreages for a given number of animals or birds, and minimum distances of barns from neighbors were recommended.

Getting back to the original question of whether agriculture caused pollution, Dr. Miller answered "Yes and no" — yes, but not as much as many would have us believe.

He agreed that with provincial agricultural engineer outlined, the government's city pollution "code of practice" spelling out what should be done to cut down offensive odors resulting from the operation of large poultry and livestock enterprises.

Mainly these regulations call for minimum distances of farm buildings from roads or neighbors' houses, and recommended methods of handling animal wastes.

Dairy Farmer Lost $75,000

Provincial government agricultural experts don't feel that the residue level of chemicals in food is high enough yet to worry about but Mono Mills farmer George Gardhouse has a sobering example of what can actually happen.

Mr. Gardhouse, was one of the speakers at yesterday's Quinte Farm Conference discussions on pollution and related how his herd of more than 100 milking cows was declared contaminated by a chemical loss of approximately $75,000.

Mr. Gardhouse told the 300 farmers present that his own started to die in 1965 with veterinarians unable to do anything for them. Autopsies carried out at Guelph University failed to determine a cause for their death.

But tests of his dairy herd's milk revealed a higher than acceptable level of Dieldrin used in the manufacture of pesticide chemicals.

He noticed breeding problems in his dairy herd and in 1968 had to get rid of 17 heavy cows. Other cattle were not growing with three - year - old heifers still not being large enough to breed.

Milk from his herd was ruled unfit for consumption and eventually he was not allowed to sell his cattle.

But exhaustive tests of everything associated with the farm failed to turn up the cause. Both home grown and purchased feed was tested, the farm water and buildings were tested without finding a trace of Dieldrin nor where the chemical had originated.

Mr. Gardhouse said he had never used the chemical on his farm.

In 1968 he was down to 68 cattle — even after purchasing replacements and he was forced to disperse his herd which still showed high levels of the pesticide.

Later in a panel discussion which concluded the day's session, Mr. Gardhouse said he didn't like to tell the story.

During the investigation stage he had been told not to talk to the press, "I don't like to tell it, because it sounds too much like a sob story. But I think it should be told if for no other reason to show what has happen."

Mr. Gardhouse said government officials told him that of more than 70,000 cattle samples tested across the province only seven showed higher than the acceptable level of Dieldrin.

"What they didn't state was the number of samples in which Dieldrin showed up," he said.

Other farmers relating their experience with pollution problems in their farming operations were Carl Clayton, Sillsville hog raiser, and Kurt Kaiser, Picton area poultry farmer.

Mr. Clayton admitted that confined feeding of hogs, cattle or poultry, created pollution problems in connection with waste disposal.

In his own case he said it was a problem for which he had no solution although he was working these out with the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

Mr. Kaiser said that on two 300 acre farms in the Picton area he started 110,000 laying hens and 60,000 young birds and still another 30,000 hens just outside Bellville.

He admitted an odor problem was caused in manure disposal but this was alleviated by large acreage and the fact that he also disposed of manure to neighboring farms. Liquid manure systems caused a greater odor problem but this was dispelled somewhat by winter spreading — a practice not recommended by government officials because of run-off problems.

Buckley Chairman

E. J. Buckley was elected last night for his second term as chairman of Hastings and Prince Edward Separate School board.

Mr. Buckley, former chairman of the old Belleville separate school board, was elected first chairman of the two county board last year.

Ben Kroeze of Trenton was elected vice-chairman. Both officers will serve a one-year term.

As Mr. Buckley took over the chairmanship, superintendent F. B. Allore presented him and the board with a historic gavel to be used at future meetings. It was used 100 years ago by a circuit judge in northern Ontario, when he held court among the Ojibway Indians.

Present Generation Setting Own Goals Board Is Told

The adult generation now running governments and school boards, is the "cheated generation," separate school trustees were told flatly night.

In his 1970 inaugural meeting address, superintendent F. B. Allore told the board: "We adopted our parents and government with the promise of governing 'for' present. But this generation is setting its own goals and action, leaving us out.

Consequently, this new type of youth must be provided with the conditions and environment which will allow it to discover the wisdom of the past plus the newly discovered characteristics of knowledge.

Catechetical education for every student will receive maximum attention during the separate schools of Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

During the board's first, formative year, "the preoccupation was with the quantity of things, volume of supplies, expenditure controls," Mr. Allore said.

"Our centre of operational attention must shift towards matters of quality," he told the trustees. "We must improve in both technical and human resources.

"The personnel in our system is our most valuable resource. In order to capitalize on their talents, we must endeavor to train and retrain in an effort to upgrade their working lives and therefore their personal lives."

Population growth in the district has "implications for property and capital expenditure," Mr. Allore warned.

"It appears that the Quinte region is facing a quickening population growth pattern over the next six years which may go beyond 50 per cent of the last census. The trends in a birth rate increase after the recent slump, and particularly more and younger marriages, indicate a return to planning for more facilities after the current phase of population reduction.

The formation of county-wide board on Jan. 1, 1969 Mr. Allore referred to as "The Pandora's box of educational evolution."

"The demands on management and supervision will increase as costs, outside limitations, money problems, complaints and more sophisticated representatives of pressure groups all vie for primary attention. This in turn creates the need for more specialized and increased staff.

"The Roman Catholic minority in this province is rising, economically, socially and politically." Mr. Allore noted: "We see it — in each area, particularly education.

"Our problems are those concerned with the greatest asset of history and the best inheritance for the future — education in a spiritual atmosphere," he concluded.

Inquest Told Worker Disobeyed Foreman

TRENTON — Disobedience of his foreman's orders lead to the death of a Brighton area painter Sept. 19, 1969, a coroner's jury ruled last night.

The five-man jury, sitting in Trenton Town Hall, found William Rallison, died of a fracture at the base of his skull when he fell from the 15-foot level of a scaffold he was painting hanger number 1 at CFB Trenton.

Fellow workers were lifting one end of the scaffold to remove caster wheels and install leveling jacks when Mr. Rallison fell. He was dead upon arrival at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Testimony of the foreman, Malcolm MacLaren, and three other employees of Presley Painting Contracting Company Ltd. of Ottawa, revealed that the deceased refused twice to descent from the scaffold when asked, and later when ordered, by his foreman.

The jury recommended that the safety rules (of the Construction Safety Act) be adhered to and carried out by all concerned on all projects.

In its decision the jury said: "Had Mr. Rallison obeyed the order of his foreman to come down from the scaffold this unfortunate accident could have been prevented."

Earl Mackey, construction safety inspector for Hastings county, said after the inquest that this was the first fatal construction accident in Hastings county in six years.

Temperatures Below Freezing for 26 Days

But the current cold bout is generating more activity for local service industries—food merchants, garages, taxi services.

One major Quinte oil supplier believes the snap has boosted fuel consumption about 10 per cent.

After a prolonged fall season in late 1969 the present winter lows have created a demand "that's putting us on our toes," agreed a second oil manufacturer.

Consumption of natural gas is up about 25 per cent, said a spokesman at Lake-land Natural Gas.

With automobiles immobilized by dead batteries, Belleville cab companies report a cab company in business particularly during the early-morning work rush.

Garage services also are feeling the pressure.

One maintenance operator reported he had drained two batteries since Wednesday morning starting stalled automobiles.

The freeze also is slowing urban traffic in other ways.

Belleville city engineer Wilbur Purcell said today traffic lights at busy intersections were taking longer to change phases. The cold is slowing timing mechanisms on the signals.

Schools And Regionalism

Hastings County Board of Education is now contemplating the seventies following a close tussle for the chairmanship. James Clarke is back after a 7-7 tie vote with Macdonald Smith was decided in Mr. Clarke's favor by the toss of a coin.

Mr. Smith in turn declined nomination as vice-chairman, saying "we need a man from outside Belleville for the job." John Follis of Bancroft got the position.

Mr. Clarke is thinking along the right lines in noting that boundary realignments could take place in 1971. The board went on to approve his suggestion that other boards should be approached with a view to resolving "geographical problems."

School administration has been under county boards for a year now, and much has been accomplished. It is clear though that even this broader administrative base must pass into obsolescence. Regional government is in the wind and education is one of the disciplines which will come within such a jurisdiction.

Meanwhile, this prospect makes for something of a hiatus in school building development, and maintains such anomalies as high school students from Ameliasburg, in Prince Edward County, attending school in Belleville, which of course is in Hastings County.

While this administrative uncertainty remains, it leads to indecision with regard to needs in what may be termed underdeveloped areas. Prince Edward, for example, requires further high school facilities — additions to the high school in Picton as well as a new school in the Ameliasburg area. But one is already scheduled at Bayside, and even though this is in Hastings it could conceivably absorb some of the students from Ameliasburg.

Ultimately, Hastings and Prince Edward may become one administrative unit, so there is something to be said for marking time on any further building programs in the area. Ideally, a regional administration could effect the greatest good for the greatest number, providing not only accommodation but filling in serious gaps in such spheres as library facilities in some of the less well-endowed areas.

This makes one wonder also if there is no room left for private study. Just as hospitals are sometimes the recipients of equipment provided by clubs or individuals, so too there is room for gifts of books and quality magazines to the schools.

Saleswomen

Imagine . . . the government grooming two young women, University of British Columbia graduates who never met during their years in college, for posts as Canada's first female trade commissioners.

Yes, the ladies are going to have a hand in creating new markets for Canada. Just two now — among more than 500 commissioners serving overseas — we may expect more entering this interesting field.

Patricia Marsden, 24, and Lucille Lee, 22, a Chinese-Canadian, are actually still in training but will be posted abroad this summer. They were pictured recently with Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin, standing in front of a sign reading, appropriately: "Don't just stand there — Sell something."

If Ottawa (isn't there a woman ambassador representing Canada somewhere too?) keeps up this sort of thing, the Royal Commission on the Status of Women (whose report is still awaited) may find itself outdated. If it doesn't hurry up and get in its million dollars' worth, or whatever, of taxpayers' advice we will wake up one morning and find women in similar posts all over the place.

But the truth is, we still lag in this regard. The CBC, for example, could improve its image if it hired some women announcers for its television programming. As far as we can discern there is only one at the moment; she does duty on the Weekend news program and her role seems more decorative than informative. Then there is the rather affected young woman who is heard, but not seen, on occasions, announcing in sacred-cow tones that "this is the CBC Television Service." And that's all — a mystery female voice which arouses only curiosity, and makes one wish the CBC would attend to little things like that, bring the poor girl out into the open while at the same time grooming a few others for the job.

And of course there are the same tired old advertisements, including the one over Kingston, urging drivers to winterize their cars. It's later than you think!

Secure . . . Even Arrogant

PM, Spurning Unpopularity, Holds Firm to His Course

By RICHARD JACKSON

And how's he doing?

According to plan — his.

But first, how come this being as far from the last election as from the next?

Works this way: governments are elected for five-year terms, but few care to run out the allotted time for fear of running out of luck.

Maybe it is superstition, but nine out of every 10 governments do not hang on until the last grain of sand has dropped from the election hour-glass.

Instead, they take their chances in the fourth year of their term, give or take a few months either way.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau led his government to power and glory on June 28, 1968.

June being by far the favorite election month of the year, he is two years and a couple of months away from his next campaign.

That is, of course, barring unforeseen parliamentary accidents by which his majority government could be upset by a surprise vote.

Could be, but not likely.

Just look at the parliamentary lineup:

Liberals, 153. Conservatives, 72. New Democrats, 22. Creditistes, 14. Independents, two. Vacancies, one.

This gives PET a majority of 62 — something of a steamroller — even when the opposition combines to vote solidly against him, which does not often happen with the three splinter groups pursuing their own political thing.

The mathematics out of the way then, if the prime minister is operating according to plan, how is he doing?

Not as well as confidently expected by the Trudeaumaniacs blinded by charisma who were sure he would deliver his Just Society, gift-wrapped, instantly, if not sooner.

Better than uncertainly anticipated by those not adept at his shopping centre plans kissins, who doubted the magic of the New Politics' Mr. Wonderful to set the world right overnight.

But by his own personal navigation, right on course, thank you.

Those around him tell you that he could easily afford the falling away of his personal popularity during these first two years in power.

For this would permit him to soar back towards the old peaks of public acclaim.

So these first two years have been a time for some harsh measures scarcely calculated to make him the national political pinup.

He has been cutting back on some of the sails of that untilnow special and favored department, external affairs, giving the previously well-protected bureaucracy its lumps, and even raising taxes.

Of course, at last accounting, all this was producing an expected budget surplus of something like $500,000,000 with the federal government in the black for the first time in 13 years.

But then, who, apart from economists, can really love a budget surplus, especially when it is bought at the price, among other things, of tax increases?

Even so, it was still all according to plan, with these popularity - debiting measures putting the prime minister in a position to add a providing the necessary funds to do the popular thing — spend on public "goodies" in the last 18 months to two years before the next election.

Only a 10 - minute egg could do it.

It takes a toughly disciplined and coldly determined mind to hold a government to such coolly calculated strategy which often involves loss of personal prestige and damage to party popularity.

But hanging tough — "we do not scare easily," he has said.

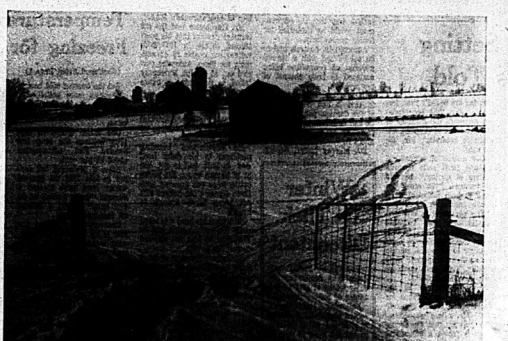
Trudeau seems to be pulling it off.

He can do it only because he stands supreme, unchallenged in both Parliament and his own party.

He is master of the Liberals, front and back benches alike, and when the prime minister says "jump," they all go through hoops.

So there is nobody to question him, neither in the weak minority opposition groups in Parliament nor in the ranks of his own party.

He is so sure, so secure, that he can display publicly an arrogance too magnificent as to be unbelievable in anyone except PET.



Who else at a press conference on radio and TV would say that his toughest decision was making up his mind where he would holiday in the Christmas-New Year recess?

Especially when he was pleading austerity?

Here is his words straight out of the officially prepared text of his press conference, answering the question as to where he would spend the Christmas-New Year recess:

"I hesitated three days during the federal - provincial conference, it was the worst decision I had to make as, to whether I would go skiing or whether I would go skin-diving. So I decided to do both."

Maybe he was only "tuning," with a straight face. But even if he were, can you imagine any other Canadian political leader taking a chance with a crack like that?

Winter and the Land

Winter, sometimes bleak, sometimes bitter, has a beauty all its own, available to be enjoyed just for looking. And at no time is the landscape at its scenic best than after a fresh snowfall, as this farm scene photographed recently in Rawdon township proves.

Montreal's Formidable Administrative Tasks

Montreal La Presse—. . . The Montreal Urban Community (a metropolitan government that came into existence Jan. 1) enters an extraordinary era. How many inhabitants will this immense island have in 10 years? Surely 4 or 5,000,000. Now, therefore, is the time when measures must be taken to ensure harmonious growth. Growing in a haphazard manner, letting problems mildew, deciding to step on the gas in case of emergency, dreaming constantly of eliminating waste without taking any concrete step, administering from day to day—these have been the baneful formulae. A city is a big business. It blooms or it wilts; it can reach all the peaks or it can be the victim of economic disorder. . . .

The Urban Community is no scatterbrained idea, no theoretical idealization, no learned piece of paperwork. It is a reality, human as much as material, which must be able to take shape with growing vigor. If each city can make itself the instrument of its destiny, so can a conglomeration of cities. The decade now beginning will be the bearer of the most astonishing innovations in urban life and the best way to draw profit and advantage from them will, incontestably be to do things on a metropolitan level. The instrument is there: let us learn to make good use of it.

Germany Has Big Trade In Pharmaceutical Goods

German Features

BONN — Nearly one-quarter of all medicaments consumed in the entire world come from west Germany. That is the result of the 1968 pharmaceutics survey and it means the German industry maintains first place, the position it has held without interruption since 1929.

Even before World War I, Germany supplied 30 percent of the world's medicine. The figure had risen to 43 percent by the eve of World War II.

German pharmaceutical exports last year amounted to 483.6 million dollars, 27.3 million dollars more than the U. S. export figure. The biggest importer of German pharmaceutical products last year was Japan. It received about 10 per cent of Germany's exports.

The export boom continues this year. During the first six months, a 19 percent increase was recorded over the same period last year. Meanwhile, overall production by the German industry was also growing rapidly — it was up 10 percent the first half of 1969.

Key Role With Ice Capades

Brockville Recorder and Times

. . . Gloria Loe of Brockville, ballet captain of the American Ice Capades, was cited as one of the top figures in the show's 1970 production in a recent Boston newspaper article.

Gloria, daughter of Mrs. Agnes Lor, proprietor of the New York Restaurant, is a 24 - year - old Oriental beauty of Chinese descent. After four years as a member of the Ice Capades chorus she was promoted to her new job.

The multifaceted title includes a thousand responsibilities, from teaching to juggling members of the Corps de Ballet's assignments and actual performing.

She teaches intricate routines to newcomers and must know perfectly each and every step of all the show numbers. She also performs herself and has to be ready at a moment's notice to fill in for any of the other skaters who may be unable to appear.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 15, 1950

Clare B. Morgan, president of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club, was re-elected to office at the annual meeting. Other offices elected for 1950 are: vice-president Dr. George Faulkner; secretary-treasurer E. P. Hughes, directors G. A. Bradford, Dr. Faulkner, Mr. Morgan, Clarence Murdoch, Roland Pryke, Dr. George H. Stobie, and James Walker.

A half-hour musical program tracing the 35-year history of Kiwanis International, will be presented by the Kiwanis Club of Belleville over Radio station CJBQ.

30 YEARS AGO

January 15, 1940.

British mails that arrived recently in Canada brought good word to Major William C. Jack, DCM, MM of this city. He has just received word that a brother, Arthur Jack, chief engineer on the auxiliary cruiser "Ashlea" had been saved when his ship had been sunk off the coast of Africa. A letter from the wife of Chief Engineer Jack, residing in Yorkshire, brought news that her husband had been reported a prisoner on the ill - fated Nazi pocket - battleship "Admiral Graf Spee" when she took refuge recently in Montevideo, Uruguay.

40 YEARS AGO

January 15, 1930.

The Hon. Nelson Parliament, Provincial Liberal Organizer will address the members of the Liberal party here this evening. Mayor Fraser of Trenton will also be present.

Mrs. J. R. Rider of Tamsworth is visiting her sister, Mrs. George A. Reid, Queen St.

Kenneth Phillips, an old Belleville boy, is home from Vancouver on a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Phillips, Charles St.

50 YEARS AGO

January 15, 1920.

The following officers of No. 1 District South Hastings LOL were installed by Brother William Wood at Foxboro. District Master — Arthur Burke, Bayside; Deputy Master —R. E. Hubble, Frankford; District Chaplain — Rev. A. L. Geen, Belleville; District Recording Secretary — A. S. Caskey, Frankford.

A Rotary Club is to be formed in Belleville. E. Guss Porter, KOr MP; W. L. Doyle and Sanford R. Burrows recently attended a meeting of the International Association of Rotary Clubs at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto.

S. African Economy Is Sound

South African Press Association

The South African economy had grown at an exceptionally high rate during 1969 and a further substantial increase in the gross domestic product was predicted, the bureau for economic research at the University of Stellenbosch reports.

The bureau says it was estimated that, at current prices, gross domestic product would have increased by about 10½ per cent in 1969, notwithstanding a decline in agricultural production.

A further substantial increase of nine per cent in gross domestic product is anticipated in 1970.

Link with Peking Could Pose Subversion Threat in Canada

Ottawa Le Droit—It is not necessary to be Cassandra or Nostradamus to predict that the year 1970 will see the conclusion of diplomatic agreements between Canada and China. Indeed, a communique is expected in the near future on this important event.

Even if diplomatic recognition of revolutionary China does not imply approval of the disturbing ideology of Mao, the Canadian public is incensed by the fact that an active fraction of the student population swears by Mao's little red book. The existence of a Peking embassy often brings about, as we have seen in Congo-Brazzaville, a proliferation of so-called diplomatic agents who are, for all practical purposes, agents of destruction. They will find in this country a field ready to be cultivated. Without being alarmist, we must avow that a risk is being run in this respect. Spring is generally fixed as the time when the Sino-Canadian accords will be concluded.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two days of race riots broke out in South Africa 21 years ago today—in 1949—killing 142 persons and injuring more than 1,000 others. The dead included 50 Indians, 87 South African natives, one European and four others.

1944—Prime Minister Churchill of Great Britain and French Gen. Charles de Gaulle reached agreement at Algiers on a British-French national committee of co-operation toward common victory in the Second World War.

1951—Ilse Koch, the "Red Witch of Buchenwald," was sentenced to life imprisonment at Augsburg, Germany, by a German court for wartime concentration camp crimes.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1945—United States 1st Army troops entered Houffalize in the heart of the Belgian bulge in an all-out attack; RAF bombed Berlin in 24 hours of air activity; Russians took Kielce in southern Poland; Burma Chinese troops took Namkham, last major Japanese stronghold in North Burma.

Expert Deplores Publicity

Drug Increases Libido But Solves Nothing

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Andre Barbeau, who has devoted the last 15 years to research of L-Dopa to treat patients with Parkinson's disease, says the drug also increases sexual potency.

But he qualified his statement Wednesday in an interview elaborating on a report by Dr. William O'Malley, a United States neurologist who said unexpected evidence shows the drug can be a powerful sex stimulant.

Dr. O'Malley suggested L-Dopa might prove to be a long-sought medical weapon against female frigidity and male impotence.

"I'm absolutely against the statements made," said Dr. Barbeau, "and I think this man is just looking for publicity."

He said he has already reported that there is evidence that patients who receive L-Dopa have shown signs of increased potency "or libido as we call it," but this evidence is not new.

"We noticed that patients given the drug became very virile, and this applied in cases of men who had not been sexually active for years," he said Wednesday.

"What is has also been noted that these males cannot sustain an erection for long and have a tendency to premature ejaculation.

"What must be remembered is that in many cases Parkinson's patients were sexually very active before they became ill.

"Suddenly they have a drug which, in controlling the disease, gives them a new lease on life and such a thing will obviously also bring to life other activities."

Maple Leaf Dinner to Be Held in New York

NEW YORK (CP) — Dr. Mary Lee Edward a surgeon who spent her girlhood in Petrolia, Ont., began 58 years ago to gather her Canadian friends in New York into a club.

The organization, now the Canadian Women's Club of New York City Inc. celebrates its golden anniversary Friday, Jan. 23, with a Maple Leaf dinner-dance at the Plaza Hotel. Dr. Edward still is an active member.

The aims of the Canadian Women's Club remain as they were 50 years ago: to encourage and promote amicable relations between the people of Canada and the United States, to forward the best interests of Canadian women in the U.S., and to establish a scholarship fund.

Honorary patrons of this month's dinner-dance are Prime Minister Trudeau; Canadian Ambassador and Mrs. A. Edgar Ritchie, Washington; Consul-General and Mrs. D. Guy C. Smith, New York City, and Ambassador and Mrs. Yvon Beaulne, the United Nations.

Mrs. Robert G. Hogg is president of the club, which has 135 members. Mrs. Peter Armstrong and Mrs. Frederick Amendolara are co-chairmen of the dinner-dance committee.

Lise Joanisse of Ottawa, now studying in Europe, was the winner of last year's Canadian Women's Club scholarship, awarded annually to a young Canadian singer. The 1976 auditions take place this month, and the scholarship increased this year to $750 from $500.

MR. AND MRS. WADE CLEAVE

WEDDING

Cleave — Mastin

GENEREAUX — SNIDER

Sacred Heart of Mary Church, Madoc was the scene of the recent marriage of Eleanor Anne Snider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Snider, Madoc and David Paul Genereaux, son of Mrs. David Genereaux, Madoc and the late David Genereaux. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. Father V. J. O'Neill. Organist was John Murphy and soloist Mrs. Michael Bradley and Miss Lynne Hackey.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an A-line full length gown of French Chantilly lace over peau de soie featuring long sleeves and a matching detachable train. The three-tier tulle illusion shoulder-length veil featured a cluster of flower petals and seed pearls. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of red sweetheart roses.

Maid of honor was Miss Lorraine Stokes from Gananoque, cousin of the bride. She wore a full - length gown of turquoise chiffon over peau de soie with long sleeves and trimmed with French lace.

Bridesmaids were Miss Judy Genereaux, sister of the bridegroom and Veronica Bradley wearing full-length gowns of deep turquoise identical to that of the maid of honor. They all carried cascade bouquets of yellow mums.

Best man was Jim Franklin of Ottawa, cousin of the bridegroom. Ushers were Bruce Snider, brother of the bride and Bob Ash of Madoc.

For the reception held at Sacred Heart of Mary hall, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a blue silk brocade dress, hat of blue metallic with black accessories and a corsage of gold tinted 'mums.

The bridegroom's mother wore a cranberry wool dress, a felt hat of winter white and a corsage of gold tinted 'mums.

For the wedding trip to points east, the bride wore a rose crimplene dress, a fur-trimmed gold wool coat with black accessories and a corsage of white 'mums.

The couple will reside at 32 Nelson St., Madoc.

ACW Church Group Hears Talk on Prayer

A large number of members attended the annual meeting of the Church Aid and Service (ACW) on Tuesday afternoon. Business was in charge of Mrs. Fred Lazier, president, who cordially welcomed the members.

An inspiring and thought provoking devotional on the theme "Any Time is a Time for Prayer" was presented by Mrs. R. H. Godden, who emphasized the five "P's of prayer: prepare — think of God; picture — how shall we meet Him?; ponder — why pray?; pray — open up mind talk with God, not to Him; promise — To put prayer to action."

Annual reports, given by the various officers and conveners showed that the Guild has enjoyed a busy and happy year. Among interesting and profitable projects were, the 'Spring Blossom' tea, the bridge and euchre marathon, several weddings and dinners catered to; two rummage sales and two auctions. Guild members also lent their talents and assistance to the "Parish Bonanza." Substantial amounts had been forwarded to the church wardens for parish work and for rectory linen.

Other donations included cheques to Camp Ryanto, to the Canadian Mental Health Association, to the Anglican Women's Training College and to St. George's Guild. The Guild has also been responsible for the replacement of slabs and renovation of the parish hall kitchen. The 'Central Meal' project has been most successful this year.

Officers were installed by the rector, Canon R. B. deB. Wright who spoke to the members, offering thanks, and encouragement for the coming year. Retiring officers, Mrs. A. M. Cousins and Mrs. Ridley Wallbridge were thanked for their assistance and efforts during their terms of office.

A vote of thanks was also tendered to president, Mrs. Lazier for her leadership and enthusiasm. Mrs. Lazier asked for continued co - operation from the members and presented the conveners of the various projects.

The president reported that flowering plants had been delivered to many elderly and shut-in parishioners during the holiday season. A corporate communion for Guild members will be observed on Feb. 22nd, 25. All were reminded of the annual vestry meeting which will be held on February 2.

Following the business session, Mrs. R. B. deB. Wright contributed two vocal selections. She was accompanied at the piano by Mr. John Withers, church organist.

The spring bridge and euchre marathon will begin on the third Wednesday of January at one o'clock and a large number of prizes is anticipated. Mrs. W. Kempston and Mrs. L. Hall were hostesses for afternoon tea.

History of School Given at Meeting

Uniondale Women's Institute held their first meeting of 1976 in the Uniondale hall with Mrs. M. Sine as hostess. In the absence of the president, the vice-president, Mrs. P. Tracey took charge.

After welcoming the women and reading an appropriate new year's poem, the following business was conducted: several thank-you cards were read: it was arranged to send a delegate to the convener's conference in Guelph in April and it was decided to send the usual contribution to the 50th anniversary of the Women's Institute. Members will attend Summary Day in Sidney on the afternoon of Jan. 13.

The program convener, Mrs. G. Harrington took over. Readings were given by several women. Mention was made of the four women who were most noted for being in the public eye in 1975 and several local personalities who contributed to the welfare of the community during the past year.

Mrs. M. Sine gave a history of Brookdale Public School from the beginning of the clearing of the land in 1812 up until the building of the new brick school in 1864. Some of the teachers, trustees and inspectors are still remembered. Today Mr. G. Purvis lives in the school building which he bought in 1967 and converted into a home.

Mrs. Harrington gave the history of Meadowvale School with the names of the teachers and inspectors. The schools in Sidney township went into a school area in 1948 with Mr. Warren of Frankford being both secretary and treasurer and principal. However this arrangement did not prove satisfactory and was dissolved in 1950.

In 1950 the film council was started in the schools. The three southern townships of Hastings County are serviced by the national film board.

For a few years adult showings were the order of the day when the projector and films were in the neighboring schools. However now the films are used almost exclusively in the schools.

In 1967 the school was bought by Price Morris who is now living in it.

Church Groups

ST. JAMES CWL

The Jan. meeting of St. James Catholic Women's League was held on Thursday, Jan. 8 at the home of Mrs. Stan Meeks.

The meeting opened with a reading by Father McGarvey entitled "A Program for Peace". Peace should begin at home with oneself and spread through your family, community and eventually with the help of prayer through the country, he said.

The president extended thanks to Mrs. Stan Meeks for her work in preparing Christmas treats for the children and for her gift of candies.

Final arrangements were made for the euchre on Thursday, Jan. 15 at the rectory in Frankford.

The women of the parish will cater to the livestock sale on Feb. 16.

The meeting closed and lunch was served by Mrs. Stan Meeks and Mrs. John Ryan.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

New Fish Product Soon Ready for Market

By MARY MOORE

Do you know what Mini-Filets are? I did not until I had the rare privilege of sampling them in a British Columbia packer's test kitchen in November.

These brand new products are being test marketed in the East but soon will be available all through Canada.

What are they? They are battered frozen rolls of cod filled with two different fillings: one type is filled with rice and shrimp stuffing — a la Madras; the other with spinach — Florentine.

I stood in the test kitchen almost drooling while they were being deep fried until they were ready to taste. They are wonderful and I hope our busy mothers and career girls will buy and try them. This beautiful new product will make fish lovers out of folks who do not regularly buy Canada's very own fish.

The cooking instructions are quite simple and those that I am giving you come direct from the British Columbia packer's Home Economist Helen Takach.

Cooking Instructions for MINI-FILETS

DEEP FRIED: 350 deg. Fahr. for 9 min. in oil deep enough to submerge mini-filets.

PAN-FRIED: If you are using electric frypan set temperature at 350 deg. Fahr. and fry for 15 min., turning on all four sides.

BAKED: 500 deg. Fahr. for 12 min. It is not necessary to turn the mini-filets when they are baked at this high temperature.

The delicious thin-skinned batter in which mini-filets are dipped results in a golden crisp crust.

Be frankly patriotic and dedicated Canadians and try this new product which my guests declared a gourmet dish.

Prior to her marriage Mrs. Wade Cleave (nee Brenda Lee Mastin) was honored at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Brenda Jandrew and Mrs. Don Jandrew; a kitchen shower given by Mrs. Tony Swinden, cousin of the bride and she received a gift from the staff of Sir Mackenzie Bowell School where she is employed. Gifts were also received from Wilson Carpets Products Ltd. and the Front Rd. community, Wellington.

Wellington United Church was the scene of the recent wedding of Brenda Lee Mastin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mastin, Trenton and Wade Davidson Cleave, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cleave of Wellington. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. N. Truax. Organist was Mrs. J. McNeil and soloist Mrs. Doreen Cleave.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white velvet featuring a cathedral train, wedding ring collar, three - quarter - length bell - shaped sleeves and an empire waist. Her headdress of lace flowers outlined in aurora borealis was attached to a four - tier silk illusion veil. She carried, a cascade bouquet of red roses, baby's breath and ivy.

Maid of honor was Miss Brenda Jandrew wearing a floor - length gown of red velvet in a princess style with three - quarter length sleeves. She carried a white fur muff with a corsage attached of red carnations and holly and wore a cluster of white baby carnations and holly in her hair.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Carley Wallace and Miss Rhonda Cleave, sisters of the bridegroom; Miss Debbie Cleave, niece of the bridegroom and Miss Cathy Mastin, sister of the bride. Cathy acted as junior bridesmaid. All were dressed identically to the maid of honor.

Best man was Dale Cleave brother of the bridegroom. Ushers were Larry Moore of Hamilton, Murray Yandt, Belleville, Grant Thompson, Stirling and Lyn Mastin, Trenton, brother of the bride. Lyn was junior usher.

For the reception held in the church parlors, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a matching dress, coat and hat of dark red brocade and a white orchid corsage.

The bridegroom's mother wore a printed red wool dress with mink stole and hat, black accessories and a white orchid corsage.

For the wedding trip to northern Ontario and Quebec, the bride wore a lime green crimplene dress, black patent accessories, a light brown suede coat with white fur collar and a corsage of white gardenias.

The couple will reside in Wellington.

Reader Challenges Males To Upgrade Themselves

By DORIS CLARK

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Re Dr. Joyce Brothers: Female Intelligences Linked with Male Heart Attacks" . . . Having been a victim of all of this, I resent the whole attack on such wives. And, I ask you, what is so admirable about living at the level of the lesser brain? What about the man who marries a woman as a showpiece, to boost his own insecure ego, and then proceeds to destroy her potential, without making one small effort to upgrade his own?

Most any average human being is superior to another in some way, even if only in what can be accomplished by brute force. Each case is different. Tension builds up from other causes, mostly hangups from childhood. There are surely other things besides brains in this life, but without them, it's a pretty mean, frustrating existence.

If some men prefer a weak-headed woman, it could be because they have so little on the ball themselves, they need a moron around to make them feel superior. As I am reasonably sure you won't ever publish this, I don't demand to get it off my chest. — Unsigned

Dear Unsigned: I'll not only publish it, I'll sign my name to the column it's in — and that's more than you have done. You have made some good points in showing us the other side of the coin.

* * *

Dear Doris: You wrote an item about the Canada Pension Plan and I want to make one correction. A government authority explains that a person can still work at age 65, yet be considered retired if he earns less than $1500 a year. In this case, he may either accept the pension right then or continue to make contributions.

Once he reaches age 70, the contributor will automatically qualify for the pension, even if he continues to work. In either case, he has to apply. — Regina Reader

Dear Reader: Thank you. We are glad to have this clarification.

* * *

Dear Doris: What ideas can you give me about things to make out of feathers from chickens and pheasants? — Vulcan

Dear Vulcan: Chicken feathers are not too popular, even for filling cushions, because they tend to mat.

You might combine pheasant feathers with bullrushes or teasel to make artistic table decorations. Your plants (and tips of feathers?) could be gilded with gold spray paint and the arrangement set in a piece of driftwood.

Or you could lay an arrangement flat against canvas or heavy cardboard, glue it into place, then frame it to make an attractive picture.

Doris receives 14,000 letters a year, from readers. Please remember to supply the stamp for your reply.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I scolded Johnny for losing his sweater and then I was furious when he insisted he hadn't worn it. Later I found it where I had put it away. Johnny will forget all about the fuss so I won't bring the subject up."

Mother: "I found your sweater after you left for school. I had put it away in the cedar chest. I'm sorry I didn't believe you when you said you hadn't lost it. After this I'll think twice before I scold you about things."

Don't think you will lose your child's respect if you let him know you made a mistake. Set him a good example by admitting your error and saying you're sorry.

Ann Landers' Neighbor's Intrusion Upsets Household

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If you can get me out of this, you are a magician. I know it's my own fault, so please don't give me Hail Columbia. Just help me.

ANN LANDERS

I'm a quiet person who minds her own business and stays to herself, but I let the woman next door get too friendly. I am so sick of her big mouth I could scream. I used to wonder how women could visit during the day and still get their housework done. Now I know the answer. These sluts don't do any housework, which is why they have so much time to pester those of us who do.

What really makes me furious is the way she brings all her cooking and baking mistakes over here for us to eat. I'm fed up with her burned stews and overseasoned spaghetti. Yesterday it was a pudding that didn't gel. She said, "Here's your dessert for tonight. I must have left something out but it tastes fine. Drink it."

Please, Ann, tell me how to cool off the friendship without slamming the door in her face. She has made me so nervous I yell at my children and am nasty to my husband. Help! — TRAPPED IN MY OWN HOME.

* * *

DEAR TRAPPED: Go to your doctor and let him tell you you need more rest. Inform your friend of the doctor's orders. Tell her you must lie down at frequent intervals and that she can't come over uninvited anymore. Say "I'll call you when I'm feeling better." And when you are feeling better and think perhaps you ought to give her a call, "just to be nice," take out this column and read it again.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was interested in the study you cited recently which showed an unusually high achievement level of children born to young mothers and old fathers. (Especially male children.)

I am currently involved in another study which explains this fascinating "phenomenon." The reason the child is precocious and tends to be the achiever is because the mother feels closer to the child than to her husband. Consequently, she spends an inordinate amount of time with him.

The child, as a result of this close relationship, may be an achiever, but he pays for his achievement in other ways. He is usually emotionally immature and hung-up on his mother. This makes him a poor candidate for marriage. Better than should have married someone in her own group and not have the kid turn out to be a superstar. Please keep plugging for everything in its own season. — TURN TURN TURN.

* * *

DEAR TURN: Your assumption that the young mother spends an inordinate amount of time with her son because he is closer to her age than the old gaffer she married may or may not be true. Some of these young moms spend an inordinate amount of time with young lovers. Each case must be judged separately.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our geometry teacher is groovy, great looking and not married. He used to live in an apartment but he couldn't afford it any more and moved into the beautiful, large home of an older woman who is very rich. She is a widow. Some people say he is renting a room but nobody ever saw rent receipts.

We realize high school teachers in Virginia are underpaid but what do you think about this? — HEAD OF WHAT'S WHAT.

DEAR HEAD: Not that it's really your business, but maybe your geometry teacher has discovered a new angle.

Mays Acknowledges He's Not in Running for Ruth's Record

NEW YORK (AP) — The first 600 were the hardest, Willie Mays said Wednesday, acknowledging that he has no chance of breaking Babe Ruth's record of 714 home runs.

"I can't cut that one," he said.

The San Francisco Giants' centerfielder added, however, at the suggestion attributed to team-mate Juan Marichal in Santo Domingo a few weeks ago that Willie was getting old and should retire for the benefit of the Giants.

"Nobody makes a decision for Willie Mays except Willie Mays," said the veteran Giants' star in the National League. "I feel good. I figure I might play three more years.

"But Ruth's record? Forget it. I don't have a chance. Maybe Hank Aaron (Atlantic Braves) has a chance. He's 35—three years younger than me—and he should play until he's as old as I am and maybe longer."

Aaron's current total is 554.

Mays, 38, but in good trim, dapper in a pink shirt and gold tie, was in Manhattan, where he got his major league start 13 years ago with the New York Giants, to receive tribute for his 600th home run.

The Say Hey Kid was a guest on two network television shows, paid a visit to Wall Street where he received 600 shares of stock at $6 a share in the company that makes his bats (Adirondack Industries), thence to a fancy reception where he was given a $12,000 sports car and the key to the city.

It was at the Wall Street affair, on the 33rd floor of a bank building in the financial district, that Willie juggled a plate of creamed shrimp and answered questions about his future and baseball.

One of the first questions popped at him, naturally was that of Marichal's reported remarks in the Caribbean.

"I don't think this should ever have come up," Willie said, obviously peeved.

"I haven't said anything to Marichal about it. I don't intend to. I haven't heard from him, either, although I read that he denied making the remark. Either way, I don't think it should have ever happened.

"As for me, I'll go out and do everything as usual. I'll play for Marichal as hard as I'd play behind any other pitcher. If he goes 15 innings, I'll play my heart for 15 innings. If he wants to play golf with me, I'll play golf. But I won't bring up the subject."

As for his own physical condition, Willie said he feels good and believes he is capable of playing 125 games next season —unless there's an injury. He played in 119 games last season, hit 13 homers and batted .263.

"I don't kid myself," he said. "Iron rusts. I'm not as young as I was. I see that ball as well as I ever did but I don't respond the way I should. That's age. I can't do anything about age. Some day a young kid will come up and beat me out of my job, but I don't think the time is now."

Hawks' Esposito Blanks 'em Again

By CHUCK SYOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Rookies Bill Fairbairn and Tony Esposito stole the spotlights in National Hockey League action Wednesday night with performances that make both top contenders for the Calder Trophy.

Right winger Fairbairn scored two goals to spark New York Rangers to a 7-1 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs while goalie Esposito registered his ninth shutout of the season with Chicago Black Hawks in a 1-0 win over Pittsburgh Penguins.

In two other games, Montreal Canadiens beat Los Angeles Kings 4-2 and Minnesota North Stars downed St. Louis Blues 5-2.

Fairbairn, 23-year-old native of Brandon, Man., now has 13 goals and 20 assists after 40 games with the East Division leaders.

He played only one game with the Rangers last season. He expected to be cut from the regular roster again after last fall's training camp, but an opening for him appeared early in the season when team captain Bob Nevin suffered a knee injury. Since then, Fairbairn has teamed with centre Walt Tkaczuk and left winger Dave Balon to form New York's highest-scoring line.

And his performance before a crowd of 16,445 at Toronto Wednesday could not help but gain him more votes for the Calder, which goes to the season's top rookie.

His first goal of the night at 1:32 of the first period started the Ranger attack which eventually drove goalie Bruce Gamble from the Toronto nets.

Dave Keon tied it up for the Leafs before the first period ended but after that the Rangers took charge with Fairbairn getting the go-ahead goal early in the middle period.

The Rangers had only a 42-40 advantage in shots on goal but after Nevin's goal at 6:24 of the third period, Toronto coach John McLellan pulled Gamble in favor of Gerrry McNamara, backup goalie from Orillia Terriers of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series.

McNamara allowed the first two shots against him in for goals, before stopping six other drives. Leafs' other regular goalies, Johnny Bower and Marv Edwards, are both sidelined with knee injuries.

Ed Giacomin went all the way in goal for the Rangers and gained his second assist of the season on Gilbert's goal.

Esposito stopped 28 shots in the game as Chicago to move within four shutouts of the modern NHL record of 13 for a season set by Harry Lumley of Toronto Maple Leafs in 1953-54.

The 28-year-old goalie played in only 13 games with Montreal last season and stands out as a prominent contender for the Calder Trophy as well as the Vezina Trophy for leading goaltender.

Stan Mikita, Bobby Hull, Pat Stapleton, Gerry Pinder and Gilles Marotte scored to back the shutout before 16,668 fans at Chicago.

The Black Hawks fired 37 shots at Al Smith and Les Binkley who shared the Pittsburgh netminding.

The win moved the Hawks to within two points of Detroit Red Wings in the battle for fourth place in the East Division. The Penguins, meanwhile, remain in fourth spot in the West, five points behind Minnesota.

Pittsburgh's Glen Sather and Chicago defenceman Keith Magnuson touched off a brawl late in the third period. Both drew minor penalties but Al Smith of the Penguins drew a 10-minute misconduct for throwing a punch.

Montreal moved one point ahead of Boston Bruins to take over second place, three points behind the leading Rangers in the East Division.

Jacques Lemaire, the league's leading goal-scorer, collected his 24th and 25th of the season to start the Canadiens' comeback from a two-goal deficit.

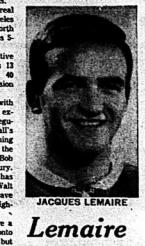
The Montreal goalie faced 40 shots by the Kings while the Canadiens carried the victory with just 27 shots at Gerry Desjardins in the Los Angeles nets.

Jim Peters and Bill Flett scored to provide the Kings a brief lead in the second period. Los Angeles now has a record of four losses and one win in their current eight-game road trip.



Bill Goldsworthy scored twice and assisted on another goal by Jean-Paul Parise to lead Minnesota over the West Division leaders.

A crowd of 14,321 at Minneapolis saw the North Stars take their first win since Dec. 7.

Ray Cullen and Claude Larose were the other North Stars scorers while Bernie Parent and Ron Anderson replied for the Blues.

Goalie Fern Rivard stopped 28 shots to record the victory while veteran Glenn Hall suffered the loss after making 26 saves.

The North Stars visit Oakland Seals tonight while the Maple Leafs are at St. Louis, Los Angeles at Boston and New York at Philadelphia.

Lemaire Tops On Trigger

Phil Goyette of St. Louis Blues earned an assist Wednesday night to regain sole possession of second spot in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Jacques Lemaire of Montreal Canadiens, the leading goal scorer, got two in a 4-2 win over Los Angeles Kings and remains in seventh spot among the scoring leaders with 25 goals and 16 assists.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 15, 1970

Gil Perreault Apple of Habs' Eye

MONTREAL (CP) — If Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League had only one choice in next June's amateur draft, it would probably be Gilbert Perreault, high-scoring centre with Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A Series.

But, it's not likely that Canadiens will get a chance to draft the youngster, who has scored 32 goals and assisted on 44 others in 33 games so far this season.

One of the two newcomers to hockey's big league—Buffalo and Vancouver—likely will get him. First choice in the June draft will go to either of the two cities, who join the league for the 1970-71 season and will toss a coin for first crack at the amateur draft list.

Perreault, who patterns himself after Jean Beliveau, scored five goals and had two assists in a game here last week against Niagara Falls Flyers. On Jan. 1 he also helped sink London Knights by rattling home four goals.

When the Russian national team visited the Forum Dec. 28, Perreault was the fastest man on the ice as he scored two goals and assisted on three others. The pro-bolstered Junior Canadiens defeated the defending world amateur champions 9-3.

Perreault, 18, readily admits his idol is Beliveau, the longtime captain and centre ice star with the NHL Canadiens. He even hails from the same town where Beliveau started his hockey career—Victoriaville, Que.

At six feet, two inches and 194 pounds, Perreault is described by Phil Wimmer, Junior Canadiens general manager, as "quiet and something the same as Beliveau when he started."

Wimmer is one of those in the Canadiens' organization who hasn't entirely given up on the possibility of Perreault remaining as a pro.

First Prize?

Gilbert Perreault, a high-scoring centre for the Montreal Junior Canadiens of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series, appears likely to be one of the first choices in the National Hockey League's amateur draft next June. He is shown here cruising in front of Ottawa 67s goalie during a November game in Montreal. (CP Wirehoto)

Put 'M' in Miracle

Mets' Seaver Man of Year

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver, whose vibrant pitching arm triggered the New York Mets' transformation from misfits to champions of the baseball world, was named Male Athlete of the Year Wednesday in The Associated Press' annual poll.

Seaver, the Mets' inspirational leader and the major leagues' biggest winner in 1969, is the fifth baseball player to capture the award in as many years. Baseball has produced eight of the last nine winners, including Detroit pitcher Denny McLain a year ago.

The Mets' mound ace beat out another New York folk hero, quarterback Joe Namath of the American Football League's Jets, in the balloting of sports writers and sportscasters across the United States. Seaver received 96 votes, to 51 for Namath, who provided the AFL with its first-ever last January by leading the Jets past favored Baltimore Colts in the Super Bowl.

Steve Owens, Oklahoma's Heisman Trophy-winning college football standout, edged Rod Laver, the Australian pro who scored a tennis grand slam by winning the year's four major tournaments, for third place. Owens received 41 votes, to 40 for Laver and 35 for the fifth-place finisher, Joe Kapp, quarterback of Minnesota Vikings, National Football League champions.

The poll was conducted before Kapp and the Vikings lost to Kansas City Chiefs of the American Football League in last Sunday's Super Bowl, which will count in the 1970 balloting.

The 25-year-old Seaver won 25 regular-season games for the Mets in his third year in the majors. He ran off winning streaks of eight and 10 games while keying the club's drive to the National League's East Division title.

He won another as New York swept Atlanta in three games for the league pennant, then lost the World Series opener to Baltimore before bouncing back to register his biggest victory of the year in the fourth game of the Series, which the Mets went on to win the following day.

Sports Brief

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A suggestion that Buffalo might trade star halfback O. J. Simpson to Los Angeles for quarterback Roman Gabriel brought quick negative reaction Wednesday from Rams' Coach George Allen. "My reaction is that I wouldn't trade Gabriel for anyone in either league," declared Allen.

Realignment Coming

NFL Clubs Bickering Over Shuffle

NEW YORK (AP) — The 13 clubs of the new National Conference of the National Football League still were deadlocked Wednesday in their attempt to realign along the lines of the 13-club American Conference.

The American Conference's alignment was hammered out last summer after Baltimore, Cleveland and Pittsburgh of the old NFL agreed to join the 10 AFL teams in one half of the merged professional leagues.

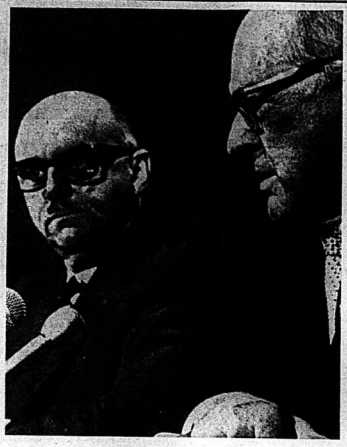
Under the terms of their agreement, Cleveland will compete with Pittsburgh, Houston and Cincinnati in one four club division. Kansas City, Oakland, San Diego and Denver will also play in a four-team division. Baltimore joins Buffalo, Boston, Miami and the New York Jets in a five-club group.

Attempts to realign the 10 NFL holdovers have run into all sorts of problems on the basis of geography, weather, stadium size, gate potential and current competitive ability. Clubs object to being placed in a division which figures to be dominated by a powerful club for years. However, the failure of the Minnesota Vikings against the Kansas City Chiefs last Sunday in the Super Bowl championship and the defeat of Baltimore by the New York Jets last year has altered the thinking of some owners.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said in New Orleans last Saturday there would be realignment "one way or another" within a month. He hopes to have it before the owners leave town, possibly by today.

College Tourney Launched

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations to stage an invitational university hockey tournament in Winnipeg as a replacement for the scrapped world tournament have been launched here, it was learned Wednesday.



Sources said if financing can be arranged—presumably from the federal government—some firm word on the proposed tournament could be expected by Friday.

The aim would be to have university teams from Canada and the United States, plus the Canadian and U.S. national teams if possible, in the competition.

Winnipeg was to play host to the world hockey tournament this year. But a clash between Canada and world amateur hockey authorities about the eligibility of players resulted in Canadian withdrawal from the world competition.

One source in Ottawa said such a Canada-U.S. collegiate hockey competition has been kicked around for about five years. Since the collapse of the world competition slated for Winnipeg, interested parties had decided concrete progress could be made by "taking advantage of a void."

A committee of interested persons has been set up in Winnipeg, the source said, and if the organizers can get "the green light financially" it appeared the tournament could be held.

Making A Bid

Montreal's Mayor Jean Drapeau, left, talks with Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee at a Chicago news conference. It was announced at the conference that Montreal has formally entered a bid with three other cities, Los Angeles, Moscow and Florence, Italy, to stage the 1976 summer Olympic Games.

Drapeau Not Dismayed

MONTREAL (CP) — Far from being dismayed by the formidable competition, mayor Jean Drapeau said Wednesday Montreal will make a big push to get the 1976 Olympic Games.

Between now and May 13, when the International Olympic Committee meets in Amsterdam, Montreal representatives will visit all IOC members to argue the city's case, Mr. Drapeau told a news conference.

He expressed confidence that Montreal will succeed in its second quest of the Summer Olympics.

"We lost by only one vote to Munich." The West German city was awarded the 1972 Olympics.

Other cities seeking the Olympics for the summer of 1976 are Los Angeles, Moscow and Florence, Italy.

Montreal began its campaign for the 1976 Olympics in 1968, when it got the approval of the Canadian Olympic Association. Its application was formally presented to IOC president Avery Brundage by Mayor Drapeau earlier this month in Chicago.

Mr. Drapeau told the news conference that recent Canadian criticism of Mr. Brundage over the circumstances that caused Canada's withdrawal from the world hockey championship will have no effect upon Montreal's Olympic bid.

Huck Quits Nats, Open for Offers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Fran Huck, a five-year veteran of Canada's national hockey team and one of the team's top scorers, has resigned from the team.

"I just can't see any incentive for continuing hockey on an exhibition basis against senior teams," the 24-year-old centre said Wednesday.

Huck was one of several veteran national team members whose hockey futures were uncertain after Canada's sudden withdrawal from the 1970 world hockey tournament two weeks ago.

Huck is the property of Montreal Canadiens, but he consistently turned down professional offers, playing instead with the Nationals and completing his education.

Huck said he intends to play hockey professionally next season, but he said "schooling comes first for the remainder of the (1969-70) season." He is in his fifth year of law at University of Manitoba.

The five-foot seven centre said he would consider a professional offer for the remainder of the season, but only with an arrangement for completing his degree.

Murphy Dies After Mets Realize Dream

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Murphy, whose long baseball career was climaxed by the New York Mets' stunning 1969 World Series victory, died Wednesday night in hospital of a heart attack.

A native New Yorker and former star relief pitcher for the Yankees, the 61-year-old Murphy had held the position of Mets' general manager since Dec. 21, 1967, following Bing Devine's unexpected resignation and return to St. Louis Cardinals.

Murphy had served as the Mets' supervisor of scouting since their inception in 1961.

He pitched for the Yankees from 1934 to 1947, helping them win seven American League pennants and six world championships. He was one of the game's first standout relief specialists and compiled a career won-lost record of 93-52.

Since Murphy was stricken, his duties have been handled by a triumvirate of vice-president Jim Johnson: Joe McDonald, director of minor league operations, and Bob Scheffing, special assignment scout and former major league manager.

A Met spokesman said this setup will continue to operate the club for the remainder of the season.

Sport Briefs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals of the National League announced Wednesday the signing of ace righthander Bob Gibson for a reported $125,000. Only centre fielder Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants is believed to top the salary figure of Gibson, who ranks with Dizzy Dean as the only Cardinal to win 20 games in four seasons. Gibson, within reach of the league career strikout record of 2,583 held by former Milwaukee Braves' hurler Warren Spahn, is holder of six Cardinal records. He struck out 269 batters in 1969, ranking second to the Chicago Cubs' Ferguson Jenkins, and has 2,119 strikeouts for his 11 major league seasons.

TORONTO (CP)—Red Jacket, one of Canada's most successful racing yachts, is up for sale. "I'm going to put her on the market for a month," owner Perry Connolly of Toronto said Wednesday. "She'll be offered to the end of February. If there are no takers at the price we want, - - - I'm going to crank her up for racing next season." Launched in 1956 at Oakville, the 40-foot sloop won 11 of 13 races on Lake Ontario in her first season. Red Jacket gained international fame in 1968 when she won the five-race Southern Ocean Racing Conference series off Florida. The Canadian sloop also won the Lipton Cup twice in succession in three SORC competitions.

WINDSOR (CP) — University of Windsor Lancers' home court basketball winning streak was cut at 50 games Wednesday when the University of Guelph Gryphons scored five points in the final 12 seconds to post a 75-69 Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association victory. The Lancers had not lost an O-QAA game at home since the late stages of the 1960-61.

OSD Broomball, Hockey Teams Do Bit for Centennial Celebration

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Canada's amateur team may have dropped out of world hockey, but the Ontario School for the Deaf, Belleville has assumed the now familiar role of facing a top foreign power in international hockey competition.

The event is OSD's Centennial Hockey and Broomball tournament, athletically marking 100 years of operation for the school, this Saturday at the Belleville Arena.

Gallaudet College of Washington, D.C. heads a list of four schools for the deaf that will be challenging the Belleville hosts for first - place honors. Other teams include the Ontario School for the Deaf at Milton and entries from the Eastern Ontario Athletic Association for the Deaf and the Detroit Lions counterpart.

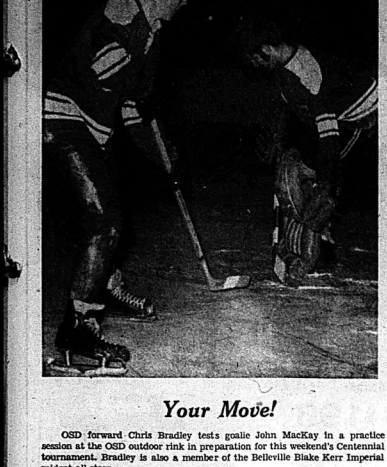
Belleville O.S.D. Athletic Director Hyatle Bryant feels that Gallaudet represents the main challenge. Surprisingly enough despite the Southern latitude, the Americans enjoy good hockey facilities and competition. According to Bryant, "Their team plays in either Baltimore or Washington and they compete regularly all winter. They played here two years ago against a strong team and looked very impressive."

All schools will enter student hockey teams in the competition and Belleville and Milton have both staff and student broomball teams.

Although not counting in the official standings, both Milton and Belleville staff have entered hockey teams, and this game appears to be the source of more than a little rivalry. Included in the 15 members of Belleville's staff team will be Bryant, himself, and former Junior B star Doug Folis of Shirley.

Despite the fact that only about one - half of the players can hear the whistle, it offers no serious problems and only the usual visual signals are given. Players with serious hearing defects are able to see when the others stop and play rarely continues after an infraction.

Participation in athletics at OSD is above average, reports the athletic director, "although we have a smaller number of students to choose from than the average high school, the number of entrants is just as great."



The school takes part in all the major sports besides hockey, including football, basketball, volleyball and track and field.

The most serious drawback confronting the deaf athlete is that of communicating quickly with his teammates, which is often essential in team sports. In football, for instance, the offence must watch the ball or the reaction of the opposing players, thereby losing a split-second advantage.

Sports played in a relatively small, enclosed area such as volleyball, present no problems.

About 150 athletes will compete in Saturday's tournament, beginning at 8.00 a.m. and continuing through until 10.00 p.m. at night.

Top performers for the Belleville hockey include track star Ted Mainielow, Danny Tullock and Samir Saab.

Mo-Hawk Fans Take to Road

Some of their more ardent supporters want to join the Belleville Mo-Hawks Saturday night in giving Galt Hornets a cool reception back to Ontario's senior hockey wars.

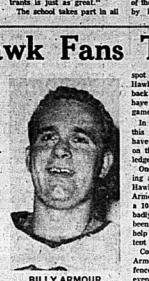
The Mo-Hawk Booster Club is trying to organize a fan bus to Galt scheduled to leave the Memorial Arena at 3.30 Saturday afternoon.

A $6 price tag covers two - way transportation and admission to the game, first for the Hornets after the Allan Cup champions' recent European tour.

Interested persons are asked to phone 962-2605 or 962-1353 (evenings) no later than Friday night.

Currently tied in the eight-team Senior A league's third spot with Oakville, the Mo-Hawks are only two points back of second-place Galt, but have played three more games.

In four meetings to date this season, the Mo-Hawks have a pair of wins and a tie on the plus side of the point ledger against the Hornets.



One of the Mo-Hawks playing a dual role for the Mo-Hawks these days is Billy Armour. Since returning from a 10 - game layoff due to a badly cut hand, Armour has been doing double duty to help offset the team's persistent defence corps problems.

Coach Davey Jones said Armour will again play defence this weekend in the event Lou Kazowski's back injury sidelines him. With Wayne Brown out for two weeks after suffering a concussion last Friday against Barrie, Lionel Boily and Greg Marchen are the only two "100 per cent" defencemen in the lineup.

In the four games he has played since leaving the sick list, Armour has been in on seven Mo-Hawk goals.

Despite playing only 17 of the club's 28 games, Armour ranks as the team's sixth-highest scorer with 22 points.

According to coach Jones, Armour may find himself playing centre to the newest Mo-Hawk addition — NHL veteran Lorne Ferguson — when the 39-year-old "rookie" is expected to make his first appearance Tuesday night against Kingston Aces.

BILLY ARMOUR

For example, Quinte and Trenton Figure Skating Clubs — with a combined membership of nearly 400 — have only selected 13 entries between them for the three - day competition.

Eleven of these are drawn from the Belleville club, while Trenton's 217 - member skating organization has entered two junior ladies in the 100 - skater competition.

Registrations are open at noon tomorrow at Trenton's Community Gardens, with skating in the first annual Eastern Ontario Sectionals running through until Sunday's 6 p.m. presentation ceremonies.

Some 40 clubs will be represented and 15 world - calibre judges will select those deemed capable enough to compete in the Jan. 29-31 Canadian Figure Skating Championships-in-Edmonton.

No Quinte Figure Skating Club member has ever advanced to the national competition, but professionals Bonnie Bounsy and Gordon Crossland have high hopes for Patsy Jean Allore and Michael Fitzgibbon, who will skate in Junior Pairs on Saturday night's 7-10 p.m. program at Trenton's Community Gardens.

TERRY MEAGHER

Juniors' Meagher Running Fifth

Who knows how many trophies members of the Ellis Printers might be in the running for if they had a first - place team?

Now sharing the s/t - team Eastern Ontario Junior B basement with Trenton Golden Hawks, the Ellis Juniors boast two of the league's top nine scorers.

Right - winger Terry Meagher's 16 goals and 21 assists rank him as the league's fifth - highest point - getter, six points behind Oshawa Crushmen's Jim Robson's leading total.

And, despite half a dozen absences from Ellis games, forward John McConnell's 29 points (11 goals, 18 assists) make him the league's number nine point - getter.

No member of either Trenton Golden Hawks or fourth-place Cobourg Cougars are included in the loop's top, 15 scorers.

Kapp's Year Capped

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Joe Kapp, who led Minnesota Vikings to the National Football League championship, was named Wednesday as the December winner in the S. Rae Hickok Pro Athlete of the Year poll.

Kapp received 51 first place votes and 189 points. Golfer Arnold Palmer was second with 15 first and 82 points. Daryle Lamonica, quarterback of Oakland Raiders of the American Football League, was third with 8 and 49.

GARY BOWERMAN

Bowerman Misses Out

The tough realities of the United States professional golf tour have already been brought home to Belleville native Gary Bowerman.

One of a dozen budding pros to pick up a USPGA card for the 1970 tour, the 28 - year - old Bowerman arrived at Phoenix this week to see if he'll cross qualifying for a mere 15 spots available in the tour's second stop of the year.

Via telephone from California last night, Bowerman said parents Steve and Joy Bowerman of Bertram Boulevard he shot a 79, while 70's were playing off for the 15 open berths in the $100,000 Phoenix Open.

Bowerman's next attempt at getting his foot in the tour door will come Monday, when he shoots his qualifying round for the prestigious Bing Crosby event at Pebble Beach.

Bowerman will have the encouragement of Canadian golf's most talented company.

He will be traveling the circuit with Toronto pros Al Balding and George Knudson.

Lancers Just Sit

Loyalist Lancers could be league-leaders in their first year of basketball competition, but the decision is out of their hands.

The Lancers dropped a 48-47 heart-breaker to Sir Sandford Fleming's LitKay champs team Tuesday to finish off their season in the five - team intercollegiate league with a 6-2 record.

Their seventh win was a forfeit gift from Peterborough Bible College last week.

But whether the Lancers get first place and a playoff bye or go into a playoff with the third-place finishers, depends on the outcome of Peterborough Teachers' College's final game.

The Teachers, with a 5-2 record, would be awarded top spot in the event they recorded their sixth win, since they scored more points than Loyalist as the teams split wins against one another.

Paul Goodfellow paced the Lancers in their one-point Tuesday loss, hooping 28 points. Rick Webster added ten, and Bill McKay seven.

Stakes Changed

A pair of Belleville harness racing fixtures were given special attention at last night's meeting of the Quinte Exhibition board of directors.

Quinte Exhibition president Cameron Bunnett announced that the annual fair's harness racing classic, originated as the Black Diamond Stake Race in 1964, would henceforth be known as the Quinte Greenleaf Memorial Stake.

The late family of Belleville will share the sponsorship of the Greenleaf Memorial with the Exhibition board.

The race has attracted bigger and better fields since its inception, with last year's winners splitting a purse of $1,300.

Also on last night's board agenda was the approval of a life membership in the Belleville Agricultural Society for Gerald Vance, chairman of the Black Diamond Stake race committee since the event was inaugurated and a long-familiar face around the Belleville Fairgrounds harness circuit.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"You were saying something about more changes, Mrs. Butterworth?"

Dire Warnings About Pill Aired

WASHINGTON (CP) — A hearing on the dangers of the birth control pill, interrupted briefly Wednesday by three women spectators, brought some dire warnings from medical researchers, but no call to remove oral contraceptives from the market.

The opening session of two days of testimony before a Senate subcommittee heard warnings of birth defects, cancer, blood clots, infertility and unknown long-range complications "too frightening to consider."

The women—one pregnant—sitting in a spectators' gallery crammed with females, demanded to know why no women had been called to testify.

Dr. Hugh Davis of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, led off the list of noted medical researchers, including Dr. David Carr of McMaster University in Hamilton, Ont.

"It is medically unsound," said Dr. Davis, "to administer such powerful synthetic hormones in order to achieve birth control objectives which can be reached by simple means of greater safety."

He said the increase in the use of oral contraceptives in the last 10 years has given rise to health hazards on a scale previously unknown to medicine. An estimated 8,000,000 women in the United States alone were using the pill.

"Never in history have so many individuals taken such potent drugs with so little information available as to actual and potential hazards," he said, describing it as a massive experiment with millions of healthy women.

Comparing the agents in oral contraceptives to an iceberg, Dr. Davis said only the obvious problems have surfaced, such as blood clots which British researchers have established claim 30 lives for each 1,000,000 users.

"The nagging spectre of cancer remains," he said, besides the unknown hazards of diabetes and hardening of arteries.

"Breast cancers have been induced in at least five different species of animals by treatment with the same synthetic hormones being marketed in oral contraceptives."

He would not, however, advocate their withdrawal from the market because "they are extremely valuable" for the treatment of many diseases and conditions in gynecology.

Instead he recommended that continuous use of oral contraceptives be limited to a two-year period.

Dr. Carr gave the results of a study conducted in London, Ont. hospitals of miscarriages suffered by women who became pregnant within six months of discontinuing oral contraceptives and of normal miscarriages.

Typhoid Ties Up Liner

VANCOUVER (CP) — Medical tests continued today in the search for the source of typhoid aboard the P and O liner Oronsay—stalled here indefinitely with yellow quarantine flags flying.

"It could be someone who had it perhaps 28, or 30, or 40 years ago," said a medical health officer here. "And he'd be no problem unless he handles food. It's probably a food-handler, all right."

Wednesday, after the liner docked here en route from England to Australia with 1,045 passengers, 17 crew members and one male passenger were taken to hospitals with suspected cases of the infectious disease.

Earlier, when the liner visited California, six crew members were taken ashore. Five proved to have typhoid. Tests on the sixth did not confirm typhoid but he is being treated for it.

The liner had been scheduled to leave Vancouver Wednesday evening for Honolulu. P and O agreed to hold her here for at least 48 hours and await a will make a further decision Friday.

Doctors started tests on the 580 crew members—and some 20 passengers who informed doctors they had had typhoid in the past. Results are expected Friday or Saturday, authorities said.

Crew members and 900 passengers remained on board. The 145 passengers whose final destination was Vancouver were allowed to leave; doctors said they will keep track of them.

Three hundred passengers were to have boarded the Oronsay here but were not allowed aboard. They were temporarily housed in a sister ship, the Oriana, which is berthed here until Friday.

P and O offered free typhoid shots but Dr. G. A. Mott, deputy health officer for Vancouver, said inoculations has "limitation" and doctors would prefer to track down the carrier.

Once that is done, he said, the outbreak of typhoid would slowly die down. The incubation period is one to three weeks, so further cases could appear in that time, he said in an interview.

Levesque Expects Big Vote

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, Wednesday forecast his party would get 25 per cent of the popular vote in Quebec's provincial election later this year.

A 10 per cent or lower vote for his party is "unthinkable" he told a news conference.

The party, he said, expects to win between 10 and 15 of the 108 ridings in the province, but the significance of the election will be in the popular vote.

He told an audience at the University of Western Ontario, where he was speaking at a conference, Canada: One Nation or Two... that the long-held dream of Quebec sovereignty is coming closer.

"It is bound to change your lives because it is going to change the shape of the country and it is important that you open your minds to the possibilities."

Quebec will save enormous amounts of money under the Parti Quebecois program to do away with the military, Mr. Levesque said. The Quebec state would not maintain an armed force nor make military alliances.

"Who is going to attack us?" he asked. "Quebec will not attack Canada, nor would Canada attack Quebec. We shouldn't maintain troops for that. If we did we would not be civilized. We would just be primitive tribes."

Man Admits Strangling His Wife

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — John Sokolowsky, in a statement to police which was read at his non-capital murder trial Wednesday, said he strangled his 49-year-old wife Albina in the front bedroom of their London home.

The statement was taken in Ukrainian by acting Corporal Alex Golovchenko of the London police department after the body of Mrs. Sokolowsky was found in the house June 5, 1969.

Besides describing what had happened at the house, Sokolowsky told him about a dream or nightmare he had. Acting Corporal Golovchenko said.

"He felt he was in a warehouse with no windows. There were strings wrapped crisscross. He could hear voices that were planning to rob a bank and kill him."

Later, when the statement was taken at the city police station, he would "answer a question and then wander off into his nightmare," the officer told Crown Attorney M. E. Martin.

Users Better Informed On Drugs Than Doctors

TORONTO (CP) — Hospital workers were told Wednesday that many persons in Metropolitan Toronto who take drugs as an experiment know more than doctors about treating bad drug reactions.

Dr. Earl Dunn, general practitioner at Sunnybrook Hospital, said many young people are more knowledgeable about drugs than most professionals and that doctors and hospitals have to acquire this knowledge.

Dr. Dunn was speaking during a panel discussion arranged to give hospital workers greater understanding of the professionals role in treating patients on drugs.

Other panel members were Dr. S. J. Holmes, a psychiatrist, and Judy Johnson, supervisor at the Jewish Family and Child Service. Dr. Ian Hecker, psychiatrist-in-chief at Wellesley Hospital, acted as moderator.

The panel agreed that hospital workers must learn to accept the drug patient as a sick person needing treatment, rather than regarding him as, in Miss Johnson's words, "a dirty, rotten hippie."

Dr. Dunn said hospital emergency departments must receive drug patients differently, treating them immediately rather than subjecting them to a long admissions procedure.

He said nothing concrete is being done to provide facilities for drug abusers, although attempts are being made.

Bill Requires Statements

OTTAWA (CP) — A government bill that will require large federally-incorporated corporations to make public annual financial statements got second reading in the Commons Wednesday, but not before the New Democrats got in some more licks at the foreign ownership of many Canadian businesses.

John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview) said that with the intrusion of foreign capital, Canada had become a branch-plant economy "and the intention of these branch plant companies is to serve the domestic market, not world markets."

The Commons also resumed debate Wednesday on the proposed Canada water act which Energy Minister J. J. Greene has described as a measure to preserve, enhance and restore Canadian waters.

The bill, at second reading, ran into a snag when Louis Comeau (PC—South Western Nova) said the bill is badly drafted and moved an amendment asking that it be sent back to Mr. Greene's office for rewriting. The amendment was not immediately accepted by the chair and was to be ruled on today.

Mr. Caspan said the bill as it now reads didn't spell out federal authority nor was any money allocated to fight pollution.

Alfred D. Hales (PC—Wellington), the only Conservative to speak Wednesday, said he welcomed the protection the bill would give to investors, creditors and to the public generally.

But he took issue with those who looked upon "corporate businesses and the owners of big companies . . . as the big bad boys who cause all the trouble in this country."

'Having' Charge Said Dropped

TORONTO (CP) — Constable Ian Samuel told a police commission inquiry Wednesday that an inspector and "a higher authority" squelched his attempt in October, 1964, to charge a Toronto man with possession of an open bottle of brandy.

Constable Samuel said the charge against Abe Manheim, 66, of having liquor in an illegal place would have called for "about a $10 fine."

But he said Inspector Harry Fielding told him the case would not go to court.

Constable Samuel said he stopped Manheim shortly after midnight Oct. 4, 1964, and found part of a bottle of brandy and an empty wine glass on the floor of his car. He said the glass smelled of alcohol and he noted that Manheim showed slight signs of intoxication.

He said he was convinced Manheim was not suffering the effects of alcohol enough to warrant an impaired driving charge so he let him go. But he said he told him he would receive a summons for having an open bottle in a public place.

"A few days later I was called to Inspector Fielding's office and told the charge was not going to progress any further on instructions from his superiors," Constable Samuel said.

Insp. Fielding testified he could not remember the case, that no one in high authority had phoned home and that he believed the summons had been misdirected in the department's summons office.

Constable Samuel also testified that in 1963 he charged a man with drunk and careless driving, but that the drunk driving charge was dropped after intervention by Deputy Chief John Murray.

When the case came up for trial the man was fined $50 for careless driving, he said.

Gregory Says CIA Behind Assassins

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — John F. Kennedy, Martin Luther King and Malcolm X were assassinated by CIA "patsies," Dick Gregory said in London Wednesday.

Gregory was the United States' leading black comedian until he gave up his million-dollar-a-year career a few years ago to devote himself to the civil rights movement.

He lectured at the University of Western Ontario Wednesday, and taped a segment of the television show, Under Attack.

Lee Harvey Oswald, killer of President Kennedy, and James Earl Ray, who shot Dr. King, were the "patsies used by the Central Intelligence Agency," said Mr. Gregory.

Evidence of the CIA complicity in the murders, he said, was the fact Ray had thousands of dollars in his possession when arrested in London, England.

This "was never reported in the U.S. press," Mr. Gregory said.

He also charged that the CIA circulated the wrong fingerprints to police departments when Ray was being sought for the shooting of King.

Judge to Read LaMarsh Book

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chief Justice J. O. Wilson of British Columbia Supreme Court said Wednesday he will read Judy LaMarsh's book, Memoirs of a Bird in a Gilded Cage, before next Monday.

He is the judge hearing broadcaster Ed Murphy's libel suit against Miss LaMarsh, over the description of him in the book as "a brash young radio reporter . . . heartily detested by most of the press gallery and members."

In court Wednesday, Miss LaMarsh denied libel and claimed the book made fair comment. She said the statement applied to Mr. Murphy's standing as a reporter, not what he is like as a person.

The former federal cabinet minister said she did not believe the statement would damage Mr. Murphy. On the contrary, she said, it was an jackrowledgement of the efficiency of the job he had done.

The idea that a hard-digging reporter may not be too popular with politicians was given support Wednesday by Charles Lynch, head of Southam News Service, and Jack Webster, New Westminster broadcaster.

Mr. Lynch, a parliamentary press gallery member since 1947, said politicians "should be angry with you if you are doing your job well."

And Mr. Webster said: "Being detested by a politician is almost a badge of honor."

The case was adjourned to Monday.

Cruelty Redefined By Court of Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Court of Appeal, redefining cruelty, has reversed an Ontario Supreme Court decision and awarded a divorce to a woman who had applied on the grounds of cruelty.

In announcing its decision, the appeal court said the earlier judgment, handed down by Mr. Justice Eric G. Moorhouse, had applied an outdated definition of cruelty in refusing the woman a divorce.

The appeal, heard last Dec. 12 by Mr. Justices Walter F. Schroeder, Arthur Kelly Bora Laskin, said Mr. Justice Moorhouse was wrong in turning the woman down because her husband's cruelty did not establish "danger to life, limb or health."

The woman's application also claimed there had been a permanent breakdown of the marriage because of husband's "gross addiction to alcohol."

Mr. Justice Schroeder, who wrote the appeal judgment made public recently, said Mr. Justice Moorhouse erred in apparently thinking the old definition of cruelty was not affected by the wording of the new divorce law, a recent amendment to the Criminal Code.

The wording says one spouse can obtain a divorce if the other is guilty of "physical or mental cruelty of such a kind as to render intolerable the continued cohabitation of the spouses."

Said the Appeal Court judgment:

"If in the marriage relationship one spouse by his conduct causes wanton, malicious or unnecessary infliction of pain or suffering upon the body, the feelings or emotions of the other, his conduct may well constitute cruelty which will entitle a petitioner to dissolution of the marriage . . . if in the court's opinion, it amounts to physical or mental cruelty of such a kind as to render intolerable the continued cohabitation of the spouses.

"That is the standard which the courts are to apply—and the old rule had to go."

France Thought Main Arms Supplier to Biafra

By Reuters

The end of the Nigerian civil war with the collapse of Biafran resistance has left one key question still shrouded in mystery: Where did Biafra get the arms to keep fighting for 30 months?

Britain and the Soviet Union openly supplied military assistance to the Nigerian federal government in Lagos—in Britain's case despite considerable parliamentary and public concern.

But no country admitted to bolstering Biafra's armed forces by supplying aircraft, tanks, guns or ammunition.

Many Nigerians believe France was the main supplier of arms to Biafra.

Portugal also was named as an arms supplier. The Lagos government charged the Portuguese last month with complicity in the civil war.

A London newspaper, The Daily Telegraph, reported last August that South Africa had begun to rival France as the main supplier of arms for Biafra." The report said South Africa was supplying field guns, mortars and land mines to the Biafrans.

Dollar 'Lost' Almost Nickel

It cost $104.60 last month to buy what $100 bought in December, 1968.

But for those on fixed pensions or other forms of fixed income, $100 "lost" month would buy only $95.60 worth of the goods and services most in demand among urban families.

These calculations result from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics' announcement Wednesday that its consumer price index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, rose in December to 127.9 from 127.4 in November and 122.3 in December, 1968.

In percentage terms, the increase from December to December was 4.6 per cent. This showed some moderation, compared with the year-to-year increases of five per cent and more last summer.

But for the average industrial wage and salary-earner, income rose faster than prices. In November—the latest month for which figures are available—the average of wages and salaries paid in a broad cross-section of industry, including manufacturing, was $122.05 a week. A year earlier, it was $113.37.

Government statisticians and economists have several ways of measuring inflation.

One is through the consumer price index, which measures the change in price each month of about 300 goods and services which were most significant in the spending habits of urban families on low and medium incomes.

DBS said Wednesday food prices rose sharply in December, after falling during the late summer and fall months. For the year, food prices were up 4.3 per cent from December, 1968.

The largest gain last year in the important sectors of the over-all index was in the cost of housing and household operations, up 5.5 per cent.

Northern Electric Drops Price Boost

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government's attempts to stem inflation received another boost Wednesday with announcement that major copper fabricators will follow producers in reversing recent price increases.

K. H. Woodley, vice-president of marketing for Northern Electric Co. Ltd. of Montreal, said the company is withdrawing price increases on copper wire and cable which would have "reflected the full extent of the 16 per-cent price rise by producers."

A spokesman for Pirelli Cables Ltd. of Montreal said the company is rescinding planned price increases with the proviso that contracts involving deliveries beyond March 1 will allow for price increases should producers reinstate their price rises.

T. A. Lindsay, president of Phillips Cables Ltd. of Brockville, Ont., said price increases would be suspended but added it was "irresponsible" of the producers to say they will reinstall their increases after March 1.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson told the Commons Tuesday that copper producers had agreed to temporarily suspend a nine-cent increase, to 66 cents a pound, which went into effect Jan. 1.

Nickel Oxide Chips Stolen

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Wednesday that $50,000 worth of nickel oxide chips, stolen Monday, may be sold for up to $250,000 on the United States black market.

Police say the recent strike at International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. has caused a flourishing black market in the U.S., run by organized crime.

The nickel oxide chips, produced in Copper Cliff, Ont., were en route to the Dominion Steel Co. plant in Hamilton when they were stolen, along with a $25,000 tractor trailer, from a west-end trucking company lot.

The theft was not reported until Tuesday, police said.

Eaton's, Simpson's Will Increase Interest

TORONTO (CP) — Two of Canada's largest retailers—The T. Eaton Co. Ltd. and Simpsons Ltd.—will increase interest charges on credit accounts effective in March, it was announced Wednesday.

Spokesmen for both retailers cited the cost of money as an important factor in the interest rate increases.

TV Column

Three 'Specials' Shown In One TV Evening

NEW YORK (AP) — It was one of those NBC "multi-special nights" Wednesday—three programs in rapid succession, each designed to create fun, laughter and a touch of well-being.

The 3½ hours had marked ups and downs, but there was considerable diversity, some pleasant singing and dancing, lots of stars and, once in a while, a chuckle.

The evening started with a pilot show for a series, The Shamefal Secrets of Hastings Mansion, a black-face comedy that was a parody of Peyton Place, every soap opera on the air and the courtroom scenarios—Perry Mason.

Hastings Corners had its mysteries, but it has arrived a couple of seasons too late: Peyton Place and Perry Mason have departed into reruns and the daytime soap operas are rarely seen by the male half of the night-time audience, so the satire was lost.

Next was a pleasant hour of song, dance and wry sketches built around the unpredictability of womankind.

Gene Kelly starred in The Wonderful World of Girls, strolling easily through his musical numbers and handling the sketches nimbly. He had some expert help from Barbara Feldon and Ruth Buzzi but the show dragged occasionally because there was little or no unpredictability about the sketch material.

Rowan and Martin followed with a special dedicated to one of television's favorite games, making fun of television. The show kidded, in sketches and blackouts, everything from TV news departments to the commercials.

They, too, had some expert help—Carol Burnett, the Smothers Brothers, Sammy Davis Jr. and cameo appearances by other stars.

One series of blackouts was pegged on the premise that television had changed the course of history: the Titanic changed course in mid-Atlantic to pick up a better TV signal.

The stars, while involved in a lot of costume changing and parts in the sketches, stuck pretty close to their functions in Laugh-in and were rarely the cause for much hilarity.

'Catastrophic' Death Rate Feared

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Edward Johnson, director of Canadrelief, Canada's church-sponsored Biafran relief organization, Wednesday said the death rate will be "catastrophic" if Nigeria stands behind its rejection of foreign relief.

"If for reasons simply of pride, Gen. Gowon and his government were to make 5,000,000 people face death, this would be one of the most monstrous acts of recent history."

Dr. Johnson, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, said in an interview he knows of no organizations besides those who have flown into Biafra capable of taking food into the area.

"At the present time in Biafra there are 5,000,000 people who we know are absolutely without food and have been for four or five days.

CONVENIENCE AND THEN SOME

The accent is on plenty of useful space in this sturdily constructed two storey brick at 81 Keller Drive, in Ponton Park. Just a drive by, then phone us for an inspection visit. First floor has separate dining room, living room, and eating area in the kitchen. Four larger than usual bedrooms and 4-piece bath on second floor. Deep level lot will give you enjoyment and a chance to express your artistry when you decide it for a garden or outdoor living area. Only $27,900. with 6¼% N.H.A. mortgage.

THE MOST "FOR SALE" HOUSE IN TOWN

The house is vacant, and is looking to sell fast. Financing can be arranged and you can practically name your own terms. The house itself has no apologies to make since it features 3 bedrooms, separate dining room, brick garage, hot water heating and an excellent neighborhood. Well maintained, inside and out and will worth looking at for $23,900. Give us a call.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"
By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Some Chest Pains Not from Heart

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have severe chest pains. After three weeks of this and no improvement I went to a doctor. He ran an electrocardiogram and took an X-ray of my chest. He said he could not find anything wrong with my heart. He said it was due to pressure from my chest bone against my ribs.

I am 32 years old, work in an office. I am an information clerk which is a job that is quite strenuous and gets on one's nerves.

I had rheumatic fever as a child but no heart complications at the time. I have two children in school and my schedule is that of a full-time mother, worker and wife.

I am worried because these pains do not go away. Do you think I should see a heart specialist or just take my doctor's word for it? I feel he may have overlooked something. Heart trouble seems to run in our family on both sides. The pain is getting me down and it has taken all my energy. I hope you see fit to answer my letter. — Mrs. K.

Comment: A few years ago I wrote a book (now out of print) called "Heart Worry and Its Cure." My reason for writing it was to bring comfort and advice to people like yourself who are concerned about heart disease.

In R I stressed: Whenever in doubt about your doctor has told you, it is advisable to ask for consultation with a heart specialist. Otherwise, unduly frightened people will go through life thinking they have heart disease although their heart is a healthy organ.

Sometimes chest pains are due to abnormally sensitive ribs where they join the breast bone; or to neuritis, arthritis, bursitis.

You say that your job is getting you down." Tension can easily exaggerate a person's discomforts. Perhaps change of work may help. But what's most important is to get another opinion to set your mind at ease. Otherwise you will become a member of the large army of cardiophobes who go through life worrying about healthy hearts.

• • •

For Mrs. S.: A panhysterectomy means that ovaries, tubes and uterus are removed. A hysterectomy signifies removal of the uterus. No, it is not possible to menstruate after panhysterectomy.

• • •

For Mrs. S.: With your history of troublesome varicose veins and attacks of thrombophlebitis I would not take the "pill" before consulting with an obstetrician or gynecologist. There have been some reports of unfavorable association between taking the pill and thrombophlebitis — and other circulatory disorders. Better play it safe. Let your doctor make the decision.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My one daughter seems to get a rash, when she wears a ring. Her skin breaks out and gets itchy. It seems when cheap metal touches her skin she breaks out like this. Also, around her cheeks when she wears metal clips to fix her hair, and around her legs where her metal clasps in her girdle touch her skin. Is there a reason? — Mrs. P.

Comment: This is likely a form of allergy causing contact dermatitis. Nickel is a common cause. Perhaps this is the reason for your daughter's trouble. But the only way to find the specific irritant is to have an allergist go on the diagnostic trail.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Can you please advise if there are any special types of vitamins which can help prolong a man's vigor and vitality? Past approaching the age of 60. I would (if possible) like to stretch out a few more years. — Mr. C.

Comment: Unfortunately, the answer is no. However, a well-rounded diet containing normal vitamin requirements is generally beneficial at any age.

Separate School Critic Draws Angry Response

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Charges have been levelled by Roman Catholic religious and lay persons that the Divine Word Centre in London is using its quarters as a "sounding board for renegade Catholic" priests, executive director Dr. Beryl Orris said Wednesday.

He said the centre is still receiving telephone calls and letters following a talk last Thursday by Rev. Edward Boyce, of Toronto, head of the Redemptorist Order for Eastern Canada, in which he said separate schools are out of date and should be integrated into the public school system.

While Father Boyce insisted his opinion that any school, public or private, not doing its job should be scrapped was a strictly personal one, callers have assumed the centre reflects the same attitude,

Strictly Personal

Old Forget Their Youth

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

Man arrives at old age having largely forgotten what it was like to be young, and being largely ignorant about what it is like to be old — so while his opinion should be heeded on areas falling within his special competence and experience, his opinion on generational living is useless.

• • •

Whenever someone makes a statement starting "Human beings are nothing but . . ." be wary of what follows, for he is sure to be committing the sin of "reductionism"; the only honest and accurate predicate that can follow such a statement is "Human beings are nothing but human beings."

• • •

The best way to start a grim day is to think of people starting it in hospital beds, on battlefields, and in prisons — to get a necessary perspective on our own life situation.

• • •

Since the pay is so poor, and the hours so uncertain, one might wonder why some men turn to espionage as an occupation; the best psychological explanation was offered by Johann Nestroy, when he observed: "Spying is a fine thing — except for the enjoyments of a thief and still remain an honest man."

• • •

Pity there is no modern equivalent to take the place of that fine old obsolete epithet: "coxcomb."

• • •

Perhaps the largest irony of public health today is that nearly every month medical science is finding new and better diagnostic and pre-diagnostic techniques for detecting different ailments — but the follow-up and therapeutic programs remain as confused, dilatory, and haphazard as ever before.

• • •

There are two principal forms of practical intelligence: knowing how to act in a crisis, and understanding what must be done to avert the crisis; unfortunately, statesmen who possess the former lack the latter, so that they are always getting us out of fires their own insensitivity has got us into.

• • •

Possibly the most useful maxim ever expressed in so few words is Samuel Taylor Coleridge's: "No man does anything from a single motive." (Recognition of this would dent most of the poison out of fanatical behavior.)

• • •

Sex, in our society, has been hypostatized as a substance or object, which it is not, rather than regarded as a process, which it is; thus, we mistreat it as something to be achieved rather than to be realized.

• • •

Work is healing if it gives you no time to brood, but it is soul-killing if it gives you no time to brood, but it is soul-killing if it gives you no time (a disposition) to think.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For January 16

Your birthday today: Your success this year depends on the conquest of some needless but real psychological limitations. You will have to figure things out for yourself and discover the encouraging truth about your capabilities. Friends, loved ones are not always kept in close enough touch during such a campaign of self-realization; resolve to do more for them as go. Your inspirations are noted for their impatience.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Early morning decisions spark a forward-moving day. Keep at it full time. There is extra money or some momentary advantage available. The evening favors romantic expression.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You should profit enough some intuitive estimate today. Inside knowledge is often at your command without your having to seek it. Cultural pursuits, especially if you join forces with active enthusiasts, fill the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): If you must keep some business confidential, work on it today. Your executive ability is at a peak now. The evening is for simple pleasures and pastimes.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your involvement of others now comes back to you with added emphasis. Commence future planning for group enterprises. The coming weekend depends on what you achieve this morning.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Be a good listener once you get going. Early morning talks. New equipment bought now is quite likely a good investment. Social activity fills the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your surroundings are much lighter in spirit and quality than usual lately. Rise to the occasion. Take a journey to new places or try new ways of getting where you normally go.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Partnerships in practical matters are decidedly essential; team up with somebody you know well and go ahead. The approach should pay off handsomely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You get farther and faster with simple self-improvement efforts now. Let results rather than talk persuade your stubborn associates, neighbors. If you do not press them, friends are remarkably helpful now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): The initiative is yours now. Persistent effort finally brings improved results near the end of the workday. The evening is quite full of fascinating. Present your side of the debate thoroughly where it is meaningful.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Working tools, mechanical equipment can be purchased to good advantage today. Follow the intuitions of the morning hours — they give you more than enough to fill day and into the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Bring financial matters to agreements get set for the long pull. Domestic affairs stand a bit of reorganizing as well, but get done early.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Errands, delayed visits to people in institutions are in order. Clear up the loose ends of pending matters, both personal and business. Somebody near you is promised a stroke of luck. Plan a quiet evening.

Know Your Carrier

Are you acquainted with your Intelligencer Carrier? You should be. Ask his name and telephone number and place it in a convenient safe place. Better still jot it down in the Number Finder in your telephone book.

Your Intelligencer Carrier wishes to give you the very best service possible. It is an important part of his training as an independent young businessman to maintain good customer relations.

Occasionally a carrier misses or overlooks delivery to a regular subscriber. We have found that most service errors are unintentional. Sometimes a carrier is ill and finds it necessary to use a substitute carrier to deliver his route.

Should you miss your Intelligencer any evening call your carrier first. You will save time and inconvenience if you call your carrier first. Your carrier will appreciate your thoughtfulness in giving him an opportunity to correct his error and protect his profits. If for any reason you are unable to contact your carrier then call, The Intelligencer, Circulation Dept.

U.S. Report Suggests Canada Get Oil Market in 'Energy' Deal

WASHINGTON (CP) — The U.S. committee on oil will suggest to President Nixon the possibility of an eventual vast increase in Canadian imports — the figure 2,000,000 barrels a day by 1980 is mentioned in a qualified manner—but ties the proposal to Canadian co-operation in a continental energy policy.

A draft of one section of the report by the cabinet-level committee assigned to the task of devising an oil policy says that any element of "Canadian preference" should be "contingent upon the development of common or harmonized policies" on petroleum and related energy matters.

The draft—a copy of which was acquired Wednesday—urges over-all that the present system of quotas on imports be replaced by a tariff system phased over a two to three-year period.

With reference to Canada, the report says: "The preference would take the form of a total exemption from the increase in the existing U.S. tariff levels on crude and products." The present tariff on both Canadian and Mexican "overland" crude oil is 10.5 cents a barrel.

Sources close to the cabinet-level committee say the draft could be modified before presentation to Nixon within the next few weeks, but that no sweeping changes are expected.

The one section of the still-secret report acquired Wednesday makes no specific reference to quantities or prices. However, informants had said earlier that the figure of about 600,000 barrels a day had been agreed on for Canada, increasing to 600,000 barrels by 1973.

Under the heading "Potential Advantages" the report says:

"If all quantitative restrictions on entry to our markets were removed, Canada should be able to export 3,000,000 barrels a day to the U.S. by 1980."

Aside from co-operation in an over-all energy policy embracing oil, natural gas, hydroelectric power and coal, the report also refers to construction of a trans-Canada pipeline to transport both "Alaskan and Canadian Arctic crude" to the U.S. East Coast.

Additionally, it says without elaboration that "Canadian acknowledgement of unimpeded transit rights through the Northwest Passage could, of course, also be desirable."

The horse-trading aspect of the proposals is underlined by the comment that if "the Canadians are unable or unwilling" to make a statement of agreement in principle pending completion of negotiations, "the U.S. would always retain the power to diminish the preference."

Canadian Nuclear Energy System Said Workable

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will show the world within a year that the Canadian system of producing electricity from nuclear energy is worthwhile and workable, the president of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., said Wednesday.

J. Lorne Gray gave that as his reply to renewed criticism of Canada's reliance on a natural-uranium, heavy-water power reactor system, the major responsibility of AECL, a federal Crown agency.

The Senate science policy committee is reported to be ready to recommend that the federal government reassess the nuclear program which has involved years of effort and more than $1,000,000,000.

Ontario Hydro also is under fire for adopting the Canadian system for its nuclear generating program when other countries have abandoned it or passed it up.

"In a year, Douglas Point will be a demonstration that even the senators would be prepared to accept," Mr. Gray said in an interview expressing confidence in the Canadian system.

Douglas Point is the $80,000,000 nuclear generator on Lake Huron being run by Ontario Hydro under AECL supervision pending its sale to the utility at a subsidized price of between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000.

Ever since the Senate committee visited Europe last summer there have been recurring reports that a new look will be recommended for the Canadian system.

The committee chairman, Senator Maurice Lamontagne, has said publicly the committee members have some worries and doubts arising from their European tour.

It Might as Well Be Spring

It's not that warm, but today's higher Quinte temperatures — after a relentless cold spell — seem almost springlike. Hence, Rhonda Bourette, seven, and five-year-old brother Paul, weren't adverse to trying ice cream again today. However, by weekend they may be back to warmer treats. Forecasts say temperatures will continue to climb through night — then slump Saturday and Sunday to zero zones.

Burke Is Seeking Saints To Fly Food to Biafra

TORONTO (CP) — Stanley Burke expressed Thursday the "horrible fear" that catastrophe may be developing in Nigeria.

He said the victorious central government is intent upon showing the remnants of the beaten Biafrans that they are a conquered people, "and showing them in a brutal fashion."

"They don't have to massacre anybody," he said of the federal forces who last Monday beat down the last resistance in the secessionist Nigerian state.

"They just have to withhold food for a few more days."

Mr. Burke, who last August gave up a $30,000-a-year job as national news announcer for the CBC to help raise money and support among Canadians for Biafra, said in an interview he is pondering the next step in a countrywide campaign to aid the starving people in the stricken state. An estimated 2,000,000 Biafrans have died in 30 months of civil war.

He supports a move among some Canadian church groups to send Canairelief planes over Biafra, despite Nigerian government opposition, to drop supplies of food.

News reporters and churchmen would be asked to volunteer to board the planes as observers.

"Only candidates for sainthood need apply," he said of such observers. "It will take guts. For if the planes are forced to land they will be seized by Nigeria and so, too, will be the observers.

"The observers will be the only protection the planes will have for they can record and report what happens."

Mr. Burke's nomination as leader of such relief flights is Group Capt. Geoffrey Leonard Cheshire VC, a member of the RAF's famed Second World War Dam Busters Squadron who in recent years has been active in humanitarian work and supports Biafran relief. Group Capt. Cheshire was in Paris Thursday in an effort to fly to Africa to continue relief work.

Three-hour Verdict

No Signs Seen Of Genocide

LAGOS (AP) — An international team reported today that it had found no evidence of genocide at the end of Nigeria's civil war, but its members admitted under questioning they didn't look very hard.

The observers told a news conference that they spent only three hours in Owerri and several other towns that were on the periphery of Biafra's last territory and had to return to Lagos for "urgent consultations."

The eight-man team of representatives from Britain, Canada, Poland, Sweden and the United Nations flew to Port Harcourt, in eastern Nigeria, Saturday. Four men went toward Owerri and returned to Lagos Monday, the day Biafra surrendered. The other four came back to the capital Tuesday.

Asked about the food situation in Biafra, Brig.-Gen. John Drewry, one of two Canadian observers, said:

"Those that are stupid enough to go away from the food are going to go hungry . . . There is food . . . There is enough food that they will not die in 72 hours . . . It is already in the ground and on the trees."

He said there was an adequate stockpile of high-protein food in Port Harcourt.

The observers reported Nigerian federal troops are carrying food where it is most needed and refugees are receiving it in orderly fashion.

They said federal forces are trying to get refugees back to their villages as soon as possible to begin repair work and plant crops before the rainy season begins in March.

Nigerian officials are questioning refugees and it appears they are detaining men of military age to determine if they were prisoners-of-war or members of the Biafran army, the report said.

The report stated: "The observers neither saw nor heard of any evidence of genocide in the newly liberated areas . . .

"The observers saw refugees at Aba, Mbawsi, Okpuala, Umuahia, Obiakibi and Owerri (areas skirting Biafra's periphery). With the exception of those in Owerri and environs, they appeared to be in good physical shape. This was confirmed in conversation with a member of the U.S. aid relief

Emergency State Continues

LAGOS (Reuters) — Peace formally reigned in all of Nigeria today for the first time after 30 months of bitter fighting, but the state of emergency in force since May, 1967, will continue.

Head of State Yakubu Gowon said Thursday night: "The state of national emergency and emergency regulations remain in force. Discipline and self-sacrifice are essential if we are to achieve our goals in the immediate post-war period."

Nigerian officials and former leaders of the now-defunct secessionist state of Biafra are expected to discuss today the urgent relief needs of the war-ravaged Eastern Region, as it was known before secession.

Town Copies City Setup

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Though still a town, Trenton today took on a big city stature as town officials began implementation of a streamlined administrative system.

A system similar to the one that natured London, Ont. and Vancouver, B.C. into metropolitan centres is going into effect in Trenton on the recommendation of Eric Hardy Consulting Limited.

Thursday afternoon Mayor Duncan McDonald and Eric Hardy outlined the fundamental changes that will be made in the town's municipal organization.

Mayor McDonald described as threefold the aim of the changes:

- Strengthening of the administrative establishment.
- Creation of a more effective role for council;
- Achieving an early marked improvement in the conduct of the town's business and the provision of town services.

Among the more visible changes will be the elimination of standing committees of council (such as finance, public works, industrial and economic development, protective services) and the holding of weekly Monday council sessions with every other session a committee of the

U.S. Plans Army Cut By Summer

WASHINGTON (CP) — Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird's disclosure of a bigger cut in total U.S. armed forces indicates the likelihood of another sizable troop withdrawal from Vietnam by midsummer.

It also could mean a further reduction in the draft.

Speaking in Los Angeles Thursday, Laird said over-all U.S. military manpower will be shared by about 300,000 men by June.

This is about 35,000 more than the force reduction Laird projected for this fiscal year at a news conference here last month.

Mosport Area Council Wants To Control Peace Festival

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Clarke Township council unanimously decided Thursday it should have a say on whether Beatle John Lennon and his wife, Yoko Ono, can hold a three-day peace festival at nearby Mosport Park racetrack in July.

And although the council has not been approached by anyone about the proposed festival, it was told Thursday that residents have been expressing fears that expected crowds of 250,000 would bring chaos to the park, 40 miles northeast of Toronto.

Reeve John Stone told council that if the sponsors of the proposed festival or the owners of the auto raceway do not approach the township on their own, "we will be invited to do so.

Lennon announced the festival while on a Toronto visit last December.

Coun. Frank Gray said Thursday he had received complaints "even before I'd heard about it being planned . . . some of these rallies get out of control, you know."

A provincial police spokesman said one officer had been designated to draw up plans for crowd control and traffic direction.

Earlier Thursday, a township official said the festival could be forbidden because of a bylaw which describes the track area as an agricultural area for track and accessory uses.

Horace Best said "if Mosport track is to be used for a rock festival, I don't think this in any way it can be called an accessory to auto racing."

Trudeau Gives Pledge to Hees

Canadian Water Not for Sale--or Trading for Oil Markets

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian water is not for sale, Energy Minister J. J. Greene said Thursday.

Mr. Greene made the comment to reporters as repercussions started to flow from a United States presidential committee report, not officially released yet, calling for a continental energy policy.

Earlier, in the Commons Thursday George Hees (PC, Prince Edward - Hastings) asked the Prime Minister to assure the House that no control of Canadian water resources, or Canada's sovereignty over Arctic waters, would be traded for greater markets for Canada's oil exports to the United States.

"I think I can give that assurance," Mr. Trudeau replied.

The report of the cabinet-level committee on oil has not been presented yet to President Nixon. But an advance draft was made available to reporters in Washington.

The committee would trade a vast increase in the level of Canadian oil exports permitted to enter the U.S. for Canadian agreement to a continental approach to energy development.

Canadian reaction to the suggestion tended to concentrate on the question of water resources. Suggestions and plans that would result in U.S. access to some of Canada's clean water resources have been growing in recent years.

There also were some overtones Thursday about possible pollution resulting from providing U.S. ships access to northern oil deposits through Arctic waters bordering Canada.

Mr. Greene told reporters that in talks he had with officials in Washington before Christmas, oil as well as other forms of energy were dealt with.

"They are interwoven and it was a good time to talk about them."

Asked if there was to be a sellout of Canadian resources, he said:

"We gave up nothing.

"There is no Canadian water for sale. And there was no request from the Americans for it. Canadian water couldn't be for sale. We will sell those forms of energy of which we have a clear surplus. And there has been no inventory of Canadian water resources."

Mr. Greene said the U.S. is requesting access to the Northwest Passage, and it was in Canada's interest for the passage to be used.

Canadians Said 'Waking Up'

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Canadians are waking up to the fact that their country s being sold out from under them to the United States and will soon demand repatriation of their property, English professor Robin Mathews said Thursday.

Prof Mathews of Carleton University in Ottawa told a conference on "American Imperialism in Canada" that Canadians must apply pressure on the government to halt foreign takeover of Canadian business.

"Canadians are going to possess their own soul," said Prof. Mathews. "I want it. You want it and we are going to bring it about. It's as simple as that.

"I think Canadians are going to ask for their country back. They are going to petition for their country and then, failing action, they will take their country."

Carnival Means Fun for All As Big Program Takes Shape

Plans for the Belleville Winter Carnival, to be held Feb. 5, 6, 7, and 8th are shaping up well, say organizers — all systems are go.

According to the secretary of the Winter Carnival Committee, O. F. Bradley, who is assisting in the co-ordination of the four day event, everything is falling into place right on time.

"If reports from the various organizations and sponsoring committees are any indication, the carnival is already a success," said Mr. Bradley.

"The carnival committee feels it will have a very interesting program which will provide something for everyone of every age," he added.

The carnival will start officially Thursday night at Centennial Secondary when the Carnival Queen Contest will commence at 8:30 p.m. with competition open to secondary school students in the city.

The contest is being arranged by the Belleville Kinsmen Club, and the judges will be members of the Tweed Kinsmen Club. The sponsors will be the Canadian Breweries Ltd.

"The reason our judges will be from the Tweed Kinsmen Club is to reciprocate the occasions when members of the Belleville Kinsmen acted as judges at the Tweed Winter Carnival," explained Mr. Bradley.

"We have tried to plan events so that there is an event for even the very young," he added.

There is a barrel rolling contests, snowmobile safari, cookout, snow sculpturing and skiing as part of the fun.

To get Saturday, Feb. 7 off to a good start, there will be a parade through the city. The carnival will terminate with a banquet that evening.

Mr. Bradley, who is manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said that he is interested in obtaining additional information on events, or participation to contact the chamber of commerce office.

A Few Words to the Y's

President of the Y's Men's Club, Hugh Watson, Munroe Murphey, International director of the Ontario and Quebec Region of the Y's Men's Clubs, and Fred Gamble, associate general director of the Owen Sound YM-YWCA, chat after listening to Mr. Murphey's speech to club members last night.

Strength Is In Doing Speaker Tells Y's Men

By LINDA GELDART
(Staff Reporter)

"We are doers, not moneyraisers, and we must retain and strengthen the strong fellowship that is a part of our organization," Munroe Murphey, of Owen Sound, International director of Ontario and Quebec Region of the Y's Men's Club, told fellow members at a meeting last night.

Mr. Murphey was guest speaker at the Y's Men's meeting, and discussed at length the international convention held last summer, and in particular, the presentations of Dr. Thomas Bennett, research consultant.

Dr. Bennett is working on a study of Y's Men's Clubs, and these results indicate several interesting points, which have led to formation of not yet personal conclusions," said Mr. Murphey.

The director noted that, according to the survey, service to the YMCA was not considered to be as important as fellowship, but was still important.

He challenged members to become "doers and program initiators," and to be more concerned and involved with service to the community.

Mr. Murphey then discussed what Dr. Bennett, in his speeches to the convention, had referred to as the characteristics of "aging" organizations, indicating possible corrections and recommendations.

"The problems that characterize aging organizations are sluggish communications, and the fact they are usually internally focused," said Mr. Murphey.

The director suggested the solution could be overcome by creating an "external focus" or regional project on which all members could work together.

"We should concentrate on developing resources, and the most important are people. Usually, strength in a club can be found in one that continues to renew its leadership every year and still makes use of its older members and advisors and resource people," he emphasized.

Mr. Murphey stressed the necessity of "making room" for new people in club offices, which will assist in providing "new leadership" with new ideas and resources to meet the challenges of the present and the future."

Accompanying Mr. Murphey was Fred Gamble, the associate general director of the YM-YWCA in Owen Sound, who also spoke to members. He urged them to work on projects for YMCA Week, from January 26 to Feb. 1.

Elementary School Pupils Hear South America Talk

Mr. Vincent of London, Ont., a former teacher, diplomat and Canadian Club lecturer, gave a one hour presentation of the highlights of each South American country, with emphasis on the sociological problems of high population density and poverty. Teachers feel the opportunity to question a man with Mr. Vincent's experience will enrich the pupils' understanding of the geography and history of South America.

Hasty Pees Resume Training

The members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will be at it again this weekend as training begins Friday night and carries over into Saturday and Sunday.

Training will begin Friday in the armories and will continue at CFB Kingston in Barricfield Saturday and Sunday.

Because of the cutback operations and cool weather, winter gear will be issued.

This training weekend is one of many events for the Hasty Pees coming up in the future.

The regiment will be involved in a rifle company junior leader concentration at Camp Petawawa in February. Also slated for that month is a unit training operation featuring helicopters at Camp Borden.

Another winter training weekend is planned early in March at Camp Petawawa and finally on March 14 there will be a presentation of the Queen's Color by Governor-General Roland Michener.

Youngster Runs Into Car's Path

PICTON — A Picton child was injured yesterday when he ran into the path of a car on Bridge Street here.

Mark Rosseau, seven, of Union Street, collided with a car driven by Darwin Otis Taylor, R.R. 4 Picton, police say.

The boy was running from the sidewalk at the intersection of Bridge and Mary Streets.

Taken to Prince Edward County Memorial hospital, he was treated for arm and leg fractures.

Victim Dies

A Kitchener man has died in his hometown from injuries received three weeks ago in a traffic mishap near Belleville.

James Wesley Nevius suffered abdominal injuries when his automobile collided with a Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment truck on Highway 37, north of Belleville Dec 22.

Financial Position Reported as Sound

Quinte Exhibition is in a sound financial position according to a report made by Agricultural Society manager E. C. (Ev) Gowsell to the society's annual meeting last night.

Mr. Gowsell noted that half of the society's pledge of $87,000 to the Bleeding building was paid out of 1969 resources. The remaining $10,000 will be forthcoming this year when a lease satisfactory to the exhibition's operation is signed he pointed out.

The society is eligible to 12½ per cent grant assistance of the total cost of the building less the other grants the government provides. The grant amount to over $15,000 credit for the society in this case.

Listed as fluid assets at Dec. 31 last year was $25,000.

"In my opinion, there must always be a reserve of $10,000 for rain-out," the manager recommended. And, for the first time in years, a total of the years of planning needed for the future, there should be an annual net-gain goal of a minimum of $10,000 for improvements and new construction based on five year planning basis or period, he added.

Guild's Wait Until Dark Not 'Safe' Production

Wait Until Dark, the Belleville Theatre Guild's latest production, slated to open on wednesday, will begin as scheduled on that date — except for one snag.

The set for the thriller is completed except for the acquiring of a safe.

And properties personnel for the play are having their difficulties obtaining a safe for the night of the pre-production.

But in the search goes on, last - minute rehearsals continue as the third guild production prepares for a two - week run at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

The play, written by Frederick Knott, is one of the best thrillers of all time, the story of a blind girl terrorized in her own home by criminals who are looking for a doll filled with heroin.

Starring as the blind girl is Sandra Fort. Also in the cast are Robert Lawton, Ronald Patterson, Gary Lafferty, James Williamson, and Tammy Reid.

Brighton Industry Able to Reopen

BRIGHTON — A local furniture manufacturing plant, forced to close early in December because of lack of funds has re-opened under new ownership.

Zachary Investments Ltd. of Toronto has purchased J and S Industries and re - opened the plant Monday.

Fifteen of 30 previous employees have been rehired, a company spokesman said today.

The plant, which is located in the old Canada Packers building two miles west of Brighton just south of Highway 2, will manufacture office furniture and furniture parts, primarily for export to the United States.

A company spokesman said some time, this is believed to be the first time a large number of elementary school pupils have heard a lecturer.

Mr. Vincent's fee was shared by the five participating schools through their petty cash funds.

South America came to Belleville elementary school pupils Thursday afternoon in the form of a lecture with two years experience in touring the continent.

Part of a new policy of bringing outside, not-teaching experts into the schools to share their experiences with the children, Thursday's one-hour lecture was attended by five principals in west hill schools.

About 335 Grade 6 pupils, who study South America this year, heard George Vincent discuss and show slides of his trips from Canada to Cape Horn and back. They came to Park Dale School from Sidney Allward, Queen Wales, Prince Charles, Queen Mary and King George Schools.

Carnival Gets $250

Belleville Chamber of Commerce is donating $250 to the city's first major winter carnival.

The contribution was approved at yesterday's meeting of the Chamber board of directors.

The three-day carnival, the most ambitious winter recreational undertaking for years in Belleville, begins Feb. 5.

Chamber Has $98 Deficit

Belleville Chamber of Commerce had a fractional operating deficit in 1969.

The loss was much less than earlier anticipated, chamber directors were told last night.

A report from treasurer Frank Heinz showed the chamber received $17,158 and spent $17,257 — for a deficit of $98.

Earlier, an operating deficit of $275 had been predicted.

Biggest source of income was membership fees — $11,751.

Next was $3,500 from the city — parcel from an original request of $6,900 in a year that saw city council slash budget requests from various city organizations.

Salaries accounted for the bulk of Chamber expenditures at $12,446.

During the annual meeting there will be an election of officers for 1970. There will be nominations for president, first vice - president, second-vice - president and secretary.

The directorship will be increased from 20 to 30 members.

whole closest to him for pub lic and the town manager.

Crux of the system is the organization of a three man administrative board (component of the clerk, engineer, the treasurer and the commissioner of works) charged with the responsibility for preparing all business matters for council and from council.

Operation of this administrative board will be supplemented by the town's recent hiring of a civil engineer (Arthur R. Campbell who will fill the position of commissioner of works) and a deputy clerk (Alden Rogers who will act as secretary to the administrative board and also act when the clerk is afflicted).

"In essence what we have done is to consolidate responsibility and authority, civic departments and create an administrative board to co-ordinate and direct the administration under the full control of council," explained Mayor McDonald.

Planning expert Eric Hardy saw little difference between the old system and the new as "the difference between darkness and light."

"I expect the quality of service and the handling of the town's affairs to be greatly improved," he emphasized. "Now the town's affairs can be a topic of praise and not blame as in the past."

Underlying the action as a tool to enhance the administration's efficiency, Mr. Hardy said that the change was the initial stage of a detailed plan which was first discussed in June or July of the past year.

Mr. Hardy is currently preparing an organization and personnel study which will include descriptions for all non-union officers and employees. These descriptions, when agreed upon, will serve as the basis for the development of a salary schedule.

Acceptance is the key to success and Mayor McDonald noted that: "While the precise course is be followed has been the subject of council debate, we are delighted to be able to state that the adoption of the new form of organization has had the unanimous backing of both the council which completed its term in December and the new council which has since taken office."

Resulting from more than a year of consultation between the firm of Eric Hardy Consulting Limited and the town of Trenton, the new system features a half dozen major fundamental changes:

- That a deputy clerk be added to the clerk's department, with responsibility also as the town's urban renewal officer. The deputy clerk will process a substantial volume of reports and correspondence, and will be furnished with a full time stenographer, Mrs. Laura Bowders, who was for some years employed by the Trenton assessment department.
- That the status and capacity of the works department be raised by placing a civil engineer (Arthur B. Campbell) at its head and creating the new position of deputy commissioner to utilize the "demonstrated strong capabilities" of the former department head (Arie Hoornweg), a certified engineering technician.
- That the treasury and tax collection functions and the combined responsibilities from the assessment department be combined under the treasurer's department. The purpose of combining the treasury and tax collection services is to prepare for further mechanization of the operations of both departments. Before changes can be introduced, however, the department will have to explore the possibilities for relating local treasury and tax collection procedures and records with the assessment records which have recently become the responsibility of the Provincial department of municipal affairs;
- Subject to those responsibilities required by provincial statute to be exercised by designated officials, that the full responsibility for processing all town business for council and from council be assigned to a new administrative board composed of the heads of the three strengthened departments (the clerk, the treasurer and the commissioner of works) chaired by the clerk, but with each member having an equal voice in the board's deliberations. The new plan ensures thorough and balanced consideration of the important administrative questions before reports are presented to council or action is taken to implement council's administrative decisions. It is expected that the council will be guided by more complete written statements on which to base its judgements as to appropriate policy decisions;
- That the deputy clerk be named as secretary to the administrative board.
- That council business formerly processed through standing committees be made the responsibility of the full council meeting in committee of the whole and that all decisions resolving and disposing of matters be brought before council be taken in formal council session.

Mayor Defends System Of Closed Committee

TRENTON — Mayor Duncan McDonald has dismissed the suggestion that Trenton's new administrative setup, council meetings will be "public stamps" for committees of the whole meetings.

"No vote will be taken during committee of the whole meetings and no decision will be made," the mayor explained. "All decisions made by council will be taken in formal council session."

Planning consultant Eric Hardy agreed with the mayor: "I think you'll get a much more thorough asking of questions. I can't really see that the seven people have on council with such a diverse background will line up stacking an issue in committee of the whole to prevent public knowledge of the issue." The public and the press will not be admitted to committee of the whole meetings.

"Councillors want the people to know their opinions and speaking out in formal council sessions is the only way to get their opinions out," Mayor McDonald emphasized.

Consultant Hardy suggested that councillors should make themselves available to the news media after formal council sessions and the mayor concurred, adding: "Councillors should feel free to pass their comments and reasons for their negative or affirmative vote on to the press."

Both men made these suggestions with the idea of informing the public of council's actions in cases where there was little debate on a subject during a formal council session.

New Setup Held Out as Boon When Metro Government Comes

TRENTON — Planning consultant Eric Hardy hopes that Trenton's new municipal organization will provide the stepping spoke for the future jump to some form of regional government.

In fact Hardy predicted that the strength of Trenton's new administration will be the factor which determines the drawing pattern of regional government in this immediate area.

"Trenton wants to be on top of coming developments in the province and not just be led by someone else," he asserted.

"Now the town will be better prepared to accept a higher tier position of responsibility in the future regional government system."

Obituaries

MRS. LESLIE BROWN CLARK

TWEED — Funeral was held recently for Mrs. Fredrica Edwina Eleta (Freda) Clark, 83 years of age, who died in Kingston General Hospital after an illness of three months.

A resident of Ridgemount Manor for the Aged, Mrs. Clark was born near Madoc, daughter of the Reg. Frederic H. Brooks and the former Sophie Weaver. She was predeceased by her husband, Leslie Brown Clark, in 1962.

Mr. Lott is resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home. Service will be conducted in the chapel on Sunday, Jan. 18 at two o'clock.

Entombment will be in Belleville cemetery vault with Rev. Roy E. Vessey officiating.

Hobby with Heart

Mrs. Bertha Head, 95, a resident of Rest Haven Nursing Home, has turned her spare time hobby of knitting into a hand-warming gesture for underprivileged children. With Mrs. Albert Jamieson, a fellow patient, she examines the latest pair of mittens she knit for distribution by a church agency.

Bertha Tends to Her Knitting

PICTON — Bertha Head has discovered contentment in knitting baby bootees but she doesn't expect any response from this broad hint to the stork. Mrs. Head, a 95-year-old patient in Picton's Rest Haven Nursing Home, enjoys colorful yarns that "keep her in knitting."

Handicapped by age, Mrs. Head is unable to walk these days but seated in her rocker she leads a busy, productive life. She looks forward to receiving bright skeins of wool brought to her by relatives and friends and happily sets them up on her knitting needles. When the yarn is pale blue, white or pink Mrs. Head, needles flying, shapes baby bootees until she has used every skein. She carefully stores her handiwork for donation to the Picton United Church. Boxes of bootees knit by Mrs. Head are sent in missionary packages by church workers.

"War" woollen mittens" number among Mrs. Head's favorite things. She has knitted dozens of pairs of gaily patterned mittens for donation to church organizations aiding needy children. Scorning a pattern book, Mrs. Head simply plies her needles free style, working in a stripe or a fancy stitch from a design "stored in my mind." To avoid monotony she shapes mittens in all sizes ranging from small children's to adults'. If bredom does threaten her, Mrs. Head stops her knitting and turns to embroidery or crochet work.

How long has she been "yarning" is a question that stumps Mrs. Head. "I guess I've been knitting all my life," said the bright-eyed senior citizen. She recalls knitting clothing for herself, later for her children, and eventually her great grandchildren. What began as a hobby for Mrs. Head has become a valued, service to scores of underprivileged youngsters with frosty fingertips. Through the years Bertha Head has discovered the satisfaction to be found in tending to her knitting.

Picton Agrees to Hire Additional Constable

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — During yesterday's inaugural meeting of the Picton Police commission members voted to strengthen the town police force by hiring an additional constable. This decision supports a recommendation contained in a survey of the adequacy of the Picton police force submitted to the commission last October by Jack Taylor, an inspector for the Ontario Police commission.

The survey was prompted by remarks made by councillor Margaret Ackerman, who expressed dissatisfaction with police action in a complaint she had lodged. When the report was received by the police commission certain aspects of the survey were forwarded to town council with a request for their suggestions. The recommendation presented to council for discussion were turned back to the police commission with one exception. Members of council approved of hiring a parking meter attendant.

Picton's three - man police commission decided yesterday that the hiring of an additional constable would permit present members of the force to attend the Ontario Police College in Aylmer, as recommended in the report. An agreement between the police commission and the Picton police force includes a reduction of working hours per week, effective Jan. 1, 1970. Unless an additional constable hired for the force, overtime payment would become necessary.

The 10 members of the Picton police force to attend the 10 recommended week training course in Aylmer is Sgt. Scott Hale, who will begin his studies next week.

At yesterday's meeting Picton police chief George Pitt was directed to obtain additional information concerning communication systems for the police department.

Auxiliary Gives $3,000

TRENTON — Trenton Memorial Hospital Auxiliary has earmarked a $3,000 donation for the hospital's new five-bed intensive care unit.

The donation, presented last June for the purchase of medical equipment, will be combined with other donations to equip the new intensive care unit. It has been named in memory of S. O. Graham, who died recently after serving as chairman of the hospital's board of directors for 16 years.

In addition, the auxiliary is donating a television set, carpet and special chairs to furnish the extended care sitting room in the hospital's new wing.

One of the auxiliary's major projects for 1970 will be a "drive for the sale of "nearly-new" clothing. The auxiliary has rented store space on Murphy St., in a building formerly occupied by Singer Sewing Centre.

Auxiliary volunteers will staff the shop — to be named "Petticat Lane" — and all proceeds from its sales will be turned over to the hospital for the benefit of patients.

PE Chamber To Hear Benson

PICTON — Annual meeting of the Prince Edward Chamber of Coinmerce will be held next month featuring Finance Minister Edgar Benson as guest speaker.

Mr. Benson will discuss his White Paper on taxation.

The meeting has been tentatively scheduled for Feb. 2.

Cry Wolf

Wolves and the male of the human species have something in common — both are creatures of prey. As such you would think each would have some respect for the other, letting each do his own thing as it were.

For in man not a predator and the hunting rifle his proud companion and together they eliminate a lot of game and some prey too; and for the latter the hunter may earn anything from $75 to $100 per carcase.

Now the wolf, being what he is, must take his chances (along with the deer and the duck for different reasons), but we see no reason why the hunt must turn into a wholesale slaughter. Wolves are intelligent critters and since they belong in this world and are members of the animal kingdom, albeit with more sinister designs than some, they deserve some respect.

If the deer population is threatened to excess by wolves then certainly the latter should be hunted down, particularly if deer are subjected to slow and agonizing death. On the other hand a deer is just as dead from a high-powered rifle bullet as it is from the depredations of a wolf pack.

Perhaps a "dangerous emergency" does exist, created by an over-population of wolves in Ontario, as claimed by Wollaston township council. But the council itself seems bent on a policy of over-kill, for recently it endorsed a 13-point resolution declaring war on wolves.

The motion placed responsibility for the increase in wolf population on the Department of Lands and Forests wolf research program in Algonquin Park. It says the program, in operation since 1958, stopped the killing of wolves in the park.

If the wolf population is becoming a problem from the point of view of deer, sheep and other losses, then we agree their numbers should be reduced — but within reason.

Aid for Dropouts

A recent Vancouver Sun editorial reprinted on this page praised the work of a British Columbia government wilderness job training camp for high school dropouts.

The camp evidently is a success and has won praise even from the young people involved. We have received a letter suggesting that similar training programs be established in large cities throughout North America.

The letter is unsigned but the writer offers some sound thoughts on the subject nonetheless. The idea would be to help not only dropouts but negro, coloured and white youths of slum areas, with a view to assisting them individually and raising the standard of living of the areas in which they live.

The letter continues: "Some kind of camps could also be devised for girls and young women of these areas. There they could learn something about housekeeping, cooking, baking, washing, ironing, sewing, knitting, mending, and good grooming; also training in the care of young children.

"In the long run, such a program would probably save the Government and taxpayers less than crimes and delinquency."

These are good points. It is interesting to note that the United Community Services here offers training of this nature to mothers from Belleville's poorer families, as well as care and play periods for their children.

Anything along these lines is bound to be of value to a community. As the writer implies, there is a crying need for such services to cope with the existing and potential problems of our increasingly urbanized society.

Prineess' Date

Princess Anne was quoted recently as saying that she was "not going to be fobbed off with any old prince just because he is a prince." Well, lucky for Princess Anne . . . or good on her, as some would say.

True to her word she seems to be giving Royalty a miss. Her latest dancing partner is said to be Brian Alexander, 30, son of Earl Alexander of Tunis who removed the "enemy and all his impediments" from North Africa during the last war, and subsequently became Governor-General of Canada.

As we recall, the above words were from Alexander's message to Prime Minister Churchill following the defeat of the Germans in North Africa under Field Marshal Rommel.

Perhaps his son, a London property executive, is equally sure of himself, a quality admired no doubt by Princess Anne. But marriage? Well who knows. Anne's aunt, Princess Margaret, married a commoner, so at least there is a precedent.

Biafra: Starvation, Politics... And

Canada Between the Devil And the Deep Blue Sea

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Privately, there are not many MPs who deny that the government, politically, legalistically and diplomatically, has handled the Biafran relief problem properly.

"We can't shoot our way into Nigeria to deliver food and medicine," a source close to Prime Minister Trudeau said.

But there is also private agreement that, publicly, the government botched it.

The reason given is that the government did not fully grasp the impact on the Canadian public of the indescribable pictures of starving children on television.

One politician here said:

"Those pictures have probably had greater impact than any since the cremateriums were unlocked in Germany after the war.

"Many people cannot even bear to look at them.

"Canadians wanted something done for those children. They couldn't do anything themselves so they expected the government to do it for them.

"Whatever was done, they wanted it done fast.

"But we haven't done anything the Canadian public can see or feel."

The government had good reason to be wary of forcing gifts on the Nigerians in a civil war situation.

In 1968, the government sent armed forces Hercules transport planes to Nigeria to move relief supplies. Many civilian relief planes was shot down by Nigeria and Biafra would not accept daylight convoy flights. The Canadian military planes were recalled.

Mr. Trudeau sent his personal representative, Ivan Head, to Lagos three times to confer with Nigerian authorities on alternative methods of providing relief.

The last plan was to parachute food and medicine into Biafra from Hercules transports.

Nigeria rejected it.

This left the government no alternative but to help Canadian Red Cross relief group which flew nightly into Biafra with food from Sao Tome, an island off West Africa.

Again, the government had bad luck. One day after the government announced payment of a $1,000,000 gift to Canadian Biafra fell apart.

Nigeria resented the operations of Canadrelief and similar organizations and was consequently accepting cheap, prepackaged, said External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp—at the Canadian government's action.

One source said Canada apparently destroyed any influence it had in Lagos with the Canadrelief grant.

Even without this misfortune, it might have been difficult, if not impossible, to get Nigeria to accept Hercules-transported aid for Biafrans.

But for Canadian domestic political purposes, if nothing else, the government had to be seen to be patched some planes themselves, albeit only supplies, even if they had to fly into Nigeria to get anything Nigeria and with many MPs of all parties say.

This of course is partly political cynicism of a high order.

But, as one MP put it, "We are paid to look after the wishes of Canadians."

Private Property, Children Menaced by Snowmobilers

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

"Snowmobiling" is becoming a great sport for the young and, unfortunately, a curse for many.

I truly believe most snowmobile owners, and, especially members of Snowmobile Clubs, are promoting the sport in the finest way. However, a few are destroying public goodwill by needlessly trespassing with no thought or respect for the rights or privileges of others.

Cannot even the most inexperienced of snowmobile "many-mushers" realize that many acres of cultivated property owners have gardens which are not improved by packed snowmobile tracks, a piece of lost machinery or a hidden fence to be intended for the children's skating rink; and that after 11 p.m., the roar of motors is not appreciated outside one's bedroom.

I'm sure many residents would not object to snowmobiles if the drivers would have the courtesy to ask permission to enter private property, and to abide by the requests of the owners — particularly when the safety of children is involved.

It is the thoughtlessness and carelessness of a few who will destroy the sport for many.

Objects to Cartoon

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I consider the drawing of Miss Judy LaMarsh on the editorial page of the January 9 issue of The Intelligencer is extremely poor taste.

As political satire or commentary it says nothing.

It is a direct insult to the person of Miss LaMarsh.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Every major political figure of the day, from ex-President de Gaulle to our own leading lights of the past decade, Messrs. Diefenbaker, Pearson, Trudeau and Stanfield—and of course Miss LaMarsh, has been fair game for the cartoonist's pen. Barbed, pointed, yes, but few if any, in our opinion, have gone beyond the bounds of good taste, including the one of the former State Secretary, Rueben, Miss LaMarsh, that a Surrey and long-time political friend is well able to defend herself against. Leather Substitutes Gaining Ground

BBC London Letter

The fashionable leather-look is a fine thing if you have the money to buy the extremely expensive but hard - wearing and super - comfortable high - grade leathers needed for clothing. The synthetic substitutes so far produced, with a few notable exceptions, have not been much more than shadows of the real thing.

Today most of them have disappeared, leaving us with really only one, U. S. Dupont's Corfam. This has a major share of the market, and is used mainly for shoes and handbags. It used to be more expensive than leather, but now one can buy Corfam shoes for about four pounds (£12). Their advantages? No polishing, no water-damage, and the comfort of leather costs no more as much. To clean, just wipe with a damp cloth.

But in the last year a new contender has appeared. The new product is Bukflex, produced by a small independent firm in Britain's industrial North. Basically it is a specially - treated polyurethane on a fabric base, and comes in a variety of finishes and grades for everything from footwear and car seats to the highest of child's clothing. And it is cheap enough for Woolworth's bargain chain stores to be thinking of ranges of clothing for marketing soon.

Microscopic inspection of the material will reveal why it is like the fabric - weave pattern showing on the surface, but without a magnifying glass one will be hard put to see this. The material is soft, flexible even in extreme cold, waterproof, makes up into garments well and, hardest test of all, it even breathes, crumples and generally feels like real leather. In fact, all that seems to be missing is the smell of leather. It should not take the industrial perfumers long to give Bukflex a whiff of that magic scent beloved of the Czars of Russia, of the birch-bark tanning-process once reserved, on pain of death, for their exclusive use.

Canada Council's New Chief

Ottawa Journal

Peter Dwyer is so obviously the right man to be new director of the Canada Council the wonder is that he was appointed, the ways of government being what they are. But he has made something of a career of having a low visibility, the low (high?) point occurring during the Second World War when he was a cloak-and-dagger man in the British intelligence. Though he still won't talk about it, the word is that he was a very tough character indeed. (His official biography covers the period with this bland sentence: "In 1939 Mr. Dwyer joined the British Foreign Service, serving in France, Latin America and the United States.")

It's a sign of the coming of maturity of the Canada Council — it is, after all, 13 years old — as well as Peter Dwyer's competence that a director has come for the first time from within the organization. This is not the council which at the beginning was allowed to spend only the interest on $50,000,000 on the arts, the social sciences and the humanities each year. In its current financial year, the council's income is $29,500,000 . . . a rather remarkable, unexpected and admirable bit of inflation.

Dwyer's stamp has been on the council for so long as assistant director for arts and then as associate director that it would be surprising to see it go off in any startling new directions under his leadership. Since he has been identified with the arts (dealing specially with ballet companies, symphony orchestras, painters and sculptors) we gather that he is taking care not to slight the anthropologists, philosophers, linguists, sociologists and others of the social sciences and humanities. They are all the council's children and he wants them to know that he knows it.

U. S. Film Exhibit For 'Man and His World'

Montreal Gazette

The United States consulate here has announced that plans have been largely completed for the United States to return to the Expo islands this year, after an absence of two years.

The program being developed is for the U. S. to take over the former Telephone Association of Canada Pavilion, one of the top favorites for the last three years, in which the full-circle screen displayed the special Disney production, "Canada 67."

The Americans would use the unique theatre to display a similar film, also produced by Disney, "America The Beautiful," and other tourist and travel promotion items.

If the plan goes through, and it seems very likely that it will, Canada might very well follow the American lead and use its Expo film for showing outside this country, for short term promotion. The film is excellent; watching it has been a thrilling experience for Montreal foreigners for three years, many of whom have seen it a half-dozen and more times. It would be an equally effective in other countries, starting with the United States.

It cannot be shown anywhere, of course. A special building or circular enclosure, and specialized equipment, are needed to display it. But there are dozens of fairs and other gatherings at which it could serve a worthwhile promotion purpose.

The national travel bureau would do well to study the idea of touring it.

Biafra
Britain's Dual Role

Windsor Star

The role which governments have not played in relief organization is best represented by Britain now casting aside the mantle of prosecutor (as chief arms supplier to Nigeria) for that of savior. It is an ill-fitting garment for the British government of Harold Wilson.

For all the governments which stood by it would be equally as ill-fitting, be it Canada which did not supply arms, or Britain which involved itself in the reprehensible role of chief arms supplier.

To the names of Belsen and Buchenwald, history can now add Biafra to be remembered for its own kind of horror — horror of which the world was perfectly aware and yet failed to relieve.

Ontario Wants to Guard Against Natural Gas Price Boosts

OTTAWA (CP) — An Ontario government document presented to the National Energy Board proposes an elaborate system to protect Canadian users of natural gas against cost pressures generated by growing demand for gas in the United States.

The scheme would involve a diversion of gas-export profits judged to be excessive into a national fund. The money would be used to subsidize the Canadian gas utility companies to hold down rates to customers whenever export demand pushed up wellhead gas prices automatically.

The Ontario document was distributed at a current energy board hearing about gas-export policy.

Ontario, which consumes more Western Canadian gas than any other province, is urging the federal board to make sure Canadians are guaranteed adequate gas supplies at reasonable prices before policies governing exports.

Quebec, Manitoba, British Columbia and the Canadian Gas Association also have presented briefs to the board.

Ontario's proposal was distributed at a hearing about gas-export policy.

The document was presented by Ontario Hydro, which is the province's largest gas utility company.

Ontario, which consumes more Western Canadian gas than any other province, is urging the federal board to make sure Canadians are guaranteed adequate gas supplies at reasonable prices before policies governing exports.

The proposal distributed by Ontario suggests establishment of a national natural gas pool, already pushed up wellhead prices in Alberta. TransCanada PipeLines Ltd. of Toronto, which carried Alberta gas to utility companies as far east as Montreal, plans to apply to the energy board for a rate increase.

The proposal distributed by Ontario suggests establishment of a national natural gas pool, a fund financed by exporting pipeline companies to insulate Canadian consumers from the impact of increased charges caused by export demand for Canadian gas.

Under the plan, the energy board would establish a "normal" rate of increase for wellhead prices and the rate of growth in years before exports became significant.

The board also would set "fair and reasonable" export prices after calculating market conditions in the U.S. market areas, transmission costs in both countries, pipeline investment and wellhead prices.

Exporters whose licences in any year exceeded the set export price would be required to set aside the money for the national pool fund.

If wellhead prices should rise at a faster clip that the established "normal" rate, the pool funds would be distributed proportionately among domestic utility companies to keep down their charges to Canadian consumers.

British MP Is Charged With Divulging Secrets

LONDON (CP) — A 68-year-old Labor member of the Commons—first parliamentarian ever charged under the Official Secrets Act of 1911—was refused bail today at a brief appearance in Bow Street magistrate's court.

White-haired William James Owen, who was about to retire from Parliament after 15 years sitting for a northern constituency, made a personal plea for freedom but the Crown opposed it.

Magistrate Kennedy Barraclough remanded him until Monday.

The five-minute hearing produced no information specifying the alleged offence. Owen was charged Thursday night under a section of the act providing a maximum 14-year term for transmitting information that might be "useful to an enemy."

The supposed "enemy" has not been disclosed, though informants say it is not Russia.

The only information on the accusation contained in the charge was that at various times between 1961 and last December Owen was alleged to have transmitted to an unnamed person information "for a purpose prejudicial to the safety or interest of the state." The alleged acts took place in the London area.

Owen has been active in trying to promote trade between Britain and the Iron Curtain countries of Eastern Europe and also heads a London travel agency which specializes in trips to East Germany.

As an MP he has been virtually unknown to the public. Since becoming member for Morpeth in Northumberland he has rarely spoken in the Commons though he has been a hard-working committee member and what is described as a good "constituency" MP.

He has not been looked on as a conventional left-winger—an active ginger group that serves as a hair shirt to Prime Minister Wilson—though he has occasionally defied the Labor whip on votes.

He visited Moscow in 1966 as secretary of the parliamentary East-West trade committee, an all-party group.

Hospital Strike Is Ended

ESTEVAN, Sask. (CP) — Non-professional workers at St. Joseph's Hospital ended a 26-week strike Thursday and agreed to accept an arbitration board decision in a similar wage dispute at Victoria Union Hospital in Prince Albert.

John Ethyson, Saskatchewan's chief conciliation officer, announced signing of a memorandum of understanding and promised the 93 workers, who had been on strike since Oct. 23, raises equivalent to those to be awarded by the board which ended hearings Saturday at Prince Albert.

Members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees launched the Estevan strike to support demands for an increase to $2.02 an hour from $1.38 in average wages, a raise that was supported by a conciliation board report.

At Prince Albert, 185 workers went back to work Dec. 11 after the provincial cabinet invoked the essential Services Act. It was the first time the legislation —passed in 1966—was invoked by the province in a similar dispute since Victoria Union Hospital in Prince Albert.

Man Who Charged 'Fix' Is Jailed by Inquiry

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Lott, 38, former Metropolitan Toronto police constable who sparked a police commission inquiry into alleged charge fixing by senior officials, will spend the weekend in jail.

Lott, who resigned from the force last year, was arrested Thursday on a charge of obtaining a court order to appear at the inquiry. He was taken into custody after giving himself up to two detectives.

In court later, when asked by Crown counsel Theodore Kiely where he was when he was to appear as a witness at the inquiry, Lott replied: "I was in the United States."

He was remanded to the Don Jail without bail until next Monday when he is scheduled for another court appearance. He could get a maximum penalty of two years' imprisonment for disobeying a court order under the Ontario Police Act.

In other developments at the Thursday session Deputy Police Chief John Morton told a police commission inquiry Thursday he had never intervened with a judge to fix a court case in his 31 years of police work.

He specifically denied having intervened with Provincial Judge Donald Graham in 1966 to have a charge of impaired driving against oil company salesman Richard Ball reduced to a charge of careless driving.

Handyman Faces Charge of Murder

RIVIERE-DU-LOUP, Que. (CP) — Louis Chiasson, 64, was charged Thursday with non-capital murder as a result of a fire that claimed 36 lives in a home for the aged in Notre-Dame-du-Lac, Que., Dec. 2.

Preliminary hearing was scheduled for Jan. 23.

Chiasson had been a resident and unpaid handyman at the home, the Repos du Vieillard, for eight years.

The murder charge against him was laid in the death of Albert Lebel, the only one of the five victims who has been positively identified.

Conviction for non-capital murder carries a maximum term of life imprisonment.

Chiasson's arraignment came one day after the end of a two-day coroner's inquest and five consecutive days of hearings in Notre-Dame-du-Lac, a village near the New Brunswick border.

He was found competent responsible for the fire and held in custody on order of Coroner Cyrille Delage until his arraignment here.

Chiasson, a native of Miscou, N.B., was the last of 30 witnesses to testify at the inquest.

Besides the 36 elderly men and women killed in the fire, another victim died in hospital afterwards and one person is missing and presumed cremated.

MOH Will Not Allow More on Typhoid Ship

VANCOUVER (CP) — There could be 200 disappointed people if P. and O. officials decide the luxury liner Oronsay is to leave Vancouver before medical officials agree.

Dr. George Mott, deputy city medical health officer, said the typhoid situation aboard the liner is under control as long as the ship remains in port.

"But if it leaves port before the source is identified and without medical care for the patients, there is a problem.

"It could be a floating typhoid bomb."

With the number of known and suspected cases of the disease now 34, George Turner, president of P. and O. Lines (North America) Ltd., said the ship will be kept here for four or five days.

"If they decide to leave," said Dr. Mott, "then we will not permit them to take on the 200 passengers who were to embark here. I think P. and O. will cooperate."

New Zealand Man Arrested For Threat to Kill Agnew

AUCKLAND (CP) — An Auckland judge sent a man who threatened to assassinate Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew to a mental hospital today. Police also disclosed that two unused rifle bullets were found at the scene of a scuffle Thursday night with anti-war protesters outside Agnew's hotel.

Agnew met with Prime Minister Keith Holyoake and with opposition leader Norman Kirk, then held a news conference in which he dismissed the demonstrators during his New Zealand visit as "rather childish."

Agnew then took a helicopter to the sheep and cattle farm of F. C. Johnstone at Whatawhata, some 30 miles south of Auckland, for a luncheon and a demonstration of planes that spread fertilizer.

Anti-war protesters maintained their vigil outside the vice-president's hotel, their numbers ranging from a dozen to 200 during the day. They booed Agnew roundly when he emerged to go to Whatawhata and went "Oink, Oink" when Mrs. Agnew's motorcade pulled in later.

Police said that Sydney James Arthur, 32, an unemployed laborer, was picked up in the foyer of Agnew's hotel during the night after he said: "I'll kill Spiro Agnew between 4 a.m. and 7 a.m. tonight."

He pleaded not guilty to threatening to assassinate Agnew and was sent to a mental hospital for two weeks of examination.

Police said they found two bullets that would fit a standard North Atlantic Treaty Organization rifle on the ground in front of the hotel where 13 persons were arrested in a scuffle between police and demonstrators Thursday night.

The police said the bullets were from an armory outside Auckland that a group calling itself Revolutionary Activists burglarized and tried to blow up Jan. 4. The group had circulated leaflets threatening Agnew's life.

Agnew today heard a plea from Holyoake for increased New Zealand access to U.S. markets in return for closer defence ties.

The U.S. maintains import quotas on New Zealand lamb and dairy products, which along with wool are the country's main exports.

Leadership Rivals Conclude Campaign

QUEBEC (CP) — Public finance was a key issue for all three men seeking the Quebec Liberal party leadership, but private finance was the target of the final salvo as the four-month campaign ended.

Fifteen legislature members supporting Pierre Laporte, Opposition House leader, charged at a news conference Thursday that one of his opponents, Montreal economist Robert Bourassa, has been indulging in "exaggerated and disgraceful" campaign spending.

Mr. Bourassa denied the charge at a later news conference, saying critics were multiplying his spending figures four or five times "without any kind of proof."

Shortly later, Claude Wagner, former Quebec justice minister, wound up his campaign with an appeal to delegates not to hand over the Liberal party "on a silver platter" to those who "covet" it.

In a speech to 200 to 300 supporters, he did not mention his opponents by name but said the party has fallen "out of touch with the people."

Mr. Laporte's backers said in their joint statement that the campaign has been a "disgraceful struggle between certain financiers and Liberals desirous of ridding our party of the arrogance of power which cost us the 1966 general election."

Although the statement did not name Mr. Bourassa, speakers at the news conference were referring to the candidate whose wife is the millionaire heiress of the Simard shipbuilding family of Sorel, Que.

Inflation Pushes U.S. GNP Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Propelled by the most vicious inflation since 1951, the gross national product of the United States jumped to $932,300,000,000 in 1969, with most of the increase resulting from soaring prices.

The commerce department reported Thursday the GNP rose $66,600,000,000 from the 1968 figure of $865,700,000,000. Of the 7.75 per cent yearly increase, price increases accounted for about 4.75 per cent and real production for the remaining 3 per cent. In 1968, the increase was nine per cent—four pes cent prices and five per cent real output.

GNP is the market value of all the goods and services produced in the country and, when compared to the value of the dollar in 1958, gives a clear indication of the rate of inflation.

The department's report also showed real production made almost no change during the October-December quarter, which on its face indicated the country may be teetering on the brink of its fifth post-war recession.

But two government economists cautioned against such a conclusion because a strike against the General Electric Co. cut about $2,000,000,000 off of total production in the last two months.

Without the strike, they said, real production might have gone up one per cent in the last quarter. The figures for one quarter are important, because a recession is defined as two consecutive quarters of declining real production.

The department said 1969 was characterized by "a gradual slowing in the expansion" as a result of the Nixon administration's anti-inflation campaign.

SOARING INTO THE 70's

Up, up and away! Higher, higher, higher - - - it's true, Belleville is on the way to new achievements in the decade ahead! Hail to the 70's

Things are looking good for Belleville as we go soaring into the 70's. By all working together we've proved that we can produce real progress. By planning, sharing ideas and co-operating from the Mayor and City Council, and Industrial Commission, to every citizen, we can have a happier, healthier and more prosperous community for all. The 70's will be very important to Belleville as we soar to higher heights of co-operation, good will and achievement.

Brushing Regularly Key to Healthy Teeth: Dentist

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal dentist says that anyone who still has all his natural teeth at the age of 18 "ought to be able to keep them until death."

The key to maintaining strong, healthy teeth, says Dr. Georges Perrault, lies in teaching pre-school children to brush their teeth regularly.

Dr. Perrault, director of a children's dental clinic at the University of Montreal, is one of a growing number of dentists who specialize in children's teeth. There are about 12 such specialists in Montreal at present.

"It's all in motivation," he believes. "If is essential that we find the vocabulary which will make them (children) see that it is possible to fight a war against bacteria."

To this end, dentists are beginning to equip their waiting rooms with audio-visual material. Via slides children can see microscopic 'armies' of bacteria squirming over and among teeth.

The youngster's first reaction should be to run for his tooth-brush to dislodge these "bugs," says Dr. Perrault.

The slides also demonstrate the correct way to brush, and admonish the lot not to forget to massage their gums and to pay special attention to gaps where food particles might be hiding.

Dr. Perrault says mothers often have the illusion of providing their children with the maximum dental care merely by curtailing the amount of candy and sweets available in the home.

But while it is true that sugar provides an ideal milieu for bacteria to thrive in, eliminating candy from the diet does not reduce the need for good and regular brushing.

In fact, says Dr. Perrault, research has shown that depriving a child of sugar may produce tension. This stress ultimately may set off the development of cavities.

The clinic has prepared questionnaires for the young patients, and results show that more children below the age of six brush regularly than do those of 16 years and above.

This suggests that the influence of the mother on dental hygiene diminishes as the child matures.

One possible method of cutting down on cavities is painting both baby and second teeth with fluorine. If the community has not already fluoridated the drinking water.

Despite many advances made in dental care, Dr. Perrault says dentists still are unable to explain why, within one family, some members will have strong teeth and some will have poor, soft teeth.

Six or seven per cent of all children will never have cavities while others have decayed teeth by the time they are 18 months old.

In the final analysis, he says, mothers perhaps should be reminded of something they know but often ignore—It is not up to the children to decide what they are going to eat.

French Writer Against 'Sexuality Explosion'

PARIS (AP) — One of France's foremost woman writers is against what she calls the "sexuality explosion" in Western culture.

"To me," said Francoise Sagan, "making love can never be a commodity, like margarine."

The former child wonder of French literature makes a sharp distinction between the modern trend toward "sexual exhibitionism" and the impassioned but cynical love which is the main theme of her novels.

"I have never written an erotic book and I never will," she said in an interview. "I believe people should enjoy making love a lot but not talk about it.

"Obviously, the old taboos had to be swept away, but why this sudden frenzy of talking about it as though making love were a brand new invention! I prefer to express everything in a single elegant phrase which allows the reader to conjure up his own sexual image."

Miss Sagan, now 34, achieved fame almost overnight at 18 with her first novel Bonjour Tristesse, a cynical tale of seduction and infidelity among the idle rich. This remains the main theme of eight novels and three plays. In 16 years, she has sold more than 10,000,000 books in more than 20 languages. Her output is slowing down and she is increasingly critical of her own work.

"I would really like to write two or three really good novels," she said. "Something more profound and more thorough than what I have written up to now."

Critics say she writes only about people with plenty of money to spend, but she refuses to move down the social scale. "It would be a bad form for me to describe people I don't know and don't understand."

There is a paradox between Miss Sagan's background and the emotional instability described in her books and apparent in her own married life. She attributes her gift as a writer largely to her upbringing in a happy, stable family, but she is twice-divorced and confesses to have no faith in marriage.

"After a few years, married love inevitably turns into boredom. If people feel certain tenderness for each other and have some outside interests, they can sometimes tolerate this boredom and continue living together.

"But if one is allergic to boredom, or if one of the partners takes revenge on the other for his own boredom, then marriage can become a catastrophe.

"I am not opposed to marriage as such. It's fine for those who want to share the same house, the same bed and the same habits to ratify their relationship in the eyes of society. But I know hardly any couples who still love each other after 15 years of marriage."

She married publisher Guy Schoeller, 20 years her senior in the wake of Bonjour Tristesse. They were divorced in 1960 and two years later she married Robert Westhoff, an American sculptor who became the father of her son Denis. She divorced Westhoff only a few months later, then became reconciled with him and lived with him for several years. Early last year they separated again and she now lives with seven-year-old Denis in a rented villa in the fashionable Auteuil district. Westhoff comes by every Thursday and takes his son to the movies.

U.C.W. Meetings

BRIDGE ST. UCW

At the annual meeting of the United Church Women of Bridge St. Church held on Tuesday, Jan. 13, the installation of officers for 1970-71 was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Harry Davis.

Considerable business was discussed by the retiring president, Mrs. J. S. Loynes.

The worship service taken by Mrs. Roy Jeffrey, dealt with the United Church Women's theme for 1970 "Reconciliation for a Broken World." The speaker pointed out that as Paul explained to the Ephesians who were Gentiles and "alienated from the commonwealth of Israel" in being "the hostility is an end," we aim to be instruments to do this in our world by: cultivating the friendship of the alienated; demonstrating as Christian citizens of this world the reconciling gospel of God and making this a church where prejudices are softened and all will be welcomed with love and understanding.

The names of members who had died during the past year were read and a prayer pronounced an "In Memoriam" prayer.

Reports of various departments and committees were circulated. Mrs. Loynes thanked all who had loyally supported her and her work during the past two years. Although there is to be no change in the modern structure of the church she feels we need this Christian fellowship.

In his message after the installation service, Dr. Davis commended the UCW organization for its efficient "machinery that works". He reminded the officers and members that they are working for God as well as for this church. In spite of the insanity of war in a great Decade and may see union with the Anglican Church, he said.

The incoming president, Mrs. R. Berry then took the chair pledging to do her best to continue the work and asking for continuing support.

On behalf of the executive Mrs. Don Williams presented Mrs. Loynes with a life membership in the UCW.

Officers elected were as follows: honorary president, Mrs. H. Davis; past president, Mrs. J. S. Loynes; president, Mrs. R. Berry; 1st. president, Miss Myrtle Reid; 2nd. vice-president, Mrs. Roy Jeffrey and 3rd. vice - president, Mrs. J. Nelles; recording secretary, Mrs. J. Loynes; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Hall; Finnigan; In Memoriam secretary, Miss Daisy Young; treasurer, Mrs. George Greatrix and archives, Miss J. Tickell.

Various committee chairmen and unit leaders were elected as well.

At the close of the meeting light refreshments were served.

Couple Honored at Club Meeting

TWEED — Mr. and Mrs. Francis Cournoyea of Tweed, formerly of Sulphide were pleasantly surprised at the regular meeting of the Tweed Senior Citizens Club, when they were honored on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

During the lunch hour, the honored guests were presented with a beautiful decorated anniversary cake which was made and decorated by Mrs. Bill Goode, and cut and served by members of the committee in charge.

Previous to the felicitations at the regular meeting of the club which is attended by senior citizens in attendance.

Business was conducted by the president, which includes president, Felix Rashotte; vice-president, Francis Cournoyea; secretary, Mrs. William Curtin and treasurer, Mrs. E. Torbett.

Following the business all took part in games of cards, checkers and crokinole.

Hastings County Summary Day

On Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 13, 135 women attended Summary Day for the home economics course. "The Main Dish Makes the Meal." It was held in Stirling community hall.

Welcoming the group was Miss Mary MacEachern, home economist for this area. Miss Barbara Woods, Belleville, home economist with Ontario Hydro demonstrated four food items using an electric toaster, fry pan and blender. She also gave much helpful advice and hydro books of budget meals were available.

Mrs. Ralph Carlisle, leader of River Valley group was chairman. Reports, skits and songs were given by 14 groups as follows: Bethel Zion—Cooper — Remington; Harts — Riggs — Ivanhoe, Marmora and Madoc; Plainfield — Queensboro, River Valley; Roslin, Sidney South, Unionsdale; Wallbridge and Wellman's.

In Oct. 1969 Mrs. Joan Winfield, food specialist from Toronto, conducted a two - day course for the institute leaders sponsored by the home economics branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food. The leaders then conducted classes in their own committees and thus a large number of women was privileged to learn more about cooking food. Mrs. Winfield spoke briefly and congratulated the various groups on their reports.

At the close of the afternoon cookies and coffee were served. Special recipe books were taken home as souvenirs of the day. They contained recipes sent in by several of the institute women.

Downfall of Hemline Predicted by Christian Dior

LONDON (AP)—The downfall of the hemline was strongly indicated by the Christian Dior London spring collection today.

A real new look length, right to the bottom of the calf, is favored by designer Jora Laegberg. Since he works in close collaboration with Dior in Paris, this may be taken as a firm straw in the wind.

SOCIALS

Mr. Gerald Archer is in Kingston General Hospital in intensive care following surgery.

Since the collection! will be sold all over Britain, the designer hedged his bets with some dresses about three inches above the knee, but most of these are teamed with baggy trousers. For good measure, he included some mid - calf lengths, mostly in a skinny tubular or slightly flaring silhouette.

The Dior London show was in what might be called royal colors — the pastels the Queen favors, such as powder blue, peach pink, off - white, and caramel, plus a sprinkling of black and white. Gabardine turned up tops in the fabric range.

Economical Line of Clothes Steals Spotlight

NEW YORK (AP) — Higher hemlines lost the spotlight to lower prices Thursday. The biggest applause-getter in a group of spring fashion showings was a line of clothes priced from $3.99 to $12.99.

The bargains came at the New York Couture Business Council's National Press Week with the showing of Robert Hall's International Studio sportswear, created by three young European designers.

The group of switchable separates and little dresses included a neat, very-short, green and white Polka dot tunic dress at $9.99.

There also was a sleeveless white belted jumpsuit at $12.99 and an ensemble of tunic-length top over pants. Each piece of the two-part outfit was $6.99. It was done in white with red rickrack.

The juxtaposition of the Original collection was a bit like a cold shower.

The sound of "4.99" hardly had faded when the Original commentator brought forth a smashing reptile pants ensemble under a sleeveless tan midi-coat! and said the price was around $50.

A tailored white slacks and red jacket ensemble was $425. A series of little cotton poplin all-weather coats, in bright colors bound with white trim, had prices all around $300.

The Originala spring clothes appeared to cost a fortune, but turned out to be less expensive. Lines were simple and elegant. Colors were bold, in interesting combinations.

There was a three-piece wool poplin ensemble with sleeveless shrimp vest over white blouse and easy blue skirt. Midis over pants were shown, one in beige and cranberry.

Prints predominated in fabrics from the six Schrader firms, and they ran the gamut from terrific-looking to disastrous. Several ensembles were shown in what the commentator called "non-shrink fabric that looks like linen."

Local Kinette Club Marks 21st Anniversary

On Saturday in the Pinnacle Room of the Hotel Quinte, the Kinette Club of Belleville celebrated its 21st anniversary. Among the guests were seven charter members, the Lieutenant Governor of Zone 2, Ron Holston and his wife Helen, and several past presidents and their husbands.

After a buffet dinner, an interesting ceremony was held. Taking part in the ceremonies were the president Helen Wilbur and past presidents Maude Rollins, Marg Hallam, Mary Lang, Ruth Falwell, Rosemary Belanger, Mary Atkinson, Lorraine Swain and Deanna Sandercock.

President Barbara Christie then officially welcomed four new Kinettes: Dagmar Meeks, Peggy McNevin, Marg Smith and Shirley Wickett, into the club. Charter president Helen Wilbur presented the girls with their Kinette pins and membership certificates.

Kinsmen president Bill Christie thanked the Kinettes for their continued support and entertainment and presented bouquets of long stemmed red roses to president Barbara, Charter president Helen and Helen Hoston., from the Kinsmen Club of Belleville.

Several draws were made and won by: Betty Fralick, Lorraine Swain, Nancy Mohan, Doug Jackson, Jim Muir, Chris Akey and past president Chris Cobbourn.

WEDDING

McINTOSH — DAVID

Recently at Mount Pleasant United Church, Nancy Lenora, daughter of Mrs. Ira David of Mount Pleasant and the late Mr. David was united in marriage in a double-ring ceremony to Arthur Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McIntosh of Stirling. The Rev. W. Cook officiated and Mrs. Mac Sharpe was organist.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Douglas Smith of Ottawa, the bride wore a floor-length gown, floor length, with white chiffon and velvet with a veil of chiffon and lace. She carried a bouquet of pink sweetheart roses.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Louis Cook of Ottawa. Mrs. James Haggerty and Mrs. William Hale were bridesmaids, while Miss Deborah David, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Roy Work was best man and ushers were Donald Armstrong and Brian Cook.

After a reception in the church hall, the couple left on a wedding trip. For travelling the bride wore a brown and green tweed cape suit.

Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh will reside in Belleville.

While her home is comfortably furnished she is modest not to care about such things as furniture. She still loves fast sports cars, but after two accidents has almost given up driving.

There are too many cars on the road, and too many madmen driving them," she says.

She receives visitors informally, wearing a simple blouse and corduroy slacks with her honey-blonde hair hardly combed. Her movements are graceful and her features are more attractive and more vivacious than photographs suggest.

She has doubts about her own future as a writer. She has so disagreed with a play she worked on for months that she scrapped it. Her French publisher, Flammarion, pays her a retainer of $5,000 a month without setting any deadline on her next book.

Ann Landers

Youngest Son to Obey Rules of the House

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We raised our two older boys without too much trouble. Now they are both married and surprisingly more cooperative than when they were in school. Jake and Jen were age.

Our 20-year-old Yale son is the one I'm worried about. His neighborhood has changed and he'd like to invite his girl friend home for a long weekend. I said, "Fine — she can stay with your friend." He said, "Mom!" (They have a daughter her age who is away at college.) I figured the girl could use her room.) Our son said, "I'd like to have her stay with us, in fact since we are living together here at school, I think it would be very mature and honest of you and Dad if you would let us share my room." I hit the ceiling.

I was shocked and told him flatly, "Nothing doing." He called me a hypocrite and cited my "permissive" as a good example of what the college kids are producing.

He argued the point that if we approve of what he is doing at school he should be allowed to do the same thing at home. I told him we did not approve of what he is doing at school, but when he is on his own in New Haven, he must decide for himself how he wants to live. The argument ended there.

He did not bring the girl home for the weekend. Furthermore, he didn't say another word about the matter.

We have discussed this problem with other parents who are having the same argument with their college progeny. Some of the parents are losing the battle. My sister-in-law, for example, allowed her daughter's boyfriend to stay in their home over the holidays, and he is the same room, she said. Her husband was not happy about the arrangement and announced that he would not agree to it again because he bumped into the boy in the hall at 7:30 a.m. one morning, at 3:30 a.m. another.

What are your views, Ann? If we have one kid who checked up at school, should we let them stay together during weekends and vacations in our home? If not — why not? — GENERATION GAPPED.

DEAR GAPPED: Parents who collapse to such outrageous demands are abdicating their responsibilities, encouraging pre-marital sex and letting their sons and daughters down badly.

College kids are still kids. They are testing, probing, pushing, trying to see how far they can go. They don't want everything they ask for. In fact often they are relieved when they are told "No."

If your college student son or daughter asks for permission to bring a bed-partner home for a holiday, the answer should be — "You are staying home from school, that's your business. A kid who is old enough to go away to school can decide for himself matters of this nature. But don't think you're going to turn our house into a free love pension pit. We may be square, but these are the rules of the house and you can like it or lump it."

Mini Goes Maxi

A mini-dress which becomes a maxi for evening wear was one of the several designs by Spanish designer Miguel Dorian shown in Montreal. The dresses are made of acrylic knit, silk and uncrushable synthetic combinations which shrug wrinkles.

Successful Living

For That First Position Enthusiasm Counts Most

By DORIS CLARK

The importance of the first job tends to be overrated, says the federal health department publication, Understanding the Young Adult.

If the choice has been a poor one, other opportunities will follow. At this age it's the attitude and enthusiasm toward the job that counts more than it being the right job.

Energy, interest and aptitude make for success. Situations and people change, but work habits — like conscientiousness, dependability and thoroughness — when learned early, will prove invaluable later on. — Canada's Health and Welfare

In other words—if you got the first time, baby, here! Even mistakes can be turned to good account, with enough insight—and a willingness to take a good square look at yourself.

• • •

Dear Doris: My brother and my parents had a very heated argument. They were hurt by the things they said to each other and are no longer speaking terms. I am in the middle of the whole mess.

Both my father and my brother feel they deserve an apology from the other.

This fall my sister-in-law has had their first baby — my parents' first grandchild. My parents have never seen her. My brother and sister-in-law have bought gifts for my parents for Christmas, but my father states he will neither buy nor accept gifts from them.

Honestly, Doris, I can't believe this is how two grown-up grown men who once were so close treating each other like this now. How can I get my family back together again? — Wit's End

Dear End: The longer it lasts, the greater the rift will be. Your best bet is to have your brother and sister-in-law bring the new baby when they bring the gifts.

It would be a hard-hearted grandfather indeed who would not melt at the sight of his first grandchild. Would your mother and your sister-in-law conspire to bring this about?

Confidential to Guilty: If you want mental health — use a clear head, you'd better tell your mother everything now.

It was wrong to go out on secret dates and you know it. You may have to take a bit of a rap for what you've done since it won't be easy for your mother to trust you again. Would you trust someone who

Mary Requests Return-address Envelopes

By MARY MOORE

Attention Writing Readers: Here we are in the first month of a new decade and I am going to make a sergeant-major's announcement. If you do not enclose your names and addresses so that we can mail our answers to you do not expect an answer. Also please enclose with your signed letter a stamped self-addressed envelope plus 10 cents. Is that loud and clear? I love complying with your requests but require two-way co-operation. Cordially but firmly yours, Mary.

QUESTION: I am a bit of a nutritionist myself and a full-time economizer and pay strict attention to your nutritional hints. I think canned vegetables are a great buy and since I toured a canning plant my eyes were opened for they are so strict regarding freshness and sterilization. My family is fond of beets and I find the canned rosebuds delicious. Would you print a different way to serve them that is not Harvard or just chopped with butter? — Mrs. McR.

Answer: You are a treat, Fanny. Here is a zesty beet casserole that fits your request.

ZESTY BEET CASSEROLE
(Serves 5)
One No. 2 (19-oz.) can rosebud beets.
1 tbsp. corn starch
2 or 3 tbsps. sugar
½ tsp. salt
2 tbsps. lemon juice or vinegar
1 tbsp. margarine (or butter)
2 tbsps. prepared horseradish.

Drain beets through sieve and reserve the can liquid. Tip beets into small casserole. In a small saucepan mix together dry the corn starch, sugar, and salt and when blended stir in the reserved can liquid and vinegar or lemon juice and cook stirring until thick. Stir in the margarine (or butter) and horseradish and pour over beets in casserole. Cover and bake 30 min. at 375 deg. Fahr.

U.C.W. Meeting

MELROSE — The annual meeting of the evening unit of Melrose UCW was held on Thursday evening, Jan. 8 at the home of Mrs. Hayley Melburn with an attendance of 14 members and one visitor.

In the absence of the unit leader, Mrs. K. McMechon, first assistant Mrs. Don Macfarlane presided. Mrs. H. McMechan conducted a worship period.

The recording secretary, Mrs. Mac Lazier read the minutes of the previous meeting and presented the correspondence. Thank-you notes were received from members of the Macfarlane family and Mrs. H. Harrison who were remembered by the organization at the time of their bereavements. A pointsettia was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Shirton Badgley who recently celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Badgley included in her note a clipping on the origin of the poinsettia as the Christmas flower.

The presbyterial annual meeting will be held in Grace United Church, Napanee on Feb. 6th and 9th. Delegates will be appointed to attend from Melrose congregation.

It was recommended that instead of a sunshine sister this year the exchange of Chrismas gifts would take place at the annual Christmas party.

Reports of the various conveners were given and the election of officers for the year 1970 followed. No changes were made in the 1969 slate except on the social committee where Mrs. Melburn replaced the retiring member, Mrs. Ruth Pascoe.

Arrangements were made for hostesses for the monthly meeting to be held this year and a program committee will meet to plan for the course of study.

Mrs. Melburn and her assistants, Mrs. Ruth Pascoe and Mrs. Anna McMechan, served refreshments.

Church Groups

ST. MICHAEL'S COUNCIL

The Jan. 12 meeting of St. Michael's Parish Council was held in the junior school presided by a dessert and social party.

Various reports were given. Sixty-eight children were cared for in the nursery during Dec. Mrs. McGuire and Mrs. Farrell social, economic and civic life; reported 26 Christmas baskets. Five families were given Christmas money, coal, gas and their bills were paid. Clothing, bedding and medical help were also given to several families.

Visits were made to the sick in private homes and nursing homes and small Christmas gifts distributed.

Plans were finalized for the Valentine dance and smorgasbord which will be held Feb. 6 in the auditorium of St. Michael's School.

Mrs. DiNoco will show a film, "The Layman in the Church" at the Feb. meeting.

Mrs. Becker moved that the meeting be adjourned.

Following the meeting, there was an exchange of Christmas gifts.

DRIER BEST

REGINA (CP) — The homemaker who owns a clothes drier has little need to hang things out on the line, says a Saskatchewan Power Corp. home economist, Lillian McConnell. "Sunshine is hard on fabrics. So is frost, which breaks down the fibres."

ST. ANDREW'S WMS

The January meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society was held in the form of a potluck luncheon with Mrs. H. Yorke and Mrs. D. Kane in charge of arrangements.

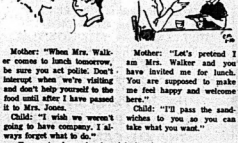
Following the luncheon Miss F. Matthews introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. D. Taylor. Mrs. Taylor brought to her listeners a challenging address based on the theme "Love One Another".

The speaker stressed the need to know and understand the needs of others. "This will only come about when we obey the command of Jesus to love one another".

On behalf of all present Mrs. H. Elvidge expressed appreciation to Mrs. Taylor for her inspiring address.

The president, Miss L. Burnside opened the business period with Mrs. C. Hiuser assisting in the devotional. In the absence of the treasurer, the treasurer's report was given by Mrs. M. Barlow.

Several items of business were discussed and plans made for a Valentine tea to be held in March. The annual meeting of the Kingston Presbyterial will be held in St. Columba Church and all members were urged to attend.



FRIDAY

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "When Mrs. Walker comes to lunch tomorrow, be sure you act polite. Don't interrupt when we're visiting and don't help yourself to the food until after I have passed it to Mrs. Jones.

Child: "I wish we weren't going to have company. I always forget what to do."

Frequent rehearsals of social situations will help a young child learn what to do better than a list of "don'ts" just before the event.

Mother: "Let's pretend I am Mrs. Walker and you have invited me for lunch. You are supposed to make me feel happy and welcome here."

Child: "I'll pass the sandwiches to you as you can take what you want."

Hope's Christmas Show Is Moving Experience

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Bob Hope Christmas Show, once again, was television entertainment. But more than that, it was an emotional and moving experience.

Hope and his company—77 in all—started with a preview of the 2½-hour show at the White House. After a glimpse of the presidential kickoff for the tour, viewers of the 90-minute NBC program gave bits and pieces the entertainment as we followed them around the world.

The routines had been the jokes were pretty much the same as last year's. Hope's role ipe is to assemble a lot of pretty girls, a clutch of comedy routines and add to all-local jokes and cracks about the brass. Whether presented on small, improvised stages in outposts, big auditoriums at huge bases, on carriers at sea or in hospital wards, it all goes over marvelously.

The cameras spent almost as much time panning the faces of the military audiences as they did on the entertainers.

will meet at Lagos' Dodan Barracks, the official residence of Maj.-Gen. Gowon, who Thursday received Biafra's official surrender.

The declaration of unconditional surrender, following the bloody civil war which claimed nearly 2,000,000 lives, was handed over by Maj.-Gen. Philip Effiong, the new commander of the defeated secessionist forces.

There was no victory fever in Lagos, the Nigerian capital. The streets, which have been without lighting since the start of the war as a precaution against Biafran bombing, were still unlit.

There was no jubilation—only an apparent sense of relief that the strife had ended with the statement by Effiong Thursday that "the republic of Biafra has ceased to exist."

Observers here felt it was more difficult to assess the feelings among the Ibos still in the former secessionist territory who had sacrificed so much in the last 30 months of war.

No correspondents have been permitted in visit the area since it fell to federal forces last weekend, although reports from eyewitnesses coming from the Eastern Region said that federal troops are observing the code of conduct given them by Gowon.

The code, contained in a pocket-size booklet distributed by the millions to federal Nigerian forces, contains a section expressly ordering preservation of life and property in the battle zones.

Federal troops had orders from Gowon to observe the code strictly.

detachment in Aba and by a doctor in Umuahi.

Refugees seen in Owerri and walking down the Owerri-Aba road were not in such good physical condition. There were signs of malnutrition among some of the children, but not extreme. . . .

The observers were the only independent group to watch the military operations as the war ended. Reporters have been long banned from the front, and none was allowed on the observers' trip.

Col. Douglas Cairns of Britain said the teams would return to the war area in the next day or two to take a longer look.

Nigeria invited the observers to look into allegations of genocide 16 months ago. Thirty-six different officers, serving on a rotation basis, all said in numerous reports that they found no evidence of genocide.

Quarters Enlarged

Physiotherapy Benefits from Expansion

Belleville General Hospital still is counting benefits from last year's major space expansion.

Latest plus added to the score is a vastly-increased physiotherapy service.

Now renovated, the west wing's first level has permitted installation of one of the best-equipped physiotherapy units in Ontario.

"I'd say we have as much varied equipment as any hospital in the province," says unit director Ivan Wright, "and we have a lot more than most.

"We're equipped now to carry out practically any kind of physiotherapy."

The unit, for years housed in cramped quarters near the hospital's old admission offices, now finds itself with four times as much floor space.

Additional space has permitted some notable program expansions.

There now is abundant space for physical exercise treatments. A full-fledged occupational therapy program is underway.

"We were limited before in the old place because we had no exercise space. Now we have a gymnasium area," says Mr. Wright.

The expanded occupational therapy service is under the supervision of a full time professional and makes available a wide range of crafts — woodwork, ceramics, leatherwork, kitchen practices.

It's not just a hobby shop.

As occupational therapist it is the responsibility of Mrs. Mary Lou Haggerty to "try and find the activity that interests a patient most, then to adapt it for the exercise it provides."

The physiotherapy unit is one of the busiest of BGH operations.

Hospital patients account for about 650 visits a month, out-patients for another 700.

Staffing is a common problem shared by most units outside big-city centres, says Mr. Wright.

However, he believes, if the BGH service can obtain sufficient personnel to staff its newly-expanded and well-equipped facilities, it could increase its patient load about 50 per cent.

Treatment - - And Time to Chat

Physiotherapy unit at BGH has come into its own with move to expanded quarters. There's plenty of room and patients can chat away time during treatments — like Dorothy Brickman and Don Ford, here conversing while arms are immersed in adjoining swirl baths.

Treatment by Shortwave

Madeline Fell positions shortwave diathermy machine at BGH's physiotherapy department. Used for heat treatment, it's one of many facilities which make hospital officials claim unit is one of best-equipped in Ontario.

Interim Billing to Pay School Boards Unfair in Some Cases Say Clerks

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

New legislation calling for municipalities to pay county school board requisitions in four equal installments during the year is merely a gambit to have part of the education costs show up in the general rate.

This was the claim heard yesterday in Belleville at the Zone 5 meeting of the Association of Municipal Clerks and Treasurers.

The all-day meeting which attracted nearly 70 delegates from Muskoka to Prince Edward county heard talks on the new provincial assessment program, provincial equalization factors and interim tax billing.

The question of interim tax billing created possibly the most interest on the part of delegates with a spirited question period following a panel discussion on the subject.

Paul Spears, department of municipal affairs, (Peterborough office) acted as moderator for the panel. W. E. Hunt of Port Hope listed the advantages of interim tax billing, while Aubrey Sharp of Smith township, presented what he felt were the disadvantages.

The consensus appeared to be that interim tax billing was not favorable for all townships.

It was pointed out that income for farmers in many instances was received during the latter part of the year and they may have difficulty in raising interim payments.

The amount of working capital carried by the municipality also had a bearing on whether interim tax payments would be desirable.

Also collection of taxes on the instalment basis would be more costly to the municipalities in that more staff would be necessary to do the extra billing.

It was Eldon Ibey of Campbellford who raised the question of municipal borrowings for school tax interim payments.

He claimed that if municipalities had to borrow to meet interim payments for school tax requisitions, the interest costs should show as a charge against the schools, and not against the general rate of the municipality.

To this Mr. Spears pointed out that education was a continuing thing from January to the year-end and should be "pay as you go."

But the Campbellford official didn't quite agree.

He said the smart thing for municipalities to do would be to refuse to pay the interim school levy, then the board would have to borrow and the interest costs would show as an educational cost.

"The same people would be paying anyway, but the costs would show where they should," he said.

The same attitude was taken by Hungerford township Reeve James Kinlin who asked "why the hell don't school boards do their own borrowing, then interest costs would show where they should."

Mr. Spears admitted the point was a good one and said he would take it up with his department.

Belleville city clerk Adam Stalker said the city this week had passed recommendation regarding the school tax matter and said copies would be going to the Queen's Park, the department of education and all municipalities.

Talking on the new provincial assessment program were Robert H. Craig, Belleville area office manager and Carl Madgett, manager of the Central Area assessment office.

Brian Barter, Cobourg clerk, was named chairman of the Associations' Zone 5. Carl E. Bateman, Hastings county clerk administrator is vice-chairman and Earl Dafoe, newly appointed deputy clerk for Belleville, secretary-treasurer.

City Urges Residents Not to Dump DDT

An urgent warning was issued by City Hall spokesmen today against dumping the insecticide DDT down drains and toilets to get rid of it.

The chemical is now banned for household and garden use, but the city at present has no plans for a pick-up of surplus stock. The city officials asked all householders to keep their DDT supplies until a suitable disposal method is decided upon.

They fear that small quantities of DDT, placed at curb side for separate collection, might become lost in the snow and crushed by vehicles. The chemical thus could ultimately reach the sewers, and hence the bay, at full strength.

"It can't be stressed too strongly that the DDT will do no harm sitting around the house until spring, but getting rid of it by pouring it down a drain can cause untold contamination," the spokesman asserted.

PE Plans Snowmobile Race Feb. 1

Jack Purtell, a vice-president of the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce organized a meeting of snowmobile dealers and fans this month to discuss a day of racing events.

It was agreed to hold races on the half-mile track at Picton Fairgrounds.

Originally, the meet was scheduled for Feb. 15, but news of a big race in Oshawa on that day has spelled a change in plans. The date for the Prince Edward County meet has been advanced to Feb. 1.

More than 1,500 spectators are expected to watch the flags fall over the races. About 50 snowmobiles will compete for trophies in six race divisions.

Occupational Interlude

Pleasant environment of BGH's newly-expanded physiotherapy seems well demonstrated in this scene. Occupational therapist Mrs. Mary Lou Haggerty chats cheerily with Bernard Kehoe, busy sanding furniture. Occupational area is equipped for arts and crafts techniques designed for patients' exercise.

Ameliasburg Counted Out

Municipal Officials Lay Groundwork for Metro Government

When regional government comes to the Quinte area it is likely that the township of Ameliasburg will be required to stay with Prince Edward county rather than join with municipalities on the north side of the Bay of Quinte.

This is the feeling of a special Quinte committee of municipal administrators and clerks directed to recommend what they feel would be a workable outline of regional government for this area.

For the purpose of their discussions committee members have decided that the Quinte area to be considered should include Belleville and Trenton, and the townships of Thurlow, Sidney and Murray.

Russell Thompson, of Ameliasburg told the committee at their December meeting that Prince Edward county was preparing an official plan which included his township said he expected his municipality would be required to stay with the Prince Edward county board.

The committee has prepared an outline of 20 different services which it feels should be considered for interrelation among the municipalities and could be handled by a metropolitan or two-tier government. The services suggested range from planning, transportation, water and sewage services, to police and fire protection, parks, urban renewal and recreation.

Long range area planning was given first priority, followed by water supply, sewage, storm sewers and garbage collection.

Following priorities listed, were police and fire protection, roads and bridges, transportation, acquisition of park lands, recreation, health and welfare, libraries, licensing of trades, building code regulations and issuing of permits; industrial promotion, urban renewal, Emergency Measures Organization, electrical energy, tax billing and collection and capital financing.

The special committee resulted from a general meeting last fall of area elected representatives and municipal officials called to discuss possible outlines for regional government.

The agenda of requirements has been prepared as a guide to elected representatives for future discussions.

Belleville city manager J. R. Reynolds is chairman of the special committee.

Adds Assist Mark

No Records Left For Orr to Set

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bobby Orr today holds every season scoring record open to a National Hockey League defenceman and still has 36 games in which to push the marks higher.

The 21-year-old defence standpicked up two assists Thursday night in a 6-3 Boston Bruins victory over Los Angeles Kings to give him a total 51 assists, one more than the record set last season by Pat Stapleton of Chicago Black Hawks.

The two assists also pushed his points total to 63, just one short of the season record for a defenceman set last season by Orr himself.

His 21 goals in the 1968-69 schedule is also a record for defencemen. He is one more if he is to pass that mark in the current season.

In other games Thursday, St. Louis Blues stopped Toronto Maple Leafs 2-0, New York Rangers gained a 4-4 tie with Philadelphia Flyers and Minnesota North Stars tied Oakland Seals 1-1.

Despite his record-breaking performances, Orr still thinks first about winning games.

"I never think about breaking records and on the two assists tonight I really didn't have to work too hard for them," he said after the game.

"I don't care how the goals and assists come, just so long as we win.

"Winning is the big thing—the only thing."

Centre Phil Esposito closed to within 11 points of team-mate Orr in the current scoring race with two goals and an assist in the game before 14,835 fans at Boston.

Esposito's 22 goals and 20 assists for the season returned him to second place, two points ahead of Phil Goyette of St. Louis.

Rick Smith, Ed Westfall, Ken Hodge and Fred Stanfield scored single goals as the Bruins pested Kings goalie Wayne Rutledge with 34 shots, 23 of them in the final period.

Gerry Cheevers made 25 saves for the Boston nets but allowed goals by Bob Wall, Ted Irvine and Bill White. White's goal in the last minute of the second period cut Boston's lead to 4-3; but Esposito's two goals in the final session put the game out of reach.

The Bruins victory put them back into second place in the East Division, one point ahead of the idle Montreal Canadiens and three behind the leading Rangers.

New York rallied twice to gain the tie before a crowd of 14,606 at Philadelphia. Rod Gilbert opened the scoring for the Rangers but the Flyers stormed back with goals by Earl Heiskala, Jean-Guy Gendron and Gary Dornhoefer before the first period ended.

Centre Walt Tkaczuk scored in the second period and Gilbert's second of the night early in the final session tied it up. Dick Cherry beat goalie Terry Sawchuk at 2:06 of the period to put the Flyers back in front but Arnie Brown got the tying goal for the Rangers less than two minutes later.

BOBBY ORR

Only Ten Goals To Go

Bobby Orr earned two assists Thursday night but Boston Bruins team-mate Phil Esposito gained some ground on the National Hockey League scoring leader by recording two goals and an assist.

Orr's two assists gave him a season total of 51—most ever scored in a single season by a defenceman. He also has 12 goals for a points total of 63, 11 ahead of Esposito who has 22 goals and 33 assists.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts	PIM
Orr, Bos	12	51	63	94
Esposito, Bos	22	20	52	21

Sawchuk made 22 saves to earn the win while Bernie Parent faced 29 shots in the Philadelphia nets.

The tie kept the Flyers one point ahead of third place Minnesota and 12 behind the front-running Blues in the West Division.

Ernie Wakely stopped 28 Toronto shots to record his third season shutout before a crowd of 16,131 at St. Louis.

Ab McDonald scored his 20th season goal in the first period and Tim Ecclestone made it 2-0 midway through the final period despite outstanding goaltending by Toronto's Bruce Gamble who made 31 saves.

Centreman Goyette of the Blues got in the way of a hard check by Leafs defenceman Mike Pelyk in the first period and retired to the bench for the remainder of the game with a bruised thigh.

Earl Ingarfield scored in the first period at Oakland as the Seals outshot the North Stars 14-11, but Lou Nanne tied it up for Minnesota in the second period when the visitors outshot their hosts 12-6.

The North Stars had an 8-6 advantage in shots during the final period but goalie Gary Smith for the Seals and Fern Rivard stopped all scoring efforts.

The Seals travel to Montreal in one of six games scheduled Saturday. Pittsburgh Penguins are at Toronto, New York at Minnesota, Chicago at Boston, Philadelphia at Detroit to meet the Red Wings and Los Angeles at St. Louis in the other contests.

Ruel Not Eager For His Stars To Face Music

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Ruel, coach of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, wants to make sure that things will be quiet for the 23rd annual all-star game to be held in St. Louis Tuesday.

It's not that Ruel is opposed to good music, he's just opposed to "that guy who plays the organ at the St. Louis Arena and stirs up the crowd."

Ruel launched an objection Thursday to the use of Norm Kramer, the St. Louis arena organist at the all-star contest.

The 31-year-old Canadiens' instructor who will lead the east division all-stars against their west division counterparts, feels that Kramer's playing gives the home team a one-goal advantage before the other team skates on the ice.

Ruel said Thursday:

"I don't want to give that west team any advantage. My guys will be playing for $500 per man. The losers get $250 and I don't like being on the losing side."

Kramer, who plays at all the home games of the west division St. Louis Blues, has been the subject of some controversy since the Blues entered the league at the start of the 1967-68 season.

The noise created by him and the fast-stomping and singing fans has been the subject of several protests to NHL president Clarence Campbell, from various visiting coaches.

In response to the protest, Campbell ruled that organists must refrain from playing music during the actual playing of the game. They are permitted to play when the action is stopped for icing, offsides and after a goal is scored.

To support Ruel's objection, Bill Wirtz, owner of Chicago Black Hawks of the NHL's Eastern Division, said that he is also going to launch a protest and ask Campbell for a ruling.

Wirtz said the all-star game is one of the league's biggest showcases and added:

"I don't care where the game is played but in the interests of all-star players who are playing for money, the conditions should be as neutral as possible."

Red Jacket Up for Sale

TORONTO (CP) — Three Canadian yachts from the Toronto area will head for Florida later this month to compete in the 1970 Southern Ocean Racing Conference series, taking over from Perry Connally of Toronto, who skippered Red Jacket to the SORC championship in 1968.

Dushka V, Bonaventure IV and Redhead are entered in the six race series, starting Jan. 30 at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Red Jacket, a sloop which won virtually all races on Lake Ontario in 1966 after launch at nearby Oakville, Ont., is up for sale.

Dushka V's raced by Kirt Hansen and Nick Schoenstadt of Whitby, Ont., 30 miles east of here, and Bonaventure V's owned by Toronto's Bernie Herman.

Redhead, a Redwing-35 launched recently at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., will be skippered by Bruce Kirby of Ottawa, editor of the U.S. magazine Offshore Yachtsman.

The Jan. 30 SORC opener is 100 miles long from St. Petersburg to Venice, Fla. Others in the series and starting points are: Feb. 7 at St. Petersburg, Feb. 19 at Miami, Feb. 28 at Miami, March 2 at Miami and March 6 at Nassau.

No Negotiating Now

Habs Not Interested in Huck... Yet!

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League have no intention of immediately turning any members of Canada's national team professional, a club spokesman said Thursday.

The statement followed a Wednesday report from Winnipeg that Fran Huck, a five-year veteran with the national team had resigned and is considering a pro future for the remainder of this season and next.

Huck is one of several members of the national team whose hockey future became uncertain after Canada withdrew from the 1970 world hockey tournament.

Since the withdrawal, the future of the national team has remained uncertain.

The spokesman said the Canadiens are interested in all players currently performing with the nationals and are interested in having some of them play under a try-out arrangement with the pros "when it is convenient to the national team."

"The Canadiens will not, however, turn any of these players professional until the national team has completed its program for the 1969-70 season," the spokesman said.

Huck, Bob Lepage, Michel Poirier and Bob Murdoch, and Ken Dryden, are all Montreal property.

Lepare is a pro on loan to the nationals and Poirier is still an amateur.

Huck consistently has turned down pro offers, playing instead with the nationals while completing his education.

Huck said he intends to play hockey professionally next season, but he said "schooling comes first for the remainder of the season."

Punch Hits Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (CP) — Georges (Punch) Imlach said today he has accepted the job of general manager and coach of the new Buffalo entry in the National Hockey League.

'PUNCH' IMLACH

"I'm happy to be returning to the game," Imlach said in an interview. "This is a job of building from the bottom. I've done it before and can do it again.

Imlach, fired last spring as general manager and coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs, was expected to sign his contract later today.

The announcement ended speculation that Imlach would coach Vancouver Canucks, the other team scheduled to join the NHL in 1971.

A former coach, manager and part owner of Quebec Aces of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, he came to Toronto as manager of the Maple Leafs late in the 1958s and assumed the dual roles of manager-coach after the firing of coach Billy Reay early in 1959.

During the next 10 years, the Maple Leafs finished out of the playoffs only once—1968—and won four Stanley Cups, the last in 1967.

Imlach's Leafs stopped producing in autumn of 1967, just months after winning the Stanley Cup. The club finished out of the playoffs the following spring and Imlach says he was issued a directive from president Stafford Smythe of Maple Leaf Gardens in the fall of 1968.

He says he was given two months to show that the team could make the playoffs that season.

The club finished fourth in the East Division and lost four straight games to Boston Bruins in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarter-finals last spring.

Just minutes after losing the fourth game, Smythe called Imlach aside and informed the manager-coach that he was fired.

Twice weekly, this is the scene at the Apollo Barbell Club's Boswell St. training headquarters. For six of the city weightlifting club's members, the weekly training sessions are taking on a more serious note — they have qualified for the May 22-24 British Commonwealth Games Trials to be held at Belleville's Centennial Secondary School.

Apollo Contingent Good as 2 Provinces

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

The Apollo Barbell Club is enough to unnerve the premiers of Manitoba and Newfoundland.

Neither province qualified a competitor for last year's Canadian Weightlifting Championships in Quebec City, and the Belleville club has already qualified half a dozen with the championships four months off. The championships — doubling as the British Commonwealth Games Trials — will be held at Belleville's Centennial Secondary School on the weekend beginning Friday, May 22. The event was originally scheduled two weeks earlier, but put back to accommodate some competitors who would be involved in university examinations in early May.

Apollo coach Ken Carr-Braint has already got over the first hurdle in having his club represented in July's Commonwealth Games in Edinburgh. The six club lifters who have any chance at a Canadian team berth have met the Trials qualifying standard within the required 12-month period.

Lightweight Enos Evans, middleweight Bob Walt, lightheavyweight Art Wall, and middle-heavyweight Gary Walt all met Trial standard at the Canadian Intermediate Championships in Woodstock in November, Carr-Braint pointed out.

Middle - heavyweight Paul Barrett qualified as a Games Trials competitor by hoisting 782 pounds in his best three lifts at Toronto's Central "Y" Open meet Nov. 21.

And former five-time Canadian heavyweight champion Price Morris qualified at the Eastern Canadian championships in Toronto back in September.

The six Apollo Club members are included in a field of 90 of Canada's outstanding lifters who will be vying for the nine spots on Canada's Commonwealth Games team.

That comes as no surprise to those who know that, with 40 members, the Apollo Club is the biggest in Canada.

Ellis B's Plan To Hit Tonight

By ERIC EMERSON
(Staff Sportswriter)

If Floyd Crawford has anything to say about it, the Kingston Junior B squad should get a big bang out of tonight's game.

The Ellis' mentor cracked the whip in Thursday night's practice sending the team through a number of one-on-one drills and stressing body contact.

"We plan to come out hitting them," said Crawford, "something we haven't been doing the last few games."

The Belleville team is expected to be at full strength for the game against Kingston, although some of the squad missed practice because of high school exams.

All-out efforts by heavyweights Greg Burkitt, Dalton Lambert and Kevin Dockrill are essential if the boarding tactics are to succeed. Surprisingly enough, Burkitt and Lambert tied with speedsters Reed Mallory and John McConnell for best times in the wind sprints.

One probable object of special attention will be high scoring Kingston centre Colin Louden, who currently holds down third spot in the point parade. Louden, a fine playmaker as well as scorer, spearheads the Kingston attack.

REED MALLORY

While the Belleville coach refuses to speculate on his exact line combinations, he will probably pair scoring aces Terry Meagher and John McConnell on the first line.

The return of Reid Mallory, who missed Sunday's game will bring the centre contingent to full strength, and this is probably the team's strongest point.

A humbling 12-3 loss in their last meeting, should provide added incentive to the Belleville team who are battling Cobourg and Trenton for the final playoff spot.

Sunday night, the Ellis B's visit Peterborough to try and salve some of their last place difficulty.

Skating Sounds Good

This weekend's Eastern Ontario Sectional Figure Skating Championships will be music to the ears of spectators at Trenton's Community Gardens.

Music is an integral part of the competition, with competitors putting a lot of stock on the music program they have selected to be the background for their free skating routines.

"We put a lot of work into choosing and perfecting the program," said Quinte Figure Skating Club professional Gordon Crutchfield, overseeing the 11 Belleville entries in the 105-entry weekend Sectionals.

"We have to edit the tapes to the exact second."

The music may be anything from Strauss to Rodgers and Hammerstein, but must be precisely 2½—3½ minutes duration, depending on the competitor's category.

Registration for the first annual Eastern Ontario championships began at noon today, with pre - juvenile skating taking up tonight's program at the Community Gardens.

Competition runs from 10:15 Saturday morning through to 10 p.m., and from 9:15 Sunday morning to the 6 p.m. presentation ceremonies. Admission is $1 daily, or $2 for the entire competition.

A panel of world - calibre judges will select a number of winners to compete in the Canadian Figure Skating Championships in Edmonton Jan. 29-31.

Skaters will represent some 40 clubs, with 11 from Belleville and two from Trenton.

Mo-Hawks Add 25 Years To Roster Experience

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

The Belleville Mo-Hawks will have added about 25 years of professional hockey experience to their roster by the time they face Kingston Aces in a Tuesday night Memorial Arena grudge match.

Earlier this week, playing-coach Davey Jones announced the OHA Senior A league's third - place team had landed the services of eight - year National Hockey League veteran Lorne Ferguson to bolster their playoff chances.

Today, Jones said the Mo-Hawks have come to an agreement with American Hockey League veteran Bob Wilson to strengthen the club's defensive corps.

Wilson, 35,s played 10 seasons in the Eastern Pro, American, and Central Pro Leagues before quitting two winters ago.

The stocky (five - foot, nine-inch, 175 - pound) defenceman is the son of the late Bob Wilson, Sr., of Havelock, who is credited with discovering Bobby Hull for the Chicago Black Hawks, s.

"Bob has been coaching the Havelock juveniles, so it's not as if he has been off skates completely," said Jones.

Wilson played both junior and senior hockey briefly in Belleville before launching his professional career.

This week, the Mo-Hawks are going through the proper channels to have Wilson placed on pro hockey's voluntary retirement list.

"I hope to have Bob cleared by Tuesday's end start him — and Lorne — against Kingston," Jones added.

Tuesday night's 8:30 Memorial Arena game will be a rubber match, with each club having won three of their six meetings to date in the schedule.

The Mo-Hawks, who play in Galt Saturday night and Oakville Sunday, are eager to avenge the 10-3 pasting they absorbed two weeks ago in Kingston.

Another Point

He won't be playing point, as he is here in a Belleville Mo-Hawk practice, but veteran winger Lorne Ferguson will be a strong point in the Mo-Hawks' favor as he dons a Belleville senior hockey sweater with playoffs just around the corner.

City Holds Off Arena Seating

Installation of new Memorial Arena seats will stop — for now.

Recreation and Arena Committee chairman Donald Soutter said today the committee had decided to suspend the installation on the strength of Belleville Mo-Hawk general manager Robert Temple's argument that Mo-Hawk season ticket-holders were being inconvenienced.

Mr. Temple said the majority of season ticket-holders for the Belleville senior hockey club were opposed to the immediate installation of the new arena seats, and that a number of them would be displaced under the new seating plan.

Mr. Soutter said the committee had decided to temporarily stop the installation as a gesture of good faith to Mo-Hawk subscribers. They would definitely be installed at the completion of the current hockey season.

Namath, Dawson in Accord

Contrasting Dressers Agree: AFL Football's Best League

NEW YORK (AP) — The quarterback in the strawberry-red jacket and gold trousers said it's the quarterback in the conservative green silk suit.

"It is American Football League that reigned as the National Football League. The AFL is better, hands down."

"I agree," said the quarters back in the green silk suit. "I think we are more imaginative."

It was the first meeting since Sunday's Super Bowl game of Broadway Joe Namath, the star of the AFL's 1969 victory over Baltimore Colts, and Len Dawson, named the Most Valuable Player in Kansas City Chiefs' surprise 23-7 clobbering of the favored Minnesota Vikings five days ago.

They appeared together at a taping of the television program Wide World of Sports, to be shown Saturday. They analyzed the Chief's victory at New Orleans, and joined in appreciating the AFL's superiority. Namath was the more outspoken of the two.

"I just can't understand it," Namath said. "The odds makers made Minnesota a 14-point favorite, and the sports writers all fell for it. Most of the writers said the Vikings would eat the Chiefs alive.

"Didn't they learn anything from the Super Bowl?" New York Jets, behind Namath, upset Baltimore Colts 16-7? I don't think that's why they think the NFL is better.

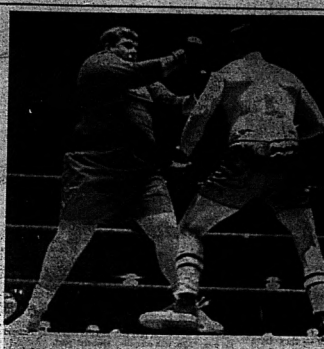
"The NFL has become self-satisfied. It plays standard, stereotyped football which dates back to the old New York Giants and the Green Bay Packers under Vince Lombardi.

"Lombardi was successful and other teams naturally patterned after him. The AFL was new and fighting for life. So it strove to make changes. It has come up with more imaginative offences and better defences.

Namath showed up for the TV show in a purple suit with bell-bottom trousers and a Buffalo Bill suede jacket.

He changed into his TV attire—a jacket the color of his spiked tomato juice, gold pants, black shirt and white tie.

Dawson, looking like the leading man in a soap opera, was neat in a green suit with narrow cuffs, matching green tie and short haircut.



Namath and Dawson, who were mentioned last week as possible witnesses in a grand gambling investigation in sports, agreed that they had been hurt through what they called "guilt by implication."

"It hurt Dawson more than it hurt me," Namath said. "He had a Super Bowl game to play. He had a family back in Kansas City which was stunned by the news. It upset his kids.

"I'm a bachelor. I have only myself to worry about. But it shook me. I think it's unfair."

"It's cruel," agreed Dawson. "I wondered what is the reason behind it. It doesn't matter, there's no truth in the reports. People will believe what they want to believe. You have to sit back and live with it. I've always tried to do what's right. I've wanted to be an example to the youth of the country and my own kids. And this happens. I ask myself: 'Why? Why me?'".

Leader Wants Quiet

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Bert Greene has a simple request. Quiet please.

"I just hope nobody makes a loud noise and wakes me up," he said Thursday after a seven-under-par 64 in the first round of the $100,000 Phoenix open golf tournament.

"It's got to be the best round I ever had," said the 28-year-old, now in his fourth year on the professional tour and still seeking his first victory.

Normally quiet, Greene was almost babbling in excitement when he finished his round on the 6,762-yard, par-71 Phoenix Country Club course.

"Just fantastic," he muttered. "Fantastic. Never hit it that close to the hole—and putting, wow."

Veteran Paul Harney had a 66 and Dick Mayer, 46, posted a 68.

A group at 67 was headed by defending champion Gene Littler, with Don January in the bunch at 68, Frank Beard, Dave Hill and British Open champion Tony Jacklin had 69.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver was well back with a score of 37-42—79.

Big Loser

John Cookman, 323-pound former Kenmore, N.Y., high school football player (left) jolted Bob Giles of Brantford, Ont., with one blow to the head, then wilted and lost by a technikal knockout at 1:30 of the first round in an amateur fight Tuesday night. It was Cookman's ring debut. (AP Wirephoto)

Front-runners Hard Pressed By Also-rans

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Black Hawks and Peterborough Petes, two teams battling to stay in contention for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series regular season title, both were hard pressed by lower ranking teams Thursday before pulling out victories.

The Petes, trailing 5-4 on home ice late in the second period, bounced back to force a tie before the intermission and scored the only two goals of the third period to overcome Kitchener Rangers 6-4.

At Hamilton, the Black Hawks needed two goals late in the final period to defeat the ninth-place Red Wings 5-3.

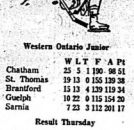
Both winners gained ground on the league-leading Montreal Junior, Canadiens, who have played three games less than their nearest rivals. Montreal's lead over Peterborough was sliced to three points and the Black Hawks, who stretched their unbeaten streak to nine games, remained two points behind the Petes in third spot.

Defenceman Ron Plumb sparked the Peterborough rebound with two goals, raising his season total to 12. Plumb's goal late in the middle period cut the Kitchener lead to 5-4 and he tied the score at 3:19 of the third period. Mickey Donaldson, who also scored earlier in the game, fired the winner at 12:01.

Skip Foster and rookie Danny Gloor completed the Peterborough scoring.

At Hamilton, Duane Wylie snapped a 3-3 tie with the winning goal for St. Catharines at 18:02 of the third period. Red Wings coach Eddie Bush gambled in the final minute by removing his goalkeeper, Mike Velasc, for an extra forward. The strategy failed as Clyde Simon, obtained by the Black Hawks recently in a trade with London Knights for Dennis Glanznik, scored into an empty net with 22 seconds to spare for his second goal of the game.

Listowel Leaves County League



GUELPH (CP) — Listowel Legionnaires officially disbanded Thursday, leaving seven teams ready to play the 1970 season in the Intercounty Baseball Association Senior series.

Lack of playing talent in the town of 5,000, 70 miles north west of here, was given as the reason for the team's withdrawal. The Legionnaires were left without a manager when Ken Benjamin moved to London, Ont.

Holdover clubs in the senior group are Hamilton Red Wings, Toronto Maple Leafs, Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers, Galt Terriers, Guelph c-JOYs, Stratford Hoods and London Pontiacs.

Oakdale to Entertain Women

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian women's national golf championship and interprovincial team matches will be held at Toronto's Oakdale Golf and Country Club Aug. 11 to 14 this year.

The championship will consist of 72 holes of medal play.

A limited field of 120 to 130 players, 40 of which will make up the four-member interprovincial teams, will be accepted and reduced to the top 60 and ties after the first 36 holes.

Scores of interprovincial team members during the first 36 holes of the tournament will also count toward the over-all championship.

The Canadian junior women's championship is scheduled for Oak Ridges, Ont., Aug. 5 to 7.

Men War For Press Box

TORONTO (CP) — Tradition has been served and the press box at Maple Leaf Gardens is strictly a male preserve once more.

The "no women in the press box" rule stood from the time the Gardens was built in 1931 until challenged this season by Florence Ross of Canadian National Telecommunications.

A teletype operator for 25 years, she wanted to pick up some overtime by sending press copy on National Hockey League games at the Gardens —and she had the seniority to do it.

The Gardens pointed to the tradition of nearly 40 years; Miss Ross gestured toward the union agreement and someone mentioned the word "discrimination."

Today, two strides down the corridor leading from the press box, there is a brand new room for the corps of teletype operators—male and female.

Both sides lost a little. The Gardens had to pay "$200 or $300" to build the room; the operators, in their windowless room lost their view of the game.

"We can sneak back into the press box to watch when we're not busy," a male operator said. "But I'm afraid she's going to be stuck."

Falls Want to Be Grand Prix Site

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Local officials were to meet today with representatives of the Canadian Racing Drivers' Association to discuss the possibility of bringing the Canadian Grand Prix to this southern Ontario community.

The idea originated with local business groups trying to bolster the city's tourist industry.

If plans are approved and the city builds a 2½-mile racing course, businessmen expect the city to have an increase in tourism of at least 60,000 visitors annually.

The 1969 Canadian Grand Prix was held at Mosport Park, 40 miles northeast of Toronto.

Brockville Doctor Pays 'Debt' By Six-week Visit to Laos

BROCKVILLE (CP) — A Canadian doctor who feels he has a "moral debt" to less-fortunate countries has found a way to start payment—a six-week visit to Laos to teach doctors there modern anesthetic methods.

Dr. Mark M. Boss, father of three and a general practitioner here for the last 10 years, leaves Sunday to work for the Tom Dooley Foundation in Vientiane, capital of the Southeast Asian country.

In an interview recently, Dr. Boss said his trip is "entirely voluntary" and "I pay my own transportation and live at the hospital."

His departure was delayed a few days by the death in Ottawa Tuesday of his father, Lt.-Col. William Boss, retired Canadian army historian.

Dr. Boss said he will be the first Canadian doctor to work for the Dooley Foundation, a United States charitable organization.

"The hospital is a new one," he said. "It opened just a few months ago and is loaded with American equipment which they (natives) don't know how to use. I will be spending my time teaching anesthesia—mostly in French."

Dr. Boss said the foundation also operates two 36-foot houseboats equipped as clinics that stop at small villages on the shores of the Mekong River.

His dream of helping another country can be traced back to the Second World War when his two brothers and father served overseas.

He said he interrupted his medical studies at McGill University in Montreal to join the army, but instead of going overseas, he was posted to Camp Borden near Barrie, where he taught lab technicians in the medical corps.

"I always felt that I wasn't doing as much as I could," he said.

After 28 years in practice, Dr. Boss said he felt it was time to begin paying back the debt he felt he owed society—"as my brothers and father have done."

"I firmly believe that if I go over there and do this kind of work, then I, too, will benefit from the experience. It is a tremendous opportunity and I hope to come back a better physician for it.

"Besides the civilian problems we will be getting war casualties at the hospital from the Plain of Jars up north or from the Ho Chi Minh Trail."

If the trip is successful, Dr. Boss says he will go back every few years.

"I'd like to see other doctors get the same urge. We hear so many of our group complaining about treating psychosomatic illnesses that here is a perfect opportunity to do some real medicine seven days a week."

McKeough Asks Federal Aid For Toronto Urban Renewal

TORONTO (CP) — A demonstration project on rehabilitation of an area chosen by the city of Toronto will be considered by Ontario when it is presented to the province if the federal government can be persuaded to participate, Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough said Thursday.

Mr. McKeough, in a speech to the Women's Canadian Club, blamed the federal government for a slowdown in urban renewal projects.

Federal funds for urban renewal have been available since Dec. 18, 1969, only on "a highly restricted basis," Mr. McKeough said, while the federal government studies "the urbanization process."

"I am unable to understand why a program as vital to our cities as urban renewal should be curtailed by the federal government," he said. "Nor have I been able to understand why our celestial urban renewal projects should be frozen while the federal government makes up its mind whether to participate and if so to what degree, and when."

Mr. McKeough reviewed urban developments in Sarnia, Hamilton, Ottawa, Toronto, Windsor and Sudbury as "some of the good things" renewal projects can bring.

Toronto's proposal for a demonstration renewal project will include a deferred-payment program, established standards of rehabilitation, citizen participation and plans to experiment with techniques for the rehabilitation work.

"The federal government has had some difficulty in locating statutory authority for their participation," he said.

"It is my hope the pioneering efforts between the city and ourselves will convince the federal government that it should share in this project, and certainly in future rehabilitation programs."

Text of Mr. McKeough's speech was released prior to delivery.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"
By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

Heart Disease Is No. One Killer

Coronary heart- disease is the No. 1 killer. People want to live; but not at whatever cost as many want to know how they can prevent the early onset of this illness?

"What is the real cause?" they ask. We keep saying there is no "one" cause. There is no "sure" way to keep us out of harm's way. Nevertheless, it's helpful to know the various theories concerning the causes of coronary disease.

One, here or there, may alert us against danger. Here, for example, is an editorial from the Journal of the American Medical Association which says:

"Etiology of coronary heart disease is an open field for theories. A modern wit remarked that we could choose any criterion — be it the number of bathtubs in one's home or the color of favored neckties — and build around it a statistical study which would bear some 'significant' relevance to this disease.

"Patently an exaggeration, this observation may not be too far removed from the truth. Etiologic factors thought yesterday can no longer be counted on the fingers of one or even two hands.

"Cholesterol, which dominated the etiologic (causal) arena for more than two decades has now been overshadowed by triglycerides and saturated fatty acids and supplemented by minor trace competitors, such as sucrose and coffee.

"Prominent among the nondietary factors are smoking, lack of exercise, nervous tension, and, of course, predisposing constitutional factors of hypertension, lipidemia (too much fat in the blood), diabetes and gout.

"To the list can be added drugs which may enhance clotting mechanisms, thus facilitating thrombosis in narrowed vessels. Coronary disease is truly a 'multispendored' thing."

Many readers are amazed that I receive letters from teenagers on health problems. I have received letters from 7 and 8 year-olds. Here, for example, is a youngster in need of help:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 10 years old, going on 11. I need help. I weigh 90 pounds. My legs and waist are a sight. I am wide around them.

My will power isn't strong enough. When I diet for a few days, my appetite comes back and I eat like crazy. My figure is bad and my clothes are not easy to find for me. Please help, — Miss N.

Comment: I'll try to help by asking your parents to help. Often the generation gap causes us to forget our own problems when we were kids. Perhaps they are telling you, "Don't be silly, you'll grow out of it."

I believe, feeling as you do, that you deserve to have the advice of a doctor to lean on. With his help perhaps you won't be going on and off your diet so often. (Show this column to your parents. Miss N.)

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 66 years of age and have smoked for 18 years, yet I learned a year ago that I have emphysema. My doctor says there is nothing to do for it except avoid dust and other colds. With all due respect, I suspect there are breathing exercises or other treatments available. What shall I do? — Mr. L.

Comment: Ask for consultation or treatment with a chest specialist. Much can be done for many patients with emphysema. Treatment must be positive rather than passive if'm sure your doctor will agree.

Strictly Personal

New Words and New World

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

If older persons want to grasp for a moment the new world their children are living in, it can be done very simply: thinking about all the words that are common currency today — words that did not exist, or had a sharply different meaning, in the past.

Television, of course is the most pervasive, not only as a word, but as a way of viewing the world. Then there are isotope, antibiotic, neutron, cyclotron, chromosome, transistor, computer, decontamination, radar and dozens of other scientific terms our children have grown up with.

And these are not even new slang words, like hippie and black market and LP and brunch and motel and smog and prefab and pin-up and turbo-prop and scores of similar new terms.

The language a child grows up with is like the climate he grows up in — it so suffuses him that he is not aware of it. He can hardly imagine a world without baby sitters and mini skirts and automation and over-kill and gimmickry, and such recent acronyms as DNA and UNESCO and VIP and UFO.

Just a generation ago, there was no such phrase as teenager, no such noun as knowhow; no such verb as contact, no such adjective as featherbed.

Of course, there has always been a linguistic change, but never so fast and never reflecting such speed-changes in the obective world. Most of these are not new terms for new concepts, but new words for new objects, processes, and attitudes. The language explosion is keeping pace with the knowledge explosion, where more knowledge accumulates in a decade now than was amassed in the previous two centuries.

The older generation has a built-in sense of time that distorts the past at the expense of the present. For instance, the morality that we preach was not part of a long, unbroken tradition handed down from Biblical times, but a specific set of attitudes in a Victorian world order that lasted only some 80 years; before then, Puritanism was only one strand in the moral and behavioral code of Christianity.

But what took almost a century to change — and is still changing so slowly it could hardly be perceived — now takes a decade or less, and we see it happening before our eyes, in a dizzy and dismaying rate. Modern children, used to this speed, think of it as natural; for the rate of cultural acceleration is as normal to them as jet planes and spaceships.

We would find it hard to speak consecutively for five minutes without using some phrase or concept that didn't exist in our childhood — and recognizing this truth is one way to reach across the gap of mutual misunderstanding, and resentment.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For January 17

Your birthday today: The coming year will see you connected with material improvement, earnings, and enjoying a better return for your efforts. You are almost certain to find means of adding another line of activity to your established program, perhaps to farm out some of your work if you are freelancing. Partnerships should be somewhat easier to form and manage.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Almost anything you say today will be taken seriously, even if you smile while saying it. Travel activities appeal to you. Home and family affairs get complicated, perhaps a bit crazy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Enjoy the optimistic view of living that though you may need glasses. Medical checkups, accessories for physical culture regimens, fresh cosmetics, etc., are all suitable for attention. Plan for up-to-date clothing, which shows off your better qualities.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): With a great deal to do this weekend, follow your checklist consistently. Relatives or friends of the family upset your schedules a bit. Be more tactful than usual and try to make up the lost time.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Today seems fairly easy, and peaceful. Given half a chance, the people you know and like will do nicely by you. Plan a light sociable evening; keep everything modest.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): See to important matters early and in person for direct results. Experiments turn out fairly well. Buy some new clothing, or a new style or a different set of colors for a change. In the evening enjoy your own or somebody else's party.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Someone you know hits a good streak of luck and money. You have something to do as a result of the event; acquire fresh information to be doing. News from distant places gives you much to think about.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): You gain by taking a light, almost frivolous course today. Entertain, encourage others to reach out for better understanding. You'll hear plenty about the problems of friends, and may be asked to do something for them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your new plans move into preliminary action and should score good progress. Study efforts now will bring you the key to real achievements later. Shift to a more festive mood this evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): There seems so much to do that you have no chance for pleasure. Work with the idea of the day; do what clearly fits the situation. You can make up for the sacrifice later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Fragile things are left alone or for others to handle. Stick to essentials and carry your share of the chores, but expect little cooperation. Where group effort is concerned, make sure nothing important is forgotten.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Review your affairs with a view to discarding leftover materials, valueless activities. Lasting improvements, simplifications can be made. New contacts are potentially very profitable.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Be firm with any relative who complains, so as not to spoil this generally happy day. Your appetite may be a bit fussy — don't force matters.

Anti-pollution Bill Called Puny Reply to Giant Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's anti-pollution water bill found few friends Thursday among the Commons opposition who classified it a puny answer to a giant problem.

To James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) the proposed Canada water act was "a sad attempt" at meeting the pollution threat. It "pussyfoots" around the question of a total approach.

While the bill was up for second reading, he said water-quality standards are needed for the whole country, not just for the designated water-management areas the bill empowers the government to establish.

Mr. McGrath called for federal initiative to produce a national conference of government, scientific and wildlife officials to develop a recognition of federal responsibility to legislate for the whole country.

Even with the bill, each province would take its own approach to pollution, which was a national problem requiring a national approach.

Earlier, the Conservatives lost a bid to force a vote on whether to return the bill to the government for redrafting. An amendment seeking the step was ruled out of order by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

The amendment was unrefined up the Conservative view that it fails to make clear federal jurisdiction "in pollution cases" and fails to commit federal funds to pollution control and makes no provision for national water standards. It would as a result be ineffective.

Although the bill would authorize Crown corporations to build sewage treatment plants and provide fines for dumping waste in water management areas, Rod Thomson (NDP—Battleford-Kindersley) said it is not strong enough to do the job that needs to be done.

Robert McIlveen (PC—Halifax-East Hants) advocated a single authority to enforce pollution regulations. Several departments now divide this task.

Gordon Ritchie (PC—Dauphin) said there is nothing in the bill to permit aggressive federal leadership in the pollution field. Under the bill, the federal government could act only by agreement with the provinces.

Bernard Dumont (Creditiste —Frontenac) called for research into pollution and an information program to make Canadians aware of it.

The government, said Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford), has assumed control for all practical purposes over navigable waters. But it continued to "weasel out" of its responsibility to curb pollution by arguing the field was largely a provincial matter.

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) felt the bill should have banned use of detergents using phosphates, said to be a serious water pollutor.

She also sought the resignation of O. M. Solandt as chairman of the Science Council of Canada. He is vice-president of a company that supplies detergent components. She said his dual role amounted to a conflict of interest on pollution control.

For the government, Ray Perrault (L—Burnaby-Seymour) defended the bill—which puts the government heavily into water management—as "just one step" in the government program to fight pollution, a fight carried on in the face of constitutional obstacles.

"This bill is not perfect, but it a step in the right direction," he said.

Hate Literature Mailed from U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Natural Order, its mailing privileges cancelled within Canada, is getting around the ban by posting anti-Semitic material from Niagara Falls, N.Y., the Commons was told Thursday.

Robert Muir (PC-Cape Breton — The Sydneys) asked Postmaster-General Eric Kierans to take action to have United States authorities cut off The Natural Order there.

Mr. Kierans promised to do this and also accosted Mr. Muir's suggestion that the matter be referred to the Commons justice committee.

Mr. Muir said this should be done because "the literature apparently prepared by these congenital fools reflects upon the presiding officer of this assembly and our Jewish citizens."

The Commons presiding officer is Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

The literature asked whether the "supposed-neutral Speaker" was "trying to be a nursemaid to Mr. Trudeau so that stinging rebuke and proof of his incompetent judgment" would not reach MPs.

The thick packet, which includes the Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion, was mailed to Mr. Muir's home address and bore 76 cents worth of stamps. The postmark was Niagara Falls, N.Y., but the origin apparently was Gooderham, Ont.

Stamps on the material said:

"Our mail is banned in Canada. Canadians send mail to friends in the U.S.A. for remailing to John Ross Taylor."

Mr. Taylor is described elsewhere in the material as Natural Leader of The Natural Order, Gooderham, Ont.

A Niagara Falls post office box was given as the U.S. address.

Other material in the packet Mr. Muir received says the gas ovens of Second World War concentration camps were built by captured German soldiers under the direction of Jewish officers.

Committee Study Starts

Benson Calmly Defends Tax Reform Proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons finance committee took its first look Thursday at the sweeping tax change proposals made by Finance Minister Edgar Benson last Nov. 7.

There the committee ended its day-long hearing with a political fight among the Liberal, Conservative and New Democrat MPs present about hiring expert help on a party basis.

The committee agreed to seek expert help for Chairman Gaston Clermont (L—Gatineau), in his capacity as chairman only, to help sort the scores of briefs and other masses of evidence likely to come in during the next five or six months.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) objected to committee advisers Charles Hirst "from the government side," and Max Saltzman (NDP—Waterloo) said each party should have its own advisers.

Mr. Clermont said a decision had to be made soon. He didn't know whether to estimate the cost of the committee's investigation at $100,000 or $1,000,000.

The question was put over to the committee's meeting next Tuesday.

Mr. Benson was quiet and almost jovial as he met criticism from spokesmen for all parties on facets of his tax plan.

In brief, he said:

—A single rate of tax of about 50 per cent on corporate income won't cripple small business which now is taxed at only 21 per cent on the first $35,000 of its income.

Under the new plan, proprietors of small businesses could choose to be taxed as individuals or partners, at lower than 50 per cent rates applying on incomes up to $24,000 a year.

—The government is working on a supplemental statement—not another white paper—about the difficulties involved in taxing capital gains only when they are realized.

He conceded some criticism of the five-year re-evaluation plan, and said an analysis of it, and possibly some suggested solutions, would be given the committee by the month-end.

—Raising taxes on the middle and upper-income brackets and giving tax relief to the lower-income taxpayers won't significantly feed inflation by discouraging saving and encouraging spending. The increased spending power per individual will be small.

Moreover, the tax plan won't come into effect before Jan. 1, 1971, and by that time the government should not only have brought inflation under control but the country might need some spending-thrust.

—Higher Canadian taxes shouldn't encourage further "brain drain" from Canada to the U.S., where taxes are lower but benefits paid by government are fewer.

"I'd still rather live and pay taxes in Canada than live and pay taxes in the United States," he said.

—The government wants to introduce the whole income and corporation tax change plan at once, rather than piecemeal, and then will work on revision of sales, excise and other so-called consumption taxes.

If income taxes are made fair to all, they can easily be adjusted by changing the rates to make them fit fairly with other forms of taxes, he said.

Green Says PM's Men Usurpers

VANCOUVER (CP) — A veteran of Canada's political life said Thursday night that Prime Minister Trudeau has "set up a ring in his office" that is usurping the powers of cabinet.

Howard Green, who sat in the and was minister of external affairs ative administration of John Diefenbaker, told 350 persons attending a dinner in his honor that he is worried about the future of Parliament in Canada.

"Parliament is the heart of our whole democratic system,"

"But the prime minister is not a parliamentarian. He has only been in Parliament about three or four years. His key men are not parliamentarians. They have only been in Parliament about three or four years.

"I'm afraid they don't pay much attention to Parliament. They regard it as a talk shop . . . they don't want debates."

He said there was a need to limit "the tremendous powers" of the prime minister. Instead, Mr. Trudeau was taking more power than ever before.

"He has set up a ring in his office above the cabinet," said Mr. Green.

The number of persons in the prime minister's office drawing a salary of more than $15,000 annually "has gone from eight in 1963 to 33 this year."

The testimonial dinner was sponsored by the Progressive Conservative Association for Vancouver Quadra, the constituency Mr. Green represented until he retired from politics following defeat in the 1963 general election.

Mr. Green, who said he was making his last political speech, said he was also concerned about the proposals in the government's white paper on taxation. The tax changes, if implemented, could be disastrous for the country.

ICE THREAT is removed from the Moira River after probing revealed a slush buildup in river mouth yesterday. A crane and bucket went into action to unplug channel, dumping slush on Victoria Park bank to ensure free flow of water.

First Relief Plane On Way to Biafra

Israel Raids Egypt

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Israeli commandos penetrated deep into Egyptian territory Friday night to cut telephone and power lines between Suez Town and Cairo, Israeli military spokesmen said today.

They said the commandos destroyed telephone poles and electricity pylons along the Suez-Cairo road, about 40 miles east of the Egyptian capital.

Commando units also shelled a military post and an administrative centre near Deir el Raita, 45 miles west of the Gulf of Suez port of Ras Zaafrana.

Ras Zaafrana is about 110 miles southeast of Cairo.

The spokesmen said all Israeli troops returned safely to base and encountered no Egyptian resistance during their raids, which followed air strikes in the areas Friday.

In Cairo, Egyptian official sources denied that the telephone and power lines between Suez Town and Cairo were cut.

Israeli commandos raided the Egyptian military base of Ras el Gharra three weeks ago and made off with an entire Soviet-made radar station by flying it across the Gulf of Suez to Israeli-occupied positions.

The Lebanese newspaper Al Hayat reported Friday that an Egyptian military court sentenced five Egyptian officers to death for letting the top-secret radar station be captured.

The radar station, one of the Soviet Union's latest types, was dismantled on the Gulf of Suez and taken back to Israel by helicopters.

In Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram, a confidant of Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, published instructions purportedly from U.S. State Secretary William P. Rogers telling American diplomats to threaten Arab governments with loss of U.S. aid if their actions formulated at the Arab summit conference in Morocco last month went against U.S. policy.

Washington described the document as a forgery.

Nigeria Authorizes First Foreign Aid

LAGOS (Reuters) — The first post-war foreign relief planes bringing supplies to what once was Biafra was on its way to Lagos today.

The British plane, carrying seven jeeps and 11 tons of medical supplies, left an airport near London early this morning. Its flight has been authorized by the Nigerian government.

But Nigeria today refused to let the International Red Cross Committee use a Danish-registered plane to fly in relief supplies because of its country of origin.

Nigeria Friday had authorized two relief flights into Lagos next week on behalf of the committee. The second aircraft, which is Swiss-registered, is due to arrive here Tuesday with 11 tons of medicines.

Meanwhile, a federal Nigerian official said relief workers were on the job in all areas of the former secessionist territory of Biafra except for two towns.

Chief Anthony Enahoro, federal commissioner for labor and information, said Friday that federal troops are handling relief operations in the two towns, Uli-Ibiala and Nnewi, the home town of former Biafran leader Maj.-Gen. Odumegwu Ojukwu.

The troops hope to turn over the relief operation to the Nigerian Red Cross in both places next week, the chief added.

Enahoro's statement on the relief situation coincided with the issue of a report by an international observer team which said they had seen pathetic streams of refugees in former secessionist-held areas but that there had been no signs of genocide.

Enahoro said: "We hope relief problems will be overcome within three months and then we will proceed with rehabilitation."

Enahoro said the immediate need in the former secessionist areas was for help in solving acute transportation problems and restoring essential services.

The Nigerian Red Cross, which is feeding 700,000 people daily in the area, had 13,000 tons of food stockpiled and hopes to get another 7,000 tons before the end of January.

Of the military situation, Enahoro said: "Mass movement of populations has stopped and there is no fighting going on at all."

He reiterated that the federal government would not accept relief aid from foreign governments and organizations accused by Nigeria of helping prolong the 30-month-long civil war by providing various forms of aid to the former secessionist government.

Meanwhile, the Nigerian government announced that Secretary-General U Thant of the United Nations is expected to begin a visit here Sunday.

CMA Urges Doctors Defer Fee Increases

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Medical Association is asking doctors to put off fee increases "for the duration of the present emergency," Dr. R. M. Matthews, association president, said Friday.

Saskatchewan, Alberta, Manitoba and Nova Scotia divisions were planning to revise fee schedules this year.

Dr. Matthews, who practises in Peterborough, said the 21,000-member association is asking divisions to put off increases as an anti-inflation measure.

"We are advising them this is a time that calls for restraint," he told a news conference after talks Wednesday with Finance Minister Edgar Benson, and Health Minister John Munro.

Slush Ice Is Removed From Mouth of Moira

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

They punched the Moira right in its river mouth yesterday.

The action, violent and swift, was ordered to avert any potential flood situation caused by a below-surface buildup of slush ice.

The ice-breaking operation was launched in the river off Victoria park to unplug a channel believed being blocked by slush.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said the move was precautionary and that no flood threat existed at present.

City officials and the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization were alerted to the possibility of a potential flood hazard Thursday, when the Moira's ice surface showed signs of submerged pressure at the CPR bridge spanning the river mouth.

This indicated that slush ice, floating downriver, was being wedged beneath the surface, forcing the surface ice to crack.

The Moira now is covered by ice 18 to 24 inches deep. Holes cut in the crust revealed slush ice beneath.

Late Friday morning a mobile crane went into action pounding through the surface layer and clearing a channel to free the river's flow.

The operation will ease pressure upstream and maintain the river at a safe level, particularly in the downtown area.

Quebec Liberals Favor Bourassa

QUEBEC (CP)—Beat Bourassa is the obvious slogan for the other two candidates in today's voting to elect a new Quebec Liberal party leader.

Robert Bourassa, a political newcomer who has never held a cabinet post, rode the crest of a wave of enthusiasm through Friday's opening day.

Friday night, he drew what came close to a declaration of support from Jean Lesage, 57-year-old lawyer who is stepping down after 11 years as party leader.

The 1,627 convention delegates cast poker-chip ballots today to decide whether Mr. Lesage's successor will be:

—Mr. Bourassa, 36, a Montreal lawyer-economist with less than four years of legislature experience.

—Claude Wagner, 44, former justice minister.

—Pierre Laporte, 49, Opposition house leader.

Mr. Bourassa won the cheering contest hands down when the three candidates delivered half-hour speeches and fenced their way through hour-long question-and-answer sessions with delegates.

Twice he bopped nimbly to a table top to acknowledge cheering, chanting ovations from supporters of his jobs-first, pro-federalist policy.

Student Revolt Leader Arrives in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Daniel Cohn-Bendit, the French student leader, arrived from Frankfurt and Paris Friday night to a greeting from a well-known Montreal activist.

Mr Cohn-Bendit, leader of France's May, 1968, student revolt, left Montreal International Airport with French-only advocate Stanley Grey.

He was whisked away in a small European car by Mr. Gray, a former McGill University political science professor, to an undisclosed location.

He would not make any statements to reporters.

He was scheduled to arrive in Toronto Tuesday to meet CTV representatives for a television taping session Wednesday.

DDT Use Is Charged

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario health department will investigate claims by a local anti-pollution group that cleaning companies are using solutions containing DDT as a moth-proofing.

In a telegram receive by the Committee of 1,000 Friday, Gordon Hampson, executive assistant to Resources Minister George Kerr, said the health department will investigate the committee's charges and report back to the resources department.

The pesticide DDT has been banned in Ontario since Jan. 1, except in the tobacco and apple-growing industries.

News Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — The 7,000 professors at Ontario's 14 provincially-assisted universities are asking for salary increases ranging from 18 to 22 per cent for the 1970-71 academic year, Increases at Ontario universities have averaged 10 per cent annually for the last two years.

Liner's Water Fouled

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tests Friday revealed two sailors as possible carriers in the typhoid outbreak that swept the luxury P. and O. liner Oronsay.

Officials said the sailors are not ill but tests showed they are infected with typhoid.

Officials also reported Friday that the ship's water supply was coataminated. The water has been treated to overcome this contamination.

The number of persons in hospital increased to 30 Friday as 10 more were taken off the ship. So far only seven have been confirmed as having typhoid and the others are suspected cases.

Canada to Have Metric System Eventually

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's conversion to the metric system of weight and measures has been endorsed by the federal government.

Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said in the House a preparatory commission will be appointed to co-ordinate study and planning for the conversion, but no legislation is planned immediately.

Mr. Crone said some of Dr. Barber's proposals to remedy the situation, such as a reverse dumping duty to equal the differential between the Canadian price and that abroad, should help.

Meanwhile, he said, the OFA is willing to import equipment for any Canadian farmer who wants it.

"We've already got three tractors for people in Vancouver, and the price is only $150 more than that for delivery to Toronto," Mr. Crone said. This would put the direct-import price of a tractor at Vancouver at $3,950, compared with the Canadian price of about $7,000 for a similar tractor.

Mr. Crone said the OFA is negotiating with Czechoslovakia to buy a tractor which would sell here for about $4,200 if imported directly.

Mr. Crone said the commission, and its report, was sparked by farmers' irritation at a statement by former finance minister Mitchell Sharp, in 1967, that Canadian farmers must grow up and compete in world markets.

"We figured if this was the case, we should be able to buy on the world market too," Mr. Crone said.

Probe Finds Farm Machine Prices 'Discriminatory, Artificial'

TORONTO (CP) — The secretary of the farm machinery division of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, David Crone, says the report of the Barber commission on farm machinery "validates the OFA's action in importing tractors directly from Britain.

"When we began doing this last year some people thought it was rather clandestine," Mr. Crone said in an interview Friday. "But my initial research had turned up the fact that farmers could save about half the price of a tractor by buying it directly in Britain. This has proved the case."

The 300-page report criticized farm machinery manufacturers for what it called "discriminatory and artificial price levels" of machinery sold to Canadian farmers.

Dr. Clarence L. Barber, head of the University of Manitoba's economics department, suggests that tractor prices are a matter for federal combines branch investigation. His report said Canadian farmers could save nearly $15,000,000 annually if they paid the British prices for tractors.

The OFA says that the 300 farmers who have imported tractors directly from Britain under its program in the last year have paid a total of about

For Another Story On Tractors See Page 11

$1,140,000 for them—or $3,800 per tractor—about $1,000,000 less than the total Canadian price would have been.

Jan. 28 Date Set

Joint Meeting Next Step in Providing Regional Services

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

D. J. Collins, chairman of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, and a senior representative from the department of municipal affairs will meet with the councils of Belleville, Thurlow and Sidney to discuss the extension of services to the two township areas.

The meeting will be held at city hall on the afternoon of Jan. 28.

Belleville and Thurlow have been holding discussions with the OWRC with the view of working out an agreement under which the proposed city sanitary sewer up the Moira River could be enlarged and service extended across Highway 401 into Thurlow township.

Thurlow has accepted the proposal offered by the OWRC to build the sewer up the river and charge Belleville and Thurlow for its use, but before the city makes a decision it wants to know whether subsidy would apply on other sewage projects.

Belleville wants to know (a) would any subsidy be given towards the construction of the water pollution control plant addition to be constructed soon in the city; (b) would the 15 per cent contribution be available to the city to, search the enlarged sewer to be constructed in the northeast corner of Belleville this year which would service 1,200 acres or more in Thurlow south of Highway 401 and east of Belleville; and (c) whether the commission would consider removing from charges to city ratepayers the cost of extending the main trunk sewer north from Adam Street in to Thurlow township.

The city points out that this extension of the sewer from Adam Street, estimated to cost $100,000 would be of no advantage to the city.

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott and Thurlow Reeve Horace Casey were directed to meet with the OWRC officials in an effort to get answers to the city's questions before the meeting. It has requested to be included in discussions with the view of getting services into that township.

Sidney is interested in servicing arrangements required by a new secondary school proposed by the Hastings County board of education for the Frankford area.

Accordingly, the Toronto meeting with OWRC officials was cancelled and the new Jan. 28 date set for Belleville.

Langabeer Again PUC Chairman

Lyle Langabeer, member of the utilities commission for the past four years and also last year's chairman, was re-elected head of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission at the inaugural meeting this week.

Gerry O'Connor, new member of the commission elected in December, was welcomed to the meeting.

Maint topic of discussion was the proposed extension to the water filtration plant in West Belleville. The plant addition, for which tenders are expected to be called shortly, will double the capacity of the water facility.

The commission decided to shelve for this year construction of a new office facility proposed as an addition to the PUC work building at the corner of Sidney and College streets.

The commission needs new office accommodation to replace its present Front street quarters, but with regional government in the offing and the responsibility of the utility in an area not yet unclear, it was decided to postpone construction.

Knife-Wielding Villain

Sandra Fort who plays the blind girl in the Belleville Theatre Guild's production of Wait Until Dark is menaced with a knife by James Williamson during a rehearsal.

Ten Day Run Only for Show

The Belleville Theatre Guild is promising city residents there will be at least 10 attempted stabbings in the area of the Pinnacle Playhouse during the next two weeks.

But they will all be in the name of Theatre with actors performing the characters in Wait Until Dark, the guild's latest production which starts next week at the Pinnacle Playhouse.

Beginning Wednesday it will run for 10 nights and, according to resident artistic director, Roy Higgins, "no more than 10."

He told The Intelligencer that there was "no way the play could be held over" as was the youtheatre production Dark of the Moon because an adjudication of the guild's League Festival entry, the Lark, follows immediately.

And two nights of the thriller are already sold out making the scramble for tickets a bit more precarious.

Wait Until Dark, by Fredric Knott is the story of a blind girl who is terrorized in her home by a band of criminals seeking a doll filled with heroin.

The stage performance, Mr. Higgins said, is not unlike the movie version that starred Audrey Hepburn but "more dynamic making the thriller one of the best ever written."

Starring in the production are Sandra Fort, Robert Lawton, Tammy Reid, James Williamson, Ronald MacPherson and Gary Lafferty.

Any Santas Left? Parade Needs Few
Christmas starts in January for Belleville's Santa Claus parade committee.
The group is holding its annual meeting Monday night at the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization offices on Dundas Street East.
Purpose of the meeting, say committee members, is to elect officers and organize the 1970 parade.
The move reverses the committee's traditional organizing format.
Until this year, parade organizers have started work in the fall.
However, the committee now feels organization can be expedited by being a year-round effort. This also would guard against any last-minute hitches which, in 1969, almost cancelled the parade.

Uniformity in Giving

Exchange Changes Name, Rules

By LINDA GELDART
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Christmas Exchange intends to initiate a number of changes in its organization in an effort to tighten operations and insure "uniformity" in giving.

The exchange assisted 386 families this Christmas, by way of food hampers and cheques.

Through a public appeal for funds in November, the citizens of Belleville poured $4,800 into the exchange headquarters, making it possible for organizers to meet the needs of hundreds of families in the city.

The exchange, which has been known as a confidential clearing house to match the needs of families and donors, channels assistance through a "referral" system, set up to eliminate duplication.

Through this referral system, no family could refer themselves directly to the exchange for help. The name of the family was usually registered with the exchange by human care agencies, school principals or churches.

Organizers feel that the idea of the exchange as a "confidential clearing house" is still valid, but that this, in itself, is not the only purpose of the exchange.

At a meeting held yesterday exchange officials and representatives from other factions of the community agreed that the time was ripe to revamp the organization to encompass all groups lending their assistance to the exchange.

The realignment began with the name Christmas Exchange which officials and community representatives felt did not express the real function of what the organization is trying to accomplish.

The name Christmas Exchange was changed to Exchange of the Christmas Sharing Program; which director Mrs. Jane Haslett said has more meaning, yet explains the purpose at the same time.

Mrs. Haslett said as a result of the meeting, the program wants to have increased representation from the community to include individuals from the Family and Children's Services, the County Welfare Office, the Ministerial Association and the Catholic Women's League.

"We hope that with this added representation, we can work out how to establish the uniformity of giving in practical terms," said Mrs. Haslett.

"We hope to approach the County Welfare Office in reference to their support for the assistance the Christmas Sharing Program has given to families in outlying areas this past year."

"What the program is aiming for in the future is to allocate funds for the assistance of these families outside Belleville, rather than use the money donated by the people of this city," she added.

One of the biggest changes in the new Christmas Sharing Program will be a change for the donors.

"Although we don't wish to be regarded strictly as a clearing house, we believe we should retain the confidential idea," stressed the director.

Officials decided that the names of families will no longer be available to be given out to donors wishing to assist.

The Christmas Sharing Program will be the sole handlers in charge of delivering food hampers, and cheques, rather than allowing individual donors or donor groups to make the deliveries.

"There is a two - fold reason for this decision", remarked Mrs. Haslett.

"One is that we want to protect the identity of these needy families. The second is we have found by past experience that often some groups tend to give too little, while others give too much".

Organizers were pleased when they noted that a substantial amount of money was on hand to begin next year's operation.

Co - director, Mrs. Kay Manderville termed this "a good beginning."

The number of families assisted this year totalled 386, down from 1968, when the Exchange met the needs of 450 families.

Mrs. Selina Bochnek, consultant to the Christmas Sharing Program, saw the reason for the reduction as an indication of the "strictest policy in accepting referrals".

"We received co-operation from the various agencies, which has a lot to do with the decreased numbers of families. Too, the same people are not on our list from year to year, because many of them sometimes just need a little help at Christmas time," she said.

Safety Cushion

A stout chain and three truck tires are all that stand between the one ton weight on the City Hall clock and the city manager's office. The five-foot wooden cube filled with rocks activates the clock's striking mechanism. Looking over the box and its cushion in a tower room is Bruno Marchiori, horologist in charge of repairing the 1873 tower clock.

Tires Form Cushion Over Manager's Head

No madam, this is not a political commentary.

The menace takes the form of 2,600 pounds of rocks, suspended in City Hall's clock tower, exactly over the office of J. R. Reynolds.

The rocks are contained in two boxes that act as weights for the striking mechanism and time mechanism of the tower clock. They hang on 30 foot chains and steel cables and the tower.

Some years ago the electric motor then installed for winding the clock mis-functioned. It drew the ton striking weight up to high it sloped off its hook and went crashing through the tower. It came to rest on the second storey tower room, then the council's committee room, now the mayor's office. Fortunately, no one was in the room at the time.

But just in case the incident prompted ideas in the mind of some disenchanted voter, city hall maintenance staff took steps to cushion the blow of any future mishap.

A steel I-beam was installed in the ceiling of the tower room above the office to catch the box of rocks if it fell.

Three truck tire's were piled on the floor under the weights. Hopefully, they will cause the run-away weights to bounce up and down instead of smashing through the floor — and into the city manager's office.

Also hanging above the office at a level higher than the weights, is the great iron pendulum of the clock — a cylindrical item on a long shaft, of unknown weight but bullet-like velocity should it let go.

Trenton Man Devises Computer Lottery Plan

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON

TRENTON — William Menties is known to a certain percentage of people in the Quinte area at present, but a recent invention could make his name a common word in the homes of the nation's betting populace.

The Trenton area resident is a partner in an infant company formed to promote a new lottery system in Canada.

After developing a unique computerized lottery system in 1969, Mr. Menzies registered it at the patent office and copyrighted it. His next step was to join forces with Murray Newton, a real estate broker from Fenelon Falls whom he met during their wartime days in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Mr. Newton has become a full partner, supplying much of the money needed to promote the new sound lottery system which can be adapted to a wide variety of popular betting games on a number of sporting events.

For example, in horse racing (the banner variety) the computer card would have a series of pre-stamped numbers in eight columns, representing the entrants in each of the eight races (the number of columns would vary with the number of races or "heats") at one track for the day of the lottery.

Ticket purchasers would consult the paper for racing times and select their choices by the post position of the entrants in each race.

Mr. Menzies feels that his system has many advantages — one of which is the elimination of the possibility of a "betting coup" in horse racing. He went on to explain his theory in this regard:

"Where a lottery is based on one specific race, the possibility exists that a horse could be drugged or "doped" to change the result of the race. However, with eight races this would be a physical impossibility."

No matter the event or the sport, all computer cards would be "mailed" to a central headquarters by the purchasers and the computer would decide the card with the most winning selections at the conclusion of the event.

"Present plans call for the lottery to be based not on daily events but on Saturday events only," Mr. Menzies advised of the season, would include many sports over the course of a year," the inventor emphasized.

He suggested that tickets would sell for $2 each with 50 cents going to the local charitable or religious organization licensed to run a lottery by the provincial government. The number of sponsoring organizations in each municipality would be dependent on the ability of the municipality to support them.

It was here that the inventor cited the attractiveness of his system to provincial government officials:

"With a proliferation of lotteries in the province it would be practically impossible to collect taxes on each individual lottery so a flat amount would be required for each one."

"But under the computerized system the government would only have to check the computer totals and — presuming there was a provincial tax on each ticket — bill the lottery operators accordingly."

As a safety factor for the public's protection, Mr. Menzies cited the computerized lottery system simply by purchasing a number of tickets at various points throughout the province," he added.

"Then after the event was over and the computer cards processed, the computer could be programmed to take the numbers of those winning cards purchased cards and produce them — verifying that they had been inserted and proving the honesty of the lottery operators," Mr. Menzies stressed.

"The federal government has recently legalized lotteries and sweepstakes at the discretion of each province. Accordingly Mr. Newton has been in contact with Ontario and Quebec government representatives and hopes to be granted the opportunity to present a formal brief to the appropriate officials in the near future," he said.

Mr. Menzies noted that results would be almost immediate since the computer would be able to process 1,000,000 cards per hour — enabling an almost instant announcement of the winners.

Gambling is a natural instinct said Mr. Menzies and he believes his scheme would be highly attractive. "The people who would invest their money was riding on, so a high degree of excitement would be created and a number of people could be only a goal or run away from the top prize because of the nature of the system."

He predicted that the operational costs would be low enough to allow for return of 40 percent of the ticket sales to prize money and indicated that this percentage was exceptionally high compared to the usual 10 to 15 percent.

So if Mr. Menzies' estimation of weekly ticket sales around the million mark is correct, this would provide a rich plum as the fruit of someone's labors.

If current thinking prevails there would be a grand prize and one or more prizes of considerable value for runners-up including ties of which there may be a great number.

Trenton Decision

We are all for consolidation of administrative units where it leads to greater efficiency — the trend toward regional government is a case in point — but not if at the same time the democratic processes are compromised and the public left in the cold.

This is what is happening in the town of Trenton following recommendations of the Hardy report; these include elimination of standing committees of council, and the holding of weekly council sessions with every other session a committee-of-the-whole closed to both the public and the news media.

If this is one of planning consultant Eric Hardy's own recommendations he has little justification for regarding the difference between the old and the new administrative systems as "the difference between darkness and light."

Moreover, what justification is there, in these circumstances, for his statement: "Now the town's affairs can be a topic of praise and not blame as in the past?"

We suggest Trenton think again before depriving the public of their right to know what business is being conducted in their name by the town's elected representatives. Certainly it is not the practice elsewhere to bar the Press; in Belleville, for example, the Press remains during committee-of-the-whole discussions held immediately before regular sessions of council. In Kingston even finance committee — the cabinet of council — is open.

Where personnel matters, or issues relating to the Land Act are concerned, then meetings may be in private; but to extend this to private sessions relating to general public business is creating a dangerous precedent.

It is doubly unfortunate that this trend is not really new in Trenton where public business has been conducted in private in the past; now council is merely trying to justify it in the eyes of the public. But if Trenton wants to get off on the right foot in the seventies, improve its administrative image and have done with the bickering of the past it will do so only so far as it takes the public into its confidence.

Anything else is simply a negation of the democratic process as we know it.

That East-West Thing

A visitor to Belleville identifying himself as a refugee from an eastern European country has written commenting on our recent editorial, The Other View, relating to the Communist world and the support it receives from a growing number of left-wingers among today's youth.

The letter is signed but the writer requests us not to print it because "it would shatter the lies, myths and rationalizations built up during and since the war."

We respect that request. At the same time we believe our readers will not all rush out and jump in the lake as it were if we indicate the tenor of his letter.

It is simply this, that the Western nations have largely themselves to blame for the strength and menacing proportions of Communism today. First of all there was allied support of the Soviet Union during the last war, through lend-lease (but what else could be done — it was either that or let Hitler overrun Russia as well), then the postwar Yalta conference which in large measure allowed the Soviets dominion over the far-flung eastern European empire they still rule today, from the Baltic to the Black Sea.

More recently there was Washington's tacit support, at least, of Fidel Castro in overthrowing the Batista regime in Cuba ,little realising at the time that this was the beginning of Communist government in the Western hemisphere.

We thank the visitor for his letter which shows an aspect of the east-west confrontation which many people overlook. At the same time it must be remembered that the Allies themselves were in no position to exercise their authority over that portion of Europe which the Red Army had taken under its wing. Compromises were necessary and were made at Yalta.

Looking Better

There was Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources J. Greene telling television viewers that Canadian energy resources would be sold only if they were surplus to Canadian needs. But apart from Mr. Greene saying his piece, it was encouraging to note he was a much fitter looking man than the haggard individual who returned to work some months ago after suffering a heart attack. The work of government is tough, but Mr. Greene seems to be bearing up well in the circumstances.

And They Are Asking for More!

Now Canada's Diplomats Have Their Own Union

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Seems like only the day before yesterday — in fact of time it was back just three years, in 1967 — that it generally was assumed to be unthinkable for the federal civil service to unionize, much less strike.

To become members of a union was regarded by the huge majority of civil servants as "unprofessional," and by the taxpayers generally as "not in the public interest."

The popular thinking always had been that civil servants — especially those snug on the comfortable lap of "Mother Ottawa" — enjoyed all sorts of goodies of which the envious taxpayers could only wistfully dream.

Goodies like the best pensions going in the whole broad land, holidays like no other group in the nation enjoyed, and job security so copper-bottomed and armour-plated that it was impossible, for all practical purposes, to dismiss a civil servant.

Having all these beautiful benefits, including automatic annual salary increases, known in the civil service as "yearly increments," the federal staff was supposed to be happy in its work, to worship contented as to want for nothing.

But that was the day before yesterday.

Then along came yesterday, hand in hand with Prime Minister Lester Bowles Pearson and everything changed.

Changed even for the supposedly unchanged and unchanging in their luxuriously-padded ivory tower, Lester's old buddy-buddies, the sacrosanct diplomatic corps.

They, like all others on the federal payroll, with the blessing of their old mentor Pearson, a former deputy minister in External Affairs, unbended.

So now we have 700 well-paid foreign service officers, as they are known in the diplomatic pecking order, drawing up to an annual $26,000 battling the federal government around the collective bargaining table like so many militant trade unionists.

With 80 per-cent of their eligible members signed into the Professional Foreign Service Officers' Association, they have come out of round one of bargaining with the federal Treasury Board with a 6 per cent salary increase over 30 months with 26 of them rating retroactive payments.

They got a union check-off, a rich "fringe" of special allowance benefits, a 37½ hour week, working week, with time-and-a-half for Saturdays and double time for Sundays.

Not steam-fitters, nor auto-workers, plumbers nor steel workers these schmoks, but, of all unlikely people, diplomats.

Now, in the new year they are going — like all unions — for more.

For one thing, they are demanding overtime for travel. Like when they are flying home from Paris, London, Rome, Vienna from their conferences, the trade name for "conventions" in Delhi, Tokyo, Rio, Sydney, from Jakarta to Moscow and Faraway Places everywhere, they want pay for it at overtime rates.

They will probably sweep the collective bargaining board too, since, as their diplomatic leaders say, they have some "millions" in their ranks.

Charles Marshall, a senior diplomat heading External's NATO section, and the association's president, is the one nationally quoted as explaining:

"Our new (departmental) recruits came from the activist atmosphere of today's universities where they are used to burning down the dean's door when they do not get what they want."

Can't you just see them in their morning trousers and cutaways staging a protest "walk" in External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp's office and tearing up the joint if he can not make the Treasury Board come through?

The diplomats found it, as some of them said, "a traumatic experience" to unionize.

They are not alone, after all, of them, even the janitors, move often than not with a master's degree.

As unionists, their president John Sharpe, chief of the Political Section of External Affairs United Nations Division, has complained, the public refused to take them seriously.

Joe Lunchpail, Sam Steelworker, Sadie Seamstress, Mike Miner and all the rest of the taxpaying working stiffs found it "funny" that the diplomats should be getting overtime for globe-trotting. Funny, that is, both ha-ha and peculiar.

But the diplomats are all very serious about it.

Just listen to Maurice Copithorne, a union executive and deputy chief of the legal division of External Affairs, as nationally quoted recently!

"We do not have much leverage in bargaining with the government. We are not airport traffic controllers who could threaten to fly in everyone's Christmas holidays."

Treasury Board knew it, and so, lament the diplomatic corps union leaders, "treated us like plumbers."

Too bad for Alexander Atache-Case, what?

Lunar Rocks Disappoint

Apollo Program Slows Down

Quebec Le Soleil: The Houston conference on the moon shows mainly that scientists are disappointed by their discoveries in their examination of the lunar rocks gathered by the crews of Apollo 11 and Apollo 12. These discoveries may have caused the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to increase the intervals between future Apollo flights, and not budgetary considerations.

Since the element of competition has, in effect, disappeared from the race to the moon, the planners may have felt the need to take their time, to prepare each expedition with more care and more scientific attention. They are correct, because it is for them a matter of getting the most out of each mission and seeing that the results are up to the cost of the venture. . . .

It is evident that if Apollo 12 brought back no more information worth the cost of the trip than did Apollo 11, it would be useless to increase the number of expeditions, which are very expensive as sports attractions. The delay of one month in the launching of Apollo 13 and the reduction to two missions in 1970 should not be surprising.

As for the new knowledge which has been acquired, it took the scientists by surprise. No one has come to precise conclusions concerning the nature of the earth's satellite, its age, the story of its formation, its origin in the existing cosmogonies of known systems in the universe. It seems that all the ancient theories will be disproved and that sensational discoveries have not ended.

Rudolf Hess

Spandau's Lone Prisoner

Windsor Star

Perhaps the most macabre charade being played by the four Allied powers of World War II involves the continued imprisonment of Rudolf Hess, Hitler's former deputy.

Hess has been in prison for more than 25 years, first in Britain during the war after his abortive attempt to work out a settlement with the British and latterly in Spandau after his trial at Nuremberg.

The most macabre aspect of his imprisonment is that three of the four major powers — Britain, France, the United States — wish to see him released while the Soviet Union disagrees. As a result of the Soviet rejection Hess remains in prison.

Added to this ridiculous situation is that three doctors of the Allied powers who examine him daily have recommended that the 75-year-old man undergo an operation for ulcers. The Russian doctor disagrees and therefore there is no operation performed on Hess!

Hess, who is now in a British military hospital in West Germany, is thought to have only a limited life span left. Is it not time for the three Western powers to say "Enough" to this inhumane foolishness and release Hess?

In Downtown Ottawa

Canada's capital may not be as springlike these January days as it appears in this Ontario Department of Tourism picture. But the view in Sparks Street is a pleasant foretaste of warmer days to come in the not too far distant future. And if the city's downtown mall increasingly has become a rendesvous for hippies, they certainly were not around when these attractive young ladies were making the scene.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pope Gregory XI of Avignon visited Rome 587 years ago today—it in 1377—and died there, precipitating the Great Schism of rival popes and antipopes (sometimes more than one), each claiming supreme authority. The papacy had officially moved to Avignon from Rome in 1309 to escape war and civil disturbance in Italy. The Great Schism lasted until the Council of Constance, 1414-17, which reunited the church under Martin V of Rome.

UK Economy Out of the Woods—But Will It Last?

Ottawa Journal

By infinite effort, Britain has reached the point that in the third quarter of 1969 her balance of payments ran at the surplus rate of $1.3 billion a year compared with a deficit rate of $1.3 billion a year in the second half of 1967.

Prime Minister Wilson has stated that as general election is nearly assisted of Labor achievements in the balance of payments, and challenged the Conservatives to show how they would cut spending if they won power. But he still has to lead his country out of the woods. Can the surplus position be maintained?

Comfort is given by the Financial Times of London. It reports that its surveys of British businesses indicate that most of them expect to increase their output but less than a quarter of those sampled expect to take on more workers.

They anticipate increased productivity and abroptly, the Treasury reports, a good rate of productivity growth has served to limit increases in British labor costs.

Canada, nearly as much as Britain, is concerned with increasing productivity. We had not been doing well, measured by United States standards, but the Economic Council of Can ada that the more satisfactory gains reported in 1968 appear to have been continued in 1969.

When Britain's balance of-payments went out of kilter, with imports exceeding exports, the Labor government finally was driven to drastic action.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Roy Jenkins, recalled the other day some of the painful actions Britain had to take:

Taxation "increased by an amount which has no parallel in our peacetime history."

A ruthless reduction in the rate of government expenditures to keep from fueling the rate of growth of the economy as a whole.

The application of severe limitations on credit and measures to discourage increases in wa, s or p.ofits.

By these means Britain's competitive position in world markets were maintained and she is repaying debts.

Britain's troubles are not over. The improved balance of payments' position sharpens the demand for increased wages. Workers feel they have been denied increases in the national interest and now should have their reward.

The Labor government, with the election approaching, is anxious to see workers satisfied and strikes avoided. good rate of productivity growth would l'mit the increase in labor costs if wages rise, but it if take some doing. Having one's cake and eating it is not easy But Canadians are hardly a position now to wish the British how to work and save.

Even Salvation Army Feels Effects of Generation Gap

LONDON (AP) — Even the disciplined ranks of the Salvation Army are feeling the effects of the generation gap. Some of its Christian soldiers want a less authoritarian form of control.

But Swedish-born Gen. Erik Wickberg, the Army's newly-elected commander, intends to continue giving the orders.

"It wouldn't be true to say there's any crisis of authority," he said in an interview.

"Of course, people think about change — especially our young people — but they don't really know where they want to go. We live in a changing age. But change is only a good thing if it's constructive. If it's made just for its own sake, then it's not."

The Salvation Army's constitution says "the general, through the administrative departments of the International headquarters, directs every part and phase of Salvation Army operations throughout the world."

That means his orders ultimately affect each of the Army's 2,200,000 soldiers, who are unpaid volunteer members and its 25,000 trained and commissioned officers, paid full-time workers in the mission and welfare field.

Rev. William Booth, the revivalist preacher who founded the non-denominational Salvation Army in London in 1852, laid down the basic rules which Salvationists still follow today.

No liquor, no smoking, no dancing, no theatres or other "worldly pleasures." Officers may fall in love may marry only other officers. Even then they can look for no permanent home and few possessions, since they must be ready to move as required.

They pledge themselves to such a life when they enrol and sign what the Army calls its "articles of war."

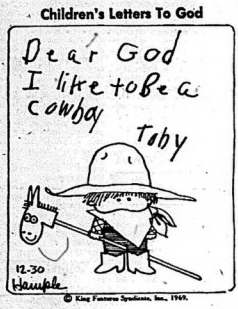
Its monolithic structure served the Army well as its soldiers spread across 69 countries. Each general is elected by the 45-man high council of top leaders from all over the world.

For administrative purposes the Army's more than 40 overseas commands are divided into four groups, each placed under an international secretary at the International Headquarters in London.

The international secretaries work under the chief of staff, now Commissioner Arnold Brown, 56, a native of England who was brought up in Belleville, Ont., and form a link between the general and the territorial commanders.

Although he is unlikely to relax any of the rules of discipline, Gen. Wickberg may agree to a new look for the uniform. He is considering whether to do away with the old choker-type collar in favor of shirt, collar and tie.

"But I hope we will never do away with the traditional bonnet," he observes. "People say it's Victorian. Perhaps it is. But it is the Salvation Army for many people and it protects the girl who wears it."



Gen. Wickberg said girls wearing the bonnet go nightly into a London vice quarter "where often the police will not show their face."

"They're protected by the bonnet and the image of the Salvation Army," he added. "No one lays a hand on them. One of the girls may have a photo in her bag, the picture of someone missing. She may get some lead to help find that person. This kind of thing is a service no one else can render."

Gen. Wickberg deplores to day's permissive society but thinks it perhaps looks worse than it is because people talk so much more openly than before.

"Remember," he said, "we have a generation now that often doesn't even know the Ten Commandments. It's a new age and we have to be missionaries more than ever before."

New Men's Suits Without Collars, Lapels

ROME (Reuters) — Men's suits without collars or lapels made a flamboyant opening Friday for the Rome spring and summer fashion collections here.

Jackets were mostly close-fitting with deep vents at the back, and a lot of them were fastened at the front by a single button or by two placed horizontally side by side.

One designer, Wanver, produced a line of suits without sleeves as well. They were accompanied by a variety of brightly-colored open-necked shirts.

Many of the suits shown in the first few collections were made in window-pane, Prince of Wales or houndstooth checks. A suit by Cocoli with navy, red and white checks, worn with bright patent leather shoes and a white polo-necked sweater, was warmly applauded.

Cocoli designed produced a suit, tie and shirt, all of the same color.

Topcoats were either knee-length or maxi, and Cocoli made his maxi-coats in black linen with matching pants underneath.

Models discarded ties and were black or occasionally white or red ropes wound around the neck, with two tassels hanging down in front.

Newcomer Native produced a jacket with a removable lower half from the waist down. The top half could be slipped on to the pants to make a striped cat-suit.

Sivigilia's beach wear collection included white knitted Bermuda shorts, worn either with knitted blue-and-white V-necks or with beige-and-white striped shawls with huge fringes.

The beachwear Native presented a pair of white pants to the knee, covered by what looked like a woman's bouse coat, with a Peter Pan collar and sleeves to the elbow.

Hemlines Dropped to Mid-calf

LONDON (AP) — Designer Hardy Amies dropped hemlines to mid-calf Tuesday at the opening of London's 1970 spring and summer high fashion showings.

But Amies, who makes some of the Queen's clothes, was clearly not going to leave himself out on a limb on the hemline issue.

"The designer can only suggest," he noted on the show program. His own suggestion was skirts that just cleared the knee for tweeds, with the longer length for softer materials cut on the bias. The only all-the-way-to-the-floor maxis he showed were for evening.

The three-piece classic suit made a big comeback and there was more than a hint of Chanel in many of the boxy jackets with four flap-pod pockets.

Amies colors are navy and white above all, with yellows, grey, green, off white and apricot. There are many three - toned checks and prints, and materials are either roughly textured tweeds or smooth flat gabardines, jerseys and flannels.

The Amies trouser suit marched on in the Amies collection, as did the Gypsy, in full-skirted, small-waisted formals with long puffed sleeves.

The British Footwear Manufacturers Federation followed Amies with a group show of spring footwear that emphasized bright colors and shiny leathers, clumpy or delicate heels and a hint of the 1940s in peep toes and platform soles.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

EAST HASTINGS

EAST HASTINGS — Mrs. Russell Rice, president of the Carnarvon branch of East Hastings Women's Institute opened her home for the recent meeting.

It was decided for the next three months to hold the meeting on the 3rd Tuesday of the month.

Mrs. Rice presented Mrs. Treverton and Mrs. Easbey with a gift in appreciation of their work as leaders of the 4-H Girls' Club.

Mrs. Reynolds gave a reading as well as Mrs. Whitmore. Mrs. Whitmore also introduced Mrs. Bowers who gave an excellent demonstration of how to make candles and decorate them as well as Christmas arrangements for the table or as gifts.

Mrs. Reynolds thanked Mrs. Bowers on behalf of the group and presented her with a gift.

An exchange of gifts was followed by a luncheon with various desserts served buffet style.

Grandmother Sets Knitting Record

MONTREAL (CP) — Mrs. Yvonne St. Cyr, a Montreal grandmother, claimed a world record Monday night after knitting continuously for 80 hours and 40 minutes.

Mrs. St. Cyr began the endurance test Saturday with two other Montreal women.

Mrs. Gracia Gerard and Mrs. Jeanne Brunet put down their knitting needles earlier after completing 53 hours and 65 hours respectively.

A handicraft store in the city's east end which is sponsoring the knitathon reported that four other women joined the group Sunday and Monday. (The four were still at work early today and will attempt to surpass Mrs. St. Cyr's record.

Mrs. Rose Proulx and Mrs. Blanche Bouchard, who entered the competition Monday, last year set a world knitting record of 75 hours and eight minutes in Montreal.

YOUR ANTIQUES

Church Pewter First Used For Communion in 1829

Britannia metal is a form of pewter generally in the proportion of 150 parts of tin, ten parts of antimony, and three parts of copper. The best quality of pewter combines tin and copper. Only the purest quality, once used for piping, contained lead.

The purest pewter collector scorns Britannia metal which was developed and given its name in the mid eighteenth century. Britannia metal is harder and better wearing than many qualities of pewter. It does not have the same lustre as the softer metal which is mainly earlier. The use of Britannia marks the end of the domestic use of pewter. It was replaced by pottery, china, Sheffield plate and in the 19th century, electroplate.

When electroplating first developed it was found that Britannia metal was a suitable base and much early electroplate was produced on Britannia metal.

The pieces illustrated are church pewter, a paten a nd chalices used in communion. The paten and small chalice belonged to York Mills Church which opened in the north of Toronto. One of the larger chalices is engraved 1869 and appears to be slightly earlier, an alloy that contains antimony which gives the metal hardness and a greater resemblance to silver.

The large chalice came from Wansford, Ontario, from a church founded by the Fowler family in the 1870's. Pewter was long out of fashion by that date and it is assumed that the piece was obtained before the electroplate industry became firmly established in Ontario in 1879.

One of the pieces is marked James Dixon and Sons, Sheffield, who established themselves in 1806 and became the leading exporters of Britannia. Among the items they exhibited in the Great Exhibition of 1851 were a paten and a chalice and a display of the manufacturing processes that produced Britannia metal.

Early pewter was cleaned with sand which wore out the pewter very quickly. Worn pewter was melted down and re-worked. Experts do not recommend harsh cleaning of old pewter and suggest the stead an occasional polishing.

An electric dishwasher does a good wash job with detergent. Coal-oil is the lubricant recommended as a polish.

Early pewter was, and is, subject to "tin-pest", a change in the physical state of the metal called allotropy. Allotropy is an irreversible process and one piece tends to "infect" others, particularly when stored in a cold, damp place.

"Early Canadian Pewter", a doubtful attribution, but often listed by dealers is valuable and scarce. It refers to pewter that was used in Canada rather than made here. Pewter was certainly made in Quebec but it is doubtful if it was made in any scale elsewhere in Canada.

Ann Landers

Fiancee's Assistance A Bit 'Too Much'

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 22 and have been going with a man 26. Our romance began about a year ago when I went to work for Roy.

Ann, I do everything for him I can possibly think of. I set it in a full dress at the store, then I cook for him, do his laundry, clean his apartment, take his suits to the cleaners, write letters to his mother, feed his dog and even wash his convertible.

ANN LANDERS

Sunday, when Roy and I were walking up the steps of my church, we ran into trouble. I went on ahead, thinking maybe they wanted to talk, just the two of them. I heard her say, "Gee, Roy, don't you think it's about time you got married?" He answered in a low voice he thought I wouldn't hear, "Me get married? Never! Why buy a cow when milk is so cheap?"

They both laughed and I walked right in and sat there. Roy doesn't know I heard him. What should I do? — THE WORK HORSE.

DEAR FRIEND: Obviously you consider yourself a horse and Roy thinks of you as a cow. I think you are a bit of a jackass, myself.

Stop running yourself ragged for him and see if it improves the relationship to the point where Roy thinks of you as a sweetheart instead of a dairy animal. If Roy doesn't ask you to marry him within six months, buzz off and let him find a nag and a moo cow, do his own errands, and take his convertible to a car wash.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You can title this letter: "If you are in an accident, make sure you are at fault." If you aren't, you'll never collect.

Two years ago a careless driver slammed into me from the rear. I was the last in a row of slow-moving vehicles waiting for a truck to get off the highway.

I have lost many days from work, put up with indescribable pain, and run up some very big bills. I could go on for pages but why bother? I have suffered as a result of an accident which was not my fault. The insurance company representing the man who hit me is using every trick in the book to keep from paying off.

I've gone from doctor to doctor and no one wants to have anything to do with me. When they hear a lawsuit is pending, they say, "I can't find anything wrong." One doctor would not see me a second time after my attorney contacted him.

My case is going to court soon. How can I convince a jury that I do have pain when the doctors say they can't find any evidence that I have been injured? — UNSIGNED.

DEAR UNSIGNED: When a patient presents his problem as a legal one rather than a medical one, the doctor is apt to wonder whether he is seeking legitimate medical help. You may be a completely honest person with a valid case, but the fakers who holler "whiplash" and try to sock it to the insurance companies have made it difficult for victims with legitimate complaints.

Go to an orthopedic physician who has not seen you. Do not mention the lawsuit. If he says he can find no evidence of physical damage, you'd better get help for your nerves from another kind of doctor.

IRAN INTERLUDE

(Conclusion)

"... the Tulip for her morning sup
Of Heavenly Vintage from the soil looks up ..."
—Omar Khayyam.

* * *

"Living in Iran was a stimulating experience," recalls Mrs. Don Belfry speaking of the three years she and her husband and young family spent in Iran where Mr. Belfry, an electrical engineer, was sent, over with ten other Canadians by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario to complete installations for the Dez Dam, dedicated to Iran's ruler, His Imperial Majesty back in March, 1963.

"Looking back I find myself remembering:

"The Persian springtime which is the Persian New Year and its beauty. Roses bloom in masses. The tulips, varied in color are, as you may know, Persia's native flower, which the Dutch discovered and exported to the world at large.

"The intense heat of the south where we were. Oh, so hot! No trees grow on the arid soil. Yet, women in the early, early morning gather bits of twigs from shrubs, reeds of grass, anything they can find for fire-wood.

"The insects of the hot season; the common house-fly, being the worst offender, defied extermination. And ants, how they marched in long single files toward a chance crumb that somehow had fallen on the floor. Though we seemed to see less of them after our kitchen was freshly painted.

"Watching the Canadian and American children (there were about 25 of them) walk to school in the morning. I think too, of our modern ranch - style house; of our community situated on a rather high plateau, near the mountain where the dam was.

"The Christmas season. How truly joyous it was. Doors everywhere opened wide by warm, friendly, hospitable people and the lovely children's parties. As for general entertainment during the year, we just made our own, playing bridge, and listening to the radio, tape-recorders and records, for, of course, there was no TV. However, there was a movie, once a week, usually shown out-of-doors.

"Shopping days, when we drove perhaps ten miles to the largest, nearby center. Often we went up to Andimeshk or Dizful (the world's oldest continuing city) or south to Ahwaz. The Persian bazaars, full of fascination; worlds of their own.

"Persian rugs, which travelling salesmen brought to one's own door by car, with the trunk or back seat simply laden, or perhaps by donkey, with its back piled high with merchandise. The rugs often are woven by help of entire family. The average eleven square meter size usually took three years to weave, and knots tied to form intricate, interesting designs with various colored wools. Usually the rugs are woven vertically, with the weaver sitting on adjustable swings which may be raised or lowered at will.

"Ah, yes, the happiness the birth of Brian our fourth child brought to our family. He was born in the small, while clinic in charge of two English doctors as well as an English mid-wife.

"Lastly, the soft-spoken, hospitable Iranian people (for whom it is said time is not for hurry — rather for pleasure), who as you entered their home greet you with their polite Persian words: "Be my guest."

Kitchen Tested Recipes

A Variation of Cookies

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Help please! I am enclosing the only part of the recipe for Christmas cookies made with a cookie press that I can find. Would you please send me a copy of the complete recipe, which appeared two or three, or perhaps even four years ago. It is the only cookie press recipe that has completely satisfied me, in case of use with the cookie press, and final flavor and texture. — Ruth M.C.

ANSWER: It was October 1966 when the following was given and thank you for such a kind letter.

COOKIE PRESS COOKIES (with variations)

BASIC DOUGH:

1 cup butter,
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
3 1/2 cups sifted all - purpose flour
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. almond extract

Cream the butter, gradually adding the sugar. Blend in eggs, vanilla and almond extract. Beat well. Sift together the flour and salt, and add to mixture. Mix thoroughly.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR SHAPING: Press dough through cookie press. Into which it has been firmly packed, onto ungreased cool shiny aluminum baking sheets, using any plate to make desired shape.

GENERAL DIRECTIONS FOR BAKING: Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 8-10 min. until barely tinted with gold.

If you divide the dough into three bowls here are three variations:

1) CHRISTMAS WREATHS: Tint 1-3 of basic dough a delicate pink. Using "Star" plate, shape into little wreaths and decorate with 3 or 4 "Silvers" or tiny bits of red and green cherries to form Holly Leaves.

2) GREEN TREES: Tint 1/3 of basic dough a definite pale green and using "Tree" plate shape into trees on cold cookie sheet. Decorate three outside points with "Silvers."

3) COCONUT MEDALIONS: To 1-3 of basic dough add ¼ cup very finely chopped or ground coconut. Shape through medallion plate. Decorate tips with a sprinkle of colored sugar.

Poem an Inspiration

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I noticed your request for "Out To Old Aunt Mary's".

One of my most prized possessions is an illustrated book by Howard Chandler Christy of this poem, Aunt Mary's face is an inspiration for all ages. My book has many loose pages as it was thumbed so often on my desk by my young pupils.

When their work was finished they could come quietly to my desk and help themselves to a favorite book. The picture of the angel sitting on Aunt Mary's bed was good for a boy to see and a girl and a teacher too:

For O, my brother, so far away.

This is to tell you — she wails today

To welcome us: Aunt Mary fell

Asleep this morning, whisperer. Tell

The boys to come . . . And all is well

Out to Old Aunt Mary's."

What a great need the world has for Aunt Marys!

I taught far away from here but it would be wonderful if some old pupil of mine were requesting it . . . Retired Teacher.

Dear Teacher: The request appeared in papers from one end of the country to the other, so it might well be an old pupil of yours writing in. We'll ask her.

Dear Doris: We work with a girl who has been going with a boy for 13 years. About 10 years ago he wanted to get married and she wouldn't because of a religious problem. Now she wants to get married and he has many excuses.

She is a wonderful girl and would make a good wife. He is very considerate and loves children. He consults her on everything he is about to purchase, even small things.

What advice would you give to this girl to help her hook her man? — Three Girls on a Fence.

Dear Girls: A husband hooked against his will will hardly fill the bill. The devoted boy friend has also become a too-contented bachelor. She is available, they have fun; why should he take on the responsibility of marriage? So he thinks.

He really has no idea of just how wonderful marriage could be with such a girl. I'd suggest she take things in hand and say, "Either we set a wedding date now, or stop seeing each other."

Far better for her to know where she stands — even if it means breaking up — than to waste any more time. I'm betting he'll gasp a couple of times, then name the day.

Sayers Leads West Squad In NFL Pro-Bowl Action

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gale Sayers of the Chicago Bears is just one of 64 National Football League stars who will see action Sunday in the 20th annual East-West game.

No one will deny, however, that Sayers is something special in the pro Bowl, the NFL's nod in other important areas.

Friday, in Santa Monica's Civic Auditorium, the gifted running back was honored by the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce as one of 10 of the nation's leading young men—not necessarily for his gridiron heroics but as a human being.

Sayers, the only back to run more than 1,000 yards in the 1969 season, showed Sunday in his hours to youth work in Chicago's poor sections.

As for the Pro Bowl, which starts at 1 p.m. PST and will be nationally televised, Sayers' credentials are in order.

He was named Back of the Game in 1967 and 1968. In 1967 he set a Pro Bowl record by averaging 10 yards per carry in 10 runs. A knee injury and surgery sidelined him last year.

With a losing record in 1969, Sayers scored eight touchdowns and gained 1,032 yards.

Gale will be a starter for the West, along with such stars as Roman Gabriel, Los Angeles Rams, and Bob Berry, Atlanta Falcons, the alternating quarterbacks.

The East quarterbacks, Bill Nelson of Cleveland Browns and Fran Tarkenton of New York Giants, will have such running backs as Leroy Kelly, Cleveland, and pass receivers as Paul Warfield, Cleveland; Harold Jackson, Philadelphia Eagles and Roy Jefferson, Pittsburgh Steelers, two Smiths — Jackie of St. Louis Cardinals and Jerry of Washington Redskins.

For the West, offensive heroes include Tom Matte, Baltimore Colts, and Ken Willard, San Francisco 49ers. Carroll Dale, Green Bay Packers, and the two Gene Washingtons, one from Minnesota Vikings the other from the 49ers.

The West leads in the series 12-7 and the East hasn't won $1,500; the losers $1,000.

Russians Play 'Wait and See'

OTTAWA (CP) — Coach Anatoly Tarasov of the Soviet national hockey team says Canada needs international competition and the Soviet Union intends to "wait and see" what happens to the Canadian boycott of European teams.

He also says restricted body checking is a much greater threat to amateur hockey than the use of professional players, the issue on which Canada decided to withdraw from the 1970 world championships.

Complaints about Canadian rough play dominate the report by Tarasov on the recent eight-game tour in Canada by the Soviet team, which won four games. Two forwards injured in a game here against a reinforced junior 67's team "had to be flown home for the doctors to start mending their serious injuries."

"I was surprised by the Canadian hockey leaders' threat to withdraw as it lets this European hockey," says Tarasov.

"This desperate act only showed that the Canadians were really set on winning at all costs, with the help of sheer physical brutal force of professional hockey.

He says he believes it is not the professionals who are endangering the amateur game.

"Far more disastrous is the introduction of bodychecking anywhere on the ice, which is actually done in the rules of the professional Canadian game. The way I see it, this new rule is interested by some people as freely permitting elements of fencing, wrestling and boxing in the rink."

Starting at Bottom Nets Punch $50,000

TORONTO (CP) — George (Punch) Imlach, who has a reputation of building also-ran hockey teams into contenders, is back in the National Hockey League.

Imlach, 51, former general manager and coach of Toronto Maple Leafs, assumed a similar position Friday when he landed the dual job with Buffalo's expansion team, which joins the league next year.

"I'm happy to be returning to the game," said Imlach, who was fired as manager-coach of the Leafs last spring minutes after the Leafs lost their fourth consecutive game to Boston Bruins in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarter-finals.

"This is a job of building from the bottom," Imlach added. "I've done it before and can do it again."

Terms of Imlach's salary and the length of his contract were not announced but it was reported it was probably for five years at $50,000 a year, about $12,000 a year more than he made with Leafs.

However, the challenge his new job presents is far greater than the one he faced when he took over a last-place team in November, 1958. At that time, Toronto had 18 players and a farm system. Before he was fired, Leafs had won four Stanley Cups and a league championship.

But Imlach concedes it might take longer than 11 years to reproduce a similar record. He takes over a team not yet officially accepted by the NHL. This will not happen until Feb. 16 when the Buffalo group, headed by Seymour H. Knox III, president of the Niagara Frontier Hockey Corp., pays the NHL $1,750,000 and satisfies the league it has come to a satisfactory agreement with the Memorial Auditorium commission.

TORONTO (CP) — Five United States yacht clubs have submitted challenges for the Canada's Cup and the cup committee of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club will decide which one of them for a match in 1972. When the deadline for challenges passed this week, requests were in from Bayview Yacht Club, Detroit; Chicago Yacht Club, Cleveland Yachting Club, Grosse Point Yacht Club, Detroit, and Rochester Yacht Club. Manfion, the Toronto-owned yachts sailed by Jerry Connolly of Port Hope, Ont., beat the Cleveland club challenger Niagara last September in two triangular course races and one distant event on Lake Ontario.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Soviet sports officials, stepping up their campaign to win the nomination to stage the 1976 Olympic Games, promised Friday a no-ice facelift for Moscow arenas. Moscow is one of four cities seeking the 1976 Games. The others are Montreal, Los Angeles, and Florence. The IOC will meet in Amsterdam in May to decide the venue. The Games have never previously been held in the Soviet Union. The president of the Soviet Olympic Committee was told that the 100,000-capacity Lenin Stadium, planned site for the athletics events, will be equipped with the latest synthetic surfaces for track and jumping events.

CHICAGO (AP) — Cassius Clay, who prefers to be called Muhammad Ali, said Friday his fighting days are over. The defrocked world heavyweight champion made the announcement at a luncheon plugging a contested filmed fight between him and the late Rocky Marciano, to be shown in Chicago theatres Tuesday. Clay's career has been a series of contradictions since he wrestled the skin-headed from Sonny Liston in 1964. Clay's last fight was a knockout victory over Zora Folley in March, 1967. Shortly after that Clay was convicted of draft evasion, although his five-year sentence is still under appeal, Clay has been unable to receive approval from any state for a fight.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Blues announced Friday the recall of left winger Wayne Maki from Buffalo of the American Hockey Association League under emergency conditions. Blues coach and general manager, Scotty Bowman, said Maki was recalled because of injuries that have sidelined defencemen Noel Picard and centre Phil Goyette.

NFL Realignment A Fact

Central Cities Still Chilly

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football's long-awaited realignment finally has been accomplished to the apparent satisfaction of all 26 clubs in the merged National and American leagues.

After 13 NFL owners in the National Conference had fumbled their way through almost 65 hours of debate in realignment sessions beginning last May, five plans submitted by commissioner Pete Rozelle were placed in a cut glass flower vase and a blind draw made by his secretary. The result was the following format.

East Division—Dallas, New York Giants, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Washington.

Central Division—Chicago, Detroit Green Bay and Minnesota.

West Division—Atlanta, Los Angeles, New Orleans and San Francisco.

Then everyone went home happy, with the possible exception of the four Central Division bosses—linked together as they were last season in the National Football League but deprived of the warm-weather city all had sought as an addition to their line-up.

"There is some unhappiness, but I talked to the owners and they thought it was a fair shot and a satisfactory solution," said Rozelle, who prescribed the lottery and placed five possible alignments in the grab bag after deciding the owners had exhausted all other efforts to reach agreement.

The 13-team American Conference, composed of 10 former AFL clubs plus Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Baltimore from the NFL, was set up last May after the Browns, Steelers and Colts agreed to make the switch.

Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo, Miami and New York Jets will play in the East Division beginning next season; Cincinnati, Cleveland, Houston and Pittsburgh in the Central Division, and Denver, Kansas City, Oakland and San Diego in the West.

The 14-game regular-season schedule will be retained.

Each team in a five-team division will meet the other clubs in its division on a home-and-home basis, will play three of the other eight teams in the conference, and will cross over for three games against clubs in the other conference.

In a four-team division, each club will meet the others in its division twice, home-and-home; will take on five of the remaining eight teams in its conference games.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, JANUARY 17, 1970

Although he didn't participate in this first-period fracas in last Friday's 8-4 Belleville Mo-Hawk win over Barrie Flyers, Barrie defenceman Rick McClocklin has been suspended for two OHA Senior A games for his involvement in a wilder third-period donnybrook. The Flyers have protested the suspension of McClocklin, who didn't receive a penalty at the time of the brawl.

Flyers Fume Over Ban

BARRIE (CP) — The executive of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior series Barrie Flyers is protesting a two-game suspension to defenceman Rick McClocklin.

The OHA imposed the ban for the Barrie player's part in a Jan. 9 fight at Belleville. The scrap resulted in four players receiving major penalties, but McClocklin was not penalized.

The OHA, in notifying the Barrie team of the suspension, stated the ban was imposed on McClocklin for being a third party in a fight.

Flyers management Friday expressed surprise in the OHA's action, claiming there was no record of McClocklin's involvement on the referee's official report. The suspension takes effect immediately. The Barrie club played Friday night in Woodstock.

The Flyers also announced the appointment of Ray Gariepy, 41, long-time Barrie resident, as bench coach, replacing the fired Harry Pidhirny, a former star forward in the American Hockey League.

Gariepy, a Toronto native, starred for eight seasons in the AHL as a defenceman, mostly with Hershey Bears. He appeared briefly in the National Hockey League, 35 games with Boston Bruins and one game with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Sound Stand-by Goaltending Pays Dividends for Aces, Oaks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Substitute netminders played prominent roles Friday as Orillia Terriers and Kingston Aces posted Ontario Hockey Association Senior series victories on home ice.

The league-leading Terriers edged Owen Sound Crescents 5-4 for their 15th straight home win and Kingston Aces shelled Oakville Oaks 8-1.

Don Warden of Barrie, who plays for the OHA Senior B Midland Flyers, played an outstanding game for Orillia in place of Gerry McNamara, who is currently filling in as reserve netminder for Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

At Osborne scored three goals as the Terriers recorded their 24th win in 30 games. Mike Draper and Grant Moore, a former member of Canada's national team, completed the Orillia scoring.

At Kingston, the Aces gained their first win in five tries against the Oaks this season before a crowd of 2,679.

Gavel proceeded to block 32 Oakville shots and only allowed a first period goal by Terry Holmes.

Bill Burega, Tom Smallman, Ed Long and Fred O'Donnell also scored for the winners, whose victory forced a three-way tie for third place, two points behind Galt Hornets,

Flood's Charge:

Ballplayers Lose At Monopoly

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran outfielder Curt Flood Friday formally challenged baseball's reserve clause that ties the game's brass consider vital to the sport.

His civil suit filed in federal court charged that baseball is a monopoly which places players in a state of peonage and involuntary servitude. A hearing is scheduled for Tuesday.

Specifically, Flood is protesting his trade from St. Louis Cardinals to Philadelphia Phillies. In a letter to baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, Flood set the stage for his legal action by asking that he be declared a free agent and that the 24 major league teams be allowed to bid for his services.

Kuhn refused, pointing out in a letter to Flood that his assignment to the Phillies was within the terms of the standard player's contract.

That contract is based on an agreement between the owners and the Players Association which expired Dec. 31. Negotiations for a new agreement have been underway for some time and one of the areas the players are interested in adjusting is the reserve clause which binds a player to his team for life unless the team trades, sells or releases the athlete.

It is that clause that Flood is challenging.

Flood's suit contends that baseball is a monopoly operating in restraint of trade. "The baseball establishment maintains a lifetime grip on any player who wishes to play professional baseball in the United States," he adds.

The reserve clause has been tested twice before the courts and has been upheld on both occasions. In 1922, the Supreme Court, in an 8-0 ruling, found that baseball was not an interstate business and therefore not subject to anti-trust laws. That finding was upheld in 1953 when the high court refused by a 7-2 vote to overturn the earlier ruling.

Named as defendants, by Flood in his suit were commissioner Kuhn, Joe Cronin, president of the American League, and Chub Feeney, president of the National League, as well as the 24 club owners.

Flood said he would not play baseball until the suit is settled.

Kelly Figures Penguins to Climb at Toronto's Expense

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

As Red Kelly sees it, his Pittsburgh Penguins should improve their standing in the Western Division of the National Hockey League after they meet the Maple Leafs tonight in Toronto.

Kelly feels tonight's game will end what he considers the longest and toughest part of the NHL season for the Penguins.

"We've played 13 games against Eastern Division teams in the last month," the Pittsburgh coach said Friday, "and after this game with the Leafs, we've only got 13 more for the rest of the year. We have to make hay in our own division."

The Penguins now hold the fourth and last playoff spot in the Western Division and have 24 games remaining with teams in their group.

So far this season, they have been fairly successful against the Leafs, an Eastern Division team—winning twice, losing once and tying once for five of a possible eight points.

Keith McCreary, Pittsburgh's top scorer last season, will be out of the lineup tonight with a knee injury. However, winger Jean Pronovost has returned from an injury suffered in the same game as McCreary.

The Toronto-Pittsburgh game is one of six scheduled for today. In the other games, Oakland Seals play the Canadiens in Montreal, New York Rangers visit the North Stars at Minnesota, Chicago Black Hawks meet the Bruins at Boston, Los Angeles Kings are against the Blues in St. Louis and Philadelphia Flyers meet the Detroit Wings at Detroit in an afternoon game.

In games Sunday, Montreal is at Boston, Los Angeles at Detroit, Oakland at Chicago and Pittsburgh is at Philadelphia.

In Montreal, Oakland coach Fred Glover said goalie Gary Smith is the only consistent performer for the Seals went through his goals-against average is 3.37.

"Smitty has played just about one period of bad hockey all season," Glover said Friday. "The rest of the time he has hung in there and kicked them out, although sometimes he thinks he is a shooting gallery. We have no complaints about his goaltending."

The Seals, in fifth place in the west, have not been getting top performances from some of their more experienced players. Bill Hicke and Earl Ingarfield each have scored eight goals and Ted Hampson 10. A disappointment is Norm Ferguson with six goals. He scored 34 last season and won the Rookie-of-the-Year title.

The only other bright spot for the Seals besides Smith has been defenceman Carol Vadnais, who also played in the first half of the season as a left winger. In the last 23 games he has scored 10 goals and carried eight assists.

Wayne Maki is expected to play his first NHL game this season tonight in St. Louis. He was suspended 30 days earlier this season because of a stick-swinging incident in which Boston defenceman Ted Green suffered a fractured skull.

Scotty Bowman, St. Louis coach and general manager, recalled Maki from Buffalo of the American League under emergency conditions. The Blues have defencemen Noel Picard and centre Phil Goyette sidelined because of injuries.

Maki has played 39 games for Buffalo this season and has 11 goals and 15 assists. He was suspended Oct. 17 for the stick swinging during an exhibition game in Ottawa.

Green, who is still unable to play because of the injury, also was suspended for 30 days but the suspension will take effect only when Green has been declared physically and mentally fit to play again.

Bowman said Thursday night after St. Louis' game with Toronto that fans have been giving Maki a "rough ride" since the incident with Green.

"He gets called 'killer' and a few other choice names," he said. "But he's a good, game kid, playing well despite it and deserves a chance up here."

Space is available on a bus leaving the Belleville arena at 4.30 for Sunday's p.m. match-up with third-place Peterborough Don Byes.

Squeeze Play

Winger Terry Meagher and defenceman Kevin Dockrill hem in a Kingston attacker in last night's Junior B contest. The Limestone City team got a rocky greeting as Belleville handed them a 6-4 setback. The win moved the Ellis Printers into a fourth-place tie and prevented Kingston from taking over the Eastern Ontario Junior B League lead.

Belleville: 6-4

Ellis B's Upset Frontenacs

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sports Writer

Transportation costs should be virtually nil for the Ellis Juniors for their Sunday game in Peterborough. Reliable information has it that the Belleville club plans on walking up the Trent River system.

After last night's impressive 6-4 win over Kingston, any water walking by the Crowford crew will seem strictly commonplace.

It was an entirely different team from the one that has been responsible for some lethargic displays of hockey lately. The Ellis B's were skating, checking and passing — and even managed to break even on third-period goals.

Standouts were everywhere in the Belleville lineup. The defence was hitting, the forwards were scoring and backchecking and the goaltending was at times, brilliant.

One area in which they did fall short was time-outs — showing a decided tendency to turn blue in the face and crawl to the bench in between whistles. The oxygen deficiency can be explained by the fact that Coach Floyd Crawford went with only two lines for virtually all of the game.

The strategy gave the Ellis B's a share of fourth place with Cobourg in the Eastern Ontario Junior B standings.

Dennis "Trudy" McCormack scored the first of two goals after only 23 seconds of the period had elapsed, converting a pass from Danny Lupenette.

Minutes later Terry Meagher banged in a goalmouth pass from Reed Mallory, who was moved from centre to left wing on a line with Meagher and John McConnell.

After Tom Goodfellow scored Kingston's first goal on a deflection off the Belleville defence, McCormack hit the score sheet again on a two-on-one break with Danny Lupenette. The assist was one of three points picked up by the little Belleville centre, who was flying all night. Lupenette scored the final goal of the first period on a slapshot from the left wing boards, after Dave Higgins had added another tally for the second-place Frontenacs.

Reed Mallory scored the only Ellis goal of the second period at 46 seconds and Goodfellow got his second at the 4-minute mark. The rest of the middle frame belonged to the goalies, as first Ron Jary and later Clyde Harris repeatedly robbed enemy forwards of good scoring chances.

Belleville's patterns of blowing third-period leads seemed to be catching up with them again as Goodfellow's hat-trick goal moved Kingston within one goal of the home team. John McConnell added the game's final goal, however, on a pass from Terry Meagher. Meagher, who played his usual fine game was victim of some fine goaltending by Harris in the game's latter stages.

Defencemen Dalton Lambert and Greg Burkitt were mainly responsible for protecting the third-period lead, dealing out some bone rattling bodychecks at the Belleville blueline.

Meagher's goal and assist moved him to within five points of league-leading scorer Keith Loudon, who was held to an assist.

Last night, Belleville five-pin bowler Leo Labelle rolled a perfect 450 game to cap his achievement-filled season. These included winning The Intelligencer Gold Cup, shown here in Leo's grasp after May's competition.

Labelle's 450 First in Classic

Until last night, Leo Labelle had done everything in five-pin bowling.

After tossing 12 straight strikes in Quinte Classic League action last night, Labelle had done everything. The perfect 450 game — first in the 11-year-old Classic League — was the crowning achievement of Labelle's city bowling history.

Last year, he led all Belleville five-pinners with a 265-plus average, and won the Intelligencer Gold Cup event, to name but two accomplishments.

His perfect game appeared only little to cool Leo out last night, however.

He followed it up by starting the next game on eight straight strikes before picking a headpin.

Tractor Tale Is Thriller

Farm Machinery Report Reads Like Spy Story

OTTAWA (CP) — A story of intrigue, legal manoeuvres and industrial spies at work in the night is told in the royal commission on farm machinery report released Friday.

It started when Ontario farmers decided they were paying too much for tractors. They set out to prove they could prove it to them and save money, even after paying duty and freight costs.

At first, it was easy.

Then the companies started cracking down on their overseas dealers and roadblocks appeared at virtually every step.

Behind it all, the report says, was the attempt by manufacturers to control shipments to the Canadian market with its arbitrarily-high prices.

The commission says new farm machinery had not increased to Canada from Britain in any significant volume through secondary channels—those outside the control of the companies—up to the time the import operations of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture were undertaken.

By mid-April, 1969, the federation and some of its county associations had imported about 120 British-made tractors.

Some British dealers, backed by the British manufacturers, the association purchased them through farmers—some British who had contracted with individual farmers to buy them from dealers.

Thus the British dealer could claim that he was selling in good faith to a British farmer, not exporting a new unit—something the British manufacturers insisted their dealers not do outside normal channels.

This worked for a time. But subsequent orders became more difficult as the companies became suspicious.

In a mid-1969 incident, the commission told of company efforts to track down the source of 13 tractors shipped in November, 1968, from Manchester, England.

These tractors each had serial numbers in two places, which could be used by the company concerned to identify the British dealer who had sold the tractor and the farmer who had bought it originally.

To protect these sources, the Grey and Bruce Federations of Agriculture arranged to have steel plates welded over the serial numbers.

When this shipment was being unloaded at Hanover, the report says, representatives of various farm machinery companies appeared to watch the proceedings.

Nine of the tractors of one make had the serial numbers covered, which brought an expression of "dissatisfaction" from the company men.

The next morning, a number of serial number 'cover plates' had been pried off, something which, the commission was assured, could not have been done with just a screwdriver. The plates were heavy enough to have required a wrecking bar as a lever to pry them up.

The solicitor for the Ontario Federation of Labor received a telephone call from a Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. lawyer saying that the OFA might be violating trade marks legislation.

The commission said it found evidence that "the manufacturers have recently sought to prevent tractors moving from the lower-priced British market to the artificially high-priced Canadian market".

"All major British tractor manufacturers—Ford, Massey-Ferguson, International Harvester, David Brown and British Leyland Motors—have inserted clauses in their dealer agreements to prevent the dealers from directly exporting new tractors or selling them to someone who would."

Ex-policeman Says He Sought Witness

TORONTO (CP) — Former policeman Peter Lott, whose allegations helped spark an inquiry into police conduct here, testified Friday that he didn't appear at the inquiry until now because he was in Florida trying to find a witness.

Lott, 36, is charged with disobeying a lawful order under the Ontario Police Act to attend the hearing as a witness. He was released Friday on $1,000 bail.

He said he had been unemployed since retiring from the force Oct. 30. He said he left Toronto before the inquiry started Jan. 5, and spent about seven days travelling from Miami Beach to Key West and then back to Daytona Beach, trying to find a former Toronto traffic officer named "Floyd."

He said he had been told by police that he would be allowed to investigate three allegations that were not included in those the inquiry was looking into and he intended to bring those cases before the commission.

Pollution Control Sacrificed in Inflation Fight, Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — Charging the government has dangerously subordinated pollution control to its anti-inflation policies, opposition parties are threatening to hold up the proposed Canada water bill at every stage in its passage through the Commons.

The bill, considered one of the major pieces of legislation in the current session of Parliament, has been debated for three days at the second reading stage.

Once given second reading it then will have to go to committee for consideration and unless the government accepts substantial amendments opposition spokesmen say, it will face prolonged criticism when it is reported back to the House.

Debate on the bill is scheduled to continue Monday.

Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) said in an interview Friday the bill as presented by Energy Minister J. J. Greene is unacceptable on three main counts.

It fails to provide sufficient funds for construction of municipal sewage disposal plants;

It will open the way to a wide variation in water purity standards across the country rather than uphold a single national standard;

It will involve Ottawa in protracted negotiations with the provinces before any action can be taken by the federal government to fight water pollution.

The Conservative pollution critic attacked the bill's flexibility which is upheld by Mr. Greene as a realistic approach to pollution problems in different parts of the country.

Mr. Aiken claimed that the water resources management agencies which would be set up by the bill will not be able to withstand local political and industry pressures.

"What makes me sure I'm right," Mr. Aiken said, "is that the big steel and pulp and paper producers are sitting back and their haunches and keeping quiet in hopes that this bill is the most they'll have to deal with."

He said the main result of the bill will be to give the public the false impression that something is happening. To prevent that, the Conservatives will push on the debate until there is a commitment from the government that major changes in committee be said.

Stanley Knowles, New Democrat House leader, said in an interview his party will seek the same changes from the committee. And the current debate is a foretaste of the blockade that could develop if amendments are not accepted in the report stage.

Stock Prices Rise

Oil Strike Sparks Buying

By NICK FERRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

An oil strike in the Northwest Territories by Imperial Oil ignited a stampede of buying on Canadian stock markets this week.

Imperial's announcement Thursday that oil had flowed to the surface of its Atkinson Point well 50 miles northeast of Tuktoyaktuk in the Mackenzie River delta sent prices of stocks with interests in or near that area soaring.

Markets started the week on a bad foot, dropping sharply Monday and turning mixed Tuesday before advancing slightly Wednesday. Trading was light in the three days.

But after Imperial's announcement early Thursday—the first confirmed discovery in the Canadian Arctic—investors grabbed at stocks with any connection with the North and with oils.

Trading was frantic Thursday although Imperial said in its announcement that further drilling would be necessary to evaluate the find.

But speculation continued Friday and the stocks rose for most of the session.

Although some profit-taking in late trading Friday cut gains of that session by more than half, oils still closed with moderate gains.

Trading, which began at a light pace Monday, closed out actively.

The most active stocks were those of companies with interests in or around the Mackenzie delta, and pipeline and oil refining stocks.

The activity in integrated oils pushed industrial groups of Canadian markets higher Thursday and Friday.

The last big oil play on Canadian markets ended last October with the sale and development of the Alaskan north slope area.

Since then, only ripples of speculation in drilling by Panarctic Oils on Melville Island in the Canadian Arctic have been the bright spots in an otherwise dull oil market.

However, Imperial's find seems to ensure Canadian markets of another long oil play.

Because of the further drilling needed to determine the size and value of the find, and because of the widespread interests in the North of other oil companies, speculation should remain high until more definite news is available.

Statistically, on index at the TORONTO STOCK Exchange this week, industrials were up 1.30 to 194.32, western oils 11.94 to 221.90 and base metals 2.30 to 117.68. Golds slipped .33 to 138.34.

Volume was 18,362,000 shares compared with 14,474,000 last week. Losses outnumbered gains 66 to 341 with 197 issues unchanged.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR MEN AND WOMEN

HOW MUCH MORE COULD YOU EARN AS A COMPUTER PROGRAMMER?

Probably a lot more. More than you're making now - - - maybe even more than you ever thought you could. Enough for a new car? - - - a dream vacation? - - - a home of your own? Why not! Right now there are more than 15,000 high paying jobs just waiting for people with the right training, training in computer programming. And those are jobs that pay well to start with. And keep paying well as your computer knowledge grows.

The big question is, could you make it as a computer programmer? There is a simple way to find out. Take our free aptitude test. If you've got what it takes, we'll know it. For sure.

We're ECPI, Electronic Computer Programming Institute. An international, multi-national, system with more than 100 training centres. And all of them have the latest IBM equipment, and experienced teachers who teach you how to make it tick. We also have a free placement service. If you're over 18 and have a high school diploma or equivalency, fill out and send us this coupon. Make it your first step toward earning more — a lot more.

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY
Manpower Counsellor

The past year, that of 1969, will be remembered as the take-off year with regards to this region's economy. Particularly was this true of the area around the Bay of Quinte whose economy changed from a static to a dynamic economic pace.

This accelerated economy was most noticeable in the following areas of employment: (1) the industrial complex; (2) the construction field; (3) the public service area, such as the Ontario regional head office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission; (4) an expanded services field.

"A rapidly changing economy such as this one affects all of us in different ways. Of paramount importance is the fact that it offers an increased number of employment opportunities to the labor force. Included in these labor requirements are occupations new to the local labor market. Another facet of a changing economy is increased productivity. Our society becomes more complex. As the result of new technological new equipment, old skills become obsolete and new ones are in demand. In other words, in response to more scientific knowledge the ways of doing a job are constantly being modified.

These are new conditions under which we live and productivity of our economy is dependent upon an efficient and prompt adaptation from one occupation to another.

The Belleville Canada Manpower Centre is very much involved in the state of the economy and its present and future labor requirements. It has been said, "The essential thing that has to be done for the labor market today is to give to people, many of whom are bewildered by the complexity of change, the best possible information about employment opportunities, about employment trends and about the ways in which they can best prepare for the changes that lie ahead."

In effect it can be seen that the Canada Manpower Centre is very concerned in the well-being of the Community.

To fulfill this responsibility there are the skills and experiences possessed by the counsellors at the Canada Manpower Centre. In addition, the Federal Government has made available to manpower counsellors other necessary tools, that is such programs as occupational training for adults, (commonly known as OTA); manpower mobility; immigration settlement and other programs designed to increase Canada's productivity.

The manpower counsellor must be able to give counselling information and advice to the individual. It depends on knowing what, he can do, what his skills and capabilities are. It depends even more fundamentally on an analysis of employment and occupation trends. Good counselling requires the counsellors to relate those trends to a full understanding of available assistance programs and an accurate assessment of the individual.

Although I am speaking specifically of the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre, similar Centres and services are available on a nation wide scale across Canada.

No doubt, as we progress through the next decade there will be an increasing necessity for the Canada Manpower Centre to provide the maximum comprehensive counselling service to meet the changing problems of both labor and management.

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — The Live Women's Circle met at the home of Mrs. George Hubbell on Jan. 7 with a good attendance.

Clarence Colanon and Mrs. Harry Foster attended the funeral service for Mrs. Percy Allison at Hick's Funeral Home Picton.

Unit 1 of Bloomfield United Church catered to a club leaders' banquet at the Sunday school rooms recently. The next afternoon Unit 2 of B.U.C. Women held its regular meeting in the Sunday school rooms.

MEDICAL BEVERAGE

Tea, when introduced in Europe in the 17th century, was first used as a medicine.

Musical Production Successful

NAPANEE — The musical, "Three Pink Leprechauns," produced by the Lennox Players which was presented so successfully in Napanee before Christmas, was presented twice in the North Addington Secondary School, on Monday.

The cast was mainly pupils of Prince Charles School with only two adults taking part out of a total of 30 members. The original production was under the direction of Miss Ursula Chinette, who has since moved away. Her place has been taken by Mrs Cheryl Gibbon, who played a double role on Monday. Mrs. Peggy Hogarth, one of the adults in the cast was unable to attend and Miss Gibbon did her part. The other adult was Geoffrey Webster.

Among the Prince Charles pupils who sang leading roles were Jane Stinson, Eric White, Andy Larstone, Doug Bergstrome and Ken Gallagher.

DROP-IN STATION

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (AP) — This city's fire department didn't have to go to one fire recently. The fire came to it. A city garbage truck, flames pouring from the rear, pulled up to a fire station. Firemen dashed from the station and quickly extinguished the blaze. The garbage truck continued on its rounds.

KILLING YOURSELF

Author of "The Doctor Looks at Life"
By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.

You will understand the following letter if anyone in your family suffers from a phobia or anxiety state:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm only a youngster of 28, with many years to go, but I'm afraid to live them. I wonder if your readers know what it is to suffer from anxiety. I swear, I'd rather have an ulcer and a broken leg than go through what I go through.

For the past 10 years I have been afraid of my own shadow. (It's so bad that my shadow must be afraid of me.)

My attacks of anxiety scare me so much I don't know whom to turn to anymore. I've gone from one doctor to another. All they do is prescribe tranquilizers and tell me I am organically healthy and will probably live to 80.

Who wants to live that long? I can't breathe right. My head floats. I keep getting choked up feelings. All this is worse when I get in the car to travel.

I can't stay in closed places. Therefore the movies and church — going are no longer on my list. Feeling closed in gives me shortness of breath.

My family can't understand why I don't want to go places. And I can't explain it to our three children and expect them to understand. So they go along with my husband while I stay at home worrying about myself and about them.

I feel like an outcast. I need some sort of hope because I feel there is no improvement in store for me. — Mrs. K.

Comment: The hope I can bring to you, Mrs. K., is that phobias and anxiety states do not inevitably end up in misery and defeat. I have seen hundreds of patients — among the many thousands suffering from anxiety state — who were relieved sufficiently to "get a hoot out of life and enjoy it again."

What brings it on in the first place is the doctor's job to find out. Sometimes a psychiatrist will help; at other times the family doctor; and still other times, the courage, persistence and "never - say - die" attitude of the patient himself.

You have given me a hint of what may be tied up with your complaints, Mrs. K. You have said that your breathing is "affected" during these anxiety attacks.

It might be a good idea to have your doctor check on whether or not you suffer from hyperventilation. (I have discussed this in previous columns.) You may be over - breathing without realizing it, upsetting the oxygen - carbon dioxide mechanism, which often causes these spells of fear and nervousness.

Another tip is this: I have seen some people who, like you, have suffered hypoglycemia (low blood sugar). This may cause attacks of rapid pulse, sweating, anxiety, etc. When put on a high protein diet, such patients lost much of their anxiety.

These suggestions are only passing thoughts. I do not presume to make the diagnosis by "guessing." However, what I am trying to tell you is that anxiety states can often be helped. Sometimes within weeks; in stubborn cases, it takes many months to discover the cause and cure.

For Mr. C.: Cyanosis is bluish color to the skin and mucous membranes, usually due to poor circulation and insufficient oxygen in the blood-stream.

Woman, Only 28, Is Afraid to Live

Millionaire Giving Away Fortune

SCARSDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Michael James Brody Jr., a freshly minted 21-year-old millionaire, is out to make people happy by giving away his fortune. He found no shortage of takers Friday.

Brody and his bride of 11 days, Renee, told a news conference in New York City Thursday night he would give a piece of his inheritance, which he put at $36,000,000, to any worthy person.

At one point early Friday there were more than 500 would-be worthies assembled in front of his rented $400,000 home here. Inside, another 15 encircled the kitchen table while Brody dashed off cheque after cheque.

Finally it got to him.

"I want everyone out of this house right now," he shouted.

Police in this normally sedate suburban community helped clear the house and blocked off the road.

"I need a system," commented the fledgling philanthropist after the fund seekers left. "Everyone has been crowding me."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For January 18

Your birthday today: You must bring into your life a stronger expression of spiritual values and dedication to ideals, and have the will to serve the public at large. The way opens for you if you think big enough and work hard toward realistic goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You have more good channels than you have good channels for its expression. The exciting and constantly unexpected is likely to happen, according to how you keep your mind open and where you invite attention.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Try as many new things as convenience allows today. Follow a fresh path to unfamiliar places. Creative projects are strongly supported now, so get busy!

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Everything moves so rapidly you're lucky to keep ahead of the general hubbub. Find time to do your share in the community expression of faith and unity.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Today your individuality shows quite strongly. Go ahead and really express yourself. Visit or entertain people you only rarely.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You can now bring about a pleasant surprise for your love ones or close associates. It is quite all right today to wear your heart on your sleeve.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): You start earlier than is convenient and get back much later than planned, but it will be worthwhile. Put on a good performance; express yourself plainly and to the point. Dressing up for the day's adventure adds to the fun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Anything cultural or artistic thrives under your guidance this Sunday. Minor frictions at home are partly your own doing, so don't add complications. Try something different; look into hobbies and pastimes that are new to you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Now comes a moment of testing: Do your program and income meet your needs and the coming probable changes? Look at your community; see where you fit in now and later. Your church is a fair vantage point for beginning your survey. This evening is for meditation and prayer.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your home should be cheery with bright colors — if not do something about it. Plan for travels to begin on Tuesday, or if you must stay put, some ambitious career project that might be a new job, but take pains not to start on Monday.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): This Sunday is not for ambitious striving or bejavior. Pursue normal activities with people you like.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): You invite contradiction with almost any expression of your personal theories — it is better to simply do what you have in mind and let your actions do the talking.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Allow generous margins for error and safety factors this Sunday. People will fume a bit and not accept surprises very gracefully.

For January 19

Your birthday today: The first few months of your coming year are largely taken up with trial and error in your search for a better way out of the habits or grooves you've been in for too long. Nothing that has been customary has much chance of continuing unchanged or at least unimproved. Fresh romantic interests arise and sometimes persist all year long.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Past misjudgments now come up and have to be corrected. Dabbling in unfamiliar fields brings embarrassment: stay with what you know. You will be taxed a bit, so consciously hold your temper. Easy does it!

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): There is a contrast in reaching beyond the essentials and routines. Enough crisis develops without your provoking any changes.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): You are almost certain to ask the wrong question first or be misunderstood. Learn far more by listening and waiting for unguarded comments.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): A chief joy today makes the difference in your conquest of temptation to be sharp and critical. Impede crisis and catch you off guard, so have your place all tidy and ready on getting refreshingly.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Temperament will get you nowhere. When you are outvoted, file your dissent gracefully. Then make the best of it and proceed to business. The evening will need your self-discipline.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 — Sept. 22): Bold tactics will give you an advantage, perhaps a good bargain in something other people will use. Friends likely offer very bad advice on matters you can't verify readily. Reflect overnight before making any decision move.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): A siesta is a good idea if you can manage one. The evening may be quite long, devoted to picking up the pieces left by today's turmoils.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Financial arrangements are shaky or at least mistrusted. Group actions suffer if you give in to pessimism. Divert your energy to pastimes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Say what you have to say without belaboring the point or exaggerating. Your intense effort to stay in good humor will be helpful and will remembered.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Focus on basic essentials. Take each step in its proper sequence, without putting yourself under stress. Expansive business speculations are revealed as just what they are. Learn by looking at them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your plans have by now run into and through all major criticisms. Take comments into account think how to get to your original goals by a different path.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Intrigue backfires. Have no part in it, and refrain from showing reaction to what happens. You can prepare your position later with greater ease if you remain free of partisanship in today's squabbles.

Tweed

TWEED — Damon Bryden of Flinton, will celebrate his 80th birthday on January 18. Mr. Bryden is very active for his years and has many friends in Tweed and surrounding communities.

"We started earning extra income by sending in a coupon like this one."

"Three years ago, we were caught in the squeeze of rising prices—both of life working and still not really able to save—or have the things we wanted.

"Then we made an investment.

"We invested in chinchilla ranching with the Chinchilla Guild of Canada.

"We found we could start a chinchilla ranch in a spare room—or even our basement! The animals are clean and quiet —and there's no odor. They require very little attention, so we can ranch in our spare time.

"But the dividends are full time.

"For us, it was the answer.

"Yes, an investment in chinchilla ranching through the Chinchilla Guild of Canada might be the answer . . . for extra income . . . for full time income. And you can start for as little as $700 down.

"If you're seriously interested, fill out this coupon and mail it to me today. I'll see you get the full story. No obligation of course.

"I defy you to find a better investment today. Think about it . . . It might be the answer."

Do you think there's more to life for you and your children than drugs, pop stars, mini skirts and sex?

THEN MIND ALIVE—THE FIRST-EVER PROGRAMMED ENCYCLOPEDIA HAS BEEN WRITTEN SPECIALLY FOR YOU AND YOUR CHILDREN.

WEEK BY WEEK, MIND ALIVE WILL HELP YOU GET MORE OUT OF LIFE; HELP YOU TO KNOW MORE AND GO FURTHER.

WHAT IS MIND ALIVE?

It is an absolutely new Encyclopedia which will be issued in weekly parts for 120 weeks, and will build week by week into a complete Encyclopedia of a new kind. There will be eight great volumes. Binders will be available for every fifteen issues to give you a beautiful set of bound volumes for your home.

FREE LEARNING PROGRAMS

Week by week as you read Mind Alive, the Learning Programs show you what you have learned, check what you remember and help you to retain once and for all what you might otherwise have forgotten.

The Learning Programmes not only help you to learn — they also relate what you are learning to your everyday life. Based on teaching methods devised and perfected here and in the United States, they make learning easy and enjoyable. No other Encyclopedia in the world has this most modern of all learning techniques.

GOOD READING STARTS WITH THE FIRST 32-PAGE PART. HERE IS THE LIST OF ARTICLES IN VOLUME 1, PART 1:

1. Fate and the human egg.
2. Man, the worshipping animal.
3. When the earth stood still.
4. The Painter and the Nude.
5. The atom that isn't.
6. Where does life begin?
7. Freedom in the golden age of Athens.

PLUS first free Learning Program. Even if Mind Alive did not build week by week into a great eight-volume Encyclopedia, you can see what compelling, interesting reading it gives you.

SEVEN THOUSAND ILLUSTRATIONS, MOST OF THEM IN COLOUR!

Every 32-page issue of Mind Alive contains about 60 illustrations, photographs, Maps and diagrams — most of them in colour, and many so new they have never been seen before in any publication in the world.

Each illustration has been chosen to make the text clearer and to act as an aid to understanding and memory. Your eight volumes will contain 7,000 fascinating pictures.

SEVEN KEY SUBJECTS EACH WEEK.

In order to plan significantly such a vast store of knowledge, to give it living, lasting shape and meaning, Marshall Cavendish, the publishers, have devised the method of Seven Key Subjects. Each week, you will read articles under each of these seven subject headings:

Man and Medicine; History; Physical Science; Ideas; Biology; The Arts; Geography.

Each week, under these headings, Mind Alive will bring you living, priceless knowledge and help you to retain and make use of it in every aspect of your life. Each article you read will dovetail with those which precede and follow it in other weekly parts. The whole emphasis, throughout, will be on explanation as well as information. All the family, from mid-school years onwards, will be able to enjoy and assimilate this great store of knowledge.

"SEARCH FOR ECSTASY" IDEAS:

This Hindu youth feels no pain and sheds no blood, though steel needles are threaded through his flesh. In certain ways his trance-like ecstasy is akin to that experienced by the young flower people at a hippie happening.

COURSES ON SPEED-READING, MEMORY TRAINING, HOW TO STUDY.

Every single part of Mind Alive after the first one, gives you a special learning course, quite apart from your free Learning Programe. Articles on speed-reading, clearer thinking, concentration, memory training, how to study, how to prepare for examinations, and many other learning techniques will be of lasting value to you and your children.

EASY-REFERENCE INDEX.

The special cross-referenced index will give you years of useful reference for work, games and studies. Look up your subject under one heading and you will receive references to every mention given in the 2 million words of text!

Fathers by Cezanne

THE ARTS—PART 1

"The Painter and the Nude"
Whether at the wall of a tomb, on scaffolding high against a chapel ceiling, or before canvas in a studio, the fine arts painter has always responded to his greatest challenge — the human body.

READ ABOUT THINGS THAT MATTER!

If you believe, like the publishers of Mind Alive, that knowledge of the great and lasting truths of the world matters more than the superficial and the sensational — then you and your family have 120 very happy, busy weeks to come. And after that a lifetime of useful reading, reference and enjoyment.

MAN & MEDICINE—PART 1

"Fate and the Human Egg"
Where the largest and the smallest of human cells meet and fuse, the biological miracle of conception occurs.

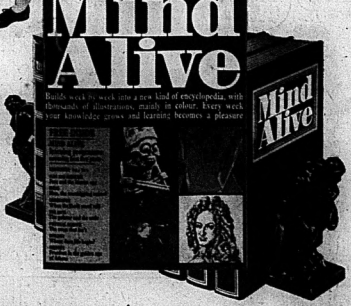
What is its significance? The article deals with why twins are sometimes born, whether it will be a boy or girl — is there an even chance.

WHAT WILL IT COST YOU?

Mind Alive will be issued at 75¢ a week. This will include the free Learning Program with the first weekly part, and a new free Learning Program every five weeks.

You buy the complete Encyclopedia weekly for a few cents more than the price of a large packet of cigarettes — 120 parts, eight binders, index and twenty-four free Learning Programs.

WITH EACH WEEKLY PART, YOU SAVE MONEY.



Most other encyclopedia publishers print sets of volumes; get them bound; store them, and then sell them. Their production costs are high and their methods of selling, too, through salesmen, is expensive — with commissions, hire-purchase and credit charges. All these costs have to be passed to you.

By our method, you can have the same high quality, the same standards of scholarship and research for as little as a third of the price — so you save, as you read, each week. We print hundreds of thousands of copies weekly, which considerably lowers the price of printing.

For the weekly price of a good magazine you have a beautiful well-bound eight-volume colour Encyclopedia you can all be proud of — a living, everlastingly useful treasure for your home. And you didn't notice paying for it!

Young Leader Chosen

Quebec Liberals Aim To Smash Separatism

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec Liberal party elected a new leader Saturday with the double-barreled hope of smashing separatism and getting back into political power in Quebec province this year.

The new leader is Robert Bourassa, a 36-year-old lawyer and economist, who promptly announced plans to sell separatist-minded students his convention-winning program for "a prosperous society."

Mr. Bourassa, a man without cabinet experience, won election on the first ballot at the Liberal leadership convention Saturday, trimming two former cabinet ministers, Claude Wagner, 46, and Pierre Laporte, 46.

For Other Stories, On Quebec's New Liberal Leader See Page 5

Montrealer Bourassa received 843 votes, or 53.2 per cent of the 1,586 ballots cast. Mr. Wagner, a former Quebec justice minister, got 432 votes, 28.7 per cent of the ballots. Mr. Laporte, Opposition house leader, got 311 votes.

The Liberals engaged a 11-year grassroots gap in choosing a successor to former premier Jean Lesage, at 57 retiring after nearly 13 years as leader, including his 1960-66 term as Quebec's Quiet Revolution premier.

Reasons for the long leap included the search for renewal in their ravaged legislature ranks and the hopes of finding a fresh figure to channel forces against Rene Levesque's new separatist Parti Quebecois.

They may have found their man in Mr. Bourassa, whose image was made in a four-month campaign as a candidate who would lead Quebec toward full unemployment and more investment.

But the crucial post-convention questions were: Will he be able to unify the divided party and how much electoral damage was inflicted on him by the political daggers of his two tough opponents?

Mr. Wagner, the champion of law and order and self-styled "candidate of the people," lost badly. His wife didn't want him to go in the first place, and he conceded defeat shortly after the 10th ballot.

Mr. Laporte, who had been considered the front-runner, was trounced on the first ballot by Mr. Bourassa as a candidate who represented the interests of "high finance."

Biafran Visit Pleases Briton

LAGOS (AP) — Lord Hunt, the adviser to British Prime Minister Wilson on Nigerian war relief, returned today from their last strongholds of what used to be Biafra and reported he found no evidence of genocide, sources close to him said.

An informant said that during a three-day tour Lord Hunt visited Owerri, Biafra's last major town; Orlu, the last rebel government seat; Uli, the location of the jungle airstrip that kept Biafra alive with supplies from the outside; Aba and other places.

The British representative said the general refugee situation was "encouraging" and the refugee problem of a far smaller scale than some had predicted. He said thousands of refugees in apparently good condition were returning home.

Hunt also reported that he saw Nigerian federal soldiers feeding refugees from the Ibo tribe.

UN Secretary-General U Thant ended Friday a tour of African nations and arrived Sunday to discuss ways the world organization can aid reconstruction after the 30-month civil war.

Thant was to have flown to Port Harcourt today for a first-hand look at how the Nigerian Red Cross is coping with the hungry refugees streaming from the bush. But he decided not to go, because he was expected in Paris Tuesday and did not have time for the trip.

Thant said he was satisfied with the federal government's treatment of the refugees. "I am convinced that the process of national reconciliation has started very auspiciously," he said.

The secretary-general said he had spoken with Henrik Beer, head of the League of Red Cross Societies, who had just returned from a visit to what was Biafra. Thant said Beer had found "no hint of even the slightest remotest evidence of genocide or mistreatment of Ibos by federal forces."

He said Beer found Ibos and federal soldiers fraternized in the climate "much more genial" than in Europe after the Second World War.

Two planes took 88 foreign reporters to Port Harcourt Sunday on the first press visit to what once was Biafra since the war ended last Monday.

"Hi Sally! We just had a leadership convention and guess who won?"

Reds Want Exchange Of Envoys

BERLIN (Reuters) — East German Leader Walter Ulbricht today rejected West German overtures for an unconditional exchange between the two German states. He said such a treaty could be signed only after the two countries agreed on full diplomatic recognition.

Addressing his first major news conference in nine years, Ulbricht also said a non-aggression treaty would be useless if it were not accompanied by another treaty guaranteeing East German borders.

In addition, he said, East Germany would follow Russia's lead in negotiating a non-aggression pact.

His remarks appeared to constitute a rebuff to West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, who called last week for negotiations on a non-aggression accord but firmly rejected East German demands for full diplomatic recognition with exchange of ambassadors.

The East German demands, submitted to Bonn in a draft treaty in December, also called for withdrawal of West German troops from West Berlin and "German treaty" which brought it into the NATO alliance, and a referendum in the federal republic on the question.

Speaking to reporters in East Berlin's State Council Building on the huge Marx-Engels Square, Ulbricht, 76, said it is essential that East and West Germany agree on normal diplomatic relations as equal partners.

Priest Maintains Thousands Starve

TORONTO (CP) — An Irish priest who escaped from Biafra a week ago said Sunday reports that military observers who claim all is well among the refugees of the Biafran-Nigerian war have not been into the areas where hundreds of thousands of starving refugees fled.

Rev. Kevin Doherty, a missionary for 15 years in Nigeria, said in an interview here that the military observers from Canada, Sweden, Poland and the United Nations are being escorted wherever they go and only got as far as Owerri, the fringe of the problem areas, during their inspection tour.

"They were only shown the good side of things," said Father Doherty. "They saw people walking and they assumed they were well. How can military men with no medical training decide if a person is seriously ill?

"I had 22,000 people in my parish and a doctor from the U.S. state department said that 62.3 per cent of them had famine edema . . . yet they were still walking around."

Typhoid Victims Increase

VANCOUVER (CP) — Medical officials today continued efforts to track down a typhoid carrier aboard the P. and O. liner Oronsay in Vancouver harbor as the number of suspected cases of the disease increased.

Five more persons thought to have been infectious fever were to be moved to hospital this morning, bringing to 21 the number of confirmed and suspected case in Canada and the United States.

Most of the patients are members of the ship's crew, including six taken to hospital in California Tuesday before the Oronsay docked here Wednesday. She was bound for Australia.

Two suspected cases have also been detected among passengers who left the ship in Florida.

Dr. K. G. Cox, federal medical officer in charge in Vancouver, said Sunday the search for a carrier has been narrowed down to "several people" among the 1,500 passengers and crew.

Tanker Rescues Thirty Seamen

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The tanker Zoe Colocotroni early today rescued 30 men who had abandoned the burning freighter Sinclair Petrolite in the Gulf of Mexico 180 miles southeast of New Orleans, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

The tanker arrived at the flaming 456-foot cargo vessel 30 minutes after it radioed for help, a coast guard spokesman said. The tanker picked up the men, who had taken to life boats.

No one was reported hurt.

Mine Kills 18

SAIGON (AP) — A powerful Viet Cong anti-personnel mine exploded in the midst of a column of South Vietnamese officer cadets near Saigon today, killing 18 Vietnamese and wounding 35.

All planes returned safely, the Israelis said.

The Egyptian command acknowledged the attack at Hocktesp, said the raiders did no damage, and claimed that Egyptian anti-aircraft fire downed one Israel Skyhawk and damaged another in the southern sector of the Suez canal.

Yasir Arafat, Palestinian Arab guerrilla leader, met in Beirut with Maj.-Gen. Jean Jinoin, the new commander of the Lebanese army. Observers believe they are trying to prevent further deterioration of relations between the Lebanese government and the guerrillas operating against Israel from Lebanese territory.

Israel Is Continuing Raids Inside Egypt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel kept up its attacks on the heartland of Egypt Sunday, striking military targets within a few miles of Cairo and the industrial city of Helmas, Israeli military spokesmen said. It was the fourth penetration of the Nile Valley in less than two weeks.

Other Israeli aircraft were reported to have hit Egyptian positions in the northern and southern ends of the Suez canal.

In the major attack, Israeli planes bombed "a large Egyptian military base" at Hockstep, 12 miles east of Cairo, and an equipment and ammunition storage area three miles from Helwan, the spokesman said.

Young Millionaire Started Give-away 'Tripped Out on Drugs'

NEW YORK (CP) — Michael Brody, a guitar-strumming young heir to an oleomargarine fortune, made his decision to give away his inheritance while "tripped out on drugs" the New York Times says.

The Times says young Brody told one of its reporters: "The idea grew and grew. . . . I was tripped out on drugs and the idea just came to me."

The Times says Brody also said: "What a joke I've pulled on the world. They think I'm Jesus Christ."

Basking in the spotlight of international attention, Brody escalated his promises of good world to come on the Ed Sullivan Show, watched by a television audience of millions.

Brody revealed his plan Sunday to end the war in Vietnam and said he would disclose a cure for cancer today.

He also asserted his fortune has grown from $25,000,000 to $100,000,000 and he will give it away if people will only give him some peace and quiet.

Brody, 21, capped a whirlwind weekend by playing guitar and singing on the Ed Sullivan Show after he flew back from a few hours in Puerto Rico.

After the show he held a news conference on stage.

"I have cures for all diseases," the long-haired Brody said.

"I have a cure for cancer . . . I will give $10,000,000,000 in aid to North Vietnam to retreat from the South. If they do this I will give them $20,000,000,000 more in aid and go over there and personally help them build

Introduced by Sullivan as "the wonderfully talented Michael Brody," the young heir who aspires to become a rock singer told the audience, "this is my first professional performance anywhere, ever, and it might not be any good."

Then, strumming his guitar, he went into a brief rendering of a ballad called You Ain't Going Nowhere. The audience, made up in large part of reporters, were invited to give him high marks for his performance.

After the number, Sullivan praised him for his much publicized financial generosity to strangers.

"I wish everybody would just relax and feel as I do my thing," Brody said. "Just stop crowding me or we won't get anything done."

Harried by money-seekers, Brody made a whirlwind trip to Puerto Rico for a grab "eight hours of sleep."

He returned in time to appear on the Ed Sullivan Show Sunday night.

He said earlier he would later journey to Canada to meet with John Lennon of the Beatles. The city he is travelling to is not known and he gave no details of his journey on the show.

Construction Halted

Overnight Lows Record for Year

Outdoor construction work ground to a temporary halt this morning as the Belleville district shivered under the low-est temperature of the new year.

Officials at the filtration plant on the western outskirts of the city said the mercury dropped to a low of 16 degrees during the night, while at Trenton Air Station, a re-

As the forecaster says it, there also may be a few more showers in the Brighton and Picton areas.

At the city pump house, it was still five below zero at nine o'clock this morning.

But the overnight low of 16 degrees Fahrenheit registered at 6 a.m. this morning — was cold enough for contractors to send their workers home.

Employees of The Tolhurst Company, engaged in sewer and roadway construction at the Fairview Park housing subdivision in west Belleville, remained off the job.

When the temperature is down to 16 below or so it gets pretty chilly out there," commented a company spokesman. "Especially if there's a bit of a wind."

Square construction at the same subdivision was also quiet this morning, while workers at the new eight-storey apartment complex on Bridge Street and Bridge Street bill were also slow in getting under way.

Local people reported numbers of calls for assistance in getting balky autos under way.

And the chilly temperatures were general across the province.

Area temperatures recorded were 20 below at Tweed, 24 below at Marlborough, 27 below at Killaloe and Bancroft.

Awards Presented

STIRLING—Three engraved awards were presented recently at the Trent Valley Country Jamboree held in Stirling Theatre. They were presented to Jack McCaughen, Ken Bisley and Mike Jones by Jimmy Simms of Toronto for the promotion of his song.

The second surprise award was presented to Floyd Inwood of Trenton and Simms for outstanding programs during the season at the Jamboree. Over 200 music fans were in attendance.

Never Mind the Robins You Know It's Not Spring

PICTON — Winter tourism is winging its way to Prince Edward County.

Vacationers at Point Traverse and Big Island this month are two flocks of robins. Prince Edward County naturalist Tony Sovegjarto revealed that there are about 90 birds in each flock. Fifteen of these untimely tourists also have been sighted individually in Picton and other areas of the county.

Although some robins invariably winter in the county each year, Mr. Sovegjarto revealed that the flocks are unusual. He said the largest number to stay around since the late 1950s. He noted that last year only 45 robins gathered together to remain here. Mr. Sovegjarto pointed out however, that in earlier years large sightings possibly were not reported.

The early birds aren't catching many worms this month but are surviving on January's bill of fare.

"Their diet probably consists of wild grapes and berries," said Mr. Sovegjarto.

The naturalist saw nothing remarkable in the recent robin sightings. He again stressed that each year some of these birds remain in the county, sometimes drawn out into the open on sunny days. There seems to be no explanation for their refusal to migrate, according to Mr. Sovegjarto. He added however, the large-scale mostly bend together for their winter sojourn. The robins' blood relationships show Christopher Robin hopelessly nincest as the birdbrained of cousins" in Prince Edward County.

Indians Given $10,000 To Support Association

The six-month old Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians has received a $10,000 grant for the federal government to support its aims.

The association was formed last summer to express Indian views and protect Indian rights during the proposed transfer of jurisdiction for Indian affairs from the federal government to the provincial governments.

At a meeting of Tyendinaga Reserve Saturday, representatives of 30,000 Ontario Indians discussed their common aims and ideals. Six reserves from the Quebec border to London were represented. A seventh reserve, the Hiawatha reserves from near Peterborough, also sent spokesmen to the meeting.

All officers of the association are elected chiefs or councillors on the reserves, and it was decided to make their terms of office in the Association co-ter a two-year span, Confirmation of the executive could not be made until after the band elections last December.

The executive discussed ways of dealing with the six major provisions in the federal government's White Paper on Indian policies, but came to no firm decisions.

The audience was assured by Rev. Cyril Betts, newly inducted chaplain to the Mohawks of Tyendinaga, that the Anglican church supports Indians in their fight for their rights.

He said the course had been decided by the National Anglican Church of Canada at its last Synod meeting, and stressed that the church would support the Indians in whatever changes in rights they might challenge.

Norman Lickers of the Six Nations Reserve near Brantford is president of the Association and Chief Earl Hill of Tyendinaga is vice-president.

The body is resting at the MacKenzie Funeral Home. The funeral service will be held Tuesday afternoon in the Eldorado United Church. Rev. W. N. Sedgewick will officiate. Interment will be in the Eldorado Cemetery.

Pollution Talk

The state of Canada's air and water will be discussed by Christian de Laet, Secretary-General, of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers tonight in Belleville.

Asked to address the Canadian Club, Mr. de Laet will speak about "the nightmare of pollution in Canada" at Sir Winston Churchill Public School at 8:15 p.m.

The Club has extended an invitation to Mayor J. Russell Scott and members of city council to hear Mr. de Laet. Members of the Canadian Club have also been invited to bring guests.

Coming to Canada in 1949, Mr. de Laet obtained his initial formal education at the University of Louvain and at the Polytechnical School, University of Belgium. He later obtained a Master of Arts degree from the University of Montreal, where he fulfilled academic requirements for a PhD.

He has held broad experience as management consultant to government, business and industry in planning and development of human and economic resources as well as in organization administrative and technical studies.

The Canadian Council of Resource Ministers, established and financed jointly by 11 senior governments, selected Mr. de Laet for the position of secretary - general in September, 1964.

Break-ins Checked

Belleville City Police are investigating a pair of break and breakins that occurred Saturday morning and Sunday night.

According to police chief Douglas Crosbie, a truck owned by Mr. Fay Switzer of RR. 1 Marysville was entered while it was parked in the Belleville General Hospital lot.

He said that someone forced the vehicle open but took an unknown quantity of tools, the amount of which was not known.

Nothing has been reported missing sooter, but thieves left evidence of entry when they pulled off a portion of plywood at the back of the store.

Carnival Queen Contest Looking for Entrants

Response to the Belleville Exhibition Carnival Queen Contest, to be held at Centennial Secondary on Wednesday, Feb. 5, at 8.30 p.m.

Other events include snowmobile races, a pancake breakfast, sleigh rides and a sculpturing contest.

A barrel rolling contest and an ice - fishing contest were also planned; to be sponsored by the Canadian Breweries Ltd.

The contest has been arranged by the Belleville Kinsmen Club, with judges to be drawn from the Tweed Kinette Club.

Kinette president, Mrs. Bill Christie explained that the contest will be open to all girls attending secondary schools, and working girls, too.

"The club has sent letters to the president of the student council and principals in each of the high schools in the city, and will be contacting them to find out how many contestants will be entering," said Mrs. Christie.

"We are hoping for two from each high school," she added.

The age requirements for the contest is 18 to 21.

Each girl will be judged on her personality, poise and ability to answer and give an intelligent opinion on current topics. Contestants will be judged in evening attire.

The undertaking is a Kinette Club project, emphasizing the "involvement" club members want to maintain.

"The Queen will be chosen on Thursday night, as well as two princesses. The contest winner will be attending the majority of the carnival's events as part of her reign. And, of course she will be the recipient of numerous prizes, trophies and cash," remarked Mrs. Christie.

Interested persons may participate in the contest should contact Mrs. Lois Abey, Point Anne or Mrs. R. Belanger, here in the city.

Farm Counselling Takes Form of Three-pronged Attack

Ontario ARDA (Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Administration) is to replace greater emphasis on the development of a counselling service for low income rural people.

Robert T. McMahon, rural development director for the Quinte area, Frontenac and Leeds counties says the prime objective of ARDA field staff members will be to devise programs on an individual approach — completely new growth trends of the region.

Emphasis will be placed on three main objectives (1) — provision of management services to help turn a non-paying farm operation into an economic unit; (2) — to adjust farmers out of uneconomic units, and to adjust low income rural non-farm people into better employment opportunities.

Rural development consultors Rev. Mr. McMahon's district are Clarence Hall, Robert Daye and Joseph Galway in the Stirling, Napanee and Kingston offices of the Ontario department of agriculture and food.

One of the vehicles used by ARDA counsellors to assist people in their problems of day operations is the farm enterprise analysis and consultation program initiated in 1966.

The objective of this program is to enable a full time farm operator on a small uneconomic unit to acquire more land and thus develop an economic farm.

To be eligible an applicant must be engaged primarily in the operation of a mid-sized basic farm unit, have capital investment and equipment and a demonstrated farm management ability.

It may be decided that additional land is not the prime restricting factor for the development of an economic unit and if so assistance will be given with the view of improving his present farming operation.

In other cases the farmer may require in-depth training in which case he is encouraged to attend extension short courses sponsored by Canada Manpower co-operation with the Ontario department of education and the Ontario department of agriculture and food. Two of these courses are currently being held in the region with 45 students attending classes at Napanee and another 32 at Elgin.

The second major ARDA objective — adjusting people out of unsuitable farm operations — involves two main groups of people — (1) older people who because of advanced age or sickness, are unable to make their farm a profitable enterprise and (2) people of all ages who because of the quality of their farm or inability to create an economic unit, decide to sell or abandon their farm income from other employment or leave the farm completely.

ARDA hopes the first group (aged 55 and over) to sell the farm and if they subsequently is unable to work and does not qualify for old age pension benefits from the sale of his farm, he will be considered for a welfare assistance.

The second group may be served by ARDA through purchase of the farm thereby providing cash for the owner to buy better land in another area.

Another alternative might be that the sale of the farm would enable a person in starting another vocation.

The farm then could be made available to a neighboring farmer wishing to expand his operation. On the other hand the farm might be sufficiently marginal to warrant it being taken completely out of agriculture and used for reforestation, a game preserve or for recreational purposes.

The third major objective of adjusting low income rural people will be to develop programs for people who live in rural areas but are not farm owners. These people may include men providing services to the agricultural community, but because of dwindling business, brought on by fewer farmers and increased competition from bigger centres now find it impossible to make a satisfactory living. On the other hand, they might be people who have been working as unskilled laborers in a variety of industrial and commercial ventures.

ARDA counsellors are prepared to discuss the possibilities open to them and are willing to assist them in contacting the Canada Manpower counsellors in the hope that they may either relocate in a more favorable area or receive the training necessary to secure the kind of work that will not only make life more interesting and enjoyable but also provide the means to achieve some of their ambitions and goals without relocation.

Cool -- But Not So Clear Water

The sign's a caution . . . and the situation also a reminder of just how deep winter has bitten into the Quinte district. Sign on Moira River at Victoria Park was erected after ice-breaking operations last weekend to ease flood problem. Weather has been so cold since there's now no sign of open water . . . despite the sign. However, new ice layer is thin enough to be dangerous.

Tweed School Back Again

The status of Tweed-Hungerford High School is still far from an open-and-shut case.

Hastings County board of education will close the school in June and sell it to the Hastings and Prince Edward separate school board for a senior elementary and junior high school.

A Tweed ratepayers' group is determined to keep the school open and functioning as a public secondary school. In a recent brief, the group proposed adding a vocational wing to the school to make it a composite institution offering all forms of instruction in grade 9 through 13. The ratepayers have circulated their brief through all levels of government, including Queen's Park and local politicians.

Now, an open discussion of the brief is scheduled for Tuesday night at 7:30 in Centennial Secondary School library in Belleville. On hand will be members of the Hastings board and representatives of the Tweed ratepayers association.

The Tweed group's argument is in favor of retaining the school in its present status, as outlined in the brief, are expected to be presented.

The board's arguments that the school is uneconomical and failing to offer the kind of education to Tweed-district students are also expected to be aired.

The meeting is open to the public.

UN Trip For One Student

A Quinte district secondary school student will journey to New York this summer on the annual Odd Fellows' United Nations Pilgrimage.

Teachers in the four city secondary schools are now selecting students to take part in the pilgrimage instead. 1,000 young people of 16 or 17 from across the United States and Canada.

The students are selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, interest in community welfare, concern in world affairs and general fitness to take part in the project.

While at the UN, the young delegates will observe the organization in action, tour the buildings, listen to explanations of the functions and agencies of the UN, eat in the delegates' dining room, and have the opportunity for interview representatives of member nations.

Belleville Lodge and Quinte Rebekah Lodge are local sponsors of the Pilgrimage. Bruce Patterson, DDGW of the Bay of Quinte District of the Odd Fellows is in charge of the local portion of the project.

Farming 'Only for the Bright Ones'

Does farming in Canada have a future?

According to J. R. Phillips, Toronto, editor of Farm and Country magazine, it does — but only if there are marked changes in the present operation to take advantage of modern day technology.

Mr. Phillips feels that the number of farmers should be drastically reduced with only the brightest and best young people remaining in farming.

The Farm and Country editor was one of several keynote speakers heard at Friday's closing session of the Quinte Farm Conference which featured talks on challenges in agriculture.

Topics under discussion ranged from the future of farming to the changing patterns of farm ownership and whether farmers should own or rent the machinery used on their farms.

Mr. Phillips noted the changes which mechanization, fertilizers and chemicals had caused in farming but suggested they were only m i n o r compared to what would happen as a result of the genetic-nutrition revolution.

This revolution had already speeded up broiler and hog production and it was only a matter of time before the same techniques would be used in cattle raising.

Canada was no longer a wheat exporting nation and with granaries and elevators bulging with grain, Mr. Phillips said 10 million prairie acres would have to be taken out of production.

He noted that the 1969 farm income report said, that 36,000 full time and 6,000 part time farmers could supply all present markets, including those overseas.

Currently there were 100,000 "farmers" and the speaker said the government should embark on a vast retraining program to fit many of them for alternate employment.

He called for a land use planning program, extensive co-ordinated program of agricultural research and increasing self reliance for farmers, many of whom now depend too much on subsidies.

Mr. Phillips said only farmers who could create a "reasonable" living in agriculture should remain in farming. By this he meant $2 per hour for labor, 8½ per cent on investment and up to $2,000 per year for management.

"There is nothing unreasonable or outrageous about these levels," he said. "They're exceeded by many small businesses with similar investments."

Current net farm returns would be greeted with scorn by most members of industrial unions.

Douglas Tipper, Hastings county agricultural representative, discussed the changing farm ownership patterns and said that renting would continue on an ever increasing scale.

One of the reasons for this was the question of limited capital and high interest rates which were seriously prohibiting many young people getting started on an ownership plan.

Robert Hunter, Brooklin area farmer, outlined why he preferred renting to ownership.

"I can't afford to buy the land I work," he said. "If I could I'd retire to another business."

Also, he said, from a purely business, no speculation, no inflation point of view, it was cheaper to rent than to own farm land, and most important, ownership carried with it too many problems.

He said that a rental of $10 per acre for farm land was common, but the distance from the home farm had a big bearing on the profit potential.

During the afternoon session custom hiring of machinery was discussed by Jim Alexander of Hillier.

He said it all boiled down to a matter of economics and said that in his case his farming operation was too small to warrant owning expensive machinery.

Leasing and share agreements for farm machinery were discussed by Gordon Tobey, agricultural engineer from Brighton. He said used machinery, imported tractors, renting and leasing agreements and share agreements were ways to save money when acquiring farm machinery.

New livestock enterprises allowing specialization and intensification, and dairy replacement rearing, were discussed by Barry Kowalchuk Brighton dairy specialist.

The final speaker of the day was Strathroy area farmer John R. Stewart who talked on the philosophy of farming.

He said the family f a r m "would be with us for a long time," largely because of the young people that are coming back to the land.

"At one time they said any fool could farm — bright kids should get an education and get out. Today the picture has changed."

"A strong back is no longer enough — although it does help. Initiative, intelligence and courage are the prime requirements that the operator of a family farm must h a v e ."

Farmers, he said, are primarily management, not labor and as such they should accept the responsibility of their own management.

Tile and fertilizer put more bread on the table than layful the blame on God and the government, he said.

Wooliams Speaker At Chamber Dinner

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

DISTRICT I.A.

A meeting of the Belleville and District Cub and Scout Leaders' Auxiliaries was held on Thur., Jan. 15. Mrs. Bette Fort, president, convened to introduced Mr. John Dodge, Assistant District Commissioner for Scouts, as the guest speaker.

Mr. Dodge outlined the aims of the new scout program, known as Scouting '69. This program is for 11-16 year-old boys. The essential element is that the boys have a major share in planning the troop program. All activities a boy - chosen and the program is never to be rigid.

The scouter, previously known as the scoutmaster does not disappear, but operates in a democratic fashion allowing the scouts to participate in making the decisions which affect them. He aims to keep the boys' needs more important than the program.

With the old program, the boys had to follow through it step-by-step to earn badges received. 'Scouting '69 allows the boys to pick the badges they wish to earn according to their interests. No previous cubbing experience is necessary to join a Scout troop.

Mr. Dodge, during the question period that followed, stressed that a lack of leadership is impeding the Scouting program.

The next meeting will be held at Bridge St. United Church on March 19 at 8 p.m.

STIRLING — On Monday evening Jan., 13, Rev. M. J. Cowell, president of the district scout association, presented Joe Irish of Stirling with a 20 year service pin. Joe has served as cub leader, scout leader and district scout leader. He now holds the position of district commissioner.

Nigeria

It is encouraging to note the report of an international observer team in Nigeria indicating no evidence or genocide in newly-liberated areas following the Biafran surrender.

The report however makes a telling point when it says that the worst "atrocity" seen in the former civil war zone were signs of malnutrition among some children near Owerri. But malnutrition is one thing — what about the outright starvation which apparently faces thousands of children and adults in what formerly was Biafra?

Now that the ostentatious surrender ceremony is over — surely one of the strangest in history, with victors and vanquished apparently all friends together — the task of rehabilitation should be tackled without delay.

A Denver Post cartoon meanwhile has captured the tragedy that remains despite the cessation of hostilities. A starving child is seen holding up two fingers in the contemporary "peace" sign, under the feet of marching soldiers; and a small figure in the corner, representing the Red Cross, is saying: "Never can see the real people for all the generals."

Is It Necessary?

"Defoliate" is a word we associate with the war in Vietnam. Another with sinister connotations is the word "strip," meaning strips between borders; in Eastern Europe this can mean no-man's land planted with mines and other booby traps.

The United States is planning to defoliate a 30-foot strip along the border with Quebec. The reason given (which State representative John Alden of Vermont with some justification describes as 'folly') is that it is necessary to establish jurisdiction in border disputes and plane crashes.

The strip plan is being undertaken by the U.S. government boundary commission and will cut across a number of Vermont towns. Calling it "totally unnecessary," a waste of valuable timber and an "eyesore to a beautiful wilderness area, Mr. Alden is seeking support from the communities involved.

Those on the Quebec side, not to mention the Government in Ottawa, should give their backing also. If the border has got along without such a strip all these years, why should it be necessary now?

Crime 'Down Under'

The fact that New Zealand, one of the smallest of the 11 Asian and Pacific area nations on Vice-President Spiro Agnew's tour produced the biggest anti-American and anti-war demonstration is one of the growing ironies of life in that country.

With a population of under 3,000,000 and far from the rowdy university campuses of this continent, Britain and Europe, New Zealand thus far has been spared the inconvenience of student dissent. That is not to say the country is outside the realm of international affairs, whether social or political. Far from it — in fact New Zealand has been a pioneer in many spheres of social legislation, and its enlightened approach to the problem of crime has attracted attention overseas. Along with Australia it has troops in Vietnam.

Unfortunately, crime is now on the increase — including crimes of violence, juvenile delinquency and drug addiction, and the government is under pressure to impose stiffer penalties to discourage them. It is claimed New Zealand's "soft" policies in this regard are attracting criminals from neighboring Australia and from Britain.

Where the young people are concerned, a current joke among Commonwealth parties is to just showing up in a polite and unobtrusive manner to enjoy an evening at someone else's expense, but rather gangs of hoodlums touring the suburbs, moving into homes where parties are being held and then literally wrecking the place. It has become such a problem that the fathers of young people holding parties mount vigilante patrols outside.

The demonstration against Mr. Agnew in Auckland may not be so strange when it is realized this is New Zealand's largest city, with a population of more than half-a-million. Nevertheless the 500 who turned out seem a far cry from Rudyard Kipling's gentle appraisal of the Auckland of half-a-century or more ago: "last, loveliest, loneliest, exquisite and spar." A far cry too from the ominous increase in crime in New Zealand as a whole.

West Wary of Kremlin Gesture

Soviets: Propaganda and A Yen for the Status Quo

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Russia's latest gesture toward the West in the cold war may be little more than rhetoric.

The Russians made a big splash, in an unusual press conference at Moscow Tuesday, of showing a "favorable attitude" to United States participation in their proposed "European security conference." By inference, the same attitude extends to Canada.

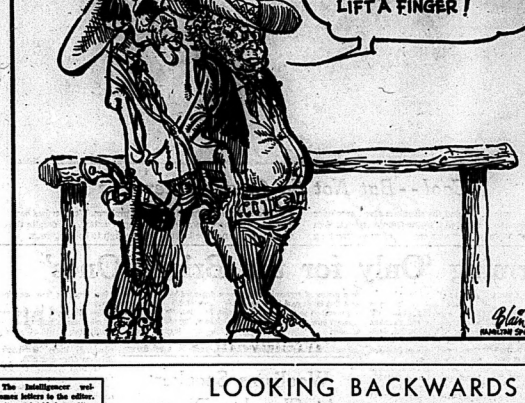
Up to now, Russia had not been saying publicly that it would accept the transatlantic allies of NATO into the suggested security conference. But word to this effect went out through diplomatic channels long ago, so there's really nothing new from Moscow on that subject.

What is more important is that the Russians do not seem to be showing elasticity on any point considered important by the NATO countries as spring boards for meaningful talks.

For one thing, if Western observers read the cryptic Moscow pronouncements correctly, they seem to mean that Russia has excluded the touchy Berlin situation from its shopping list.

Also, there is no reference to a "modus vivendi"—roughly translated as a temporary accommodation—between Communist East Germany and west Germany. NATO wants this down for discussion either in advance of or at such a conference.

Perhaps most conclusively, Russia omits to mention the issue that NATO considers basic to a European security meeting — that it should be preceded by at least a Communist genuflection in the direction of the West Alliance's long-standing principle of balanced reduction of forces as between East and West.



As of now, the Russian items for a conference agenda seem to remain at: (1) a declaration of renunciation of force for the settlement of disputes, and (2) talks on exchanges of trade and technology and that's all.

The Western view is that a declaration of renouncing the use of force, without some prior indication of a reduction in armaments, is just talk. The West is open to trade-technology discussions, but they are not regarded as coming much in the way of security at this stage.

In view of the Communists' evident chilliness toward changing the international status of Berlin and the present East German-West German situation, considerable doubt surrounds West German Chancellor Willy Brandt's move Wednesday in suggesting the opening of negotiations with East Germany based on the renunciation of the use of force.

Brandt's allies are happy enough to let his left-wing government go ahead, if it can do with the Communists in bilateral talks, though they have not many hopes this will help greatly in clearing the decks for a general conference.

The Western feeling is that the Communists, in the absence of some more tangible than words, are out to make propaganda and will end up by freezing the European status quo.

"Defoliate" is a word we associate with the war in Vietnam. Another with sinister connotations is the word "strip," meaning strips between borders; in Eastern Europe this can mean no-man's land planted with mines and other booby traps.

The United States is planning to defoliate a 30-foot strip along the border with Quebec. The reason given (which State representative John Alden of Vermont with some justification describes as 'folly') is that it is necessary to establish jurisdiction in border disputes and plane crashes.

The strip plan is being undertaken by the U.S. government boundary commission and will cut across a number of Vermont towns. Calling it "totally unnecessary," a waste of valuable timber and an "eyesore to a beautiful wilderness area, Mr. Alden is seeking support from the communities involved.

Those on the Quebec side, not to mention the Government in Ottawa, should give their backing also. If the border has got along without such a strip all these years, why should it be necessary now?

Crime 'Down Under'

The fact that New Zealand, one of the smallest of the 11 Asian and Pacific area nations on Vice-President Spiro Agnew's tour produced the biggest anti-American and anti-war demonstration is one of the growing ironies of life in that country.

With a population of under 3,000,000 and far from the rowdy university campuses of this continent, Britain and Europe, New Zealand thus far has been spared the inconvenience of student dissent. That is not to say the country is outside the realm of international affairs, whether social or political. Far from it — in fact New Zealand has been a pioneer in many spheres of social legislation, and its enlightened approach to the problem of crime has attracted attention overseas. Along with Australia it has troops in Vietnam.

Unfortunately, crime is now on the increase — including crimes of violence, juvenile delinquency and drug addiction, and the government is under pressure to impose stiffer penalties to discourage them. It is claimed New Zealand's "soft" policies in this regard are attracting criminals from neighboring Australia and from Britain.

Where the young people are concerned, a current joke among Commonwealth parties is to just showing up in a polite and unobtrusive manner to enjoy an evening at someone else's expense, but rather gangs of hoodlums touring the suburbs, moving into homes where parties are being held and then literally wrecking the place. It has become such a problem that the fathers of young people holding parties mount vigilante patrols outside.

The demonstration against Mr. Agnew in Auckland may not be so strange when it is realized this is New Zealand's largest city, with a population of more than half-a-million. Nevertheless the 500 who turned out seem a far cry from Rudyard Kipling's gentle appraisal of the Auckland of half-a-century or more ago: "last, loveliest, loneliest, exquisite and spar." A far cry too from the ominous increase in crime in New Zealand as a whole.

Dial-A-Poem Service

Brantford Expositor

The system Bell invented will toll for poets this month in Wales, where subscribers to a dial-a-poem telephone service will be able to hear poets reading their works.

It remains to be seen how popular this diversification of the phone system turns out. Poetry is often regarded as the antithesis of science, but both are concerned with communication. Bell made frequent use of poetry in establishing the credibility of his invention, quoting on several occasions lines from Shakespeare over the line. A favorite of his was Hamlet's soliloquy, "To be or not to be."

No doubt bad as well as good verse will be spoken over the Welsh phone system, but in this respect the metre readings will be no worse than much of the idle chatter that now dominates phone conversations.

Language of Diplomacy

Australia Gets More Immigrants

Ottawa Journal

Australia, a country of 13,00 0,000 people, is welcoming immigrants at the rate of 175,000 a year and aims at 200,000.

Canada, with 21,000,000 people, welcomed about 165,000 immigrants in 1969, a drop of 10 per cent from 1968.

On the basis of immigrants obtained in relation to population, Australia is moving forward almost twice as fast as Canada.

Australia is, and has been, a keen competitor for immigrants. It goes so far as giving a degree of assisted passage a second time to people who have arrived once as immigrants and returned home.

Immigration Minister MacEachen said last month that the decline in European interest in emigrating to Canada was a shown by a 30 per cent fall in applications. He said Canada was to try harder to attract suitable people by increased promotional activity and easier assisted passage loans.

The Canadian effort will be remarkably effective if it matches Australian achievement in, for example, Britain and Ireland. From these countries, Australia obtained 81,000 i m migrants in the fiscal year ending June, 1969, while the Canadian share will be about 32,000 for 1969.

Australian policy, says Geoffrey Tebbutt in the Manchester Guardian, reflects the consciousness that Australia may now need immigrants more than emigrants need Australia.

Canadian policy would benefit from similar recognition that the skilled and educated people we need have to be shown why it would be to their benefit to move.

Agnew's 11-Nation Tour Draws Mixed Response

By RAY DICK

WASHINGTON (CP) — If Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew can inflame and shock millions of Americans with his quick-draw remarks from the hip, what would he do to billions of sensitive Asians on an 11-nation tour?

That was the question only a few weeks ago when Agnew started his trip to retain the Nixon doctrine in East Asia and the Pacific.

With one stop left on his tour, in Honolulu before returning to Washington Monday, it appears Agnew has stuck to the script and kept his feet out of his mouth and off Muslim tables.

This will probably come as a surprise to some of his ardent supporters and even to some of his enemies who expected Agnew to "look it to the Asians" as he did to the hipsies and the news media at home.

There may have been some qualms among state department officials when President Nixon chose Agnew as his roving envoy to explain a controversial doctrine in one of this country's most sensitive areas.

When Agnew and his entourage swept in to Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, last week, the American embassy there handed out a list of "special rules of courtesy to be observed with Muslims." The don'ts included: "Never place one's foot or feet on a table or desk when talking to guests."

The vice-president has kept his feet firmly planted throughout his tour, and the consensus among observers accompanying him is that he has come on strong without seriously rocking the boat.

He didn't even draw much opposition from radical students whom he referred to at home as an "effete corps of impudent snobs."

The largest anti-American demonstration was in Auckland, N.Z., Thursday where eight of 500 chanting demonstrators were arrested. Much smaller demonstrations occurred in Australia, Afghanistan, the Philippines and Nepal.

As for his main purpose of explaining the Nixon doctrine, foreign editorial comments have ranged from "timid" to a responsive note" to "empty and perfunctory."

ROBERT BOURASSA and his wife receive cheers from their supporters as delegates to the Quebec Liberal convention Saturday night await results of the first and only ballot, which elected Mr. Bourassa provincial party leader. (CP Photo)

Quebec Liberal Values Canada by Its Economy

QUEBEC (CP) — The new leader of Quebec's Liberal party is a talented young Quebecois who measures the value of Canada with the slide rule of an economist.

Robert Bourassa, at 36 the youngest man to lead the provincial Liberals, was elected Saturday on a campaign to establish "the prosperous society."

He hurdled the constitutional question to run his race with one dominant theme—the No. 1 priority in Quebec is the need to create new jobs.

The successor to former premier Jean Lesage is a frail-looking lawyer, a part-time lecturer of economics who was elected to the legislature in 1966.

He has no cabinet experience. Since 1966 he has been the Opposition Liberal party's financial critic in the legislature, where he has a reputation as "a nice, shy guy."

* * *

Bourassa's Wife Rich

QUEBEC (CP) — Andree Bourassa, wife of the new leader of Quebec's Liberal party, is a bright, brown-eyed blonde whose father was one of the founders of a multi-million-dollar shipbuilding industry.

She met her husband Robert in 1956 when he was campaigning.

Being the wife of a politician is easy she says.

But politics is not without its disadvantages. In the campaign Mr. Bourassa was attacked as the candidate of big business, largely because of his marriage to a millionaire heiress in the Simard shipbuilding family.

Mrs. Bourassa's father was Edouard Simard, one of four Simard brothers who founded a shipbuilding business that has now become Marine Industries Ltd. of Sorel, Que.

She says: "What annoys me is that this kind of thing isn't at the ideological level, but at the personal level."

But he has an excellent university background, with blue-ribbon diplomas from Oxford and Harvard and brief experience as a technocrat at Ottawa and Quebec City.

In a survey conducted last September by the Montreal Star there was so little interest indicated for him that the results could not even be expressed in percentage points.

But since then he has grown into a politician popular enough to win a leadership convention on one ballot, demolishing former justice minister Claude Wagner.

Mr. Bourassa came forward fast. His leadership qualities were drummed to the public by a money's-no-problem publicity campaign.

The fresh figure in Quebec politics talked about bread-and-butter problems. He made the call for new jobs his political trademark in a province of chronic unemployment.

But Mr. Bourassa is not all dollars-and-cents. He argued that, without a solid economy, Quebec's French-language culture could not develop.

Like so many Quebecers, he is nationalist, harboring the desire to change his society by making it more French. He says French should be the language of work in the province.

There is nothing sentimental in Mr. Bourassa's views about Canada.

During the convention he said "Ottawa is the capital of my country," but he also said there are "tens and hundreds of millions of dollars" to be had in the federal fiscal coffers.

Mr. Bourassa rejects separatism as "one step too much, a premature movement." He endorses federalism as "the most powerful lever Quebec has to achieve its cultural aspirations."

Aid Is Studied

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The problem of fair administration of foreign aid proved as frustrating to panelists at a conference on world poverty Saturday as it does to countries trying to make ends meet.

Harold Graves, associate director of development services for the World Bank, told the conference, held at University of Windsor, that foreign aid programs from high-income countries are "not measurably improving."

Churches Plan Help for Poor

OTTAWA (CP) — Major Christian churches in Canada will ask their flocks to put the emphasis on poverty this Lent.

A blue-style tabloid, prepared by an inter-faith team, says that "words are no longer enough."

It suggests that Christians:

Eat "one supper meals"—light soup, crackers and rice—before Lenten services "not to raise money but to experience hunger."

Start out with $5 on a Friday and survive until Monday, describing the experience from the pulpit or in reports.

To give emphasis to the message, it quotes the rock musical Hair. Black Panther Eldridge Cleaver, the Economic Council of Canada, St. Luke, and an outraged voice at last year's Christian Conference on poverty.

"Damn your charity" the voice cried. "Give us justice."

Lent, which lasts six weeks, begins Feb. 11.

While the tabloid asserts that "words won't work anymore," an accompanying news release says that "sometimes, sometimes, they help people to act."

The tabloid is described as an educational brochure designed to make Christians aware of the change demanded of them by the fact of poverty.

The nameless tabloid is a one-shot issue that will be distributed to participating churches. The churches involved were not named.

Ontario Is Planning Credit Union Controls

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government plans to introduce legislation to bring the province's 1,600 credit unions under the same controls as chartered banks and trust companies, says Leslie Rowntree, minister of finance and commercial affairs.

In a weekend interview, Mr. Rowntree said his department is still working on the Credit Unions Act but said it will likely follow recommendations made last month by the select committee on company law.

Parliament Today 'Irrelevant' -- MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament as it is now becomes "largely irrelevant" and the presidential system "is sneaking up on us," Mr. Givens, a former mayor of Toronto said of the presidential system.

"There are people in the prime minister's office, in the Privy Council office, and in the office of the National Liberal Federation who have no mandate . . . but who are laying down policy."

Mr. Givens said this makes MPs "about as useless as an udder on a bull."

He said he isn't opposed to a presidential system — "the other system is too slow" — but if it is adopted, the checks and balances should be too.

SIDNEY SOUTH WI

The January meeting of the Sidney South WI was held in the auditorium of Wallbridge United Church with 20 members and 10 visitors present. President, Mrs. J. J. Tweally conducted the various items of business and reminded the members of the upcoming Summary Day for the short course "Vegetables with a flair".

A donation was also sent to MacDonald Institute in Guelph.

The program was then turned over to Mrs. H. Regenbourg who invited the women present to come forward and look over the variety of items which had been brought for the auction sale which followed. The members then bid on the many items which ranged from doll clothes, hats and jewelry to homemade pickles, tarts and buns. The auction proved to be not only fun but profitable as well with a final profit of $40.15.

The meeting was then closed after which lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. H. Regenbourg and her assistants, Mrs. E. Casperus, Mrs. H. De Baer and Mrs. J. Best.

Points for Parents

By MARY BEYBON

Hundreds of children are trapped in unused or abandoned refrigerators or freezers in basements or garages every year. Most of the victims are 3 to 4 years old and are innocently playing house or hide-and-seek.

It takes only 10 to 15 minutes for a child to suffocate in an airtight refrigerator or freezer. It takes only three or four minutes to remove the door.

Always remove the door from an old refrigerator even if you don't intend to discard the unit and it will be out of use only a short time. Also teach young children about the danger of entrapment in such sealed areas.

New Cruisewear Trends Forerunners for Summer

As the winter exodus South begins, swimwear makes its first appearance. Cruisewear is of special interest, not only because it interprets present fashion trends, but because it offers a capsule horoscope for the season to come.

Especially indicative in cruisewear '70 is the new ease and flexibility of fashion. Gone are the rigid constructed looks of the past. In their place are the "no bra" looks and the smoother, softer lines provided by lighter weight fabrics.

Fabrics give the special story in swim and cruisewear '70. Jerseys of "Antron" nylon lend a clinging unconstructed look, or with cire smoothness, the sexy and popular "wet look". Lace or crochet-type fabrics of nylon and "Lycra" spandex fibre inspire a see-thru' effect. A stretch velour fabric of nylon brings the softness of a velvet pile to both water and poolside. And adding a new dimension of luxuriousness, "Qiana" nylon, the silk-like fibre with easy of care, debuts in a Canadian swimwear collection.

Along with the see-thru' fabrics, plunge necklines interpret the ultra bare theme of the season. Cleverly laced closures, cutaway sides or wrap-around belts inspire similar illusions. Adding the important element of flexibility are are ingenious matching cover-ups — perforated see-thru' tops, pants, bloomers, scarves and engaging midi length coats all appear in this category — which reveal or conceal according to one's own inclination.

As with the garments themselves, restrictions in color are few. However, the earthy tones of brown, black and white are surely dominant while greens and purples are the popular color accents. Pastel prints, in this year's collection reminiscent of cool water tones, are also taking happily to the Southern sun to return to poolside next summer.

Church Groups

ST. ANDREW'S GUILD

FOXBORO — The January meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Guild and WMS was held at the home of Mrs. George McGeon with a fair attendance. Miss Vera Watt, the Guild president, opened the meeting with a New Year's poem. Sick and hospital calls and cards were noted. Business and reports followed. A memo contest was conducted with Mrs. Buskard the winner. Mrs. Buskard joined the women for the February meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Small WI Groups Perform Services

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) — "Women today face a challenge: to help create goodwill and work toward a better society and future," Mary Lou Haugan, president of the local branch of the Alberta Women's Institute, said recently. "Our small WI groups might be likened to the little apples that create support for our big apples, releasing them for more extensive service."

Quebec Separation Inevitable: Canadian Actress

HOLLYWOOD (Reuters) — Film star Genevieve Bujold, a French-Canadian married to an English-Canadian, thinks secession of her native Quebec from Canada is inevitable. But happily, her political beliefs have not hurt her marriage.

"My husband backs the French-Canadians fully—100 per cent—more than I do," she says. "He knows more, is more aware and more concerned and involved."

Miss Bujold's husband, Paul Almond, is a Canadian film producer and writer. He produced her next film, The Act of the Heart, soon to be released, which she calls a film about many aspects of love.

Her previous role was as Anne Boleyn in Anne of the Thousand Days, a performance columnists here think will win her an Academy Award nomination. One local critic described her, as a "young Katherine Hepburn."

Miss Bujold says that being caught up in her film career, which began brilliantly with a small part in the Spanish civil war film La Guerre est Finie, and travelling with her husband she has never had time to be politically committed.

But each return to her home city of Montreal makes it more obvious to her that separation is inevitable, she says.

She says English-Canadians think Prime Minister Trudeau is "fantastic."

"But the French-Canadians don't. They think he is sold to the English.

"I should add that I have nothing against him personally. I think he is a wonderful man. But that's the way the French-Canadians think.

"You have to be in it to realize the dimensions of what is going on."

Miss Bujold stresses that she is a long way from being a political activist. "Don't make me sound a political bigot," she says. Nevertheless, in her quietness and air of conviction, her statements take on a little of the suffragette fervour which was a vital part of her portrayal of Anne Boleyn.

"It is impossible not to be involved because it is going on all around you." Miss Bujold says. "My husband just runs me to tell me that one of our friends, a very kind man, is in jail because he was demonstrating against the fact that he is not allowed to demonstrate.

"You can feel the electricity in the air as soon as you arrive at Dorval (Montreal) airport.

"My heart is with them 100 per cent. Everybody wants it now. It's not just something the intellectuals and hotheads are supporting. My father is a bus driver and all his colleagues are very pro 'it.'"

She adds: "The price of separation could be quite high, but even the ones who aren't aware of what the price is want to separate.

"The intelligent English-Canadians are very worried, because if ever Quebec should separate it would be quite a loss.

"And it will separate. The writing is on the wall and that's it."

A spell between her last big role as Anne and her next acting project, not yet decided, possibly gave Miss Bujold the time to let off steam on politics.

She made it clear that she immerses herself entirely in a role, but once the assignment is ended that character is dead for her.

She spent three days getting the role previous to Anne out of her system, then went to London to read everything she could get her hands on about Anne Boleyn and Henry VIII.

"Anne was a girl full of integrity, determination and courage. She loved Henry and for that I 'find' her a lucky woman. She loved one man in her life, loved him more than she loved her. She was an intelligent, clever girl."

Of the film's Henry VIII, Richard Burton, she says: "It was great fun working with Burton. He is a lovely man, intelligent, witty. A great sense of humor.

"He was a tremendous partner to send the ball back. It was like a great tennis game. We liked each other. We understood each other and it worked."

She says she does not want to try another historical role straight away. "I like to try all types of things. I wouldn't do another historical film now. But whether it's historical or modern the important thing is to see the soul of the character."

Summing up on politics, she does not rule out that in the future she might become a political activist for Quebec — something she says she isn't now.

"It's about time I abandoned myself to something, and if this forces me to do it I will be very grateful to them all.

"My heart is with them fully."

SECESSION IS INEVITABLE — Genevieve Bujold, the French-Canadian actress sometimes described as a "young Katherine Hepburn," thinks Quebec secession from Canada is inevitable. On each return to Montreal, her home city, it is more obvious, she says. "You can feel the electricity in the air." (CP Photo)

Syllabus Now Available

STIRLING — The official syllabus of the 20th annual Stirling Festival of Sacred Praise is now available.

Again this year the festival will be held under the auspices of St. Paul's United Church and the Stirling Festival committee on May 4, 5, 6. Entries should be forwarded to Mrs. Max Maguire of Stirling by March 14.

The president, Mrs. Carl Potter and her committee are making a special effort to have this festival appeal to all others. Copies of the syllabus will be mailed on request.

The competition covers senior and junior church choirs, vocal groups and solos for boys and girls; also school choirs. In the music, the list includes hymn playing, piano solos and duets. There are also 11 classes of organ music. The scripture covers choral Bible reading and Bible memory.

Trophies, shields and certificates will be awarded. In music festivals, the object is not to gain a prize but to pace one another on the road to excellence.

This is a non-profit organization and contributions in furthering this event will be welcomed.

Unfounded Suspicions Cause Ulcers

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My husband drinks. I admit all this, this is how it started. He has his good days and we have just been married for four months.

This is his second big battle and he has developed an ulcer. But I don't know what to do. He says this time that I am unfaithful. He has threatened to leave me if I am not pulling for this ulcer.

Before I met him I never even liked the dates I went with. Please tell me how to show my husband I love him and am faithful to him. — A Troubled and Worried Person.

Dear Troubled: Since this suspicion is completely baseless, I wonder if your husband's trouble is within himself. A man may incline to this suspicion when he is convicted of his own failure to be attractive.

Show affection, be thoughtful, declare your love, and let it go at that. If he persists with baseless accusations, get him to a counsellor, doctor, minister, or psychiatrist. He needs help.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a high school student. In choosing a career I have been considering being a secretary. However, I have heard that a secretary does not earn a very large salary. Could you inform me as to what an inexperienced high school or vocational school secretary's salary would be?

Dear Undecided: Inexperienced? Not as much as she'll be after she gets a little more of it — and that's about as far as I can go from here, Schedules of pay differ with the size of school, specific responsibilities, and a few other important things like ay personnel.

You have been looking at the one kind of work which is vitals where you are. And if the secretary you see is the right one for the job, what you see looks good to you.

Might well be right for you.

A Pirate Cruise?

Perhaps not, but at least the gal in this swimsuit of Du Pont nylon by Beatrice Pines, Montreal, can enjoy both beach combing and water activities in the cover-up comfort offered by the season's longer-leg look. The suit, although the "unisex" influence in both top and "cropped jean" swim pants, is completed by a fashionable wide, white plastic belt.

Former Patients Plan Visits

TORONTO (CP) — About 36 women who have all had breast cancer are planning a hospital visiting program to give encouragement and help to women undergoing the trauma of mastectomy—the surgical removal of a breast.

The women, who want to use their own experience to help other mastectomy patients, will only visit at the request of an attending surgeon.

"I had a mastectomy 7½ years ago and I know how I felt then," said Phyllis Burgess, a member of the group.

"I was terribly worried about my appearance, to an abnormal degree. And I was surprised that people found it difficult to talk to me about my problems. They sort of ignored the whole thing as if it would all go away if we didn't talk about it. I wanted to talk about it, but people wouldn't bring it up."

The women, who gathered Monday at the Canadian Cancer Society headquarters, were told by Dr. Marjorie Davis, chief of surgery at Women's College Hospital, that a visitor can often be a sounding board for a patient who wants to talk. But only as long as she is intuitive enough to say the right thing at the right time.

Ann Landers

Complexes May Result From Peculiar Names

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A while back you printed a letter from a reader who said it was cruel of parents to saddle their children with peculiar first names. You thought it was "different" or "amusing." In your reply, you mentioned Miss Inez Hogg and every third person in Texas wrote to say they have her or were related to her.

I have just read an article in a magazine that says a capricious selection of names can seriously hamper a child's chances for happiness. One young fellow had a difficult time all through school because no one believed his name was Tupelitis Jones. When he tried to enlist in the Navy he encountered the same doubts. Further investigation revealed that Tupelitis had three brothers — Meningitis, Appendicitis and Peritonitis.

A psychologist pointed out that children sometimes develop lifelong complexes because of such names. An outstanding example was a shy, introverted young woman whose moniker was Alpha Omega. When asked about her name she hesitatingly explained, "Mother didn't want me. She wished everyone to know I was her first and hopefully her last."

Is it any wonder that among the 20,000 people a year petition the U.S. courts to undo the damage done to them by their parents? I hope you print this letter for the benefit of Moms and Pops who are having a hard time every crie at baby-naming time. — PLAIN JANE AND GLAD OF IT.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR JANE: Apparently Shakespeare was wrong. There's plenty in a name.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two years ago a cousin of whom I have always been fond, took up with a woman who can't compare with his wife. No one could understand it. Five months ago his lovely wife gave him a divorce. Everyone assumed he would marry the other woman at the first legal moment. He has not done so. They still attended separate apartments but they go everywhere together and are invited to some highly respectable places as a couple. I consider the relationship immoral and have told him so. He offers no defence.

Please tell me the correct way to think about this offensive relationship. My opinion is no longer "chesting" since he is not a married man. I need your objective viewpoint.—VAN COUVER.

DEAR VAN: Of course it is and when people we admire disappoint us, but what your cousin does is his business.

I have no idea what his marriage was like. And neither do you. Now that he is unmarried, his relationship with the "other woman" is kosher. If you don't like her, don't see her. Say him alone.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A relative has taken up painting as a hobby. She has just presented me with an enormous portrait of myself. It is an abstract monstrosity in the Picasso style — one brown eye and one blue eye, a grossly exaggerated nose and blue hair. It looks like a cartoon than a painting. My husband children couldn't stop laughing when they saw it. To make matters worse, this relative went to considerable expense to have the thing framed so, of course, we are expected to hang it.

We've had the picture three weeks and I've just about run out of excuses. The artist has been here several times and keeps asking about the portrait. How can I get out of hanging it — gracefully? — HARPOONED.

DEAR HARP: You can't, so be a sport and hang the goldern thing. It should be a great conversation piece. After a couple of months move it to another room and then to the attic.

Rolled Omelettes

By MARY MOORE

Fifteen years ago in Paris we were hunting for a restaurant that Parisian patronize — not one where tourists are swarming. We decided to be independent and walked away from the main thoroughfares. On a tiny little side street we found an open-fronted restaurant and watched a bearded customer eating a steaming hot omelette. Full of curiosity we went in and ordered the same — in French no less — for there is no English equivalent for the word omelette.

I left my chair and watched the chef prepare ours one by one. With this visual lesson I have become an omelette roller. Who knows? It hard times strike maybe I could be an omelette roller in a restaurant window.

ROLLED OMELETTES

(2 variations - 2 servings)

6 large eggs
¼ cup warm water (or tomato juice liquid — see below)
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
¼ tsp. Angostura Bitters (optional)
½ tsp. salt
1-16 tsp. garlic salt
1 tbsp. chopped parsley or bottled flakes
1 tsp. chopped chives, bottled or fresh (or chopped green onion)
2 tbsp. butter

NOTE: You must have an omelette pan for this. Mine is heavy aluminum 8¼" diameter at the top, sloping in a curve to a flat bottom 5½" diameter. It is 1" deep. This is the same as used by my Parisian chef teacher. You can buy the above size and shape in lighter aluminum, Teflon lined, in Canada.

Break eggs into a bowl and add all remaining ingredients except butter and beat with rotary beater to mix until just a little bit foamy. Melt 1 tbsp. butter in omelette pan over high heat until bubbly and rich gold — tipping pan over high heat to coat sides and bottom. At once add 2-3 cup of omelette mixture and as soon it becomes wrinkly at edges. Now with rubber spatula loosen mixture at handle side and fold a little and make surplus liquid flow to uncovered side. Keep loosening and tipping and folding still surplus liquid is barely set then coax the total mass to roll to far edge and tip out on prebeated plate. Serve at once with French bread or rolls or hot biscuits. Repeat, making two more individual omelettes.

VARIATIONS: 1) Mushroom: Use ½ cup liquid from canned mushroom pieces and 2 stems and just before you make your final fold in roll, add a single line of heated canned mushrooms to each omelette as it is being finished off. 2) Cheese: When omelette is half rolled sprinkle unrolled surface with old Cheddar or Gouda cheese adn finish roll.

Ballet Here to Highlight Innovations

Although quite young in comparison to its worldwide counterparts, the National Ballet of Canada has in the past 18 years gained international renown for its accomplishments in the field of the dance both in the traditional form and in the modern idiom.

Since its inception in 1951 by Celia Franca, who to this day remains its artistic director, the national Ballet has performed in coast to coast many times, also making extensive tours of the United States and Europe. In addition to rave reviews from the press, it has now become a part of the cultural life of Canada, bringing enjoyment to thousands who have seen its lavish productions enhanced by high standards of excellence from principals and corps de ballet alike.

Belleville has been fortunate in having the National Ballet visit here for many years with their annual one evening performance in this city. This coming Wednesday, for the first time, the ballet will be introduced in the first of two productions to be given here, namely, a rousing combination by Celia Franca in "Ballet in Action" with Nadia Potts, Victoria Bertram, Earl Kraul and Murray Kilgour as principal dancers supported by Ted Tchebotarev and Sir William Walton's masterpiece the Pas de Deux from The Bluebird and Tango from Facade.

Another feature this year will be The Lesson by Eugene Ionesco with Celia Franca in the principal role. Ballet Divertissements by Celia Franca, Peter Wyman and Brian Macdonald will be performed by the full company of 60 dancers.

Tickets are available at Thomas Cigar Store in Belleville and Mark Tripp in Trenton.

Belleville Minor Hockey Teams Retain Winning Ways

Belleville's minor all-star hockey team continued to hot over 300 taking five out of nine weekend contests.

Sunday, the West Hill D. Quinn's Ramona league team edged Mahoney's Sunoco Novice B's 5-4. J. Brown, D. Mahoney, R. Harrison, J. Sylvia and G. Lyons scored the West Hill goals. Danny Maguire scored twice for Mahoney's with Gary Frederick and Pat Willman picking up the others.

The Towers Food City Novices stopped Kingston's second team 6-0. Randy Hutchinson hit the goal light four times in a winning cause. Ron Doornbos and Andy Lupenette were the other scorers. Goalie Bruce Hamilton recorded the shutout.

Belleville's Bantam entry, sponsored by Wilson Concrete, brought their season's record to 9-3-1 by winning two weekend contests. Saturday, they bombed Kingston 10-3, outshooting the visitors by a 39-9 margin. Chris Valentine scored five goals for Belleville. Wayne Dayton had two and Mark Crawford, Steve Mofina and Billy Rowe, one apiece. They continued their winning ways Sunday, downing Bowmanville 11-0. Valentine, Crawford, Dayton, Kevin Hayward and Bob Milton each scored twice. Mofina had a single goal, while Goalie Dan Cleland and Joe Guthrie shared the shutout.

Rollins Construction Pee Wees picked up a 6-2 win over Gananoque on Saturday. Rick Barbeau was best for Rollins, hitting for two goals. Ron McLeod and Gary Thompson completed the Belleville scoring. Against Trenton on Sunday, they came out on the short end of a 7-5 score. Barbeau scored three of the five goals with Eric Powell and Rick Calkin notching one each.

In tournament play at Aurora Saturday, the Belleville Kinsmen Bantams were edged 4-3 in the first game, they lost to Barrie 5-2. Grant Gaspen scored twice and Wally Deacon once for the Kinsmen. Against Thornhill the margin of defeat was even greater, 6-1. Deacon, Gaspen and Ackerman scored the Belleville goals.

The Blake Kerr midgets shaded off with a 3-2 victory against Cobourg Sunday. Doug Jessop had two goals and Dave Smith one for Belleville.

Triples And Takeouts

The ANAF club had a large turnout Saturday for their weekly shuffleboard and darts tournament.

High singles in darts was P. Bennett, with J. Browning as the runner-up. Winners in the doubles were H. Bogle and H. Corvais, in the first match and J. Browning and G. Christopher in the second.

D. Feeney and W. Rorabeck were the winners of the shuffleboard competition, ahead of G. Ackerman and B. Bena.

Next Saturday there will be men's darts and shuffleboard in the afternoon and mixed darts competition in the evening.

Comets Clipped

The Dukes climbed into a first place tie in the Northern Electric Hockey League, with a big boost coming from the lowly Comets.

While the Dukes were drubbing the Bruins 10-3, the Bruins moved into a third place tie by beating the Comets 4-3 at Deseronto. The loss was only their second of the year.

Ritz Rowbank had a big game for the new co - leaders as he pumped in five goals. Doug Rolls scored twice, with singles going to Charley Reynolds, Dave Brady and Peter Keating. Bill Carson scored the lone Bonker goal.

In the Bruin's upset victory, Paul Fleming led two goals to lead the scoring. Bill Goodfellow, Larry Lapoutte and Doug Rockwell added to the offence. Comet scorers were Terry Cornelissen (2), Wayne Brown and Bob Smith.

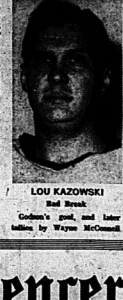
Mo-Hawks Look for Super Tuesday

By MAURICE SWITZER
(Sports Editor)

Things could have been worse for the Belleville Mo-Hawks. The team has could have hit a train, for example.

As it was, the Mo-Hawks got off comparatively light, losing 11-2 and 7-3 road games to Galt and Oshawa, little share of third place in the OHA Junior A League, and the services of defence standout Lou Kazowski for three weeks.

Coach Davey Jones, whose flu bout created a vital gap in the Mo-Hawks' weakened lineup, was in a "there'll be some changes made" frame of mind.



Not that losses to either the defending Allan Cup champions or the second-place Oshawa Oaks in their own rinks came as bolts out of the blue.

What upset Jones was a lack of rival aggressiveness that has plagued the Mo-Hawks all season.

"Bob Watson and Lorne Ferguson will definitely be starting tomorrow night against Kingston," was the coach's answer to the weekend's failings.

The addition of 12 - year pro veterans Ferguson and Watson to Jones to help avoid the type of physical pounding the Mo-Hawks took in Sunday night's 7-3 loss in Oshawa. While Dick Smith (3 goals), "Obie" Obrien (2), Charlie Cooke and Terry Cooke were making the six goals Bob Hoxie's 11 minutes in Oshawa's dressing room Pat Boston and Don Patrick were leaving Mo-Hawk forwards Jolly, wilted and handcuffed.

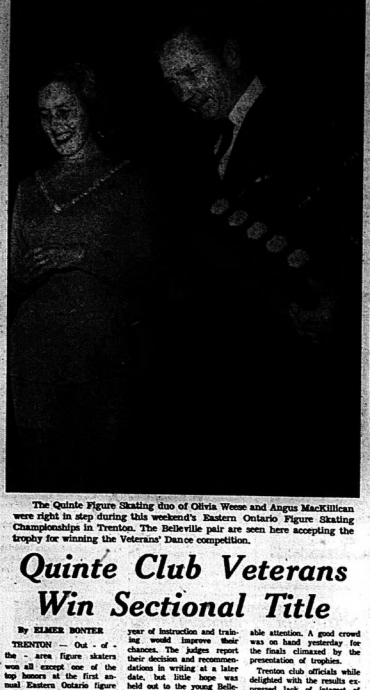
LOU KAZOWSKI
Sad Break

Godina's goal, and later tallies by Wayne McConnell and Lorin O'Connell were the only ones of the Mo-Hawks' meager 25 - shot output. Goalie Harold "Bent" Burley.

The addition of Wilson — a 20 - goal scorer in Junior A Hockey veteran — wouldn't be just Tuesday, with Lou Kazowski out and Jones still suffering a bubbling stake. Trouble in the first period of Saturday night's 11-3 loss in Galt.

The Mo-Hawks have lost all four games missed only two men by Kazowski, whose three goals and 22 assists take him into the league's lead blueline point - producer.

With Watson, 27, still nabbed fullback of the year since a week ago, the Mo-Hawks played both games with the services only two regular defencemen — Lionel Bolly and Greg Marchos.



Goals by Lorne O'Connell and Ray Johnston didn't make much of a dent in a Galt attack led by Ray Bonin's 3 goals, but trick, two each from Ron Ingram and Fern Rolsinger, and shutout by Bob Erbi. Kingston's Frontenacs and Hamilton's Red Wings are next.

The Mo-Hawks have scored a grand of streaks from their recent Evangeline lows, three from in the Galt game, with seven unanswered first-period goals.

Replacement Bob Moss stopped 20 of 26 Galt shots in the last 40 minutes and certainly didn't start in good, only his second in 30 Mo-Hawk games.

Jones left little doubt in the Mo-Hawk dressing room that absences of such wretched performances against the Acers here tomorrow night will bring roster shakeups.

The Quinte Figure Skating duo of Olivia Weese and Angus MacKillican were right in step during this weekend's Eastern Ontario Figure Skating Championships in Trenton. The Belleville pair are seen here accepting the trophy for winning the Veterans' Dance competition.

Quinte Club Veterans Win Sectional Title

By ELMER BONTER

TRENTON — Out - of - the - area figure skaters was all except one of the top honors at the first annual Eastern Ontario figure skating championships at Trenton's Community Garden over the weekend.

A Belleville entry in the junior mixed pairs was watched with particular interest by Quinte enthusiasts as one of the most likely contenders for a trip to compete in the national championships at Edmonton the end of the month.

Patricia Allore and Michael Fitzgibbon of Belleville hoped to convince the board of world - calibre judges that their Saturday night performance would pass the rigid standards required at the national level.

However, young skaters are often advised that another year of instruction and training would improve their chances. The judges report their decision and recommendations in writing at a later date, but little hope was held out to the young Belleville pair.

A Belleville couple Olivia Weese and Angus MacKillican of the Quinte Skating Club, placed first in the Veteran's Dance event Sunday.

Other members of the Quinte club to make good showings were Mary Ann Allore and Ian Hayman who finished second in the novice mixed pairs finals.

The only other local skaters to receive recognition from the judges were Kim Bennett and Denise Lemoire in the Trenton Figure Skating Club lone entries — who placed third in the junior ladies dance finals.

The first Eastern Ontario sectionals attracted considerable attention. A good crowd was on hand yesterday for the finals climaxed by the presentation of trophies.

Trenton club officials while delighted with the results expressed lack of interest of town officials including the mayor and councillors. A spokesman for the executive noted that councillor Stanley Ketcheson was the only town representative to make an appearance during the three-day competition.

The club officials also felt the town could have been more helpful in other ways. They pointed out that their request in writing to council for a sign to read "Welcome To Trenton" they intended to hang across the north end of the ice surface was never acknowledged. They called for more co-operation in the future.

Win 6-5 Thriller

Ellis Junior B's Age Coach

By ERIC EMERSON
(Staff Sports Writer)

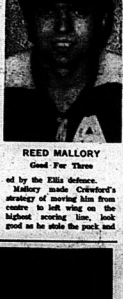
PETERBOROUGH — The Belleville Ellis Junior B team looked like the greatest aging device since oak barrels as they used a four goal third period to drop the Peterborough Don Ryes 6-5 Sunday.

According to Ellis coach Floyd Crawford, "Every one of these grey hairs have been put there by a missed scoring chance," and for two periods it looked like Crawford might come out of the game bearing a close resemblance to Rip Van Winkle as the Belleville team failed to cash in numerous chances.

In addition they let a 3 1 lead slip through their fingers in the final frame as the Don Ryes hammered in two quick goals against a club that hasn't exactly been known for its Hollywood finishes.

The printers bounced back, however putting three more goals and holding on to their slim margin of victory against six attackers in the final minute.

The win was a big step toward listing Crawford age gracefully as it moved Belleville two points ahead of the Cobourg Cougars and four up on the Trenton Golden Hawks, in the race for the final playoff spot in the Eastern Ontario Junior B League.



Reed Mallory's hat trick was the Ellis springboard to victory — goal contributions from Danny Lapoutte, Terry Meagher and Dennis McCormack.

Peterborough got two goals each from Jim Lochead and John Rutherford and one by Doug Murray.

McCormack, one of the most underrated players in the Belleville lineup, opened the scoring at 11.37 of the first period.

The home team tied it up three minutes later just as Belleville was returning to full strength, after killing off an interference penalty.

Reed Mallory gave Belleville the lead as he banged in Terry/Meagher's goalmouth pass for the only tally of the second period. Both teams missed scoring opportunities, with Ron Jary twice beating Don Rye forwards after they were left unchecked.

REED MALLORY
Good For Three

ed by the Ellis defence.

Mallory made Crawford's strategy of moving him from centre to left wing on the highest scoring line, look good as he stole the puck and scored unassisted.; For two periods his linemates Terry Meagher and John McConnell played some of their best performances. They picked up considerably in the last period, and had several close calls around the Peterborough net, so well as being in on two of the three remaining Ellis goals.

Peterborough tied the game with two quick goals at the three minute mark, and later went ahead on a weird shot that bounced off defenceman Greg Burkitt's chin under the cross bar.

Mallory's third goal of the game tied the score, with McConnell and Meagher drawing assists.

Seconds later Danny Lapoutte gave a classic display of skating and stickhandling as he took the puck at centre ice, dashed the Don Rye defence for an unassisted goal, that moved Belleville back in front.

Terry Meagher scored what proved to be the winning goal at 17:50, as he deflected John Mulvihill's shot past goalie Dave While.

John Rutherford's second goal on a backhanded shot at the 18-minute mark narrowed the lead to one goal, and gave Peterborough last-minute momentum.

Defenceman Greg Burkitt came up with a big play in the game's final seconds when he smothered the shot on a two-on-one break, with 1.3 Don Rye net empty for an attempted Peterborough attacker.

Next Ellis game is Friday night in Trenton as the race for the top place goes into the home stretch.

Orr Has No Respect for Records

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The young Boston defenceman looking Orr is making hash of the National Hockey League record book—at least as far as scoring for defencemen is concerned.

The young Boston defenceman broke his own point-scoring record for defencemen Sunday night as the Bruins whipped Montreal Canadiens 6-3 in an NHL game.

Orr picked up two points for a record total of 65 by scoring the goal and assisted on another in the Bruins' romp over the Stanley Cup champions.

He set the record last season when he scored 64 points. But with this season just past the halfway mark, he has 34 games remaining in which to add to his record.

Orr, 21, and in his fourth NHL season, broke another record for defencemen last week when he earned his 31st assist, breaking the record of 30 set last season by Pat Stapleton of Chicago Black Hawks.

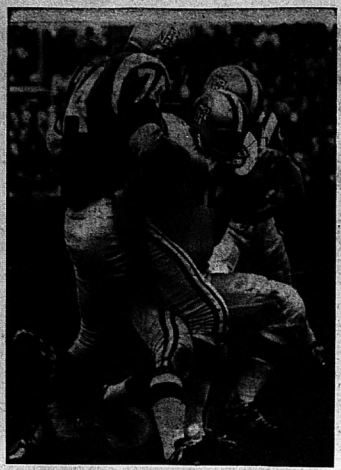
If Orr continues earning assists at the pace he has set this season, he stands a good chance of breaking the record of 77 set last season by team-mate Phil Esposito. Orr now has 52.

Boston's victory Sunday was only their sixth in 21 games against Eastern Division opposition but it moved them into a point-a-piece tie with Montreal for second place in the battle for second place in the East Division. The Canadiens, idle Sunday night, are first with 36 points.

In other games Sunday, Chicago got its winning streak to six games with a 7-1 victory over Oakland, Detroit New York Rangers won the rematch of their last night contest, defeating Los Angeles Kings 3-1, and Pittsburgh Penguins downed Philadelphia Flyers 6-4.

The Canadiens lost their first of two during the weekend Saturday when they were shut out 3-0 by Oakland. Two other clubs were rescued Saturday as Toronto Maple Leafs beat Pittsburgh 4-0—Dave Keon scored a hat trick—and Minnesota North Stars tripped Detroit 3-1.

In other Saturday games, New York defeated Minnesota North Stars 4-1, Detroit beat Philadelphia 4-2, Los Angeles blanked St. Louis 3-0 and Chicago edged Los Angeles 3-2.



Orr's record-breaking Sunday night performance was spurred on a slapshot from the blueline in the second period by his record-breaking 30th goal this season. He now has 311 goals in his 15-year NHL career.

John Ferguson, Mario Tremblay and Yvan Cournoyer scored for Montreal.

Stan Mikita scored a goal and set up two others to pace the Hawks. Dennis Hull and Cliff Koroll also scored goals and Gilles Marotte added two assists. Carol Vadnais scored for Oakland.

Ron Ellis scored a goal and set up two others in the Toronto victory. Dave Keon scored three other Detroit goal while Eddie Shack scored for Los Angeles.

It took 13 hr 9 m Third-period goals by Pittsburgh to overcome the Flyers' second-period goals 19 seconds apart by Al Karlander and Pete Stemkowski gave Detroit the edge over Los Angeles. Gordie Howe scored the

Betsy Missed the Gate

MARIBOR, Yugoslavia (CP) — Barbara Cochran of the United States won the women's slalom in World Cup skiing competition here Sunday, while at nearby Kitzbuehel, Austria, France's Patrick Russel captured the men's slalom.

Betsy Clifford of Ottawa, Canada's best hope in international skiing, was disqualified here for missing two gates on the second run after placing fourth with a time of 48.38 for the first time down.

Douglass Comes Of Age

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Dale Douglass, one of a flock of four regulars who have come into their own in the last couple of years, said a touch of maturity may be responsible for the rise in his golfing fortunes.

"The last two years have been marked by a significant change," Douglass said Sunday after taking the title in the $100,000 Phoenix open golf tournament.

"Maturity may have something to do with it. I'm getting a little old not to have matured some," the 33-year-old said.

Douglass charged out of a tightly-bunched field with a final-round 66, five under par.

He finished at 271, 13 under par on the 6,765-yard, par 71 Phoenix Country Club course, and had a one-stroke margin over veteran Howie Johnson and Gene Littler, the defending champion and third-round leader.

Littler slipped to a final 70 while Johnson had a 68.

Tied at 273 were Dave Hill, Dave Marr, U.S. Open champion Orville Moody, Bob Lunn and Tom Weiskopf. Hill, Marr and Moody all had 67s, Lunn a 68 and Weiskopf a 70.

Homero Blancas was alone at 274 after a 71, while John Miller, the rookie who barged into contention with a remarkable 61 in the third round, faded to a 71 and was one of five at 275.

Football Finally Over

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The United States professional football season went out with a bang Sunday in the annual Pro Bowl as the National Football League closed its books on the game as it has been presented for two decades.

The West won, 16-13, on a note of drama that came with 72 seconds remaining—a perfectly executed 39-yard pass play from Roman Gabriel of Los Angeles Rams to Carroll Dale of Green Bay Packers.

Dale, a former Ram, cradled the ball in the left corner of the end zone, just a step or so from out of bounds, and that was it.

The East's attack, guided by Cleveland's Bill Nelsen and New York's Fran Tarkenton, had bedeviled the mighty West defense all afternoon. And the East defence had stymied and held the West to just one touchdown, on a two-point safety by the West to just one touchdown.

Remaining. A bad centre pass sailed over punter Bobby Walden's head.

The Pittsburgh kicker outscrambled Atlanta's Greg Brenner for the ball. The safety made the score 13-9 and the East had to punt.

Detroit's Lem Barney ran it back 22 to the West 45. Eight plays later, including key gains by Baltimore's Little-used Tom Matte, the West had the ballgame.

All-star Game Ends AFL

HOUSTON (AP) — Jim Otto saw the American Football League begin and he was there when it died.

The Oakland Raiders centre played in the first AFL all-star game. He participated Saturday in the Astrodome in the 10th all-star contest—the final effort of the league.

The West All-Stars, led by passing of San Diego quarterback John Hadl, defeated the East 38-3 before 30,170 fans.

Next season the AFL becomes the American Conference of the merged AFL and National Football league.

Hadl, who completed 13 of 26 passes for 234 yards and one touchdown, was named the most valuable player in the all-star game.

Lance Alworth, the San Diego Charger receiver who caught a 21-yard scoring pass from Hadl, said it "sure was good to go out winning."

Alworth was referring to the last two Super Bowl games in which AFL teams whipped favored NFL clubs.

Snowmobile Hazards Discussed by Council

CAMPBELLFORD — Snowmobiles came up for discussion at Council meeting. In Campbellford they are considered, as in other areas, a delight to the users, and a problem to the inhabitants.

The town of Campbellford at the present time has no bylaws concerning snowmobiles. County Board of Education wish to prohibit use of the vehicle on education property.

Deputy Reeve Dunk suggested the School Board put up no trespassing signs and Reeve Bowen said Council members were concerned with the potential hazard to children on the playground area, fences, trees and equipment, and the noise of the vehicles to people living adjacent to the school property.

If signs were posted as on any private or public property offenders could be prosecuted for petty trespassing.

Three bylaws were laid in the past month under legislation covering motor vehicle operation by police against snowmobile infractions but this legislation does not apply in the case of the school board property.

In appreciation of the services of R. J. Callahan for 22 years district engineer of the United Counties and who is now retiring, a dinner will be given Mr. Callahan by the Counties and will be held in Port Hope on January 23. Mayor Tanner and Clerk E. M. Ibey plan to attend.

Town Council will accept said responsibility for the old public school on Bridge St. E. on January 16. The room used by Mrs. Adrel Mostally Retarded as a workshop will be heated by arrangements with Consumer Gas. Some confusion appeared to have arisen on the system to be installed by Consumer Gas. Council was firm in its decision that a boiler system be installed rather than a burner.

Sunday Movies Approved

CAMPBELLFORD — At the first regular meeting of the new Campbellford Council approved Sunday movies.

W. S. Moon operator - owner of the Alcove Theatre said because of rising cost of operation and fact that many leave town to attend movies in other towns he felt the logical solution was to open the theatre on Sunday after 1.30 p.m.

According to amended regulations it is not now necessary to ask for a vote of the people, a move which was voted down by a public referendum some years ago. Council members approved the drawing up of a bylaw to permit the showing of the Sunday movies.

Sales, Ad to Hear Radio Experts

George Haynes, president of the Radio Sales Bureau, and John C. Spragge, director of member services of the same organization, will speak at the Belleville Sales and Ad Club meeting Tuesday evening.

The Radio Sales Bureau is the marketing and service organization of radio stations across Canada.

Mr. Haynes was born in Vancouver in 1913 and was educated in the United Kingdom, British Columbia and Ontario. He is also a graduate of Canadian Army Staff College.

He retired as a lieutenant colonel from the Canadian army after service as acting director and deputy director of military intelligence.

Mr. Haynes' business background was in graphic arts, sales and management. From 1963 to 1964 he was sales and general manager of the National Drug and Chemical Company of Canada Ltd. From 1964 to 1967 he was president and general manager of Crush Beverages Ltd.

It was in 1967 that he became president of the Radio Sales Bureau.

Mr. Spragge was born in Waterloo, raised in Toronto and educated in the University of Toronto and the Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

He was employed with Radio Station CHUM from 1957 to 1962 where he worked as a newsman, producer, disc jockey, sales promotion man, community service man, programmer and salesman.

He joined the Radio Sales Bureau in 1968.

The two men will also be speaking in Trenton at noon Tuesday at a luncheon meeting of Trenton retailers, a meeting organized by Radio Station CJBQ.

The Radio Sales Bureau was formed in 1961 and doesn't sell radio time but the concept of radio advertising. It conducts in this vein, listener awareness studies and media comparison studies.

It was formed as the result of a study which found a definite need for this kind of organization for radio stations. There are similar organizations for Canadian newspapers and television stations.

In its strides to further the cause of radio advertising concepts, the bureau participates in conventions, seminars and in meetings with various Canadian advertising agencies.

CITY OF BELLEVILLE — LOCAL IMPROVEMENT NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE THAT:

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intends to construct as a local improvement the following watermain, and intends to specially assess a part of the cost upon the land abutting the work and the balance against the Corporation at large as follows:

Street	From	To	Estimated Cost	Corporation's Share	Owners' Share	Estimated Cost Per Foot Frontage	Estimated Actual Cost Per Foot Frontage
Hanna Street	An existing watermain	490.5 feet westerly	$17,521.81	$6,803.41	$10,718.40	$10.526	$1.315709

50 ft. x $10.926 — $546.30

If paid over a period of 15 years at 8½% per annum, the cost would be:

50 ft. x $1.315709 — $65.79.

2. The special assessment is to be paid in 15 equal annual instalments.

3. Application will be made by the Corporation to the Ontario Municipal Board for its approval of the undertaking of the said work, and any owner may, within 21 days after the first publication of the Notice, file with the Clerk of the municipality his objection to the said work being undertaken.

4. The said Board may approve the said work being undertaken, but before doing so may appoint a time and place when any objection to the said work will be considered.

Food Store Door Forced

TRENTON — Police reported that the front door of the Dominion Food Store, located in downtown Trenton, was forced early Friday morning. No break-in is reported as the thieves between 200 to 300 cartons of cigarettes valued at $4.00 each.

According to police investigation, the lock on the front door was picked, and the thieves left by the back door.

Police surmise that the break-in was the work of professionals in the city. Investigation is continuing.

Leader of Snowmobile Party Is Lost on Hudson Bay Ice

WINISK, Ont. (CP) — An extensive search party was organized today to look for the leader of a Quebec-based snowmobile expedition lost on mid-swept ice flicks 40 miles from this Indian settlement on the shores of Hudson Bay.

Guy Chevalier has been alone in a tiny tent for five days. The area has experienced two blizzards during that time and temperatures at night drop to more than 40 below.

Chevalier's ill-fated La Sarre, Que., to Alaska expedition broke down eight days ago when one of his two snowmobiles plunged. But his plight was not known until Saturday night when one member of his La Sarre party, Pierre Robitaille, stumbled into a hut at the local airport suffering from frostbite to 70 per cent of his face.

The operators of the airport, Thomas Bow Beadle, office in hospital in Timmins, Ont., where he is listed in serious condition. But deteriorating weather made it impossible to start the search for Chevalier.

Two other members of the party, Bernard LaPointe and Noel Thibault, Pierre's younger brother, were also rescued Saturday when a tripper found them in the bush.

The three were reunited in Winisk and the story of the expedition and Chevalier's plight came out.

Riddle as two snowmobiles, the four left La Sarre Dec. 5, heading up the south end of Hudson Bay and stopping at Moosonee to refuel and resupply.

They then moved north and after passing through this village 600 miles north of Timmins, trouble broke down. The four pitched a tent and made camp in the snow and Noel Robitaille and LaPointe, set off for Winisk on the operating snowmobile to get help.

But their machine broke down after the two set out on foot. They stopped a trapper's cabin and followed it to a shack where they spent nearly a week before the trapper found them and drove them to Winisk on his snowmobile.

The two back at the tiny camp, meanwhile, became worried and set out. They soon Robitaille decided to walk to Winisk and took enough food for one day, leaving Chevalier alone.

It took him four days to make the journey and he arrived starved and almost unconscious after being exposed to the elements are weather. Parasuit officials had to cut his boots off and both feet were frozen.

Noel Robitaille went to Timmins to see his wife his brother, but LaPointe stayed behind to join Indian guide Mike Hunter today is leading the search for Chevalier.

Communication Sunday night was impossible because telephone lines were down in the small community.

Ontario Hunting in Britain For Skilled Farm Workers

LONDON (CP) — About 600 skilled workers from British farms are reported to have been recruited during the last three years for new jobs in Canada.

The London Daily Mail says the recruiting was done by the Ontario government.

John Brunner, an official of the province's agriculture department, is said to be touring Britain and Ireland recruiting as many as another 200 men.

Among the agricultural talent sought are those for Canadian farms are managers, foremen and herdsmen. The Express says.

It quotes Bert Hassell, president of Britain's National Union of Agricultural Workers and Labor MP for Norfolk North, as saying:

"We cannot afford to lose these men.

"I shudder to think what will happen in the future unless we can hold a substantial proportion of these younger men."

In Toronto, R. G. Bennett, Ontario assistant deputy minister of agriculture, said Sunday he doubted that 600 British workers came to Ontario in the last three years.

"Our man may have interviewed that many, but perhaps about half of that number were actually recruited."

He said Mr. Brunner had been in England since June 1 conducting interviews and he will likely be there for another two weeks.

Commenting on Mr. Hassell's statement that Britain cannot afford to lose the men that came to Ontario, Mr. Bennett said:

"It works two ways. We open markets to them and they have to get them some place.

"They (British workers) are free to come or not to come."

'Limited-slip' Differential Improves Driving in Winter

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"Last night I parked my car on a slight grade that was coated with fresh packed snow. When I tried to pull away the car would not budge until three boys pushed me forward for about 10 yards. According to one of the boys, the reason I could not get moving was because the right rear wheel was just spinning in ice, while the left remained stationary. Is this normal, or should both the rear wheels turn together? Obviously, the traction would be much better if they did."—Mrs. L. H., Hamilton, Ont.

Rather than solidly attaching both rear driving wheels to a one-piece axle shaft, the left rear wheel is rotated by one axle shaft, and the right rear is turned by another. Why is it necessary to have two separate axle shafts?

When, for example, a vehicle is turning to the right, obviously the left or outside wheel must turn faster and farther than the right or inside wheel, just as the person on the end of the line at skaters' "cracking the whip" must travel faster and farther than the one on the anchor end.

If the axles, and in turn the wheels they are driving, could not turn at different speeds when the car was cornering, the tires would drag and scuff on the pavement and the car would be difficult to control.

Located inside the centre of the rear end assembly, an ingenious device known as the differential allows the rear axles to turn at different speeds and at the same time deliver an equal amount of driving force to both the rear wheels when the car is maneuvering.

Basically, four small gears are in constant mesh inside the differential case. Two of these gears are held in place by a shaft, and the inner ends of both the rear axle shafts are splined to the other two gears. When the vehicle is moving straight ahead on a smooth road, these four gears remain stationary, but the moment you turn left or right they go into action to compensate for the variation in speed of the driving wheels.

While the differential provides full traction from both rear wheels when operating, it sometimes can present problems. For example, when we jack up full rear wheels of my snow, it can cause the driving wheel that can get no traction to spin uselessly on the slippery surface, while the other wheel which has traction on a clear pavement remains stationary.

However, lack of traction when pulling away on a slippery surface has been largely overcome by a limited-slip differential that was introduced in the early sixties and is now offered as an optional extra.

When the car is not cornering, this limited-slip arrangement acts very much like driving wheels, regardless of whether one or the other is resting on mud, ice or snow, and traction is greatly improved. I especially recommend it because it can make the critical difference between bogging down on a slippery surface and sailing on down the road. In winter it is a terrific advantage on vehicles that are not equipped with cut steel studded snow tires.

Strictly Personal

No Real Violence on TV

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

It's odd, as I've remarked before, how we insist on calling things not only by their wrong name but by their opposite name — like black pupilism is really a white one, the student problem is really a teacher one, the war problem is really a peace one, and so on.

"Violence" is another prime example of such a misnomer. We complain that there is too much violence on television when exactly the opposite is the case — there is no real violence, only a show of it.

Closeup of violence is what children see on the TV tube. In reality violence means injury and suffering and death are not real. A man is shot, bleeds, he falls down in pain and the camera moves on. A man is hit on the jaw and tumbles over in a cliff and disappears. He is just a dummy, a number, a player in a game who will reappear next week.

Real violence, if it could be shown, would turn the kids off. Real violence is bloody, sickening, frightful, persistent or permanent. It profoundly affects not only the victim but his family, his friends, his whole social group. It tears the fabric of the community, it terrorizes people, it orphans children, it fills hospitals and graveyards.

For it is fake violence that makes aggressiveness seem so beguiling and worthy of imitation. It seems so painless, so easy, so brutal beating and a minute later are embracing friends. In real life, where the kind of fighting depicted on the screen would inexplicably both contestants for the rest of the series, or both die.

What the kids get in see on TV are the obvious benefits of violence, never the lasting disadvantages. The hero and the villain are both put, and the kids know the hero will always win; and since each person is a hero in his own mind, it becomes inconceivable that he could lose. This is the treacherous logic of fantasy adventure.

Artificial violence should be banned, because it is unrealistic, and genuine violence should be shown wherever possible so that its ugly face will not seem so attractive to impressionable minds. What shocks and consequences of violence should be dramatically delineated, not just the surface actions that stir the blood and stun the moral nerve and make us think we can walk away from marital strife into the sunset of next week's episode.

For January 20

Your birthday today: Now you begin a long series of difficult but very rewarding re-adjustments to correct past errors. Many of you will be pulling back from dissipations to favor the solid pursuits which is basis a fresh start. The keyword for the coming year is persistence and diplomacy. The sun changes from tropical signs Capricorn to Aquarius today at 6:56 a.m., Eastern Standard time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Pick up the pieces from yesterday's dealings and proceed in high good humor. Cash transactions are quick and easy.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your workmates, friends, and neighbors offer more co-operation now. Proceed on the assumption that all is well and going to be better.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Ask for a raise, apply for a membership, enter a competition something up-reaching that fits your situation. Put in a full day campaigning for what you feel is due you.

CANCER (June 21 — July 23): Family and related enterprises should begin to show progress, profit. Take a strongly individual approach. Business may be.

LEO (July 24 — Aug. 23): Alert is the word for today. Stay up on your feet pursuing your career, even if it helps conflictions. Interesting information can be had by chance conversation.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 — Sept. 23): Now is the time to get your facts, figures, records, papers straight. Do the expedient rather than the theoretical. Pace yourself for a rather long day, broader point of view.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 — Oct. 23): A big emotional "secret" exists somewhere amongst your family. Today is as good a time as any to figure what it may be. Everybody around you takes the initiative; let them. There's nothing to control over.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24—Nov. 22): Your keen sense of purpose and motivation leads you in fairly drastic actions. Be sure you are right and make a clean sweep of it. Have the courage without bringing in the day's shop talk.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 — Dec. 21): Improvement of conditions and relationships characterize the day. Be firm in your bargaining for an extra cash assistance. An outgoing holds a pleasant surprise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Now you have a brief chance to profit from the results of your diligent labor. Make full use of every opportunity. Social-able inclination prevail.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): What you decide today is crucially important for your future. If your plans are not developed enough for decision now, you may have to adjust your goals somewhat to fit what the world demands of you.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Quite a number of things you have been searching for are now available. Take the trouble to check prices and quality.

Canairelief Is Expected to Disband Tonight

TORONTO (CP) — Canairelief, which flew more than 11,000 tons of food and medicine into Biafra during its year of operation, will probably disband tonight.

Canairelief Chairman Dr. Eoin Mackay, who will meet with the group's executive tonight, said Sunday the church-sponsored organization is "in the midst of a phasing-out process."

When the civil war ended last week, a Canairelief spokesman said he hoped Nigeria would allow the group to continue flights, but General Yakubu Gowon, Nigerian head of state, refused Canairelief's request, calling its assistance "dubious and insulting."

Dr. Mackay said, "we've tried everything we can think of to see if there isn't some way we can help and we've really come up against a brick wall."

"We have sent Telegrams to General Gowon; we've had consultations with the Canadian government and it's clear that there is nothing more we can do," he said.

Canairelief was formed a year ago, a year after the war began, by Dr. Edward Johnson, moderator of the Presbyterian Church, Jack Grant, a Toronto engineer.

It used three Super Constellations, leased from Nordair, to fly the supplies to Uli in Biafra from Sao Tome, a Portuguese island off the African coast.

After raising about $2,500,000 from churches and individuals to finance its nightly flights, Canairelief now is left owing $350,000, mostly to Nordair and Shell Oil Co.

"We will sell the aircraft and while they are in pretty poor shape, they are still worth something," Dr. Mackay said.

"We have some equipment, such as trucks and loaders which will also bring us a little money."

A number of churches have given us commitments of money, but that was when the war was going on. It remains to be seen now if they will follow through."

Dr. Mackay said he hopes the Canadian government will allow his group to use some of the $1,000,000 it recently allocated. Original purpose of the money was to buy another plane.

"She's still at home trying to decide which dress to wear."

Stanfield Uncertain About Marijuana

VANCOUVER (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Saturday he doesn't believe marijuana is a narcotic.

Mr. Stanfield made the comment during a question period at a quarterly meeting of the Progressive Conservative Association of British Columbia.

Ellen Shaw of suburban Richmond, asked Mr. Stanfield for his views on the possible legalization of marijuana.

"I know the dangers of it," she said. She said she was acquainted with many young persons who have experimented with drugs.

Mr. Stanfield replied:

"My own attitude is that it is very difficult to make a decision in regard to marijuana without more information."

"Marijuana now is classified as a narcotic, I don't think it's that," the national leader of the Conservative party said.

The federal health department and the Commons should await a report expected shortly by a task force on drug abuse before making any decision, Mr. Stanfield said.

Referring to a statement by Mrs. Shaw paralleling tobacco and marijuana, Mr. Stanfield said "even if you believe that excessive smoking is harmful can you prohibit it?"

"We tried that in the case of alcohol and it didn't work."

Don Patterson of Vancouver, one of about 50 persons attending the meeting and an unsuccessful candidate in last year's election for the provincial leadership, said the Conservatives were failing to make known their views on the federal government's white paper on taxation and other matters such as the monarchy and Canada's withdrawal from NATO. He suggested the party purchase television time on a weekly basis.

Mr. Stanfield said he is confident the party can get its views across but "this is something that is going to go on over a period of time."

"There's no easy way, no dramatic way, that we can suddenly get our views across to the public mind."

Mr. Stanfield said that the Trudeau administration had accepted as palatable a six-percent unemployment figure in its drive against inflation, and "students are bound to be affected."

Labor Unions Urged To Fight Alcoholism

BRANTFORD (CP) — Dr. H. L. Thoman, director of the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation centre in St. Catharines, urged labor unions Saturday to take an active part in treating alcoholism in industry.

Alcohol, "the drug that is used the most, is the one we should be most concerned with," Dr. Thoman told an educational institute sponsored by the Canadian Labor Congress and the Brantford and District Labor Council.

Mafia Torture Centre Raided

NEW YORK (AP) — An FBI raid on a blood-spattered Brooklyn social club, reported to have been used as a Mafia torture chamber, has resulted in investigations of possible police corruption and underworld killings.

A Brooklyn grand jury Monday listened to evidence turned up in the FBI raid last week and heard seven witnesses, including four policemen.

Joseph Colombo, the reputed boss of a Mafia "family" here who invoked the U.S. constitution's Fifth Amendment against self-incrimination 50 times at another crime investigation last week, was among the witnesses.

The FBI raid followed a tip that Joseph Tumolo, a member of the club who was murdered in a bar last Thursday, had been beaten at the club.

The FBI found a back room in the club that looked like a slaughterhouse.

"There was blood everywhere," one of the raiders reported. "On the floor, the walls, even the ceiling."

A blood-soaked shirt lay on the floor.

The FBI said an informer reported that loan shark clients were taken to the social club when they fell behind in payments. At the club they were reported to be judged by a Mafia court and punished in the back room according to the sentence decreed.

The police officials are reported investigating reports that local police took payoffs to overlook the loan shark operations and Mafia enforcement procedures.

Red Cross Says War Victims Fed

LAGOS (Reuters) — Red Cross sources said today their program for feeding 700,000 Nigerian civil war victims is proceeding satisfactorily.

"Enough food is still available and our acute transportation problem is gradually being solved," they added.

Five tons of medical supplies are being flown in here by the International Red Cross in the last of two flights authorized by the Nigerian government.

Reports today from the former secessionist enclave of Biafra said police units were still combing the bush for the few troops believed to be in hiding.

Mass movement of the population has stopped and civilians continue to return to their homes, the reports said.

Car Insurance Rates Will Rise

TORONTO (CP) — The insurance business "cannot control the highway slaughter—only governments can do that," says J. R. Cogbill of Waterloo, president of the Canadian Federation of Insurance Agents and Brokers Associations.

He was commenting in an interview Monday on a sharp rise in rates for automobile insurance which will come into effect in various parts of Canada starting Feb. 1, or in other areas, possibly as late as April 1.

Montreal Bandit Is Slain

MONTREAL (CP) — Police shot and killed one man and later captured three others Monday after a woman was held hostage in her home for two hours during a holdup in suburban Anjou.

Three suspects surrendered after the young woman was held captive and asked at one point to cook lunch.

Police were called to the St. Conrad credit union in east-end Montreal by a telephone caller who reported a "suspicious looking car."

At the credit union they exchanged shots with four masked men in the car and chased it as it sped away.

A few blocks later the men abandoned the car and more shots were fired.

One man was shot as he ran across a field and died soon after.

After an hour police telephoned the men and warned them that if they did not surrender within 15 minutes officers with bullet-proof vests would storm the building.

Finally two police officers in bullet-proof vests hurried into the home and emerged seconds later with the three men.

Canairelief Has Disbanded

TORONTO (CP) — Canairelief, the church-sponsored relief organization that flew 11,000 tons of food and supplies to starving Biafrans during the Nigeria-Biafra war, voted to disband Monday night after a year of operation.

"We have done all we can and we just ended it at this point," Chairman Dr. Eoin Mackay said in an interview.

Prices Eat Up All Pay Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans in 1969 went through the worst inflationary period in 20 years, the government said in reporting a 6.1-per-cent rise in living costs for last year.

Some 45,000,000 workers were caught in the squeeze of rising prices and a slowing economy under President Nixon's efforts to combat inflation, losing more purchasing power than they gained in pay, Monday's report said.

"For 1969 as a whole, increases in consumer prices eroded all of the gain in earnings," the labor department said in reporting that average pay of $117.25 a week last month was up $6.87 over the year but worth $7.15 less in the market place.

A big December grocery price rise of 1.6 per cent, accounting for half the month's rise in living costs, would up 1969 food price increases to a total of 7.2 per cent.

The costs of services associated with home ownership continued their upward trend," rising five-tenths of one per cent in December for a 6.7-per-cent increase in housing costs for the year, it said.

Clothing and transportation was up 5.7 per cent each in 1969, medical care rose six per cent and recreation 3.8 per cent.

The December increase in overall living costs pushed the consumer price index up six-tenths of one per cent to 131.3 per cent of its 1957-59 base.

The index figure means every $10 worth of typical family living costs 10 years ago cost $13.13 last month, 76 cents more than in 1968.

The 6.1-per-cent rise in living costs for the year, highest for any 12-month period since November, 1950, to November, 1951, when Korean War wage-price controls were imposed, clipped more than six cents off the value of the 1968 dollar, and reduced the value of the 1957-59 dollar to 76.2 cents.

On a December-to-December basis, the 1969 rise was highest since 1947 when Second World War wage-price controls were lifted and prices soared 9.1 per cent.

The weekly take-home pay for workers with three dependents averaged $99.39 in 1969, 4.9 per cent higher than in 1968. After adjustment for price increases, however, real spendable earnings—purchasing power in 1957-59 terms—averaged $78.30, four cents at one per cent lower than 1968's record and also below the 1965 and 1966 levels.

Food Prices Rise In Canada's Cities

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher food prices, higher rents, and higher new car prices pushed the consumer price index up in December in all principal cities for which the Dominion Bureau of Statistics keeps separate records, the bureau reported today.

The biggest increases were in Vancouver.

The city indexes, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, measure the change in living costs within each city but cannot be used to compare living costs between cities.

There is no accurate statistical way of comparing living costs between cities in the base year because of differences in climate and home construction methods.

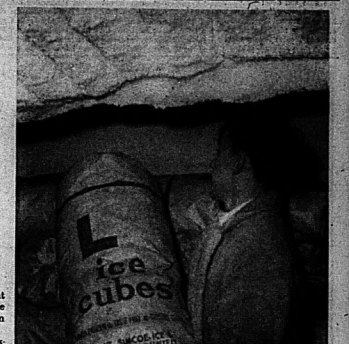
The December indexes, followed by November indexes for each city, are:

St. John's, Nfld., 130.5, 129; Halifax, 122.6, 122; Saint John, N.B., 122, 121.5; Montreal, 123.1, 122.8; Ottawa, 125.8, 125.4; Toronto, 126.6, 126.1; Winnipeg, 125.2, 125.4; Saskatoon and Regina, 121.6, 121.3; Edmonton and Calgary, 123.5, 123.2; Vancouver, 121, 120.1.

Orders Decline

OTTAWA (CP) — New orders placed with Canadian manufacturing totalled $1,757,500,000 in November, down 2.7 per cent from October orders, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Orders for durable goods were down to $1,771,400,000 from $1,775,600,000 in October and $1,781,100,000 in September, while orders for non-durable goods were off to $1,986,100,000 from $2,085,000,000 in October and $2,076,200,000 in September.



Manufacturers' shipments during November were estimate at $3,716,400,000 compared with $3,822,900,000 in October and $3,802,900,000 in September.

Secret Service Bars Brody

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael J. Brody Jr., oleomargarine heir who says he is bent on finding away a fortune, was turned away by U.S. Secret Service agents at a White House gate Monday.

Brody, who was accompanied by his wife, said he wanted to tell President Nixon "the war in Vietnam is over."

The 24-year-old Scarsdale, N.Y., resident said he made the trip to Washington by helicopter but kicked the money for a bus fare to return to New York. He and his wife accepted an offer by a passerby to take them there by car.

Ice: Business Not So Hot!

Winter isn't much for ice — if you're in the business. The fact it's one of the bitterest cold spells on record has little to do with the slump in ice sales. It's traditional in winter, says Peter McNevin of Glen Roy Creameries in Belleville, a major supplier. However, company keeps a small stockpile of cubes on hand - - - just in case.

Last Night Coldest In Years at Trenton

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Last night?

It was one of the coldest nights since records were first compiled at the Trenton weather office.

Low temperatures now are running 15 degrees below normal in the Tweed district.

The Prince Edward County Lake Ontario shoreline could be in for a blizzard.

And Bellevillians just aren't buying ice these days.

First the weather:

The Quinte district, already numbed by the longest cold wave on record, will continue to shiver for much of the week.

Last night the mercury dipped its meanest in the Belleville - Trenton zone — 19 degrees below at CFB Trenton, 17 below in the city.

The Trenton forecaster said it was one of the coldest readings since meteorological records were started at the airbase years ago.

In Belleville, it was the coldest night of the winter.

By comparison, Bancroft — a traditional Quinte cold spot — came through the night with a low of 14 below.

Drug Lab Raided, PhD Arrested

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — A laboratory described by federal agents as "one of the most sophisticated, clandestine labs ever seized in the U.S., was raided here Monday night and $672,000 in drugs seized, agents said.

Dr. Robert A. Frame, Jr., who holds a PhD degree in chemistry from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was arrested and charged with selling methamphetamine, or speed, to a federal agent, said Art Fluhr of the federal bureau of narcotics and dangerous drugs.

Federal, state and city police carried out the raid. Agents said they confiscated four pounds of speed.

Proper Planning Paramount

Forget Competitive Philosophy Scott Tells Trentonians

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — "The days of competition between ourselves are gone and done — we must work together," Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott asserted Monday night in an address to Trenton Rotary Club.

"We must get along to something of an urban area — if we don't get along on our own, provincial legislation might do it. Belleville and Trenton legislator in an old county set-up...

"A county as such is not qualified to run the communities of Belleville and Trenton," the mayor emphasized.

He cited money borrowing and both sewer and water services as specific areas in which the county "had no real experience" in regard to urban problems.

Belleville's chief magistrate cited similarities binding the two communities: the citizens who "called a spade a spade," their location on the Bay of Quinte and the fact that both are intersected by a river and surrounded by hills.

"How are we going to work together?" he queried.

"There has been a great deal of talk about regional government and now we must agree we have an area with a regional problem," the mayor said.

Murray and Sidney townships were cited by the mayor as areas which could possibly be included in a Quinte region governmental set-up.

The object of the mayor's desire was that in 20 years time — proper planning would take care of growing pains associated with a 70,000 population. A metropolitan form of government would take care of planning, planning and other essentials.

In this proposal the mayor said there would be three major industrial areas: west of Trenton, between Trenton and Wellington, and east of Belleville.

However, the mayor stressed that present problems such as the travel cost involved in transporting law breakers to the regional detention centre in Napanee.

In this regard the mayor said Belleville would probably require one extra car and two more police officers to carry out this function; and Trenton might well find itself in a similarly situation.

Hospitals and senior citizens' housing were other problems the mayor mentioned. He deplored the fact that elderly people had to "migrate, shift and manipulate" in order to qualify for admission to senior citizens' residences.

The mayor believes that a regional system would provide better for the elderly.

De Laet: We Have Paid For Pollution

Nearly as Costly to Truck Waste As It Is to Bring Goods to City

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Almost everybody knows about pollution — and blames almost everybody else. There just isn't enough grassroots public involvement.

Therein lies one of the problems to resolving the threat, believes Christian de Laet.

Mr. de Laet is secretary-general of the Canadian Council of Resource Ministers — an information-exchange on common problems organized by the provincial governments.

Pollution is such a problem, and last night Mr. de Laet used it to sound some warning notes to the Belleville Canadian Club.

As he sees it pollution is too complex and costly a problem to be handled by government without "the support and commitment of the public."

"And the earlier politicians seek the involvement of the public the better we shall be.

"The problem of pollution is so large as to defy being handled like a clever little political manoeuvre, only a de facto knowledge and commitment," he added.

Needed are more public action groups. But, the public also must get its priorities straight and decide what it expects.

As Mr. de Laet puts it: "There is no point in making a case against industry, against local government, against senior government. It is everyone of us."

Society can't "have it's cake and eat it too," he admonishes.

For example: People desire an industry for the jobs and dividends it provides.

They also want to catch a salmon 100 yards down from a thermal power plant. You can't do it — ask any fish. You can't do it."

Mr. de Laet describes much public reaction to the problem this way: "It's always safe to suggest that pollution is always the other guy."

Putting it in perspective must also rule out equating pollution with evil. It isn't. It's a " totally natural" outcome of the way humans are mismanaging their environment, claims Mr. de Laet.

Hence: "There is no point to witchhunting and pointing the finger at people in the hope it will effect a cure."

Causes of pollution are not easy to pinpoint. Since it's man-made it's inevitably repleted with paradox, says Mr. de Laet.

The same people who are sensitive to social propriety and personal hygiene behave like 'bloody vandals" in the outdoors.

Neither are Canadians — despite their vast outdoors — exempt from the problem. In fact, points out Mr. de Laet, sometimes Canadians have actually been "created problems that really are just as severe as in any other densely - populated area of the world."

But the problem grows as social mobility and communications shrink world space.

It's compounded by rapid industrialization and urbanization — someday it may cost more to truck waste from a city than it will to bring in the goods that cause it, he predicts.

Not that pollution hasn't already been costly, says Mr. de Laet.

"We have to pay for pollution somehow. And the point is we have paid for it but . . . not out of our pockets. We've paid for it out of the capital of our environment."

Here, Mr. de Laet sounds a sombre warning:

"That (environmental) capital is getting exhausted. Now man's environment has a claim that must be met — either in human responsibility or cold hard cash."

The claim "is so severe it will either spell the survival or the disappearance of the human species."

Coldest Night in Years

Lands and forests records in Tweed show the lows currently are running 15.76 degrees below normal so far this year. Maximum temperatures are 7.53 degrees below average.

Immediate weather predictions offer little consolation to the chilled Quinte community.

The Trenton forecaster today said it may be early Friday before the cold crunch moderates.

The low tonight will be around 10 below, rising to a high Wednesday of only five above.

Meantime, official weather eyes are watching patterns along the Quinte Lake Ontario shoreline. If they phase correctly, the situation could be just right for a near - repeat of the big blizzard that dumped 22 inches of snow on Picton Jan. 9.

Either way, the Picton district can look toward some new activity — with the consolation of warmer temperatures in its wake.

One business, however, is in the throes of a seasonal low — and not surprisingly.

It's normal at this time of year, says Glen Roy's Peter McNevin.

Technical Survey Cost Questioned by Trustee

The $500 spent by Hastings county board of education this summer on a survey of the condition of equipment in the technical wings of its secondary schools was called "money down the drain" by trustee F. John Pollis, Bancroft.

Members of the advisory vocational committee of the board last night criticized the Tavshish report, made by a firm of consulting engineers, following receipt of a letter from Douglas Rowe, representative of the technical department heads in county schools.

Mr. Rowe said the report did not cover electric, electronic and industrial physics equipment or the services areas of schools. The person doing the inspection took only one hour to survey each school and the report would have been more valuable if department heads had been present during the survey.

Mr. Rowe noted seven errors in reports on the condition of equipment in the first two pages of the report. The committee members felt the report was useless in guiding the board in setting a list of priorities for the replacement of technical department equipment and machinery.

The board had originally asked the consulting engineers to "complete an inventory and assessment" to enable the board to determine replacement policies.

"Perhaps the board erred in not laying down the depth to which the engineers should go in their inspection," said committee chairman Everett Fairman. "The survey was a good idea — I hope we have learned a lesson."

Board chairman James Clarke, an ex-officio, member of the committee, said the report was valuable as an equipment inventory.

At the suggestion of Mr. Fairman and Mr. Pollis, the committee recommended to the board that in the future, consultants confer with department heads when making surveys and reports.

Mr. Clarke added amendment to the recommendation that consultants hired for any business that affects the AVC should work with the committee.

Town Asked to Collect Industrial Tax Arrears

TRENTON — The town of Trenton has been asked by the Ontario department of municipal affairs to collect taxes from three industries, formerly granted tax write-offs as an incentive to establish here.

The total of ice is down, reports the management of one of the area's biggest ice-cream — Glen Ray Creameries.

It's normal at this time of year, says Glen Roy's Peter McNevin

Picton Request

Parents Ask for Assurance Open-team Teaching Working

PICTON — The open-team teaching program used experimentally at Queen Elizabeth public school here, was considered by most concerned parents at a meeting of the Prince Edward County board of education last night.

Addressing the board were Dr. Leroy Hall and Picton lawyer John Ward.

Mr. Ward directed his comments largely toward the teaching method in science classes at the school.

"We seem to get very unsatisfactory reports in the progress in the science class," he remarked later. "And we don't understand these vague reports."

He said the subject apparently is taught by the project method, allowing students to select a project for study from a prepared list.

"This appears to be the whole context of the science approach. The children seemingly do not understand enough on how to go ahead with their chosen topics.

He noted no formal lectures were offered until the beginning of the second school term this month.

Mr. Ward also expressed concern when he discovered that no completion dates are set for these subjects because of the students' varying work rates.

He commented that deadlines form a part of daily living and questioned the value of omitting them in school projects.

Mr. Ward emphasized that he was not protesting the open-area teaching system and considered his comments to the board an attempt to bring several of the problems he observed to its attention.

"It's hard to tell how serious things are. I don't know how widespread dissatisfaction is concerning this system," he said.

He indicated he was aware only of the problems noted by him and Dr. Hall.

Mr. Ward said he had not personally observed the open-area system in operation, but expressed his intention to see its advantages and disadvantages.

The board referred the remarks made by Dr. Hall and Mr. Ward to its newly-formed education committee for investigation.

Obituaries and Funerals

MRS. LEONARD CHARLES BAINES

In ill health for the past five years, Mrs. Margaret Isabel Baines of Hastings Manor died Monday evening at Belleville General Hospital. She was in her 63rd year.

Born in Tyrendenaga, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson and had lived in the town ship until five years ago when she became a resident at Hastings Manor. She was a member of Gilead United church and belonged to the Women's Missionary Society of that church.

She is survived by her husband Leonard Charles Baines, a son William of Vancouver, and two daughters, Mrs. Edward (Ruth) Hunt of Trenton, and Mrs. Stafford (Bessie) Cosway of Oshawa. There are six grandchildren.

The funeral will be held Wednesday from the John R. Bush Funeral Home where service in the chapel was conducted by Rev. Roy Veney. Entombment was in the Belleville Cemetery vault with burial in Victoria Cemetery in the spring.

The bearers were Clifford Ray, Howard Elliott, Carsiff Wright, Fred Silts, Albert Tunmon and Bill Rollen.

During the service Rev. Lester Bligh sang a solo 'Peace Still My Soul'.

The funeral of Thomas Joseph McIlbagga, 55 Crown Street, Trenton, was held Monday afternoon from the Weaver Funeral Home to St. Peter's Church where mass was conducted by Rev. W. H. Murphy of Batawa. Entombment was in Mount Calvary Cemetery.

The bearers were Bob Mills, Charles McCormick, Bud Tomlinson, Hank Jackson, Clifford McGannmon and Jim Tennant.

In failing health for the past two months, Mr. McIlbagga died Friday at Trenton Memorial Hospital in his 72rd year. He was born in Glasgow, Scotland and lived in Peterborough before coming to Trenton four years ago. A veteran of both world wars, he was a retired hospital orderly, and was a member of St. Peter's Church and the Trenton branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, No. 110.

He is survived by his wife, the former Edith Christine Lynch; a son Thomas Joseph McIlbagga, Jr., of Trenton and a step-daughter, Mrs. Terry (Evelyn) Biggs, Peterborough.

WILLIAM JAMES NOLAN

Requiem mass for William James Nolan of 67 Murphy Street in Trenton was held Monday in St. Peter's Catholic Church, Trenton, Rev. Father R. Hart officiated. Interment was in Mount Calvary Cemetery.

The bearers, all grandsons, were Paul Gerald, James, Peter, Dennis, Michael and William Nolan Jr.

Mr. Nolan died Thursday in the House of Providence in Kingston following an illness of three years. He was in his 85th year.

Born in Belleville, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Nolan. Most of his life was spent in Trenton.

Mr. Nolan was a retired lumber merchant, owning his own company, W. J. Nolan and Sons Ltd. Prior to owning his own company, he was employed at the Gilmour Lumber Company and was manager of the Rathbun Lumber Company of Deseronto.

He was a former president of the Liberal Association and he was prominent in hockey and baseball activities in Trenton. Mr. Nolan was a past president of the Trenton Country Club and a member of the Knights of Columbus. He was a member of St. Peter's Catholic Church.

He is survived by three sons, Victor A. Nolan of Peterborough, William A. Nolan of Dunnville and Reginald Nolan of R.R. 2, Trenton; four daughters, Mrs. Marjorie Fitzpatrick of Las Vegas, Nevada, Mrs. J. (Doris) Arnold of Toronto, Miss Norma Nolan of Trenton and Mrs. Ethel Andison of Ottawa; 17 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren.

He was predeceased by his wife, the former Ethel Bonner.

CHARLES R. BAKER

Ontario Police Initiate New Intelligence Force

By BARRY McCULLAGH
Staff Reporter

Belleville businessmen are being asked by the Ontario Police Commission for support in the fight against organized crime.

Legitimate businesses in Canada are being infiltrated by crime syndicates and the business community itself is in a position to assist law enforcement authorities.

The appeal was made in an address to Belleville Rotarians yesterday by Walter Lee, an intelligence officer with the Ontario Police Commission.

"I don't think everyone should panic, but these people are going to move in.

"The money for investment is there . . . billions of dollars in Canada and West German banks, and it is available for investment in legitimate businesses.

Mr. Lee warned however that any business taking advantage of money from such sources would come off worst. The police commission was gathering information on people suspected of engaging in criminal activities of this nature.

"Where you suspect that something like this is happening in your business or in related fields, then place your confidence in your police commission."

In general organized crime operated in the more heavily-populated centres where more money was plentiful.

And the type of crime? All types.

"There was a time when we thought they operated only in gambling, prostitution, narcotics and bootlegging but we know they will move into any area of crime in which a profit can be made."

Gambling was probably the largest with the total illegal amount gambling in one year in the United States amounting to $20 billion of which one-third was profit.

Mr. Lee described organized crime "in Canada as continuing and self-perpetuating, with a profit motive feeding on fear and corruption, and seeking to obtain immunity from the law.

"It is a phenomenon that exists both in the United States and Canada. What we have here is not the Mafia which has confined its activities for centuries to the western part of Sicily.

"The Mafia has never been imported to North America, although part of North America's organized crime is given up to an organization known to its members as the Cosa Nostra."

Membership is restricted to Italians numbering from 3,- 500 to 5,000 in the United States. However, there are no membership lists so the precise membership is impossible to determine.

Extending into Canada, the Cosa Nostra, according to Mr. Lee, has infiltrated into Ontario and Quebec and has the professional advice of members of the legal, actounting and engineering professions who have gone beyond their code of ethics to inform these people what they can do to evade the law."

Mr. Lee admitted another element was police corruption "which no matter how close we pride ourselves in being, does exist and probably always will exist, human beings that we are."

To questions Mr. Lee said organized crime had acquired hotels, motels and restaurants of high quality. Some of the better eating places were in this category. It had moved into the construction industry, was linked with labor unions and involved in land development and real estate.

The former RCMP officer said an area which would be kept under close scrutiny was business operations and the growth of monopolies.

He pointed out that conventional methods of police ing were inadequate for dealing with organized crime. Hence the establishment by the Ontario Police Commission of an intelligence service with the co-operation of some 25 municipal police forces, the provincial police and the RCMP. It is the most highly - trained force of its kind in North America, he said.

"We are on the verge of becoming part of a Canada-wide intelligence network — in the next month or so — whereby a similar situation will exist in every province and linked with headquarters in Ottawa."

Mr. Lee said much had been accomplished in Canada in the past five years in building up an intelligence system to combat organized crime. Thanks for this should go to the government, to the members of the Ontario Police Commission and to the chiefs of police of this province.

Guild Calls On Professional In Emergency

For the first time in the history of the Belleville Theatre Guild a professional actor will take a lead role in one of the guild's plays.

The organization's latest production, Wait Until Dark, will see the insertion of Brian Gordon, a professional actor from Ottawa, in one of the play's lead roles.

Mr. Gordon is replacing Wilf Carter who was forced to leave the play Sunday due to ill health.

With the hiring of Mr. Gordon, rehearsals have been concentrated, in that resident artistic director, Roy Higgins, has had only two days to work with Mr. Gordon to prepare the play for opening night Wednesday.

Mr. Gordon told The Intelligencer this morning that he was finding it a bit rough to learn a part in a play he had never done in two days, but that it was working out.

"It's a bit rough but of course, as professionals, it's something we've all done. We realize that the show must go on."

"Yesterday it was a question of reading the lines once and then throwing away the script."

"However, the dialogue is pretty straightforward and once you get yourself involved as quick as possible in what's happening, it can be easier."

Mr. Gordon became an actor after working for an insurance company and "hating every minute of it."

And so four years ago he became a professional actor after years of amateur experience. He freelanced for two years and then got some writing job on contract before accepting to professional acting four months ago.

He decided to do the Belleville job because he was free at the time and he knew Roy Higgins from the past.

His theatrical training began in 1955 at the Ottawa Little Theatre School of Theatre and since then has been instructed in voice and diction, music and vocal, ballet, modern jazz and African primitive dance, creative dance, and other aspects of theatre.

He has experience in direction, directing several plays, and in some cases penning them as well.

Mr. Gordon also has served as an instructor for several organizations in the art of theatre. He has acted many times including engagements at the National Arts Centre in Ottawa.

A Beginning

A good case for the regional government that the Quinte area ultimately will enjoy is presented by the urgent need for new services for homes, schools and industry.

Already the trend is in that direction, as witness the meeting called for January 28 in Belleville. On that date D. J. Collins, chairman of the Ontario Water Resources Commission and a senior representative of the Department of Municipal Affairs will meet with Belleville, Thurlow and Sidney councils to discuss extension of services to the townships.

As pointed out in our news columns last week Belleville and Thurlow have been holding discussions with the OWRC regarding extension of a proposed sanitary sewer from the city into the township. But before proceeding with any such plan Belleville wants more information on whether subsidies will apply on other sewage projects.

To this end Mayor Russell Scott and Thurlow Reeve Horace Casey had been scheduled to meet with the OWRC in Toronto — but since then Sidney, with servicing of a new high school, and a possible new industry, in mind, has asked to be included in the discussions.

Hence the January 28 meeting at city hall in Belleville. Three municipalities will be involved — the beginnings of regional government are here.

In A Bind

Those who yearn for an ocean cruise should know that if the voyage is prolonged and the ports of call few and far between — then like anything else boredom can set in.

Yes you can have too much of a good thing. Imagine then the dilemma of passengers on board the cruise liner Oronsay, under quarantine in Vancouver because of an outbreak of typhoid among some of their number.

The tedium has been relieved to some extent by a mini-cruise in the waters off Vancouver Island and by a high school band putting on a performance on board a harbor vessel.

It is a bad break for both the ship's owners and the passengers, but they seem to be making the best of it.

TV for S. Africa?

South Africa, probably the only highly-developed country in the world still without television, is now considering introducing such a service. But it looks like it may be a long time in coming — and when it does it will be under strict government control.

The reason for fear of the government of course is that a television service, given a virtually free rein like the CBC, and with commercial sponsors, would very quickly upset the delicate political balances which maintain not only the system of apartheid (separation of the white, black and colored populations) but introduce the elements of commercialism and controversy that are synonymous with programming here.

The Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, M. C. G. J. Van Rensburg, announcing a commission to consider TV, noted the terms of reference would be to "inquire into and report upon the desirability or undesirability of the introduction of a television service and, if found desirable, the nature of such a service with due regard to certain factors."

"If found desirable," the minister said, "it will have to be a statutorily-controlled service, and it will have to be ensured that it will be a completely bilingual one (Afrikaans and English) and a multi-lingual service for the Bantu."

Mr. Van Rensburg said such a service would be integrated with the existing radio service and "will have to be a cultural service with strict control over programs."

And just to show that the government is not really that keen on the idea, the minister warned the public that the government did not in any way commit itself to introducing TV. Making this doubly clear, he emphasized that anyone investing capital in any facility for this purpose "does so entirely at his own risk."

It rather looks as if the question whether to introduce television or not in South Africa is going to be a long exercise in frustration. The government is going to censor program content anyway and even the white employees jumping off Table Mountain in droves rather than submit to such "Big Brother" tactics.

PCs Jed Baldwin Master of the Unanswerable Question

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — If you are a member of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, there are basically two ways you can oppose the government on the floor of the House of Commons.

It is assumed, of course, that you will vote against it or almost any question it puts before Parliament. But that is routine. Expected of you. So it really does not count as one of the ways to make your mark in the Opposition.

So that leaves two ways, fundamentally, of winning your Effort.

You can do the obvious. Make a speech. But unless it is a real roof-raiser, nobody will be listening except the hansard clerk, the sergeant at arms, the chairman and the pages, a captive and professionally inattentive audience.

You can ask a question in the daily 45-minute verbal free-for-all when the Opposition cross-examines the prime minister and the cabinet. If you are simply seeking information, your question may serve only to make a well-informed minister look better than he is.

If you ask the question, knowing the answer, well aware it can embarrass the government, you can enrage the prime minister and make the cabinet squirm.

Former Thunder Bay MP Douglas Fisher still holds the title of having asked the most damaging question of recent record.

Knowing the humiliating answer, he asked former Finance Minister Walter Gordon if he had called in some "outsiders" — three money-men from Toronto's Bay street, of all things — raising places — to help write the federal budget, that most confidential of all confidential government papers.

Imagine! Letting three economic whiz-kids from the headquarters of the Canadian financial and investment community have a pre-budget peek at — who would be paying what taxes!

It was the beginning of the end for Walter Gordon.

Currently, just about the most deadly in the expertise of asking that kind of question is Maritime Conservative MP Robert Coates.

Coates it was who speared Energy Minister Joe Greene with questions about redecorating the ministerial executive suite, with green phones, green drapes, green everything — when the government was supposed to be saving money like crazy.

Then there is an entirely different kind of question.

You ask it, knowing it cannot be answered. It simply explodes in the outraged face of a cabinet minister who well realizes there is just no possible reply.

Master of this art of the unanswerable question is Conservative House Leader Gerald William "Jed" Baldwin, MP for Peace River.

Now "Jed" is the quiet, courteous type. Seems sort of a gentle guy. And after 11 years of being zapped by "Jed," cabinet ministers still seem shocked to rediscover what they knew all along, that he is far from being a patsy.

Mark it down to appearances being deceiving. "Jed" who purrs like a pussy-cat can claw like a tiger.

Here is a quick sampling-off-the-top of some of the impossible-to-answer questions "Jed" Baldwin has fired at the Trudeau cabinet:

At Finance Minister Benson: How high does the cost of living have to go before becoming so utterly unacceptable you have to do something about it?

At Prime Minister Trudeau: Don't you think that any government should be so open government — particularly this government which slinks and crawls at its devious, sly and crooked path along the shady nooks of concealment?

At Consumer Affairs Minister Basford: Is the government coming up with any weapon other than unemployment, hardship and bankruptcy to fight inflation?

At Works Minister Laing: How was it you got so suddenly sidetracked in your hot pursuit of austerity as to have $25 million for a new defence headquarters?

At External Affairs Minister Sharp: The prime minister has said that diplomats are a dying breed — so is that new $35 million luxury office building for External by way of the minister's mausoleum?

At Finance Minister Benson: Wouldn't you agree that the prime minister is threatening tough action on prices sounds a lot like the moose that roared?

At Government House Leader MacDonald: Is the administration's delay in setting up its Public Accounts Committee due to its understandable reluctance to have the auditor-general testify why he needs more staff to deal with the increasingly complex cases of government waste and extravagance?

How can you hunter question like those? There is no way. Because before a minister tries to wish it not often — Mr. Speaker rules the question out of order.

But out of order or not, there it remains on the Commons record.

Way to go, "Jed" boy, zap it to 'em, as George Hees might say.

"Do you accept Chargex cards?"

Wolf Population

The Tyranosaur

Where are the wolves coming from and why? Every county in the area is reporting a greatly increased wolf population. Livestock depredations in 1969 were heavier than for some years. A higher bounty is being sought.

According to some experts, the majority of these are strictly coyotes and not wolves. Whatever they are, they are numerous, and they have come south in large numbers.

Is the food game which is their prey decreasing in northern regions? Is the ban on hunting in many townships responsible? It may be, because rabbits are certainly more numerous and the wolves may be finding this a happy hunting ground.

At any rate it seems a real enough problem, and councils everywhere are being asked for action.

Prime Minister Trudeau has been given the benefit of her advice. It is Robert Bourassa, the young economist sometimes suspected of cultivating a Trudeau-style image.

But Miss LaMarsh prefers him because he is "sexy," which suggests the former cabinet minister, in the view of many Canadian females, has her wires crossed somewhere. And how this fits him for the job she has not spelled out.

Kindergartens For African Children

South African Scope

The kindergarten plays an important role in the Bantu suburbs of Pretoria. Ilirleng is in the township of Mamelodi, and is one of the eight well-equipped kindergartens or nursery schools maintained by Pretoria's city council.

All the work is done by Bantu women with guidance from welfare workers. Toddlers between the ages of, two and six are brought to the kindergartens weekdays, but before they are accepted they are given a medical examination.

Ilirleng, which means big fig tree in Bantu, suggests a shady place. Children are encouraged to participate in group activities. The Bantu are well-known for their story-telling ability and legendary stories are always a popular item of daily routine.

Attention is also given to a more formal curriculum such as teaching of reading and writing. Afternoons are given over to rest for the youngsters.

CAROLE BOISVERT

Ex-constable Says He Has No Direct Knowledge of 'Fixes'

TORONTO (CP) — Former police constable Peter Lott told the Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission Monday he had rifled through police files looking for proof that senior officers had fixed tickets for some drivers.

Testifying at the third week of an inquiry into allegations that some senior officers interfered with charges laid against prominent persons, Lott said his superiors gave him a chance to check the files by putting him on night station duty prior to resignating last October.

The inquiry was told last week that when Lott quit the force he was facing departmental charges of trying to extort $500 from a motorist charged with impaired driving.

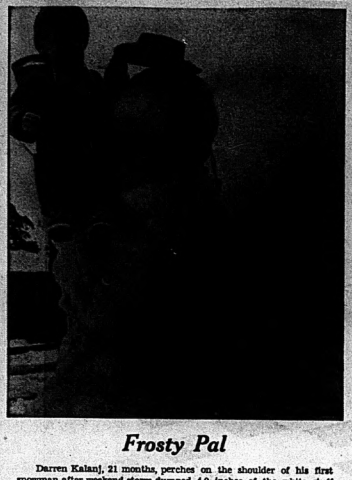
Lott said Monday, under questioning by lawyer Arthur Maloney representing some police officers, that he made his charges about ticket fixing after an investigation had been started into his alleged extortion attempt.

He said he began to check the files for proof after Chief James Morgan had called him "a crooked cop."

Lott, 36, also said he had no direct knowledge of fixes in 13 years on the force and was going only on hearsay.

Lott also testified that Inspector David Freeman showed him a trunk full of liquor when he searched Freeman's car. Lott said Freeman told him the liquor was for the baseball team of the police traffic division.

Earlier, Constable Ian Semmel, who with Lott made the allegations that led to the inquiry, said he once complained to his superiors that Freeman boasted to police that there was no point in giving him a ticket — he was a friend of Deputy Chief (John) Murray and it would only get torn up."



Constable Semmel said "it's a little '30s or early '40s" he stopped Freeman for jay-walking in front of Maple Leaf Gardens but before he could write a ticket, he had to leave to help a child injured by a car.

Semmel said Freeman told him there was no point in giving him a ticket because he was a friend of Murray and Insp. Earl Norwood.

Semmel said he was able to get the particulars from Freeman after the injured child had been taken care of, and returned to No. 1 traffic station to make out a summons.

Semmel said he stopped Freeman about six months later for speeding. Freeman said at this time: "I'm David Freeman. I supply refreshments to the bowling team at One Traffic."

He said Freeman told him it would "be no use making out a summons, I'd be wasting my time," but didn't say why.

Act Interpreted

Media the Nervous System of Society Combines Investigator Tells Committee

OTTAWA (CP) — Any problems of monopoly and ownership concentration among communications media are of more concern to society than those in any other field Canada's top government consumer investigator told the special Senate committee on mass media today.

D. H. W. Henry, federal director of investigation and research under the combines investigation Act, testified that the problems of competition, concentration and monopoly are "of very great relevance" to the communications industry.

"Because the media of communications is, in effect, the nervous system of society, there is no field in which excessive concentration or anti-competitive practices can be of greater concern to society."

Mr. Henry, head-off witness in the inquiry's second two-week set of public hearings, said that printed publications are subject to anti-combines legislation. These include daily and weekly newspapers, periodicals, magazines and books.

As a result, they are subject to "fair-play" under the act in relation to mergers, monopolistic situations, combines and other prohibited activities."

While the exhibiting of a film to patrons of a theatre is not covered by the act, its production and rental are. In the same way the broadcasting of material via radio, television and cable television is outside the act. But equipment such as television sets is covered.

As in broadcasting, the service provided by telephone, telegraph and telex are beyond the scope of the act, although the rental of equipment in the consumer is not. But charges for the actual communication of the message are outside the act.

Mr. Henry said that although telecommunications services are not covered by this door yet, precludes a formal inquiry under the act in connection with certain aspects or activity of firms in this area. In this way undue concentration of control can be examined.

"For example, in the case of the current inquiry into Bell Canada, the line of inquiry concerns the impact on the independent manufacturers of telecommunications equipment of Bell's near-monopoly position as a purchaser of such equipment and the control of an important unregulated supplier.

"It would similarly be of concern if a telecommunications company insisted that its own or designated makers of computer or information retrieval equipment could alone be attached to its system, as this could give it control over the development of the equipment and ultimately, remotely over sources of information."

Mr. Henry, in his prepared statement submitted to the committee, also said that the "process of programming and information retrieval" used in computers and data banks is beyond the act's scope.

"However, the purchase or rental of equipment necessary to make use of the service would be subject to the act." Advertising activity except where misleading is outside the act.

Generally, the act applies to goods rather than services. But specified services involving storage, rental and transportation of goods are covered.

Dealing generally with mergers, he said they occur at the rate of 300 or 400 a year in Canada in sectors covered by the act. Most raise no question under the act. The courts have ruled that competition must be "virtually stifled" before the merger is a violation.

Home and School Urges Self-censorship

OTTAWA (CP) — Communications enterprises should exercise a form of self-censorship to eliminate stress on violence, vulgarity and sex in broadcasting, film and print, the special Senate committee on mass media was told today.

The Canadian Home and School and Parent-Teacher Federation also says in a submission prepared for the committee that government should be promoting educational television more actively.

The federation, which lists a membership of about 200,000, calls for thorough research into the effects of television on children. It suggests the committee itself should include TV's influence on children in its researches.

The federation's submission is prepared by Edgar D. Gillespie, chairman of the organization's audio-visual education committee. The Senate committee resumes public investigation of communications today after a Christmas adjournment. Its public sessions started last month.

Urging expansion of educational television facilities, the federation says cultural programs "will do much to offer an alternative to the banalities, the insults to intelligence, the stress on crime, brutality, vulgarity and sex which permeate much of commercial TV programs."

"It may be that television, newspapers, magazines, books and movies have helped set the psychological stage for riots and the use of force."

The submission cites indications that others in society are becoming as concerned as the federation about television.

"Although government censorship is not generally acceptable, it may be that broad controls may be required in the future. Certainly our federation would strongly endorse self-imposed controls and standards of decency by the mass media which in the long run would appear to be the most advantageous approach to these problems."

Calling for expansion of educational TV, known as ETV, the federation says broadcast authorities should reserve for future ETV programs both remaining Very High Frequency broadcast bands as well as Ultra High Frequency bands.

The federation says ,ETV should be controlled by provincial authorities politically independent of provincial governments.

Canada Pays Through Nose for Illusion

TORONTO (CP) — The report of the royal commission on farm machinery shows that Canada has "allowed herself to pay through the nose in return for the illusion of cheap technology," the president of a computer firm said Monday.

Robert Parker, president of Multiple Access General Computer Corp. Ltd., said the report, published Friday, showed that Canadians are gullible when they allow a situation to exist where tractors are sold in Canada for up to 45 per cent more than the same equipment in Britain.

Mr. Parker also said that the report's recommendation that the practice be stopped by having farm equipment firms negotiate with their multi-national parent companies for price reductions was "ridiculous."

"I predict the laughter will be echoing around the foreign boardrooms six months from now," Mr. Parker said.

He made his remarks during a speech to the Canadian Club, in which he claimed Canada has been foolish and unrealistic to allow so much of her industry to become foreign-dominated.

Wholesale Tractor Prices, Canada and Britain 1968

No 'Handsome' Profits Made in Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Contrary to the findings of the royal commission on farm machinery, profits from farm equipment operations in Canada are not "handsome," A. A. Thornbrough, president of Massey-Ferguson Ltd., said in a statement Monday.

"The facts are that during 1966 and 1967 Massey-Ferguson farm machinery operations resulted in losses," he said.

The royal commission, set up in 1966 to investigate farm machinery prices, said in a report Friday that it found wholesale prices of tractors in Britain 30 to 45 per cent lower than in Canada. It said a few large multi-national corporations set "discriminatory and artificial" prices which yielded them "very handsome profits."

The commissioner, Dr. Clarence Barber, recommended that the federal combines branch investigate the situation.

Mr. Thornbrough's statement said the commission was "well aware" that there was no evidence to suggest that Massey-Ferguson had a tacit understanding with any of its competitors on tractor pricing.

However, he said his company would welcome discussions with the government on price differences between tractors in Canada and Britain, as the commission suggested.

Mr. Thornbrough said Massey-Ferguson's profits from its worldwide operations in 1969 were three per cent of sales "below acceptable levels in manufacturing."

The company reported net earnings of $33,100,000 for the year ended Oct. 31, 1969, on sales of $1,043,400,000.

At that time it said farm machinery sales in Canada, Canada and the United States were unsatisfactory. The increased profits of the company to $28,400,000 in 1968—were from other branches of its operations.

Cancer in Dog Given Mini-pill in U.S. Brings End to Testing on Women Volunteers

PALO ALTO, Calif. (CP-AP) — Cancer found in a dog testing the new "mini-pill" oral contraceptives has led to suspension of testing on women volunteers in the United States, Syntex Laboratories has announced.

In Ottawa, it was also disclosed that testing on 300 Canadian women was halted six weeks ago when it was found that dogs given the pill developed small lumps on their breasts.

Dr. Jeffrey Bishop of the Federal Food and drug directorate said Monday that the first lumps on the dogs were "definitely not malignant but that their nature has not been fully determined."

Dr. Bishop, head of the directorate's advisory bureau, said that the "manufacturer agreed the tests on women should be suspended at the suggestion of the directorate."

Some 4,700 women worldwide are being tested with the mini-pill—so named for its low hormone content — a company spokesman said.

Tests on American women will be stopped under a voluntary decision reached after discussions with the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, Syntex said Monday.

Tests on other women will continue pending the outcome of talks with health officers in the countries involved, the spokesman said.

The pill is not marketed in the United States but has been sold in France, Mexico and the United Kingdom for several years.

Russ Wilks, spokesman for the firm, one of the leading producers of oral contraceptives, said evidence of "pre-cancerous changes" and a "cancerous lump" in the mammary system of one test dog prompted the decision to discontinue testing on women in the United States.

"It's have been lumps found in the mammary systems of some of the dogs," Wilks said. "Some of the lumps show pre-cancerous changes, some are benign and one was cancer.

"We haven't had any reactions like this in any of our test monkeys. One woman had an irregular vaginal bleeding but, other than that, there have been no roblems with the women volunteers.

"We don't know if the changes in the dogs are peculiar to dogs or what. Further study of the pill is needed and that's why we decided to stop testing on women."

Wilks said the company tested the substance chlormadinone acetate but not the hormone estrogen, a major element in the standard pill, which has been on the U.S. market for nearly 10 years.

No breast lumps attributed to the use of chlormadinone acetate have been reported from Mexico, France or the United Kingdom, Syntex said.

The spokesman said it is possible that dogs or certain species of dogs are uniquely sensitive to such tumors.

The company said that its standard oral contraceptive pill distributed in the United States does not contain chlormadinone acetate.

Dr. Bishop said "there was no evidence whatsoever" that any of the Canadian women involved in the clinical tests had developed nodules or any abnormalities of the beast.

He described the mini-pill, which contains only the single synthetic hormone progestin, as "a good idea" because it eliminated entirely the controversial estrogen hormones, which some doctors think can cause cancer or blood clotting.

The studies of the mini-pill's effects on the dogs will continue, he said.

The Food and Drug Administration has told doctors they should explain the risks of high blood pressure, liver damage, diabetes and cancer to women taking oral contraceptive pills even though the agency has no definite proof of any such link.

The FDA also announced Monday manufacturers will be required to strengthen the label warnings about a link between the pill and blood clots.

The FDA, in suggesting fuller discussion with patients of the risks of oral contraceptive pills, sent letters to 381,000 U.S. physicians, hospital pharmacists and hospital administrators. The letter pointed in a recent British study that found clotting linked particularly to oral contraceptives with high estrogen content.

Decision Said Up to Physician

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal food and drug directorate officials feel the contraceptive pill is in the risk-benefit category when prescribed by a physician, Health Minister John Munro said Monday.

Questioned at a news conference following announcement of a national council of welfare, the minister said a physician could weigh possible risks against benefits to his patient before prescribing the contraceptive pill.

At the moment there had been "nothing clear-cut" enouth to make his department think that a physician should not be allowed this choice.

The food and drug directorate had been looking behind statements on possible harmful effects of the device for evidence backing them up.

Mr. Munro said that if his department got sufficient evidence of harmful symptoms caused by the pill, he would have to take action to prevent its sale.

Adoption Should Be Treated As Life

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: We have a chosen daughter, now nine, and chosen son, now six, adopted in infancy. We have always told them they were chosen. We explained to them: children are given to parents through their mother, whilst others are chosen, but all given in trust to the parents to assist in their full development as citizens.

We have stressed that children, chosen or given, are equally good. We maintain photographs, showing them from the time of infancy, and to date they seem normally well and understanding. Both are doing well in their school work, with guidance being given by both parents as a team.

It is our feeling there should never be any secret of how through adoption, or normal means. Treat the matter as life, without any emotion, and children will also accept accordingly. — Mac

Dear Mac: I'm sure this is the very best idea.

Dear Doris: Keep up the good work against cigarette smoking.

My husband is in hospital again. We tried hard at home to get him on his feet, making daily trips to hospital for the Bennett Machine treatments, for almost a month, but it was useless.

He has emphysema and has a hard time to breathe most of the time. It is a dreadful disease. It was caused from smoking and he now tells people that. At first, he wouldn't admit it. Cigarettes are an awful curse and so many people won't believe it. — Hazel

Dear Hazel: I know. And over these past months, as he has struggled for each breath, you have struggled with him. How is it that so many smokers brush off all warnings with a frivolous, "Oh, it will never happen to me?"

Dear Doris: Your column is the highlight of the paper, as far as I am concerned. Your advice to others has also helped me a great deal.

Please send me the poem about "Albert Rambotton and the Lion". Ten cents enclosed. — Mrs. I. H.

Dear Doris: I have a great granddaughter who recites "Adam and Eve", and if she does as well with "Albert," we shall get many a good time.— J. H.

Dear Mrs. I. H. and J. H.: You and a few thousand others it seems, judging by the requests that have been rolling in. Albert is an old favorite.

EXPERIMENT IN HUMANITY — Vicky Palmer and a group of Montreal Free School students read a book in the school's living room. The idea of the Free School originated with Mrs. Palmer and her husband, a McGill University music teacher. Most of the parents with children at the school didn't like the regimentation in regular schools and wanted "something freer and more humane," says Mrs. Palmer. (CP Photo)

Some Quebec Schools Are Experimenting With New Methods of Primary Teaching

MONTREAL (CP) — Among the handful of Quebec schools experimenting with new methods of primary teaching is the Montreal Free School, located in a narrow stone house on a side street of downtown Montreal.

The 23 children who fill its halls with a high level of noise and a clutter of lunch buckets, jigsaw puzzle pieces and stray library books, range in age from four to 12, and are largely sons and daughters of university teachers.

They are there because their parents were unhappy with what they saw as the too-strictly-regimented and uninspired teaching of the public school system.

Vicky Palmer, 32, is a teacher at the school and the mother of three students. She said in an interview that she and her husband, a music teacher at McGill, found the public schools were destructive and made their children "hate learning."

"Most of the parents here didn't like the regimentation children get at a regular school and wanted something freer and more humane, where children could develop at their own rate."
